

On Memorial Day—1957

I'll shed not a tear, nor waste a sigh,
For the gallant dead who so bravely died.
I'll sing no song, nor venture a rhyme,
For those who passed in valor's clime.

Nor will I pray on aching knee,
For solvent hearts who found destiny,
In cleansing fires of self-sacrifice,
Dying testate to Freedom's price.

But I'll sing and I'll pray and I'll shed a tear,
For man's best hopes, that those dying held dear.
For in these dreams live their monuments,
A gift that the future might be well spent.

So, lest we become only sounding brass,
Let's live for a future that credits the past.
Let's write our paeans on granite deeds,
And grow our freedom on Liberty's seeds.

Civic Military Leaders Lead Memorial Day Fete

Tomorrow, the Presidio joins hands with the Nation, in ceremonial participation honoring the dead of all wars.

Memorial Day ceremonies here begin at 1000 hours, Thursday, when the Sixth U.S. Army Honor Guard with its color bearers, converge beyond the Lombard Gate, with massed units of municipal and military organizations headed by Mayor George Christopher, Police Chief Frank Ahern, The Honorable Henry R. Rolph, General Chairman for the Memorial Day Citizens Committee, Captain A. L. Barton, of the 15th Naval District Veterans of Foreign Wars, and a delegation of Gold Star Mothers from the Bay Area.

From Van Ness Avenue, the parade enters the Presidio, en route to San Francisco National Cemetery for Memorial Day ceremonies which include the placing of a wreath on the Cenotaph by the Honorable Henry Rolph and Captain Barton.

CG's Message

Today we honor America's soldier dead. We honor the valiant who in the floodtide of youth gave their lives for their country, and those who, having survived the nation's wars, earned in the fullness of time a soldier's rest. To the places where they lie at home and abroad, kin, comrades, friends and strangers will journey today, bringing them tributes of heart and hand, of affection and deep respect.

For us in the Armed Forces, the poignancy of this day is tempered by resolution. We who are heirs of all the generations of military dead must go forward in our lifetimes, doing our soldier's duty to the fullest, serving our nation with devotion and pride, so that in the summing up, we shall be as deserving of the nation's high regard as those whose memory we honor today.

Among the parade units will be those representing veterans of the Spanish American War, the Civil War, the two World Wars and the Korean War, the American Legion, the Police and Fire Departments, and bands from the San Francisco High Schools.

General Robert N. Yeung, Sixth U.S. Army commander, will deliver an address at the Cenotaph, followed by a two-minute silence honoring the dead, at 1158 hours, and the firing of a 21-gun salute by Presidio riflemen at 1200 noon. Lieutenant Nicholas B. Nikas will direct the Memorial Day firing squad.

Chaplain (Lt. Colonel) Carl S. Ledbetter, Sixth U.S. Army Chaplains Section, Chaplain (Captain) Robert J. Plocki, Post Chaplains Section, and Chaplain (Major, US AR) William Dalin, Sixth U.S. Army Auxiliary Chaplain, will unite in the Invocation and Prayer ceremonies.

Ord Personnel Center Moved To Oakland Binns Named As Sixth Army Chief of Staff

The processing of Army personnel returning from overseas for separation from the service which has been conducted at Fort Ord will be assumed by the Personnel Center at Oakland Army Terminal as of Friday, 31 May.

All West Coast processing of overseas returnees for separation will now be accomplished at the Personnel Centers at Fort Lewis and Oakland Army Terminal, which has previously processed certain categories of personnel for separation.

Monetary savings will be effected because few additional personnel will be required at Oakland and the returnees will not have to make an additional trip from the Bay Area for separation at Fort Ord.

Civilian personnel affected by the change will be able to transfer to Oakland Army Terminal or accept other employment at Fort Ord.

New Dental Chief

Lt. Col. James M. Enmeier has been named Sixth Army Dental Officer. The colonel is presently the Executive Officer for the section.

Major General John Joseph Binns, former Chief of Staff, Army Forces Far East, Eighth U.S. Army, will become the Sixth Army Chief of Staff on 5 June. Honors are planned on 6 June.

General Binns succeeds Brig. Gen. L. J. Rumaggi who has been assigned to the U.S. Army Engineer Division North Central in Chicago.

The new Chief of Staff was graduated from the U.S. Military Academy and commissioned a second lieutenant of Field Artillery in 1923. He later was graduated from the Field Artillery School and the Command and General Staff School in 1939.

Upon graduation from the latter school, General Binns served with the Ninth Field Artillery Regiment at Fort Ord and Fort Lewis. He then became an instructor in the Department of Tactics and the Department of Publications at the Field Artillery School.

In July, 1943, General Binns was appointed chief of the Strategic Logistics Branch of the Army Service Forces at Washington, D.C. He was awarded the Legion of Merit for outstanding services rendered during his 13-month assignment there.

The general assumed command of the 224th Field Artillery Group in August, 1944, and ac-

You may die this weekend!

You may die this weekend.

You may drown, be accidentally electrocuted, slip in the bathtub, fall from a high place, or even pass quietly in your sleep.

Your best chance to die, however, will be on a crowded highway. Either in, or as the result of, a recklessly driven car traveling at high speed.

Chances are it won't be a lonely death. Others will die or be injured or maimed with you. There will be highway patrolmen, ambulance drivers and the passing curious on hand for your death.

You'll have music, too. The cries of the other injured. The weeping of loved ones. Screeching sirens. The whole "Cacophony of Needless Tragedy" will herald you on your way to eternity.

Your death will also bring immortality. An odd sort, true, but nevertheless you will live forever — as a statistic. You'll be victim number blank in the year 1957. Etched eternally in the accident addenda of useless death.

You may die this weekend. And it's a shame! For, you could live if you:

- Stay off the crowded highways.
- Obey all traffic regulations.
- Make courtesy your driving byword.

Simple enough? Well, do it, and you'll be around to read about the 175 automobile deaths (Memorial Day — 24-hour period, only) that the National Safety Council has predicted for this holiday.

Scotsman Loves Pipes, Drums, America

In the nearly three years he served as a piper with the Sixth Army Pipe Band, Sp3 William Copperauld could always count on at least one loyal and devoted fan — brother Charles.

When the band visited the Los Angeles area, fifteen year old Charles never missed a performance. When brother William came home on leave he hung on every word about the band's visits to famous festivals and fairs, performances before noted military and civilian leaders. He even listed every trophy, medallion or ribbon that went into the Pipe Band's bulging trophy case.

It was inevitable—at seventeen, Charles won parental consent and joined the Army for three years. Followed basic at Ft. Ord and then a fulfillment of all his youthful dreams—assignment to the Sixth Army Pipe Band as a drummer.

Born in Glasgow, Scotland, Copperauld came to America with his family in 1951. The Copperaulds had met in the United States, then returned to Scotland to get married. Twenty-five years followed

Quick Action Is Slated On New Pay Systems

Washington (AFPS)—The services will take "immediate action" on a "proficiency pay" system for critical enlisted skills under present Congressional authority, according to Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson.

The Defense Department also will ask for new legislation permitting lump sum "term retention" payments to reserve officers, he said.

Immediate action will be started to deal with the "most urgent" aspects of the military manpower problem, according to Mr. Wilson.

This involves a system of proficiency pay for enlisted personnel in occupations of "critical importance" which will be initiated within the administrative authority of existing law.

The proficiency pay, which will go to approximately 15 per cent of the total enlisted strength of the four services, will be based on demonstrated ability in a skill of critical importance. Depending upon rank and years of service, qualified personnel will receive pay increases ranging from $12 to $50 a month.

Mr. Wilson announced the new plans in explaining defense policy for a long-range program to improve the military manpower structure of the Armed Forces.

"The program is designed to meet requirements imposed on our military forces by unprecedented technological progress and the need to retain skilled personnel.

"Ultimately the Cordiner Committee compensation and manpower management recommendations will be the foundation for an integrated program to achieve and maintain the necessary quality, experience level and balance by skills to assure the most effective and economical defense posture for the nation," Mr. Wilson said.

At the same time, proposed new legislation has been approved by the Bureau of the Budget. Earlier proposals based on the complete Cordiner "package" having been turned down, the bill will seek authorization for lump sum term retention pay for reserve officers.

The measure would award these payments on the basis of two months' pay for every year of active duty beyond their obligated service up to a maximum of two years' pay upon involuntary separation of these officers.

The legislation would involve no increase in the budget for FY 1958 and 1959. Calculated on present plans of the services, the estimated cost would be: FY 1960—$230,000; FY 1961—$6.9 million; and FY 1962—$5.6 million.

Compensation adjustments will be only a part of the defense program. Among other measures which will be instituted are:

• More effective controls on reenlistments to insure that only those who can make a worthwhile contribution to the force are reenlisted.

• Increased and continuing emphasis on retraining of personnel who are in excess of requirements in less technical occupations.

• Selective retention of fully qualified officers.

Mr. Wilson said further study and development of the over-all Cordiner Committee program will be a major Defense Department project under the direction of Mr. William H. Francis, Jr., Assistant Secretary of Defense (Manpower and Reserve).

Gary B. Nuss, son of Colonel R. W. Nuss, Sixth U.S. Army Finance Section, will be graduated from the Naval Academy at Annapolis, 1 June.

Cadet Nuss is one of 13 students in his class whose fathers are Army officers. Four members of the group are entering the Air Force after they receive their commissions. The others have chosen the Navy.

always wanted to come back. Dad? Well, he seemed reluctant to start all over again."

The Copperaulds had hardly settled in Los Angeles when William joined the Army. Having played the pipes since an early age, he was a natural for assignment to the band.

"I don't remember who was prouder of my brother's new job, my parents or myself. In Scotland we begin on the pipes at an early age. I started when I was nine. Later I gave it up for the drums, which I learned from my uncle. However, I still keep my hand in as a hobby."

Noting some of the differences between America and Scotland, Copperauld had only one adverse comment.

"Discipline in the Scottish School System is rigorous—in America there is none at all!"

As to opportunities for young people and general living conditions he felt there was no comparison.

"This is the only place in the world for me. I'm studying for my citizenship exam and looking forward to the day I'll be a full-fledged American!"

Col. Van Orsdel began his military career as an enlisted man in 1932. He was graduated from the Adjutant General Advance Officer School, Fort Benjamin Harrison and he served in Germany during World War II, as executive officer of the XXIII Corps, AG Section, remaining after war's end with the Berlin District AG.

Safety Report Shows Decline In Some Areas

Nine Army motor vehicle and one Army aircraft accident were recorded last month, according to a Post announcement. Ten additional accidents causing disabling injuries were also reported.

Two of the vehicle accidents were caused by following too closely. Other contributing factors were misjudged clearance, excessive speed, assuming right-of-way and vehicle mechanical failure. The aircraft accident resulted from pilot error.

Four of the disabling injuries were due to wet, slippery or rough surfaces. Others were caused by operation of non-Army motor vehicle, unsafe dress or apparel, housekeeping and operation of an Army motor vehicle. The one fatality was due to drowning.

The report shows a decrease in civilian disabling injuries and the motor vehicle accident rate.

Army Seeks New Stress On Safety

Last year accidents cost the Sixth Army area more than $5,000,000 in injuries and property damage, according to a Sixth Army announcement. Included in the total were 60 fatalities and 1,599 disabling injuries to military and civilian personnel.

Since the accident rate has continued at this level during 1957, installations and activities have been urged to reevaluate present safety programs.

Suggested steps to alleviate the situation include periodic briefing of all personnel on hazards inherent to duty or work assignment; emphasizing the importance of obtaining medical attention for all injuries; and stressing the necessity for off-duty, off-the-job compliance with safety practices, rules and standards.

Presidio Troop Proves Tops In Scout Marksmanship Try

Marksmanship honors were brought home to the Presidio this week by five members of the Explorer Patrol, Troop 77, who attended the Bay Area Explorer Bivouac at Parks Air Force Base on a three-day junket.

Accompanied by Chaplain Major Erhard Harms, Scout Committee chairman, and their exploring, in events designed to give each Explorer an opportunity to prove his skill as an individual as well as part of a team.

This year's bivouac plan stressed problems of survival in emergency, taken from requirements in the Explorer Rating Manual.

John Mason, Bert Sales, Hank Greenleaf, Dick Harms, and Bill Kellman won 2nd place in Rifle Marksmanship, and the Bronze Award for overall excellency in general performance.

Undermanned in number for team participation, the Presidio boys made up in quality what they lacked in quantity. All of them were new to the bivouac scene, but when it came to team competition, some of the lads filled the breach by taking the place of two. Their percentages in unit events came to a high total of 99, while they achieved 86 on bivouac events.

Purpose of the bivouac was to promote and advance the principles and the program of Ex-

Two carnival-dances will be sponsored by the Service Clubs next week for the benefit of the Army Emergency Relief-Army Relief Society Fund Campaign.

The Presidio Service Club has scheduled its fund-raising event at 2000 hours, 6 June. The Forts Cronkhite and Baker clubs are jointly sponsoring "Carnival Capers" at 2030 hours on 7 June at the Fort Baker club.

(This column of The Sketchbook is dedicated to S/Sgt. Jose C. Papuyo, full-blooded Pueblo Indian, now assigned to the 83rd Fighter Interception Squadron at Hamilton Air Force Base. Sgt. Papuyo, a Star Presidian reader, provided the background information on the story of the festival. D.)

If you were a Presidio soldier around 1774, you would live in an off-duty setting as strange and colorful as the coat of the Biblical Joseph . . . among festive ceremonials whose origins lay in the Peruvian Andes . . . or in Asia.

For instance . . . if it were summertime, and you a venturesome fellow . . . you might wander into an Indian village where a Christian saint was about to be honored.

Although the customs were in essence Pagan, the spiritual world of the Indians was then gravitating toward the faith of the wandering Mexican and Spanish missionaries . . . toward symbols of Christianity long marked in the Roman calendar.

If again . . . it were summertime . . . and the eve of Saint Augustine's Day . . . you could see something . . . not recorded in any history book, but sacred and historic nonetheless . . . for it marked the day the Pueblo Indians had adopted Saint Augustine as their patron . . . on the teaching of the mission priests of Cortez.

Sitting on an old stone fence beyond the Golden Gate bridge . . . out of sight but in range of view . . . you could watch them prepare for the holy event.

The day would begin with sweat baths . . . taken as a means of purifying their souls before paying tribute to their patron saint. Fore-runner of the modern steam cabinet now used in conditioning salons, the bath was a box-like building of dried mud and with only one small air vent. To this the women brought containers of boiling water . . . coming in relays so that the male occupants would be properly cleansed of their sins in its steam. This, coupled with the fact that there was also a corresponding three-day rigid fast observed, makes it easy to understand why there were so few fat Indian men.

Saint Augustine was honored with a wild rabbit hunt which followed the cleansing period. . . Around the Indian village beyond the Presidio would gather the purified warriors with their wives and children. Their long black hair was braided and they wore deerskin kilts . . . to begin a covered wagon and horseback pilgrimage in search of their prey.

Reaching the hunting ground, they dismounted and formed a huge circle . . . beating the bushes and the sandy burrows until they had herded together hundreds of frightened rabbits . . . killing them with clubs and stones or by strangling with their bare hands.

Rabbit-laden they rode home in the evening, to make processional to the church and cushion its damp stone floor with the warm bodies of the sacrificial offerings . . . but not as a permanent gift to Saint Augustine. . . They took them back once the ritualistic gesture was accomplished . . . from which one may deduct came the modern phrase . . . "an Indian giver."

They skinned and cleaned the rabbits . . . placing them on red-hot stones to roast . . . and the air around them would be heavy with the fragrance of wild, roasted rabbit.

Once the feasting was over . . . you might watch them congregate in the village for the final celebration of Saint Augustine's Day. Above their doeskin kilts hung tortoise shell rattles and elk hoofs swinging from their vivid-colored buckskin belts . . . green and yellow feathers dancing in their black hair, and on their naked breasts . . . strings of shell beads and multi-colored stones.

And then would come the clowns . . . naked excepting their loin-cloths . . . sacred men having power over the corn harvest and the lives of children being formed in their mothers' wombs . . . dandies bearing potent elk-heart love medicine to conquer the Indian girls who caught their calculating eyes.

Leaping and tumbling . . . climbing over the roofs of the mud huts . . . flinging themselves from the roofs . . . and ogling the women while they outlined by gestures the moon-haunted love pattern of a young Indian brave and his girl.

These were the Pueblo Indians . . . wanderers from Arizona and New Mexico . . . and this was what they gave to Saint Augustine . . . at whose day's end they faded before your view . . . to melt into the shade behind the compound walls . . . listening like little children to the village storyteller . . . regaling them in ritualistic chant with the legends and the fables of their timeless and immortal heroes.

Father—Son Trip To Russian River Set As Scout Trip

A Fathers and Sons outing at Camp Royana near the Russian River is planned by the Explorer Troop of the Presidio Boy Scouts, on 8 and 9 June.

The outing is mostly for the purpose of getting the dads out to help with preparations for the official opening of the Scout Camp this summer. However, the Russian River is one of the best fishing areas in this district, so the boys are not adverse to their fathers' bringing along the tackle for an off-duty hassle with the fish.

Sfc. R. J. Reilly, the Scout Advisor, anticipates a 100 per cent turnout of fathers for the overnight Fix and Mix party at Camp Royana, 8 and 9 June.

Will Be Closed

The Quartermaster gas station, Bldg. 638, will be closed from 0745 to 1200 hours, Monday, 3 June, for inventory.

SOMETHING OF VALUE introduces Rock Hudson as Peter, son of a pioneer family raised in Kenya, East Africa, with a Kikuyu native boy. As boys, they enjoy a close relationship, but in growing up, the native boy is conscious of the widening gulf between himself and Peter. When the boy's father is jailed for following a tribal custom which has been banned, he becomes embittered and is easy prey for the Mau-Mau organization, which promises to rescue his father and destroy the white population.

The dread Mau-Mau terror suddenly strikes in full fury, led by the young native boy; some of Peter's own family are victims of the raid. Realizing that the boy is now a fanatic, Peter vows to capture him alive in order to break the hold the boy has on his followers. Peter's desperate efforts fail when the boy is killed on the spikes of an animal trap.

Peter returns to the village with the boy's body, hoping that peace has finally been won.

When the woman insists she is innocent of the crime, Mike decides to remain in Copenhagen to investigate the case. Soldier Scientists Serve Army Projects

Ever hear of a soldier scientist? Actually, the Army has utilized the services of these men since World War II and today approximately 5,000 scientific and professional enlisted men are working in some of its key jobs. Among this group are engineers, mathematicians, statisticians, accountants, chemists, physicists, meteorologists, astronomers, metallurgists, biologists, bacteriologists and psychologists.

A random check of scientific and professional soldiers' educational backgrounds showed degrees ranging from Bachelor of Science to Doctor of Philosophy, while their experience ranged from none following graduation to five or more years' work in specialized fields.

To fill its continuing need for these highly qualified men, the Army has a simple procedure. When an individual with specific qualifications comes through the reception station he is earmarked by name for the Scientific and Professional Personnel Program.

After basic combat training, soldiers slated for S&P slots are given a pencil, slide rule, or test tube instead of the traditional M-1 rifle and utilized in their chosen professions.

Since it has become increasingly difficult for the Army to compete with private industry in recruiting qualified civilians for this technical work, the S&P program has provided an effective means of supplementing the Army's technical manpower requirement. As an adjunct to the Army's over-all classification and assignment procedures, the program insures that these experts are identified upon entry into the service and utilized in jobs commensurate with their qualifications. If the automatic identification misses a qualified soldier during initial processing, he can request reclassification and perhaps get a subsequent assignment in an S&P slot.

Prerequisites for S&P personnel, which are revised from time to time, are based on current Army requirements in each field. The minimum educational requirement for eligibility in the present program is a bachelor's degree. However, some fields require post-graduate professional experience, a higher degree, or both.

Assignment instructions, which come on a name basis from The Adjutant General, Department of the Army, are in two distinct categories. They are Type A, which includes only those Army jobs closely related to civilian occupations requiring college training in research and development activities, and Type B, which includes jobs not of a professional nature but effectively utilizing a portion of an individual's training and experience.

Scientific and professional personnel are assigned throughout the country to some of the Army's most highly classified posts including the Army Chemical Center, Md., Army Biological Warfare Center, Camp Detrick, Md., Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Ala., and White Sands Proving Ground, N.M.

These men, in many instances, need little or no orientation before taking over a highly technical job. For example, an engineer physicist, upon completion of eight weeks' basic combat training, underwent brief periods of orientation at a large civilian hospital and in the shop of a manufacturer of medical equipment. He was then assigned to duty at a large medical center on high priority research project concerned with the development of electro-physiological equipment.

After donning khaki and finishing basic combat training not long ago, a radiological chemist was given duties in radiation sterilization of foods. His work saved the Army approximately $11,500 in contract costs.

Another S&P individual, shortly after being assigned to his military job, with a little assistance, designed and constructed a working model of a display and analog computer for message handling problems. He did this job at 1/20th the cost quoted by a subcontractor.

At present there are many unfilled scientific and professional vacancies, primarily in mathematics, statistics, mechanical engineering, electrical engineering and the biological sciences, where enlisted personnel could be effectively utilized, if available. Procurement of qualified civilian scientists and engineers presents a continuous problem. Consequently, the Army must rely on military manpower to augment its civilian team in carrying out its research and development mission.

This Army program has made more valuable soldiers and scientists of these men by giving them a chance to utilize their technical training in the interest of national security while serving their country.

Army Fencers Win In PCFC For First Time

Two Army teams placed first in the 32nd Annual Pacific Coast Fencing Championships for the first time in the history of the event, when the combined Presidio-Letterman teams took top spots in the Intermediate Foil Team Championships and the Intermediate Sabre Team Championships held at Letterman Army Hospital Gym.

The foil team, captained by Laurence Brownlee, and composed of Brownlee, Jose Tafoya, and Herb Rhodes, took the intermediate title for the first time in the Pacific Coast Matches. In the Intermediate Sabre events, Brownlee teamed with Tafoya and Severo Pasol to take first place in that event also.

Brownlee emerged as the top individual intermediate sabre champion of the meet and Tafoya took third spot in the individual intermediate foil championships. The combined Presidio-Letterman team won nine of a possible ten medals, taking seven gold medals, one bronze, and one silver medal.

The Hungarians far surpassed all competition and met each other in the finals for the Open Sabre Team title, with the northern California team emerging as the winner, and Orley of the team taking top honors in the Open Division of the individual Sabre Championship.

Two Wins One Loss For 740th

The 740th AAA Missile Battalion baseball team racked up two wins and one loss during the past week, downing Parks Air Force Base 7-4, defeating a highly touted San Mateo AMVETS team, 5-2, and falling before a strong SF Fire Department team, 8-4.

First game of the week was the encounter with the San Francisco Fire Department and the Firemen pushed across five runs in the first inning, from which the AAA team could not recover.

George Hane gave up two hits and allowed four walks in the initial inning before he was relieved on the mound by Frank Kramer. The 740th came back with four runs, but was too late to overcome the large lead the Firemen had built up in the first round.

The 740th collected only five hits in 40 trips to the plate while the Firemen connected for eleven hits in 36 trips to the plate.

In the 740th-Parks tilt, Hane was in top form, fanning 16 men and allowing only two hits. Hane was working on a two-hit shut-out in the ninth inning when Parks pushed across four unearned runs on errors by the 740th. The 740th connected nine times in 33 trips to the plate and capitalized on them for seven runs. Hane allowed only two hits while facing 29 Airmen.

There were no runs scored until the third inning in the 740th-AMVETS game when the AMVETS scored the first run. With Frank Kramer on the mound, the 740th went on to score five runs while allowing only one more run to the AMVETS to wind the game up at 5-2 in their favor. One of the AMVETS runs was a round-tripper off the bat of Madalgia. The game was witnessed by a crowd of 800 spectators.

Because of the wide variance in prior training and experience in rifle shooting of the civilian groups using the ranges, the Officer-in-Charge must adhere to a mandatory training schedule which includes the instruction in proper use and preservation of government property; in range regulation and procedures, and in range safety precautions.

Keystone Kops Sew Up First Place In Presidio Race, One Week To Go

In the Presidio League, last of the winter leagues on post, it's all over but the shouting, since the Keystone Kops hold a five game lead over their nearest competition, the Hardnoses, and there are only four games remaining to be played.

The race for the top spot was wide open until this week when the Kops took a 4-0 decision from Hq. Co., Sixth Army, while the Hilltoppers were handing the Hardnoses a 4-0 defeat to eliminate them from any possible contention for the top spot. Ed Johnson was high man for the Kops with 523-204 and Tushiki Sakurada topped the Hq. Co. team with 482-193.

The second place team in the league is still under question as the Hardnoses hold only one half game lead over the third place Hilltoppers. James Leonard paced the Hilltopper attack with 554-203 and Glenn Bolton topped the losers with 484-172.

Pouncing on the cellar-dwelling Radicals, the Sneakers took a 3-1 decision from them behind Ed-

CHAMPION DIVER Gordon Peak will bolster the Presidio Army Swimming and Diving team in the Sixth Army Championships to be held at Ft. MacArthur July 15-16. Peak has won numerous West Coast titles prior to entering the Army.

West Coast Champion Diver On Post Team

One of the brightest spots in the Presidio swimming and diving team picture is Pfc. Gordon Peak, Hq. Co., Sixth U.S. Army, who has competed from the high and low boards for the past eight years, garnering numerous West Coast titles and national titles during that time.

Peak hails from Fresno, California, where he first participated in high school competition and won the district diving championship during his senior year. Upon graduation from high school in 1950, he entered Fresno State College.

Fresno State College had no swim team until the organization of their first team during Peak's senior year. He went undefeated during that year while taking a double victory on the one and three meter springboards and won the Outstanding Participant's Award in the State Collegiate Swimming and Diving Championships of 1954.

During the same year, Peak participated in the National YMCA Swimming and Diving Championships held at Tucson, Arizona, placing third in the one meter competition and winning the national title in the three meter board.

Gordon has participated in AAU competition for the past seven years, annexing the Central California Association of AAU title three consecutive years in 1953-'54-'55. During these same three years, he completed the only triple winning of the San Joaquin Valley and Bakersfield Invitational Championships.

In the Senior National Outdoor Swimming and Diving Championships at Los Angeles in 1955, Peak placed fifteenth among the top divers from the United States, Mexico, and Japan. In the same year, he also placed second, to the third place winner of the platform diving in the Olympic Games, in the Far Western Swim and Diving Championships held here in San Francisco.

Competing against top divers from throughout the United States, Peak placed 10th in the Pan American Games tryouts held at Santa Barbara, California.

In the young Bay League, the Deuces are off to a flying start with 11 wins and only one loss thus far in competition. E. Kiersztian with 501-181 led the Deuces to a 4-0 whitewashing of the Officers' Open Mess team. C. Mahon was high man for the losers with 514-188.

Another 4-0 decision was rendered by the Triple Aces over 740th AAA. S. Culuris was high man for the Aces with 516-184 and W. Schweikhard topped the AAA team with 454-178. Continuing the 4-0 tallying, 56th MRU walked over the 99ers with D. Wehrheim's 483-176 being tops for the MRU team and D. Siggins topped the 99ers with 453-154.

Only series in the night's activity that strayed from the 4-0 rule was

Engineer Capt. Wins Praise For 'Inter American' Duties

A letter of commendation from the United States Ambassador to the Dominican Republic has been received by Capt. James R. Seufert, Company Commander of the 99th Engineers, 30th Engineer Group.

The letter culminates Captain Seufert's four-year tour as Officer in charge of the Inter American Goedetic Survey team to the Dominican Republic. The captain, who completed the tour last August, previously received a gold Medal from Gen. Rapael Trujillo and a Certificate of Achievement from Inter American Goedetic Survey.

While in the Dominican Republic, Captain Seufert was responsible for explaining the importance of the Inter American Goedetic Survey's mapping projects to the Government and assisting the country both technically and logistically in participating in the projects.

The Inter American Goedetic Survey is established in all countries of Latin and South America except Uruguay, Paraguay and Argentina. Directed by the Army Chief of Engineers, its purpose is to collaborate with the mapping agency of the individual country, helping them with technical assistance and standardizing their procedures to conform with U. S. standards and specifications.

Captain Seufert, who has been in the service since 1941, was graduated from Officers' Candidate School at Fort Belvoir, Va., in 1943. He was Commander of the 99th Engineer Company in 1951 before his assignment to the Dominican Republic.

accompanied it to the European Theater of Operations the following November. For a short period in 1945 he commanded the 188th Field Artillery Group and was awarded a Bronze Star Medal as commander, in supporting or reinforcing the fires of three divisions at the time of the breakthrough in the Remagen Bridgehead.

In 1947 General Binns returned to the United States and became chief of the Budget Control and Management Branch of the Civil Affairs Division, Department of the Army. He subsequently was appointed chief of the Military Personnel Branch of the European Command at Heidelberg, Germany; Comptroller, European Command and Headquarters, U.S. European Command; Assistant Division Commander and later Commander, 5th Armored Division; and Deputy Chief of Staff for Administration, Army Forces Far East, Eighth U.S. Army.

During his five-year period in Europe, General Binns was the Department of Defense member of the U.S. Delegation to the Tripartite Group on Germany; senior member of the European Command Advisory Group to the U.S. High Commissioner in Germany for the negotiation of the "convention between the Three Allied Powers and the German Federal Republic"; and the command representative in support of the Secretary of Defense at all meetings of the North Atlantic Council and the Foreign Ministers for two years.

Colmar Pocket Veteran Wins M/Sgt Promotion

A promotion to Master Sergeant — the last of any awarded by the 752nd AAA Battalion before its inactivation — was recently won by one of its unit Operations Non-Coms, Sfc. Weston F. Rimington.

The new M/Sgt. Rimington had been six years in grade at the time of his top non-com rating. He is assigned to the 6th Regional Antiaircraft Defense Command and he has been in Federal service since 1932.

During World War II, M/Sgt. Rimington served on combat duty with the Seventh Infantry Regiment, Third Division, in Europe. On a later tour he was assigned to the 572nd Military Police Company, ultimately with the 440th Transportation Truck Company. In the Philippines and Hawaii he was a member of the 27th Infantry Division's (Wolfhound) Regiment.

M/Sgt. Rimington was awarded the Croix De Guerre with Palm from the French Government for his services with a Third Division liaison unit assigned to the First French Army during the breaking of the Colmar Pocket. He also holds the Presidential Unit Citation with two Palms and the Meritorious Service Plaque with two numerals.

He was graduated from Mission High School and from Healds Business College, both in San Francisco. Prior to coming to the Presidio he was assigned to Headquarters, 436th AAA Battalion, Travis Air Force Base.

Now 43 years old, Sgt. Rimington

Army Studies Proficiency Pay Plan For 15 Per Cent

Washington (ANS)—The Army is studying plans for proficiency pay for up to 15 per cent of its enlisted personnel in grades E-4 through E-6 based on the principles of the Cordiner Committee findings.

Since the present pay law does not provide for enlisted pay greater than pay grade E-7, master sergeants will not be affected by this boost. It was learned that certain E-4's and E-5's may receive one or two pay grade advances while E-6's can only advance to the E-7 pay grade.

The Army said that the proficiency pay is not a substitute for the normal rank promotion which is based on military qualifications in a higher grade.

The proficiency pay will be employed primarily in critical "hard skill" areas. In addition, a few selected individuals in the so-called "soft skill" areas will receive one proficiency pay advance. Individuals will probably be selected through competition with other personnel of the same grade and MOS area as determined by proficiency tests and outstanding performance of duty.

a between meals "pacifier" for a man whose continuing hunger overcame the honor system under which the group was placed at the beginning of the diet.

Most outstanding in planned weight reduction were the cases of two enlisted men assigned to the Sixth US Army's 56th MRU. One, weighing 227¾ pounds at the beginning of the program, had been whittled down to 197½ pounds by 10 May. The other simmered down from 282 to 255 in even a shorter time, and in no case were medications used in the fat-breaking record.

The overweight clinic at the Presidio continues its service through August—and longer, if the need is evident, as in cases of new personnel assigned here between now and summer's end.

Already, a large number of the men who took the clinical slenderizing course have dropped the required poundage and are now back on the normal mess hall diet. They have disciplined themselves — to count calories in deference to proper weight and good health; to run to the nearest exit when the brown gravy and the mashed potatoes beckon across the chow line—and to remain constantly alert to the pride and prestige achieved by the properly-proportioned soldier in a perfect-fitting uniform.

Operation 'Cutfat' Proving Effective

Seid's Slenderizing Salon—lighthearted title for a project bearing the heavier and less humorous imprimatur of the United States Army—is going great guns at the Presidio Post Dispensary!

Local Army medical answer to an Army-wide directive to officers and enlisted men—that they "shape up or ship out"—out of the Army that is—the Post Dispensary this week presented its figures to show that figures are made and shaped according to the degree of personal pride in appearance as much as to over eating of fatty foods, and ill-considered eating habits.

Doctor Martin J. Seid, civilian medico at the dispensary, was called into action to supervise the Fat Men's Clinic at the Presidio five months ago. He charted a course for Presidio men who once kidded themselves that they were neither getting fatter nor older; rather, that the Army was getting stingy with the cut of its uniforms. The word was passed around and the men came flocking. Similar clinics were established at Fort Scott and Fort Baker—to streamline the men serving the streamlined missiles there. And from that tri-club effort over a ton of fat went down the drain.

At the Post Dispensary, some 189 overweight men registered for the slenderizing course. The burden of their guilt was equally divided as to overeating rather than to accumulated averdupois. There were 94 overweight officers and 95 enlisted men whose waistlines had gone over the top before the men themselves.

To say that the course was successful is an understatement! The clinic has chalked up a record—as of 16 May—of 2075 pounds excess fat melted away through corrected eating habits, corrected mental and physical attitudes, and to ready reference to diet charts consulted as each man was interviewed at the clinic.

In only one instance was it necessary for Dr. Seid to prescribe

35 New Medical, Dental Grads Join Army Program

The Army will receive 35 of the local medical and dental June graduates, according to a Sixth Army announcement. All will be commissioned as first lieutenants and about half will be called to active duty during the next 90 days.

Eighteen graduates from the University of California Dental School have been allocated to the Army. Two have been selected for internships at Army hospitals, one of whom has been assigned to Madigan Army Hospital in Washington state.

Fifteen of the UC dental grads will be commissioned in the U.S. Army Reserve. Ten of these will go on active duty during June, July and August. The last of the 18 has been commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Medical Service Corps through participation in the Dental Student Program. He is considered a career officer.

Seven of the UC Medical School June graduates have been placed with the Army. Four have been selected for internships, three of whom hold second lieutenant commissions in the Medical Service Corps. The other three medical graduates, who hold commissions as second lieutenants in the Medical Service Corps, participated in the Medical Student Program and will be called to active duty later.

The College of Physicians and Surgeons Dental School will place 10 of its 1957 graduates with the Army. Seven will be called during July and August; the other three will be commissioned now but called to active duty later.

The medical and dental UC graduates were sworn in yesterday by Maj. Frederic C. Buck, Sixth Army Medical Section, at the Science Building, UC Medical Center.

Army graduates of the College of Physicians and Surgeons will be sworn in at 1400 hours Tuesday, 11 June, in the college auditorium.

Parade Plaque Winners

Parade plaque for last week was presented to Capt. Leo A. Dupras, who led Headquarters Company, Sixth US Army troops to first place in the bi-monthly parade competition. The presentation was made by Lt. Col. Verne E. Marsden, Commander of troops.

Half Day Holiday

All military personnel under the jurisdiction of the Post Commander will be released from afternoon duty hours on Friday, 14 June, in observance of the Army Birthday.

51 Attaches End Visit To Presidio

Military attaches representing 51 nations visited the Presidio and the San Francisco area this past week. The group arrived in the area on 1 June and left for Fort Ord and the Presidio of Monterey on 4 June.

A welcoming ceremony during which Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander, extended official greetings was held Monday. That evening General and Mrs. Young honored the visitors at a reception at the Presidio Officers' Open Mess. Members of the Consular Corps, city officials and other civic leaders and their wives were invited.

In addition to the Presidio, the attaches visited the U.S. Army Transportation Command at Fort Mason and Oakland Army Terminal. The group left for Washington, D. C., Wednesday.

'Cost' Pay Due Change Under Travel Regs

Two changes in overseas "cost of living" allowances for service personnel will become effective about 1 July, according to a change in the Joint Travel Regulations.

A new "interim housing allowance" will pay with-dependents quarters money to members who have to get family-type quarters before they can ask authority for their families to join them.

A "temporary lodging allowance" is similar to the present initial assignment allowance for members temporarily living in hotel-type quarters. The principal differences are that the new allocation can be collected for 60 days instead of 45 and the payment will be scaled according to the number of dependents.

Only $1700 In As Drive Nears End

More than $1700 had been contributed to the Joint Army Emergency Relief-Army Relief Society Fund Campaign as of 5 June, according to Capt. Herbert M. Youngdahl, local AER officer. The drive continues through Monday, 10 June.

Proceeds from the drive cover the annual loans and grants made by the two organizations and the distribution of information concerning assistance to Army personnel and needy widows and orphans of Regular Army members.

The fund is supported by voluntary contributions from every Army member and donations from civilians.

The top group donation was received from the 9th AAA Missile Battalion which collected $270.50. Other top contributors were 441st AAA Bn., $241.75; Presidio NCO Open Mess, $193; 740th AAA Missile Bn., $154.25; Headquarters Company, USA Garrison, $147.45; 752nd AAA Gun Bn., $102.75; Post Comptroller and A Company, USA Garrison, $100 each.

Largest Presidio Class To Win College Degrees

How to progress educationally while in the Army is a story that can best be told by the 41 military persons who will receive degrees from San Francisco State College next weekend. Thirty-one of the graduates were counseled by the Post Army Education Center; the others are assigned to Letterman Army Hospital.

The Post class, the largest to graduate under the program, includes five enlisted men. Training Unit (6700) boasts seven graduates.

Capt. Hugh H. Harris, who was assigned to the Sixth Army Provost Marshal Section during most of his "college" career, completed 103 credits toward his degree in 16 months. When Captain Harris began planning his schedule with Mrs. Kathryn Mason, Education Advisor, he had only 21 credits, 15 for being an officer and six for service schools.

By attending class four nights a week in addition to completing 13 USAFI courses, the captain was able to complete work for a bachelor's degree with a "B" average. He took his major and residence credits at SFSC. Captain Harris is now assigned to the Army Language School at Monterey where he is studying Russian.

The top scholastic record was turned in by Master Specialist Kenneth Hayse, USA MP Detachment. Specialist Hayse, an A minus student, began his local studies in August 1955 with 44 credits. He completed his major, upper division and residence credits at SFSC.

Twenty-four of the Post graduates will be on the SFSC platform at 1100 hours, 15 June, to receive their diplomas.

Persons planning to request financial assistance to attend off-post classes at accredited colleges in the Bay Area must submit applications to the Army Education Center by 10 June. The Center is located in Bldg. 258.

"I DON'T CARE WHAT HE SAYS, MY FEET AIN'T HEALTHY"

Washington (ANS). The American Foot Health Foundation's annual award for 1957 has been presented to the U. S. Army as a tribute in honor of its infantrymen.

A sculptured bronze winged foot and citation was accepted on behalf of the Army by Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, Lieutenant General Donald P. Booth, from Foundation President Doctor Sidney Hirschberg.

During the award ceremony held in the Pentagon, Doctor Hirschberg said, "The Foundation Board of Trustees chose the U. S. Army to receive its Annual Foot Health Award on behalf of those millions of Americans who now, and throughout our history have honored the nation through their military service. Even in this atomic age, nothing can replace a well cared for pair of feet."

The doctor commented that Army personnel have magnificently demonstrated the true value of healthy feet in human locomotion.

North African Found America Via Army Captain's Assist

Although he thought about the United States many times as a North African schoolboy, Sfc. Mac Mrad did not expect his dreams would be realized by an Army captain and that some day he too would make the United States Army his career.

Born on the small island of Ould Kacem Kerkennah, North Africa, in 1927, Mac, now assigned to the Presidio Officers' Open Mess, was still attending school when World War II broke out. Because he did not live in a population center, Mac was able to complete the equivalent of high school during the war while working part-time as a fisherman with his father.

After high school Mac went to Sfax, a large seaport town. He first worked in an office and later as a machinery conductor in a phosphate company.

In 1946 Mac again moved—this time his destination was Tunis, the capital of Tunisia, and his first personal contact with American occupation forces. He first cooked for a lieutenant and then for Capt. William Barfield, who sponsored Mac's entry into the United States, when he and his family were transferred back to this country. "Since I had thought about the United States many times as a youth, I was very happy to accept the captain's invitation to come to this country," Mac said. "We arrived in Houston, Texas, on 13 April, 1948." Mac last saw the captain as a lieutenant colonel when they were both stationed at Fort Lee, Va., in 1953.

In November 1948 Mac entered the Army and has served continuously since that time. He became an American citizen in 1952.

During his Army service, Mac has been stationed in Japan, Korea with the 24th Infantry, Germany and France. He was assigned to the Presidio 17 January.

Mac made his first return trip to North Africa in 1955.

"The people in North Africa have changed since I left in 1948," Mac explained. "Since they have become independent, they seem more proud and eager to do things for their country."

Mac, who learned English after coming to the United States, stressed the educational opportunities that are offered here. He has devoted much of his time to self-education and received his American high school diploma through USAFI courses.

Wearing of New Army Green Set For 1 July

All Army personnel in the Sixth Army area are authorized to wear the Army Green uniform on duty at their individual option on 1 July, according to the newly released Sixth Army Circular 16-116.

With some exceptions officers and warrant officers will not be authorized to wear OD

Shade 33 uniforms or Shade 51 and 54 (pinks and greens) for any purpose after 1 October, 1957.

Exceptions include those who are scheduled for separation before 1 January, 1958, in areas where the summer uniform is worn and 1 May, 1958, in areas where the winter uniform is worn the year round. These persons may continue to wear their present uniforms until separation.

The Army Green will be worn by officers and warrant officers for all general duty except when performing field duty which requires field clothing. The Army Blue uniform will be used for general off-duty wear.

Personnel are reminded to obtain a warranty from the vendor when purchasing uniforms from commercial sources. Some uniform items on the commercial market may be made from Government rejected material.

The circular also states that work or field uniforms are authorized for off-post wear only when an individual is on an assigned military mission or when he is traveling in private or government conveyance between duty and home.

725 DMG ROTC Grads Will Get RA Commissions

Washington (ANS) According to the latest Department of the Army figures, approximately 725 Distinguished Military Graduates under the Reserve Officer Training Corps program will accept Regular Army commissions within the next 11 months.

About 12,775 additional ROTC graduates will receive Reserve Commissions between May 1, 1957 and April 30, 1958. Of this number, approximately 7,775 will be ordered to active duty with the Army for two years.

The graduates offered commissions will all be men who have shown that they possess, potentially, the high professional, leadership and technical qualifications demanded of members of today's modern, versatile Army.

This year's Army ROTC graduates will come from 253 colleges and universities located in 48 states, the District of Columbia, Alaska, Puerto Rico and Hawaii. About 5,000 of the ROTC graduates whose services are not required for two years' active duty, will be ordered to active duty for training for six months, the Army said.

Lt. Col. Earl F. Pegram, Chief of the AG Military Personnel Division, will leave next week for a new assignment in Washington, D. C. Col. Pegram will be replaced by Lt. Col. Arthur J. Thomas.

Nike Sites Set Visitors' Day Sched

Army Nike Antiaircraft Guided Missile installations in the Bay Area are now open for public visits one day each, the 30th AAA Group has announced.

The units in Marin County will be open from 1300 to 1600 hours each Wednesday.

The 740th AAA Missile Battalion has set the following open house schedules: Battery A, located on the Fort Funston reservation, 1300 to 1500 hours, Friday; Battery B, Fort Scott, and Battery D, near Alvarado, 1400 to 1600 hours, Thursday; and Battery C, near Sharp Park, 1330 to 1530 hours, Wednesday.

Battery A, of the 441st AAA Missile Bn., located near San Leandro, will be open from 1330 to 1630 hours, Tuesdays; Battery B, near Castro Valley, 1300 to 1600 hours, Wednesdays.

Army Alters Postal System

Washington (AFPS) The Army will stop using postage stamps and adopt new indicia for official mailing containers on July 1.

Under a simplified system for reimbursing the Post Office Department announced by Maj. Gen. Herbert M. Jones, The Adjutant General, prepayment of postage and the penalty indicia will be discontinued for official matter mailed through U. S. and military postal channels.

Still using existing stocks of franked envelopes, the Navy started a similar procedure last Oct. 1; the Marine Corps, Jan. 1.

The Air Force is considering possible adoption of the system, according to military postal officials. The present indicia on mailing containers will be replaced by a new statement reading, "Postage and Fees Paid, Department of the Army." This will serve for all classes of postage including air mail and special delivery, insurance and registry fees.

The arrangement will eliminate the necessity to weigh mail, affix postage and maintain records of the procurement of penalty envelopes, labels and stamps for mailing, the Army said.

Reimbursement to the Post Office for military mail, reported to cost the Army in excess of $7.5 million yearly, will be made on a prenegotiated basis.

While the new system will not necessarily cut the cost of mailing, it will save an inestimable number of man-hours.

The problem of constructing a group of finger docks at Horseshoe Bay on the Fort Baker military reservation while subjected to constant enemy harassment was faced and solved by members of the 561st Port Construction Company during a 72 hour training exercise this week.

Assisting the 561st in their annual training exercise were representatives of the 30th Engineer Group who served both as umpires and as aggressor forces.

Strict battle conditions were adhered to throughout the exercise which ran from 3 to 6 June. The test included tactical convoy, and bivouac exercises as well as the operational problem. The dock construction project was not expected to be completed during the test period. It will be finished later and utilized as a permanent installation.

The 30th group umpire team was headed by Maj. Gordon L. Smith and included Capt. William C. Gonyo, Lt. Gilbert E. Bell and Lt. Pleasant H. West. These men were responsible for supervising the entire test, briefing the commanding officers and reviewing the completeness and quality of the work produced. They also supervised the aggressor action and rated the entire exercise.

Record Four-Way Tie For High WAC Honors

Four Queens For A Week—a jackpot shower of courtesy and efficiency, resulted in a record-breaking tie this week when not one but four young enlisted women were chosen Presidio WACs Of The Month, by the Non-Commissioned Officers Council, D Company, U.S. Army Garrison.

Trail blazers for future honors by-the-number rather than individually, are Pvt. Ida Stahala, assigned to the Sixth Army G-2 Section; Pvt. Barbara A. Warner, Post Signal Section; Pvt. Beatrice Kailiawa, Sixth Army AGZ-P, and Pfc. Marjorie R. Bennett, also of the Sixth Army G-2 Section.

Pvt. Kailiawa, a Hawaiian girl, upholds an established tradition in Company D—that Hawaiians are consistently good soldiers. She is the sixth Islands girl to be chosen as top WAC since the Non-Com Council for Company Affairs was established in mid-year of 1956.

The girls are now reveling in the plaudits of their Company officers and enlisted members. Each Queen draws a three-day pass on her section officer's approval. She will have no Company details for a whole month, no Reveille or Retreat formations for a week, no stand-by inspections, nor any formal parade in which to participate over the given time.

As far as is known, the four-Queen choice marks the first time, Army-wide, in which a group of enlisted women were so honored, according to Company

Harvey Wins First AADC Area Title As Top Soldier

The first Soldier-of-the-Month of Headquarters, 6th Region, US Army Air Defense Command, is Sp/3 William R. Harvey, a personnel specialist in the AG section of the command headquarters.

Specialist Harvey received a three-day pass and is the first to have his name and picture posted on a special Soldier-of-the-Month board. He was named by a board of senior non-commissioned officers advised by Capt. D. M. Nicolson, headquarters detachment commander.

The specialist first entered the Army in 1948 and reenlisted in 1955 after a three-year break in service. Col. Henry G. McFeely, Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1, of the command headquarters, made the presentation.

Army Hosts Disabled E. Bay Kids

The Community Relations Division of the Sixth Army Information Section was host this week to 21 deaf and vocally inarticulate children from the Roosevelt School, in Burlingame. Accompanied by three of the school instructors, the children, ranging in ages from 9 to 13 years, had luncheon in the Consolidated Mess where they showed mute surprise and delight at the variety of food and the military manner of serving it.

After lunch, the children were escorted on a bus tour of the Presidio, the historic highlights of which were conveyed to them through lip reading of their teachers.

The children attend special public school classes to aid them in overcoming their speech and hearing limitations. Otherwise, their recreational schedule differs in no way from that of their non-handicapped student playmates.

Slated For Bliss

The Executive Officer of the Sixth Army Provost Marshal Section, Lt. Col. Byron N. Petersen, will leave on 15 June to attend an Antiaircraft and Guided Missile School at Fort Bliss, Texas.

Man-Size Yawn was released by Randall William Hilmer during one of his first visits with his mother, Mrs. Ken Hilmer, wife of a Post Signal photographer. Well, you would be tired too if you were a newborn baby and had to carry around 13 pounds, 3½ ounces stretched over a 24-inch frame. Of course, he did set a St. Mary's Hospital record as far as the hospital sisters could determine.

Signal Photographer's Son Scores New Weight Record

Gasps of excitement and amazement filled St. Mary's Hospital on 24 May as a routine birth became a record as far as the hospital sisters could determine. The center of attraction was a boy who weighed in at 13 pounds, 3½ ounces and measured 24 inches.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Hilmer, a Post Signal photographer, Randall William didn't create much excitement in his own family, for his older brother and sister were also record-breaking babies.

The oldest Hilmer child, a five-year-old boy, weighed in at 10 pounds, 12 ounces, a St. Mary's record for 1951. The boy now weighs 61 pounds and stands about 50 inches high.

The 10-pound, 12-ounce record was broken 14 months later by a Hilmer daughter, who weighed 12 pounds, 1 ounce at birth. The little girl now weighs about 48 pounds and is 42 inches tall.

Mrs. Hilmer, who lost four pounds while carrying Randall William, was able to call upon the Presidio Civilian Blood Fund for the one pint of blood she needed.

Silent Workers for Letterman Army Hospital patients are these members of the Bedside Bouquet Project of the Forest Hill Garden Club. For 12 years the ladies have made fresh flower bouquets each week for distribution at the hospital.

12-Year Project!

Forest Hill Club Provides Quarter Million Bouquets For LAH Patients

Each Tuesday for the past 12 years about 350 bouquets of fresh flowers have been quietly dropped off at the Red Cross Recreation Center for distribution at Letterman Army Hospital. The donors, anonymous to the patients whom they serve, are members of the Forest Hill Garden Club, a neighborhood group. The flowers are collected, made into bouquets and delivered by ladies who work on the club's Bedside Bouquet Project chairmanned by Mrs. Arthur Williams. About 15 members gather at the neighborhood club house each week to devote a morning to the bouquet project.

Because so few flowers bloom during December and January, the bouquets are not made during these months. To span these flower-less months, the ladies make colored, cone-shaped Christmas trees. This year the group is planning to donate planters and small plants after the holidays.

The flowers are given by members and non-members of the club and by the West Portal Florist. One member, Mrs. Henry L. Wilson, raises and donates fragrant greens such as lemon verbena, sage, mint and rose geranium to offset hospital odors. The ladies also provide special camellias, begonias and orchids for patients in the Psychiatric Ward. In addition to the regular bouquets, each month the club's Bedside Crafts Committee makes 40 flower containers by spraying tin cans gold and black. The "vases" of flowers are placed between the ward beds. Mrs. Paul C. Zelinsky is chairman of this project.

Mrs. A. Lee Mowery, president of the club, described the group as "cooperative and talented." Devoting time to others is not new to Mrs. Mowery, for she was a canteen worker four days a week during World War II and now works at Irwin Memorial Blood Bank each Wednesday.

Last December the Bedside Bouquet Project members received a letter of thanks from Brig. Gen. Paul S. Fancher, Letterman Commanding General. Each week the spirited ladies receive unspoken thanks as they combine hard work and fun in creating happiness for others.

Set Farewell Fete For Departing AG

A farewell party for Col. and Mrs. Lawton Butler, Sixth Army AG, will be held by Sixth Army and Post AG officers and their wives at 1900 hours, tomorrow at the Letterman Officers' Open Mess. Col. Butler will retire on 30 June.

The party also will welcome Col. and Mrs. Robert H. Chard, who will succeed Col. Butler on 1 July.

Among those invited are Maj. Gen. R. L. Howze, Deputy Commanding General; Brig. Gen. Legare K. Tarrant, Deputy Commanding General; Brig. Gen. Orlen N. Thompson (USA Ret.), and Col. Robert N. Nourse (USA, Ret.).

Had you been an Indian "soldier" on one of the reservations along the California coast in the early sixties, your daily life would bear not the faintest resemblance to the military pattern now established. You would have no concern over the new Army Green uniform . . . because all you needed to represent your Government was a buckskin kilt to cover your modesty . . . and a string of buffalo teeth round your neck . . . to prove your prowess with bow and arrow. No rifle to clean . . . no pot-bellied stove to tend in barracks on a winter night . . . no buttons to shine . . . no shoes to polish. The sum of your day's duty would revolve around survival . . . in its most primitive form!

Culturists say that all the stone-age Indians brought with them from Asia and the mountains of Peru was the ability to make a fire by drilling one stick into another. . . . The spear was the only implement of warfare handed down the centuries to the modern Indian "soldier" from his forerunner . . . even the spear of that time was made of wood!

Nomads and hunters . . . their ancestry said to emanate from the Lost Tribe of Israel . . . the early Indians traveled across the face of the world until they reached the North American continent.

The spear . . . the spear thrower and the harpoon . . . and some crude ideas of how to weave a basket . . . no plow . . . no wheat, no barley, no rice . . . no water-wheel to grind corn . . . no windmill to pump water from a prairie well . . . no potter's wheel . . . yet what artistry they achieved in pottery alone . . . and how strong in health and wisdom grew their race.

Do you really think that you could have done as well with the shaping of a way of life? In the absence of cutting instruments of iron and steel, would you have sharpened stones and split flakes from volcanic glass to make knives and chisels for carving some of the world's most beautiful sculpture?

You would never have seen a domestic animal other than the dog . . . a sacred creature which had followed your ancestors from the plains of Asia . . . later from the Peruvian Andes.

You would have had little chance to acquire formal education, yet your people would have been geniuses in the twin sciences of Math and Astronomy. Your relatives . . . the Maya Aztecs would have by then devised a place system of numbers with a zero, long before the decimal system was known in Europe . . . recording by flexible number system, your great-grandfather's tribe would have established a calendar of startling accuracy.

Living along the Pacific Coast, later, you would, as an American Indian, have learned to become one of the best carvers and canoe builders in the Far West. You would enjoy fishing as no modern Isaak Walton . . . floating down the inlet now spanned by the Golden Gate Bridge . . . spearing fish as they lingered in the sun-warmed shallows along shore . . . slitting them open and roasting them on a bed of red-hot stones . . . to eat while the sun lowered over Marin County.

You might be planning a buffalo hunt next day, to which you rode with other hunters on horses taken from the white intruders whom your people had massacred in defense of your own land.

From a hilltop, the grazing buffalo would have sensed your presence . . . the baby buffalo crowding close to their mothers . . . while the bulls bellowed in rage at the alien scent wafted down from where you had tethered the horses.

Down the valley you would ride in a group . . . shooting arrows in the middle of the stampeding herd . . . big and little bodies thudding in the dust . . . their death cries spurring you to the kill . . . until your larder was replenished.

The Indian women did the skinning and butchering of the buffalo. The men piled the meat and hides on the horses, and you returned to camp, singing, in anticipation of a mighty feast. . . . Later, over roasted buffalo, you would make fun of the white man and his peculiar customs. Old sages would mimic his speech and ridicule his peculiar custom of wearing clothing to hide his body from the sun and the clean prairie air.

Your festival would last for a week . . . in sacred dances . . . athletic contests, gambling, and listening to the historian of his day . . . the storyteller.

At evening on the last day . . . and because you were a hero . . . you would be free to choose your bride . . . for a wedding ceremony which needed neither bell, book nor candle. She would be beautiful as only an Indian girl is beautiful. . . . And at day's end, you would make love to her in her father's house . . . sharing with her your blanket, as was the custom of your people . . . and you would promise to give her brother three horses . . . and for her, you would cut out the tongues of three buffaloes . . . main dish in next day's wedding meal.

In all of these simple joys, you would be innocently happy and without sin. You would never develop ulcers . . . and payday and reveille would be unheard of . . . and unnecessary!

THE DELICATE DELINQUENT is a story of juvenile delinquency; a humorous story with serious overtones. Jerry Lewis portrays an easy-going East Side youth who unintentionally breaks up a gang war between two battling teenage gangs. Implicated, he is arrested, but is released in the custody of Darren McGavin who plays the part of a police officer who believes in Jerry. McGavin gets some help in his project from Martha Hyer.

TAMMY AND THE BACHELOR displays Debbie Reynolds as an unspoiled backwoods girl in the bayou country of lower Mississippi. When a plane crashes near their houseboat, Tammy and her Grandpa rescue the only survivor, Leslie Nielsen. They nurse him back to health, and are invited to his estate as he leaves them. Grandpa's sudden arrest for bootlegging corn likker compels Tammy to accept Leslie's invitation earlier than he expected.

OH MEN! OH WOMEN! introduces a successful psychoanalyst and his fiancée who plan to marry aboard the French liner, Liberte, and spend their honeymoon in Europe. The days preceding the wedding are hectic for the couple, complicated by frantic visits from distracted patients and misgivings of sympathetic friends.

Since then, his former wife feels a need for the boy, and is determined to regain part time custody. Bing is fond of the boy and a tremendous bond exists between father and son, which the mother knows will be difficult to break. During a custody hearing, the judge recognizes the boy's need, and awards him to his mother. Wilfully ignoring the judge's decision, Bing attempts to kidnap his son.

The 30th AAA, led by F. Potter's 498-173, tied the Officer's Mess, 2-2. J. Chapman was top man for the Officer's Mess with 471-176.

In the Pacific League, CMD still leads in the standings with a 13-3 record. Three teams are tied for second place: Signalers, Spoilers and Compt-Rollers, all with a win record of 10 and 6 losses. Scores of last week's games were unavailable at the time of publication.

Torero Nine Still Unbeaten; Blank Hellcats, Essex Twice

The Torero's winning ways continued over the past week to win them three games. They shut out the USS Navy Essex nine twice by the scores of 11-0 and 4-0, and blanked the Alameda Naval Station team by the score of 7-0.

All three games featured outstanding pitching. In the 3-0 win over Essex, Daniel Cook pitched a nifty three-hitter. He also helped his team's cause by connecting for three singles and driving in two runs. Nick Capachi, Jim Cummings and a newcomer, Jolly, all came through with two hits apiece. All told, the Toreros were at bat 33 times and connected for 14 hits.

In the win over the Alameda nine, Bob Shinnick allowed only six scattered hits. Cummings continued to hit the ball by connecting for two singles. Newcomers Martinez and Drummey came through with two hits apiece. The losing Navymen were unable to drive in any runs as they left 15 men stranded on base.

On Tuesday, the Toreros came back to hand the Essex nine their second straight defeat by the score of 4-0. Fred Crissey, of the locals, pitched an excellent two-hitter. Gritts was top hitter with one single and one double. In all, the Toreros only got four hits but were able to come through when it counted most.

Three Boast Untarnished Records In Softball

★★★ Intramural Leagues Provide Top Action

Three teams still remain undefeated in the three leagues which comprise the Presidio intramural softball program.

In the American League the strong Co. A, USA Garrison, leads the rest of the pack with a record of five wins and no losses. The outstanding game of the week in this league was the 5-2 victory registered by A Company over Hq. Co. 6th US Army. In this game Johnson of A Co. pitched one-hit ball, the sole hit being a home run by Kardana of Hq. Co. The winners had a total of 12 hits. Myslinski was top hitter with three hits for three times at bat. Johnson further helped his team's cause by hitting a home run.

In other American League games Hq. Co. 6th US Army defeated Hq. Co. USA Garrison by the high score of 24-3. The 56th MRU trounced the 46th Ordnance by 16 to 4. Co. "A" USA Garrison defeated the Teen Agers in a high scoring game by 19 to 10. The Teen Agers came back to shut out the 16th BPO by the score of 7-0.

The 21st Engr. Co. leads the National League with a record of four wins and no losses. The leaders beat Hq. 30th Engrs. by the score of 7-2 in the top game of the week in this league. Thembley pitched a nifty one-hitter for the winners. The 21st Engineers had a total of eight hits with Goff being top hitter with two hits for two times at bat.

In other games, Hq. 30th Engrs. trounced the 99th Engr. Co. by the score of 12-2. The 21st Engrs. toppled Hq. Det. 660th Engrs. by the count of 7-5. The 537th Engr. Co. shut out Hq. 6th USA TU by a score of 3-0.

The Northern League is headed by "D" Btry. 9th AAA Bn. with a record of five wins and no losses. In the game of the week D Battery beat the 6th USA Med. Lab. by the score of 14-5. The winning pitcher

WACs Drop Practice Pair; Firm AF-Army League Plan

The WAC softball team dropped two practice games over the past week. The first was a 10-9 decision to the Alameda Naval Air Station Waves. Peggy Harris of the WACs hit two smashing line-drive home runs, the first came with two players on board. Terry Sylva, also of the WACs, hit one home run.

The second loss came at the hands of the San Francisco Women Marines by the score of 7-4. The game was called off at the end of the fifth inning due to cold weather.

A meeting was held on 4 June for the purpose of forming an Army-Air Force Women Softball League. Representatives from the Presidio, Hamilton Air Force Base, Letterman Army Hospital, and Parks Air Force Base were present. Travis Air Force Base was also included in the deliberations.

It was agreed at the meeting that the five teams would play a double round robin league schedule. The winner would be designated as the Northern California Army-Air Force Women Softball Champion. League play begins on or about 15 June.

Sgt. Julian Kite, NCOIC of the Post Sports Section, was elected commissioner of the newly-formed league. Sgt. Agnes Martinson was unanimously selected as the coach of the team.

Winner's Spoils is the Golden Gate Perpetual Pistol Trophy presented by Post Commander Col. Carl E. Lundquist to Maj. Harry N. Washow, director of marksmanship for the 25th Infantry Division. The 25th Division team defeated the Presidio shooters in a return match fired at Knowland State Park in Oakland Saturday and Sunday. Attending the presentation ceremony, from the left, are Col. Lundquist, Sgt. William Carrier, Maj. Washow, Capt. John F. Kallam and Col. Charles G. Rau.

25th Division Pistol Team Outshoots Presidio Group

The 25th Infantry Division Pistol Team, still smarting from the April defeat handed them in Hawaii by the Presidio Pistol Team, evened the score this past weekend when they blasted an aggregate of 12,064 points to best the locals by 220 points.

The two Army teams fired their return match during the Western Revolver Association Pistol match held at Knowland State Park, Oakland, on Saturday and Sunday. The competition was sponsored by the Oakland Rifle and Pistol Club.

Firing for the Presidio Pistol Team were the following men: Capt. John F. Kallam, M/Sgt. Douglas B. Sheridan, M/Sgt. David A. Dewey, Sp3 Cleston L. Bertus and Pvt. Charles Nygren.

The winning team from the 25th Infantry Division in Hawaii consisted of Lt. Hall, Lt. Sexton, Lt. Bloxom, Sfc. Soza and Sgt. Carrier. Maj. Harry N. Washow, officer in charge of the team, is director of marksmanship for the 25th.

Both of the Army teams made outstanding records in the Western Revolver Association Pistol Match.

Skeet Shoot Set

On 25-26 July, the Sixth US Army Skeet Shooting Championship will be held at the Presidio. This post will be represented by a five man team.

Each competitor must be a member of the National Skeet Shooting Association in good standing, and have his individual record card in his possession. The championship match will consist of a 100 target 12-gauge event. Trophies will be provided for the winner and runnerup teams.

Personnel who are members of the National Skeet Association and hold a current individual record in their possession, may challenge the score of the low man on the present Skeet Team, thus earning his place on the team if successful. Interested personnel contact the Sports Office, Ext. 3968, prior to 1630 hours 13 June, 1957.

Post Softball Team To Vie In City League

The Post softball team will enter the 18th Annual City-wide Softball League. Play begins on 8 July. Games will be played in the evenings at 1930 and 2100 hours.

The team will be managed by M/Sgt. George Van Kirk, Provost Marshal Section. First practice will be at 1100 hours Saturday, 8 June. All personnel interested in trying out for the team should contact the Sports Office or call Ext. 3968.

The softball team is pointing for the Central Division Playoffs at Ft. Ord which will be held 13-17 August. The Sixth US Army Playoff will be held at Madigan Army Hospital, Washington, 26-30 August, followed by the All-Army Tournament at Chicago, 5-9 September.

Wow! Let's Go Fishing!

They didn't get away—and SFC John L. Thomas, 163rd MP Company, has proof, for pictured above is his catch of Rainbow Trout taken from Lake Almanor, California, last week.

Sergeant Thomas reports that the lake is teeming with large Rainbow and German Brown Trout, Black Bass and Catfish. His Rainbows ranged from one to three and a quarter pounds each.

The best spot found by the sergeant was near Chester's Boat Land-ing where the Feather River enters the Lake. Highways 40a, 89 and 32 enter the Lake from the South. The Lake is about 275 miles from the Presidio.

Three Promotions to E7 in the last six months have been received by members of the Sixth Army Band. CWO Louis Ferraro, band leader, congratulates from left, M/Sgt. Benjamin T. Buckley, bandsman; M/Sgt. John D. Johns, first sergeant who received his promotion last November; and M/Sgt. Conrad D. Oller, bandsman.

Top Grade Promotions Go To Presidio EMs

An unexpected bonanza fell on the Presidio last week in the nature of promotions in the top two grades, ending an Army-wide freeze on the given grades.

The Sixth US Army headquarters was enabled to upgrade one of its non-coms, Arnold L. Fransen, to the grade of M/Sgt., with six E-7's and five E-6's appointed at Post level.

Lone woman and top 10 men on the Post totem pole, promotion-wise, are M/Sgt. Lena W. Behler, Post Signal Section (Switchboard Supervisor); M/Sgt. Benjamin T. Buckley and M/Sgt. Conrad D. Oller (both of the Sixth Army Band); M/Sgt. Henry Burke, USA Vet Food Inspection Detachment; M/Sgt. Robert L. Florist, 194th Ordnance Det., 46th Ordnance Group, and M/Sgt. Lawrence T. House, Hqs. Company, US Army Garrison.

Promoted to the grades of E-6 are Sfc. Elisha A. Harrell, Sixth Army Medical Laboratory; Sfc. Armando Quinones, C Company, US Army Garrison; Sp/1 Boyd W. Carver, US Army Vet Food Inspection Det.; Sp/1 Donald L. Dobyns, 60th MP Detachment, and Sp/1 Kenneth N. Mesh, 197th Ordnance Det., 46th Ordnance Group.

Awarded on a highly competitive basis as to job assignment, efficiency, time in grade and time in service, the promotions marked the first time in the past two years that group grade advancement in the top two enlisted ranks were made available under Army-wide quota.

Meet MATABE, AAA's New Mathematical Whiz

An electronic control system capable of performing 136,000 mathematical steps in less than a second has been developed to assist anti-aircraft operations center officers in organizing a defense against approaching enemy aircraft. The system was shown for the first time last week.

Officially called the Multi-weapon Automatic Target and Battery Evaluator (MATABE), the equipment was conceived by engineers of the U.S. Army Signal Engineering Laboratories, Fort Monmouth, N. J., and developed by the Burroughs Corp. at its Research Center in Paoli, Penn.

MATABE can tell immediately how much time an anti-aircraft battery needs to carry out its assignment; the point of interception; whether a target is within effective range; the "kill" probability of a battery-target assignment; percentage of total bomb damage attacking planes are capable of inflicting; and military value of a target according to strategic goals.

The system can handle 720 multiplications, 714 additions and five divisions in less time than it takes the fastest mechanical adding machine or desk computer to perform one simple addition problem, according to a Burroughs engineer.

The closed demonstration was held under security control for a select group of U.S. Army and Air Force officers and some of the nation's leading engineers and scientists.

Army Digest Will Feature Gibb's Article

The necessity of developing tomorrow's weapons today has been stressed by Brig. Gen. Frederick W. Gibb, commander of the Army's Combat Development Experimentation Center at Fort Ord, in an article appearing in the June issue of Army Information Digest.

In past conflicts, the nation had time to adjust to new conditions after war came, noted Gen. Gibb. But in future wars that buffer of time and space will not exist and the Army will have to fight with the equipment, tactics and concepts then in being.

Only by continuous study and experimentation, Gen. Gibb stated, "can we be assured that the United States Army will be armed, equipped and organized to meet any threat instantly with the finest fighting system in the world."

It is the mission of the 44 officers, 14 civilian scientists and 10 enlisted men at Fort Ord's CDEC to develop tomorrow's weapons and concepts today and to urge greater speed and inventiveness in technology.

GG Passes Expire

Golden Gate Bridge Passes authenticated by Lt. Col. J. J. Speciale, Post Transportation Officer, will not be honored by the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District after 10 June. Passes not used by this date should be returned to the Local Travel Branch, Bldg. 251, for cancellation.

Peacetime GI Bill Will Have Hearing Shortly

Eleven peacetime servicemen will plead the case for a new GI Bill before a Senate Labor and Public Welfare subcommittee next week.

The meetings scheduled Monday and Wednesday will complete the formal hearings of the veterans' affairs subcommittee headed by Sen. Strom Thurmond. The GI Bill would cover men who went on active duty after 31 January, 1955—the cutoff for Korea GI Bill benefits.

About two million persons would be affected by a peacetime GI Bill.

Stanford Wins $97,000 Grant For Missiles

The Army has awarded Stanford Research Institute of Menlo Park a $97,000 contract to help streamline production of the latest operational missiles, including the anti-aircraft Nike Hercules and the anti-tank Dart.

The research contract will provide an analysis of procurement and production directed from the responsible Redstone Arsenal at Huntsville, Ala.

Other missile systems contract awards announced by the San Francisco Ordnance District include:

Beckman & Whitley, Inc., San Carlos, $15,308 for remote arming devices; Donner Scientific Co., Concord, $5,500 for computers; Hewlett-Packard Co., Palo Alto, $21,000 for test sets; Varian Associates, Palo Alto, $9,000 for equipment.

Army Inventor, CWO Charles H. Fennell, 30th Engineer Group, has completed three years of work on a "Safety Cutting Tool for Steel Bands." Through working with the Army, Mr. Fennell will receive his final patent in mid-July.

30th Engineer CWO Patents Cutting Tool

CWO Charles H. Fennell of the 30th Engineer Group, who is a spare time inventor, will receive a patent for his "Safety Cutting Tool for Steel Bands" in July.

The tool is the result of three years of hard work by CWO Fennell. He first conceived the idea after watching the inefficient and dangerous method used by men to open packing cases wrapped with steel bands. Convinced that crow bars and axes were not the best tools for the job, CWO Fennell, during his spare time, with his own equipment and finances, developed his tool.

This invention, his third to be used by the Army, has a special significance for CWO Fennell. By an Executive Order issued by President Truman in 1950, he will be able to retain all the royalties on the new tool if it is produced and sold to commercial firms.

In return for doing the legal work necessary to acquire the patent the Army will retain the rights to purchase or produce the item for their own use without paying royalties.

The tool should be of use to any firm which receives crates wrapped in steel bands. Made of light weight material and designed to be operated by one hand, the tool first lifts the steel strap no matter how tightly it is fastened. Two sets of small jaws then grip the strap to prevent the severed pieces from snapping back after cutting. An interchangeable blade cuts the strap and when the grip is released the jaws safely release the cut ends.

Any government employee who develops an invention on his own time without the use of government facilities has the same rights as CWO Fennell under Executive Order 10096 issued 23 January 1950. He will be able to obtain all commercial rights to the invention and at the same time will be assisted by the Government in securing the patent. The Government, of course, reserves the right to purchase or manufacture the item royalty free.

Band Show Sked

The Sixth Army Band radio program, heard on KGO this coming Sunday evening (1815 hours), will feature "On the Square," "Oklahoma" and "When the Saints Come Marching In."

Missile Units Score Record Blood Drive

The men of Battery A, 441st AAA Missile Battalion, turned out in full force last week to donate 73 pints of blood to Letterman Army Hospital. Another 31 pints were donated by men from Battery B of the battalion.

Maj. Frank H. Smiley and Capt. Kenneth R. Dirks, LAH, accompanied by four persons from the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank, went to the site upon the battery's invitation to get the blood. The equipment was furnished by Irwin Memorial.

"The men were so enthusiastic and eager to give," Captain Dirks commented. "It was one of the finest groups morale-wise I have seen."

PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

14 June 1775

RESOLVED, that six companies of expert riflemen be immediately raised in Pennsylvania, two in Maryland and two in Virginia; that each company consist of a captain, three lieutenants, four sergeants, four corporals, a drummer or trumpeter, and sixty-eight privates.

THAT each company, as soon as completed, shall march and join the Army near Boston, to be there employed as light infantry, under the command of the chief Officer in that Army.

THAT the pay of the officers and privates be as follows, viz.: a captain @ 20 dollars per month; a lieutenant @ 13½ dollars; a sergeant @ eight dollars; a corporal @ 7½ dollars; a drummer (or trumpeter) @ 7½ dollars; privates @ 6½ dollars; to find their own arms and cloaths.

THAT the form of the enlistment be in the following words:

I have, this day, voluntarily enlisted myself, as a soldier, in the American continental Army, for one year, unless sooner discharged; and I do bind myself to conform in all instances to such rules and regulations as are or shall be established for the government of said Army.

UPON MOTION, RESOLVED, that Mr. (George) Washington, Mr. (Phillip) Schuyler, Mr. (Silas) Dean, Mr. (Thomas) Cushing, and Mr. (Joseph) Howes be a committee to bring in a draft of Rules and Regulations for the government of the Army.

New Concept Adopted By Exchange Service

Chicago (AFPS)—Military commanders have been given a larger role in the management of the Army and Air Force Exchange Service. That was announced at a meeting here recently. The meeting was attended by officials of the Exchange Service and Army and Air Force officers.

Major Gen. Harlan C. Parks, chief of the Exchange Service, said the interests of the customer could be best served under a plan that would give the military greater participation in management of the service.

New regulations of the Army and Air Force make the chief of the Exchange Service a member of its board of directors.

Organization of the service will not be changed under the new plan, Gen. Parks said. He said the functions of the service's five regional offices will remain basically the same. The offices will continue to assist in technical aspects such as insurance, personnel, training, procurement and merchandising, he said.

He said the service must adjust itself to the needs of customers as rapidly as the needs arise.

"If our exchanges are to retain their value to our personnel, we must provide the most efficient and imaginative management possible," he declared.

General Parks noted also the importance of community and Congressional relations.

Army Divers Lead Exciting Lives

The two highest ranking divers attached to the 561st Port Construction Company, Master Specialists Henry M. Wasketwich and C. W. Holland, had never considered the specialized diving field until their Army service. Today they are among the 50 Army divers on active duty.

Specialist Wasketwich became a diver unexpectedly during the Korean conflict when he volunteered to execute an emergency dive on the Han River under combat conditions. He successfully completed the dive with no prior experience and was awarded the Bronze Star for his efforts.

The master diver has been assigned to various combat and construction engineer units during his service. Specialist Wasketwich, who has completed three tours of duty in Korea, was graduated from the only Army diving school at Fort Eustis, Va.

Specialist Holland, who "never saw a boat until he entered the Army," began his 12-year service career as a radio operator aboard a tugboat. Soon after he started his service, he was assigned to Japan and unexpectedly became a tugboat skipper for two years and then a master mate on Army tugboats for four years.

In 1952 the specialist was reassigned to Japan and was graduated from diving school there. He served as a diver at the Second Major Port, Yokohama, until his transfer to the 561st in June 1955. He later attended the diving school at Fort Eustis.

Although diving is equated with rescue work by most individuals, it was described as plain hard work by the two master divers. They said that out of the approximately 25 men who begin the 16-week diving course, about six are graduated.

Highly Specialized master divers, Master Specialists Henry M. Wasketwich and C. W. Holland, pause on their "home barge" to recall the events that led up to their specialized training in the Army. The two specialists hold the highest rank among divers and are among the 50 Army divers now on active duty.

Annual Accident Report Shows Need For Great Improvement

The incidence of Post accidents in Army aircraft and motor vehicles was higher than expected during the last calendar year, according to a newly released report. Although military personnel injuries dropped below the anticipated goal, civilian injuries were higher.

According to the statistics more than 64 per cent of the motor vehicle accidents could have been avoided by the Army driver. Most of the accidents were caused by misjudged clearance in backing, passing and turning and by following too closely.

Most of the civilian personnel injuries were traced to improper lifting and handling, lack of failure to use a safety device and slips and falls.

Although military personnel injuries fell below the expected number, statistics show that the injuries could be traced to three basic factors. They are non-Army motor vehicles, slips and falls and improper lifting and handling.

Italian-Raised Pfc Seeks Future Here

The approximately 11 million people who have joined the Communist-Socialist Party in Italy are seeking a better life and don't know how to get it, according to Pfc. Andrea Mazzeo, clerk assigned to the 163rd MP Company.

Private Mazzeo, who was born and reared in Italy, came to the United States in February 1954. Since his father was an American citizen when Andy was born, U.S. citizenship papers were taken out for Andy. He was allowed to retain his citizenship because he entered this country before his 21st birthday.

About 50 million people live in the small area that Italy covers, Andy continued. Only the men of the family work and the going wage is about $1.25 to $1.50 a day.

"The pro-American Democratic Christian party has about 13 million members," Andy said. "In order to stay in power this party must have help from the right wing, either the Fascist or Monarch parties."

Because the people live in hunger and overcrowded conditions, they are moving to other countries such as the United States, France, North Africa or Canada.

Andy was born in 1933 and attended school for 16 years in his native country. He planned to continue his studies in chemistry, but his plans were changed by his opportunity to come to the United States.

Andy was 10 years old when the war between Italy and the United States ended. When the fighting stopped, he was caught behind German lines for about 38 days. The Germans were bombing and mining nearly everything before the U.S. troops moved in and the people lived in panic during the turmoil.

Andy, who now calls New York his home, worked as a night cook in an Italian-French restaurant and as a watchmaker before he was drafted last August. After his basic training he attended clerk-typist school and finished 8th out of 79 in the class. He was assigned to the Presidio after his graduation.

"The soldier in America is much better off than his counterpart in Italy," Andy commented. "Italian soldiers receive about ten cents a day in addition to cigarettes and food. It is impossible for an enlisted man to make a living in the Italian Army."

Andy believes that the school system in Europe is more advanced than the system in the United States.

"The Italian schools are much tougher," he commented. "Here people enjoy school; in Italy school means work not enjoyment."

Andy, whose ambition is to be a jockey, stressed that in the United States you can get what you want if you are willing to work. In most other countries, there is not enough work for the people.

Vol. 6, No. 3 PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA Friday 14 June, 1957

Army Secretary

It is an inspiration to be a part of the great, vigorous United States Army on its 182nd Anniversary. Today's Army is the most superbly trained and equipped in our history, and it is fully abreast of the rapid evolution of modern warfare.

Although we in the Army today are stressing the development of atomic weapons, missiles, and rockets, we are not overlooking the importance of continued improvement of conventional weapons. In any situation that might develop, we will have the means at hand to apply the exact amount of force required—from the silent thrust of a bayonet in the hands of a fighting man to the blast of a powerful guided atomic missile.

On any field of battle, the Army can get its troops where they are needed, when they are needed, and with the punch needed for victory. In order to serve as a true instrument of the Nation's defense in today's world, the Army is prepared for combat action in any sector of the globe under conditions of limited "police action" or all-out general war, with conventional or atomic weapons, as the situation requires.

In support of our mutual defense alliances and other arrangements, nearly half the strength of our Army is stationed overseas. By deployment of our forces in critical areas and by the unmistakable ability of these forces to fight effectively, the United States Army is, I am proud to say, a powerful deterrent to war and a sturdy pillar of peace and justice. We can all be proud that we are members of this great Army.

Secretary of the Army

Army's Versatile Hawk Added To Nike System

The development of a new air defense missiles system designed to reinforce the low-altitude capability of U.S. air defenses, was announced this week by the Department of the Army.

Designated the Hawk, the new air defense weapon system will complement defense against high-level air attack provided by the Army's Nike system.

The Hawk can operate at both fixed installations and with fast moving combat troops in the field. It can be transported on the highway with a minimum of vehicles, by helicopter and by aircraft. The U.S. Marine Corps also will adopt the Hawk in its mobile role.

Initial sites for installation of the new system have been selected in the New York City and Washington-Baltimore areas. Each battery requires about 40 acres for emplacement; underground storage of the missiles is planned.

Raytheon Manufacturing Company of Massachusetts is the prime contractor under Army Ordnance for the development of the entire weapons system; Northrop Aircraft of California is the major subcontractor.

The addition of the Hawk, which is 16 feet long and 14 inches in diameter, was summarized by Maj. Gen. E. J. McGaw, commander of the 6th Region, U.S. Army Air Defense Command at Fort Baker.

"The Hawk missiles, added to our presently deployed Nike Ajax missiles and the soon-to-come Nike Hercules, will give our three Western states the most effective all-around air defense presently attainable."

Army Chief of Staff

It is a privilege to be a member of the United States Army and to partake of its heritage of service to country. Although on this 182nd Anniversary of the Army we honor past achievements, we are facing toward the future. The Army is continually in the process of modernization and change. There can be no rigidity in Army thinking nor in the concepts by which we are translating our strength into new forms of combat power.

The forthcoming year is a significant one in the Army's future. We expect to increase our combat effectiveness and our war-deterrent capability by significant changes in organization, tactics, and weapons. By the reorganization of divisions under the Pentomic concept and by the creation of Army missile commands, we will improve our ability to fight on the atomic battleground without losing the capability to conduct conventional warfare. We shall continue to increase our ability to outmaneuver any enemy on land and to seize military forces and areas essential to his war-making power. Nothing, however, will reduce the need for brave men to fight our battles under conditions of hazard and hardship. New weapons and machines will serve our soldiers but will not replace them.

I am confident that the soldiers of the United States Army will continue to serve our country with distinction and devotion.

General, United States Army,
Chief of Staff

Other top donors were Headquarters Company, USA Garrison, $290; G2, $227.75; CMD, $211; 163rd MP Company, $185; C Company, USA Garrison, $171; Sixth Army AG and MRU, $97.39; and 21st Engineer Company, $73.

CONARC Message

The 182nd Anniversary of the United States Army 14 June affords a welcome opportunity to express my grateful appreciation to the members of the Continental Army Command for all that they have contributed during the past year toward the greatest victory that military might can ever achieve—the total victory of freedom from aggression.

This victory is much more than a matter of superior weapons and machines—however important superior tools may be. It is a matter of people with superior motivation, mentality and training to use the tools which our superior technology can provide.

To be entrusted with the mission of developing such people for the Army is an honor and an obligation worthy of our utmost efforts. May we always be faithful to our trust!

For the past 182 years the Army has been a bulwark against those who would change our way of life.

New concepts of battle, new instruments of war and defense may come and go, but the incomparable spirit of our individual fighting man will always be our greatest tangible asset.

On this our 182nd birthday, we must rededicate ourselves to holding high those ideals for which so many courageous soldiers have died.

As we salute our past, let us be assured that our future will be equally as bright. For every American heart knows that the United States Army is a mighty symbol of Power for Peace!

New Benefit Plan Would Aid RA EMs

Washington (ANS)—A non-profit benefit association has been organized by a group of senior enlisted men here to provide emergency loan privileges, scholarship grants to deserving children of members, and low-cost group insurance for "regular" EM of the Armed Forces.

Open to all grades of enlisted men and women on active duty world-wide, it has been established as the Armed Forces Enlisted Benefit Association and patterned after a similar organization for commissioned and warrant officers.

Under present membership eligibility rules, once a person qualifies for membership in the association, his eligibility continues as long as he remains on active duty, regardless of his status.

Further information may be obtained by writing the association at the Washington Building, 15th Street and New York Ave., N.W., Washington 5, D. C.

Sixth U. S. Army

Today, citizens of the nation, as well as those who wear the uniform, hail the United States Army's 182nd birthday.

Nominally, we recognize this anniversary in a time of peace; but we whose mission it is to defend our country are aware that the hazards of war are ever present in this tumultuous world in which a large part of the earth's population is denied the human freedoms so many of our comrades and predecessors died to defend. We are further aware that our country, bearing as she does the mantle of free world leadership, is the particular target and envy of some unscrupulous leaders of foreign ideologies that might at any time cause an explosion into armed aggression against us or our allies.

Knowing these things, we are determined to keep ourselves alert and fit, our weapons as effective as modern science and technology can make them. The American Army's goal of superiority in quality of men, women and materiel is the nation's and the free world's best assurance against the threat of war and the best assurance for the preservation of peace.

Fresh Cake at the Post Commissary re-sale bakery is hard to beat according to the enthusiastic clerk above. And if he has time he will be pleased to list all of the other "goodies" that are available through the new bakery service now available at the commissary.

Post QM Still Growing In Modern Army Plans

Besides feeding and clothing Army personnel at the Presidio, Post Quartermaster is responsible for a variety of other activities that range from meat cutting to key making, from food service to furniture repair.

The 154 civilians and 33 military personnel who work in this section have been invited to a noon luncheon today to celebrate the 182nd anniversary of the Quartermaster Corps, according to Post Quartermaster Maj. Jack Hunt. Part of the luncheon celebration will be the cutting of the anniversary cake which incidentally will be supplied by one of the newest Post Quartermaster services.

A new re-sale bakery now sells fresh bakery goods at the Post Commissary. Fresh bread, rolls, cakes, pies, and cookies are all provided by the new service. All goods are offered at a substantial saving and it is even possible to order wedding cakes for future delivery.

Another new service is the Quartermaster gas station that opened at the west end of Crissy Field on 4 June. The new station has a 99,000-gallon capacity and pumps aviation fuel in addition to regular gasoline. This new four-pump station replaces an old two-pump station that held only 10,000 gallons of fuel.

Another unique activity of the Post Quartermaster section is the Parachute Maintenance branch where emergency chutes for the immediate Sixth U.S. Army area are packed and re-packed every three months. In keeping with Army requirements the four men in this branch are all jumpers.

QM History Replete With Top Service

The Quartermaster Corps, which celebrates its 182nd anniversary on Sunday, is actually a year older than the United States itself.

The Corps was established on 16 June 1775 at the request of General George Washington who considered its activities "indispensably necessary for the good government of the Army."

Each military crisis in the history of the United States has marked the expansion of the Quartermaster Corps. From the early days of the Revolutionary War, when small quartermaster units occupied themselves with procurement, storage and issue of food and clothing, the Corps has grown to a vast procurement and distribution complex responsible for a number of vital military activities.

During its greatest period of responsibility, World War II, the Corps was providing food, clothing and personal equipment for eight million men. In addition it handled salvage and repair, laundry and bath service and the care of the dead.

At this time the testing and development of quartermaster items was placed on a firm scientific basis. A new service, one of many, was established to improve the soldier's meal.

Today the Quartermaster Corps, headed by Maj. Gen. Andrew T. McNamara, the Quartermaster General, has reduced its personnel and facilities to meet the needs of the present Army. Stress is being placed upon management and fiscal procedures and accounting with the goal of effecting all possible economies and continuously improved efficiency.

23 Complete Math Studies

Their heads brimming with formulas, equations and triangles, 23 soldiers today at the Presidio complete an accelerated General Mathematics Refresher Course which has been directed by the Army Education Center.

The all-day math course, which started on 13 May, consisted of four hours of algebra each morning designed to teach the students a full year of high school algebra. In the afternoon the soldiers had three two-week instruction periods during which time they learned geometry, trigonometry and general science.

Some of the students were the 29th AAA Group from Travis and Castle Air Force Bases, but the majority came from Bay Area installations of the 30th AAA Group.

The mathematics course is designed to prepare men to attend guided missile school.

Sunday Marks Birthday Of Quartermaster Corps

Disposing of millions of dollars worth of obsolete and worn out Army equipment annually is one of the many jobs of the Army Quartermaster Corps which celebrates its 182nd anniversary on Sunday.

While no longer of use to the Army, much of this equipment has great value to other organizations. This makes the task of correctly disposing of the equipment difficult.

First in line for Army equipment are other members of the Department of Defense, and then other agencies of the Federal Government. Next, specially recognized organizations, such as Boy Scouts of America, Girl Scouts of America, Boys' Clubs and Camp Fire Girls, are considered for a donation. After requirements of these organizations have been filled, all available property is then made available on a donation basis to public health and educational institutions and for local, state and Federal Civil Defense use.

Anything that is left goes up for sale by one of a variety of methods. These include sealed written bids, spot bid sales, auction sales and retail or fixed price sales.

Sixth U.S. Army Quartermaster, under the direction of Col. Arthur L. Bivens, disposed of property during the first nine months of the 1957 fiscal year in the following manner: Redistributed within Department of Defense and transferred to Federal agencies for further use, $4,443,375; donated to specially recognized groups, $1,986,308; donated to public health and educational institutions and Civil Defense, $6,531,270; revenue from sale of waste materials (such as kitchen waste and scrap metals), $2,802,638, and revenue from sale of worn and obsolete property, $4,710,756.

Good food, prepared in the best manner possible and served in pleasant surroundings, is the aim of the Sixth U.S. Army Quartermaster section as it carries out the Department of the Army Food Program.

Quartermaster personnel literally move mountains of food to keep the troops supplied with enough food. Two central meat cutting plants process over a million pounds of meat quarterly in support of troop messes. Three central pastry kitchens produce almost a half million servings of pastry each quarter.

Ten issue commissaries, one branch issue commissary and eight commissary sales stores average three million dollars in issue and sales transactions monthly in support of the troop messes.

It takes approximately 3,000 military personnel to operate the 400 Class I messes serviced by the Sixth U.S. Army Quartermaster section. The messes vary in size from those feeding less than 50 to others that feed as many as 1,500 persons.

NBC Donates TV Film For 23 Service Outlets

Washington (AFPS) The National Broadcasting Co. has donated more than 450 hours of television programs for use by the 23 Armed Forces television stations.

The donation was described by the Defense Department as the largest single package of television prints it has received.

Brigadier Gen. C. A. Roberts, USMC, Director of Armed Forces Information and Education, commented:

"Television is a vital factor in the morale of our servicemen and their dependents in remote areas of the world. This great bloc of NBC properties represents a 33 per cent increase in total volume of new program material. . . ."

The programs will be distributed by Armed Forces Press, Radio and Television Service, N. Y., to remote overseas outposts.

Old VA Forms Discontinued In Benefits Act

Servicemen planning to secure dependency and indemnity coverage for family members are advised that the use of VA Form 9-5782 was discontinued early this month.

Should a serviceman desire future information in connection with the Survivor Benefits Act, originally set up to provide a simple and definite means of canceling Section 622 Waiver and securing information on premium payments, he should now write to the Veterans Administration Insurance Center, Munitions Building, Washington 25, D.C.

If, however, the soldier desires to establish an allotment for payment of premiums on term insurance, it can be handled locally by the Veterans Administration as a request for cancellation of the premiums waiver.

Army Will Sponsor College Education For Signal Sgt.

McDonald of Vero Beach, Florida, has been enrolled by the Army at the University of Florida to begin work toward a degree in electrical engineering.

Until his reenlistment to attend the University of Florida, Sergeant McDonald was a member of the ROTC Instructor Group at the school. The sergeant will have a three-year obligation to serve in the Army after he receives his degree and will be given a utilization tour at one of the Signal Corps installations.

The Signal Corps is planning to send other highly qualified enlisted men to various universities to work for degrees in electronics and allied fields.

Test Lightweight Assault Boat

Fort Belvoir, Va. (ANS)—Army Engineers here have developed a new lightweight assault boat that can carry 15 men and attain speeds of 7.1 miles per hour by use of a 25-horsepower outboard motor or 3.3 miles an hour by hand-paddling.

The durable, pneumatic-type craft is constructed of neoprene-coated nylon and consists of a main flotation tube, an air-mat bottom, a thwart tube connecting the main flotation tube amidship, and a 4-inch diameter spray rail extending around it.

With equipment (two large and one small inflation-deflation pumps, a repair kit and 11 five-foot paddles, and a cotton duck carrying case) the boat weighs 225 pounds. It is 17 feet long and five feet eight inches wide, inflated.

The boat may be air-dropped, and can be carried by six men.

Two Civilians Win Cash For Outstanding Service

Two Presidio civilian employees received a total of $400 this week for outstanding performance of duty.

Top winner was Mr. George Caselli, Post Quartermaster Section, who received a $200 check and Performance Award Certificate. Mr. Caselli, the section's Administrative Officer, received his awards from Maj. Jack Hunt, Post Quartermaster.

An employee of the section for 11 years, Mr. Caselli started his Civil Service career as a general clerk with the Cooks and Bakers School at the Presidio in 1941. He is secretary of the National Federation of Federal Employees.

Three-time award winner, Mrs. Mary A. Wentworth of the U.S. Army Veterinary Food Inspection Detachment, received a $200 check and a Department of the Army Sustained Superior Performance Award Certificate. This was the third Outstanding award earned by Mrs. Wentworth, a secretary.

Mrs. Wentworth, who began her Civil Service career in 1941, has been at the Presidio with the same detachment for nine years. Her awards were presented by Lt. Col. R. A. Resseguie, Area Veterinarian.

Can't Jam Or Detect New Guidance Unit

Lake Success, N. Y. (AFPS)—A gyroscopic device that can guide a missile, submarine, plane or ship straight to its mark free from enemy interference is now in production for the military. The device is jam-proof and weather-proof. Its range is unlimited and it emits nothing that can be detected by the enemy.

The information was disclosed recently by Sperry Gyroscope Co. here, manufacturers of the device.

The device was described by Sperry as a floating gyroscope sealed in a can with the entire assembly submerged in liquid. The liquid reduces friction to the vanishing point, the manufacturers said.

A Sperry engineer, explaining that present submarine navigation systems become inadequate on long underwater cruises, said the gyroscopic device can constantly measure the craft's position in latitude and longitude, give the position for fire control and provide precise information for guiding weapons.

The accuracy built into the device, called Inertial Guidance by its developers, depends on the kind of vehicle in which it will be used, it was explained.

Tolerances of less than 25 millionths of an inch are used in manufacturing the device, the company said, noting that the work is done in operating-room-like conditions.

Elaborate testing machinery is used to assure top performance, the company said. Flight testing also is done on the devices.

ROTC Uniform Item

The junior ROTC cadets in San Francisco's high schools are permitted to wear officers' pinks and greens, but must purchase them out of their own funds. In order to assist cadets in obtaining uniforms at a nominal price and also to benefit the Presidio Youth Activities, officers who wish to dispose of such uniforms are urged to either donate or arrange to sell them through the Post Thrift Shop.

Senate Group Allows Servicemen To Plead For Peacetime GI Bill

First Hitch Men State Their Case For Lawmakers

Washington (AFPS) — A Senate Labor and Public Welfare subcommittee, in a move probably unprecedented, has given servicemen an opportunity to plead their own case for a peacetime GI bill.

The five-man 'veterans' affairs subcommittee, headed by Sen. Strom Thurmon (D-S.C.) invited the first-hitch servicemen to testify in their own behalf at formal hearings on six Senate proposals to extend GI benefits to those entering the Armed Forces after 1 February, 1955.

The cutoff date for Korea GI Bill benefits was 31 January, 1955.

The bills would provide some or all of the readjustment benefits, such as education or training and mustering-out pay, for peacetime vets.

Responding to letters written to the subcommittee members by inductees who said they had a stake in the bills although they were not yet veterans, Sen. Thurmond decided to set aside two days of the hearings for eight or ten servicemen in the Washington area to appear in support of the legislation.

Although the Veterans Administration has opposed giving GI assistance to those entering the services in time of peace, the subcommittee is reportedly considering several plans other than the readjustment benefits provided war veterans.

Several similar bills, on which only preliminary hearings have been held, also are before the House Veterans Affairs Committee.

All Kinds of books are available on the Presidio Bookmobile, discovered the men of Btry D, 9th AAA Bn., when they were visited by this portable library last week. Pvt. Ben Doaks (reading) and Sgt. James D. Foresee (choosing) learned that this small library has the same types of book selections as the larger libraries. And if the men can't find what they want among the 500 to 700 volumes of the Bookmobile, they can request that it be brought next trip.

Finance Corps Fetes 182nd Birthday Also

Tomorrow the Finance Corps and its forefathers will observe the 182nd anniversary of their creation to disburse the Army's money. The function was first assigned to the Pay Department created by the Continental Congress for the American Army on 16 June, 1775.

The Pay Department handled the disbursement duties until 1912, when the department became part of the Quartermaster Corps. The Corps disbursed Army payments until 1920.

In 1920 the National Defense Act created the Finance Department. In September of the same year the Finance School of the U.S. Army was established. In its 37 years of instruction the school has trained more than 45,000 students in the proper techniques of financial management. The school was recently moved to its first permanent home at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana.

During World War II the Office Chief of Finance was placed under the newly-created Office of the Fiscal Director. The department continued to fulfill the Army's financial obligations to its soldiers, civilian employees, commercial contractors and servicemen's dependents.

The Finance Center was established in St. Louis, Missouri, in 1945. Nine years later the Center's functions were moved to its permanent home at Fort Benjamin Harrison. About 4,500 civilians and 100 military are assigned to the Center.

After World War II the Office Chief of Finance became a part of the Office of Comptroller of the Army.

Maj. Gen. Harry W. Crandall, the present Chief of Finance, assumed the office in May 1956.

'Gulf Stream' Biggest

Plan Five CPX's For Fiscal '58

The Army has scheduled five major troop exercises involving five divisions, two corps headquarters and the 2nd Logistical Command for the year beginning 1 July. These exercises and other maneuvers will cost $11,444,000.

The largest exercise scheduled is Exercise Gulf Stream, in which 26,000 Army troops will engage in a CPX similar to this year's Exercise King Cole. The exercise scheduled at Fort Polk, La., will cost about $4,320,000.

Exercise Red Rock, a 15-day test planned in October or November at Yakima, Wash., is similar to the Indian River maneuver cancelled during this fiscal year.

$119 Mil. Contract Let For 900 Tanks

Washington (AFPS) — The Chrysler Corp. will build 900 M48-A2 Patton tanks for the Army at a cost of $119 million.

The 49-ton medium tanks will be produced in government-owned facilities at Newark, Del. Chrysler now is modifying earlier models of the Patton at the plant.

Coro-Sponsored Teacher Ends Study Of Presidio

A possible civilian "need to know" about the Armed Forces was uncovered during an eight-week study of the Post by Ronald F. Thaheld, an intern in Public Affairs studying at the Coro Foundation in San Francisco. The visit completed last Friday took Thaheld to nearly all Post sections which he viewed from the management level.

Thaheld, the first Coro Foundation student to select a military installation as part of his nine-month internship, requested the Post because he wanted to study military construction as compared to civilian organizations.

"I wanted to find out more about what is commonly termed 'the military mind,'" Thaheld explained. "I expected to find a nonhuman system that was rigid and mechanical, but was impressed with the humanistic approach in the Army."

He stressed the warm personalities and interests of the Officers in Charge.

Military and civilian construction can not be compared because the purposes of the two groups are so radically different, he said. He added that his study had made him aware of the important role played by paperwork.

"I found no instances in which civilians were just holding down desks," Thaheld continued. "In fact I found that because of frequent outbacks, Civil Service is not as secure as some people would like to think."

Thaheld, who plans to teach on the junior college level, feels he will be a better soldier because of this study. He emphasized that this type of training should be carried out on other school levels and added that he feels better equipped to counsel junior college individuals because of his study.

"The Foundation is becoming more interested in including the military in its curriculum," Thaheld commented. "As I have given my reports, a possible civilian 'need to know' developed even among those who had completed their military service."

Thaheld said that understanding the Army does not rest with the Army alone, but includes a civilian conditioning to why the Army exists. However, he added that Army public relations should include an examination of basic Army problems.

Thaheld holds a B.A. in political science from Stanford University and an M.A. in U.S. History from the University of California. He is one of 12 selected by the local foundation for scholarships each year.

The Coro Foundation is a non-profit organization established in 1942 to conduct research and education in the field of government-politics.

Minnesota Votes Bonus For Eligible Korean War Vets

Washington (AFPS) — Payment of a Korean War bonus voted by the State Legislature for Minnesota veterans will begin Jan. 1, 1959.

Application blanks for the bonus, signed into law by the governor of Minnesota on April 29, will be available to legal residents of the state within the next few months, according to the Department of Veterans' Affairs.

Servicemen on continuous active duty in the Armed Forces for four years prior to June 27, 1950, will not be eligible for the gratuity.

Maximum payment to veterans qualified for the Korean Service Medal will be $400 based on $15 for each month overseas and $7.50 a month for Stateside service between June 27, 1950, and July 27, 1953.

For all other vets who did not actually serve in Korea between these dates, a maximum of $200 will be paid at the rate of $7.50 a month for both domestic and overseas service.

State officials estimate about 11,000 veterans, some 25 percent of whom were awarded the Korean Service Medal, will receive the bonus.

Military Education Conference Due Here On Tuesday

Representatives from throughout the Sixth U.S. Army area will meet at the Presidio on 20 June for the Second Annual Army Educational Development Conference for Military Personnel.

Chester Schoenborn, Sixth Army Education Advisor, will chair the meeting that is scheduled for Bldg. 563. Dr. Leo Cain of San Francisco State is a scheduled speaker.

Mr. Wilmot Jacobs, Education Advisor for the Continental Army Command will be among those attending.

If your furlough includes a sightseeing trip to Santa Cruz you can see there the Mission which marks the twelfth landmark in the series of twenty-one punctuating the mileage of coast road from San Francisco to San Diego.

Leaving the Presidio you follow the famous scenic drive route No. 1 along the State's most beautiful highway.

The city of Santa Cruz . . . Holy Cross . . . entered California history with the redwood tree. When Portola, the Spaniard, and his confused men were trying to find the Presidio they discovered the first redwood tree . . . now the national tree of the United States.

The travelers noted that although the redwood resembled cedar, it was not the same odor and was unlike any of its kind they knew in Spain.

When Father Juan Crespi established the Santa Cruz Mission, some of the redwood trees in the area were over 350 feet tall . . . highest growing things on record to this date. A group of those same trees covered an area 450 miles long and 40 miles wide . . . think of how majestic they must have looked . . . and how startling to a band of Spanish pilgrims who had never before beheld their like!

Santa Cruz's first white camper was one of Portola's soldiers who, in riding his horse through the giant hole in a burnt-out redwood tree, said, "now I have a house!"

Actually, it was not the first visit of a Spaniard to Santa Cruz. In the year 1542, Cabrillo, another Spaniard in charge of an exploring ship, could not land there because the surf was so mountainously high. Some 61 years later, another vessel arrived from Spain. It was recorded then that the weather was so cold the sailors' hands and feet froze while securing food and water on the Santa Cruz shoreline.

In August, 1791 . . . the day of Saint Augustine . . . the Cross was raised at the site of the Santa Cruz Mission. Those Missions already established along the coast gave an unusual housewarming for the new-born sacred place. Santa Clara, for instance, gave 64 cattle, 30 cows, 22 horses, 20 steers, five yoke of oxen, 77 hundred-weight of grain and 27 loaves of bread. San Carlos Mission sent eight horses and six mules . . . and a Spanish soldier, a corporal, and a Navy ensign, traveled over the road from the Presidio with 70 sheep, 5 yoke of oxen and two bushels of barley. The ensign made a dedication speech and took possession of the Mission in the name of the Holy Trinity and for the King of Spain.

The first baptism at Santa Cruz Mission took place in 1791 . . . that of a little Indian girl called Moslon . . . rechristened Micaela. The first marriage of Christian Indians came soon after.

In spite of the Mission guards, the cattle were often stolen by wandering Indians. Meanwhile bears became such a menace that the soldiers were ordered to hunt them for target practice . . . while the Indians, yet uncivilized, made target practice out of the soldiers. Then came floods and earthquakes, making it necessary to build a new church on higher ground. The Spanish friars tucked their habits in their girdles and showed the Indians how to make adobe brick. Again the rains weakened the new church. A dead whale on the beach drew prowling wolves which fought with the bears over the carcass.

Friction among the Mission residents and interference from outside made Santa Cruz Mission one of the most troubled of them all. Father Quintana was called one night to administer to a dying Indian. After performing the Last Rites, he was seized by hostile Indians and told to prepare for death. They hanged him from a tree . . . stole back to the Mission with his body which they placed in his own bed. And when they were apprehended, they were sentenced to work in chains for two years. Only one of the prisoners survived the term.

Do visit Santa Cruz Mission . . . baptismal font for over 3,000 Indian converts. Behind the timeless mud walls is a silence that speaks loudly of the past . . . the garden where ancient olive and fig trees still bear fruit . . . and the wild Spanish roses bend over the grave of a hard-driven Castilian priest whose spirit is said still to walk the dusk-robed hills.

Helmet Radio May Find Power In Sun's Rays

The helmet radio under development by the Army soon may need only exposure to sunlight to obtain all the electrical power necessary to operate both its transmitter and receiver for as long as a year, the Department of the Army has announced.

Experiments at the U.S. Army Signal Engineering Laboratories, Fort Monmouth, N. J., prove that solar batteries, which convert light to electricity, can power the world's smallest transmitter-receiver. This helmet-housed radio is nearing final design at the laboratories. Similar power is now under serious consideration for the walkie-talkie and other light field radios.

Use of the solar cells combined with rechargeable nickel-cadmium batteries would provide power for many months, possibly a year or more. With the dry cells now used in the helmet radio, battery life is less than a day if used continuously.

The new version of the radio is as light as the dry-battery powered set, which weighs slightly less than a pound.

Robot Tractor Now Testing

Fort Belvoir, Va. (ANS)—The Army is testing a radio-controlled "robot" tractor here that is believed to represent the first application of the remote control principle to a piece of construction equipment.

The tractor can be operated anywhere within the range of the radio. It should prove invaluable in construction work in radioactive and combat zones and may also be useful in such other tasks as fighting large fuel storage fires.

From a jeep or helicopter equipped with a standard military radio transmitter and a special control box, the operator can start and stop the "robot," engage and disengage its gears, operate it forward or reverse, manipulate the dozer blade up and down, and guide it.

Normally the tractor can be operated from distances of up to 15 miles, the practical range of the radio. Army engineers at the Research and Development Laboratories here believe that installation of small television cameras on the "robot" will give the remote operator valuable knowledge of the machine's manipulations.

Big Prize awaits the unsuspecting individual who is sitting in this week's service club spotlight. If you are in the spotlight, present a copy of this "Star Presidian" to the Fort Baker Service Club Director for two free tickets to the Fort Baker Theater.

31 Finish College Study; Win Diplomas Tomorrow

Thirty-one officers and enlisted men who have studied under the Post Army Education Center-San Francisco State College program will be graduated from the college tomorrow. The class is the largest to be counseled by the Center.

Commencement exercises are scheduled at 1100 hours at Cox Stadium, San Francisco State College, 19th and Holloway.

Lt. Col. Clarence Freeman, formerly assigned to Fort Mason and now serving overseas, has had his work toward a master's degree accepted by the SFSC Board of Governors. The colonel, who completed his bachelor's and master's work under the Post Army Education Center, has not yet completed his thesis.

The five enlisted men graduating are the first to receive college degrees under the program. All of the graduates will receive bachelor of arts degrees with a Social Science major.

The first EM graduates are M/Sgt. James R. Harty, M/Sgt. Kenneth Hayse, M/Sgt. William G. Lucas, M/Sgt. John A. Lunde and Sfc. Edward M. Murphy.

Others to be graduated are Clifford L. Beisel and Andrew F. Kitts, Chief Warrant Officers; Allen C. Troutman, Lieutenant; William L. Dupart, Richard Esacson, Harry K. Fukuhara, James F. Hackney, Hugh Harris, Douglas A. Huff, Walter Kevell, Charles N. Rose, Jr., Sterling Thompson, Louis Vendola and Donald Yabe, Captains.

Completing the list are William R. Henry and John P. Valentine, Majors; Dwight C. Brewer, Wellington Glover, Everett Gambort, Rufus L. McCracken, Gust Olson, Andrew Russell, Gordon Smith, Robert W. Williams and Robert G. Youngblood, Lieutenant Colonels; and Gerald K. Gifford, Colonel.

Twenty-four of the graduates will participate in the ceremony. All were counseled by Mrs. Kathryn Mason, Post Education Adviser for nearly 10 years.

Army To Continue Trial Of Pay Voucher System

Washington (AFPS)—The Army will extend for another year tests of the proposed Military Pay Voucher System being run at eight posts in the U.S.

Providing soldiers with a monthly itemized accounting of "across the table" pay, the new system has been on trial since 1956 in units at Ft. Dix, N. J.;

Ft. Riley, Kans.; Ft. Hood, Texas; Ft. Polk, La.; Ft. Sam Houston, Texas; Ft. McNair here and Ft. Myer and Cameron Station in Virginia.

Troops of the test organizations will continue to be paid each month on the individual voucher until 30 June, 1958.

Designed to avoid misunderstandings and to permit prompt adjustment of discrepancies, the system also allows EM to draw only a portion of their pay for any period.

Philatelists Take Notice!

The Philatelic Window at the post office, 7th and Mission Streets, is open daily, Tuesday through Saturday, between 1130 and 1500 hours. It features commemorative and regular issues of postage stamps on hand at the San Francisco Post Office.

The service has been used by Stamp Clubs and individuals for more than eight years. New issues are available to collectors, at the window, on the day following the announced date of issue.

Military collectors interested in exhibiting in the frames provided in the lobby of the philatelic section at the Post Office may make arrangements with the postmaster.

Requests should be submitted to The Postmaster, San Francisco, California, Room 131 (Main Post Office).

26 Complete High School Studies; Win BF Diplomas

The effort of going to night school four times a week bore fruit for 26 Presidio soldiers yesterday when they received high school diplomas from the Benjamin Franklin Adult High School of San Francisco.

The enlisted men just recently completed a 16-week course of instruction during which time they received 12 hours of instruction each week. Some of the men have been working toward their high school degree for as long as a year.

Only men who entered the Army prior to July, 1955, have been eligible for the particular program which graduated the Army men yesterday. In addition each man was required to meet certain GED test standards and to take a special "stiff" course of instruction.

The following soldiers received their high school diploma: M/Sgt. Ronald J. Asselin, M/Sgt. Alphonso Barnes, Sp3 Walter Bateman, Sp3 Ralph Bentley, Sp3 John Biarbe, Sgt. Floyd Bolden, M/Sgt. Wesley Fitzgerald, Cpl. Ralph Forbis, Sp3 Jimmie Herron, Pvt. Robert Jacobsen, Sfc. Claude Jones, Sp2 Octavio Marrero-Rolon and Sgt. Floven Graves.

San Francisco high school diplomas were also presented to Pfc. Siebert Mayfield, Sgt. Floyd McMillian, Sp3 Felton Napoleon, Sp2 Katsumi Nagaoka, Sp3 Eugene Neugent, Sp3 Juan Pascual, Sfc. George Richard, M/Sgt. Saturino Rodriguez, Sp3 Paul Sandlin, Sp3 Ronald Swift, Sfc. Shirley Vredenburg, Sfc. Fred Walker and Sgt. Edward Ward.

Restate Policy In Hiring New Civilian Personnel

Army policies regarding civilian employment as stated by President Eisenhower last December will remain effective for the rest of this fiscal year and the next two fiscal years, according to a Sixth Army announcement.

The policy stresses that "new hiring is to take place only after a review has demonstrated that a vacated position cannot be abolished, or filled by transfer."

According to the announcements, civilian employment will be restricted to the minimum number necessary to perform work which is essential to the Army. Reduced employment levels will be attained by maximum use of attrition, including systematic review and elimination of nonessential positions and reassignment of qualified employees to vacancies which are determined to be necessary.

Reduction - in - force procedures will be resorted to only after all feasible reductions have been achieved by other means and where it becomes necessary to balance the remaining workforce with workload, mission and fund requirements. Persons reduced from the workforce will be reassigned within the Army whenever possible.

New Semantics Visited On Terms Without Meaning

Washington (ANS) The Department of the Army has announced changes in the names of two elements of the Artillery School system, effective July 1. The Antiaircraft Artillery and Guided Missile School at Fort Bliss, Texas, will become the U.S. Army Defense School. The Artillery and Guided Missile School at Fort Sill, Okla., will drop the word "Guided" from its designation.

EMs Must Have Army Greens 1 October '58

Enlisted men will not be forced to own the Army Green uniform before 1 October, 1958, even though it is authorized for duty wear before that time, according to DA Circular 670-14. The circular outlines the Army plan for replacing the OD 33 with the Army Green for enlisted wear.

A one-and-one issue of OD and green clothing will be given to all men entering the Army for the first time beginning 1 July. Men returning to clothing allowance system areas from issue in kind areas such as Korea also will come under the program.

The program applies to all enlisted men on active duty, including Reservists in the six-month training program. The one-and-one issue plan will continue until 30 September, 1958. On 1 October, 1958, green uniforms will be issued.

Active enlisted men will replace OD 33s out of their own uniform allowance. They must possess one green uniform by 1 October, 1958, and the second one within the following two years.

New SR Will Aid Reply On Adverse Security Findings

A chance to make reply will be given each Army member against whom adverse security information is on file, even if the information isn't serious enough to prevent granting a clearance or to stop "favorable" personnel action, according to Change 5, SR 380-320-10 distributed last week.

Until the change, only those against whom "adverse information" resulted in charges were faced with the charges and asked to meet them. The refuting is to be done on a voluntary basis by the individual, without prejudice.

SILK STOCKINGS casts Fred Astaire as an American film producer, who goes to Paris to make a picture with a self-exiled Russian composer's music furnishing the score. The Kremlin sends Cyd Charisse as a cultural Commissar to meet Fred.

THE YOUNG DON'T CRY is the story of a Georgia orphanage teen-ager, played by Sal Mineo, who is tough enough to go his way, fighting off the cynicism, brutality and sadism of the "big guys" around him. In a nearby prison, convict James Whitmore also is fighting those who abuse the power they have, refusing to knuckle to warden J. Carrol Naish. Sal innocently becomes involved in Whitmore's escape try.

THE MIDNIGHT STORY finds Tony Curtis in the role of a motorcycle policeman who attempts to enter the police hunt for the killer of his benefactor, a parish priest who was murdered in an alley. Because the crime is being handled by the homicide men, Tony is refused permission to join the hunt and resigns in order to make his own investigation. Tony sees his suspect at the priest's funeral.

LURE OF THE SWAMP casts Marshall Thompson as a guide in the Everglades who is hired by a gangster for a trip into the swamp, where the gangster secretly hides the haul from a robbery. The next day Simon reads of the gangster's murder, Simon, the gangster's partner and his widow all race for the money.

Toreros Tangle With Two Rock Today

Army Day Game Pits Top Service Teams

In observance of the Army Birthday this Friday, the Toreros will host the Two Rock Ranch Team from Petaluma at the Fort Scott Diamond at 1430 hours.

Both teams are eligible to play in the Sixth Army Tournament which will be held at the Presidio 3-7 September. Boasting a strong team, the Petaluma nine recently defeated Parks Air Force Base by the score of 12-9.

In the meantime, the Toreros continue to trample their opponents. Behind the superlative pitching of Dick Shinnick, the Presidio squad walloped Travis Air Force Base 16-5 to remain unbeaten in service competition.

The Toreros turned the ball game into a rout in the first two innings by scoring nine runs on six hits and four walks. After that it was strictly no contest as the big righthander breezed to his sixth victory.

The big guns for the Presidio team were Bob Jolly with three hits in four trips at bat followed by Roger Collins, Fred Crissey, Emilio Martinez and Shinnick, with two hits apiece.

Shinnick and first baseman John Zeleznock were selected as the two new coaches of the team. Before entering the service, Shinnick played ball with the Lincoln club of the Western League. One of his teammates was the famous Dick Stuart, who set a record by hitting 66 home runs during the 1956 season. Zeleznock, also hailing from the professional ranks, played ball with the Allentown Club, a farm team in the St. Louis Cardinal organization.

A Real Cool Wager!

An English housewife bet two shillings (50 cents) on a horse named Coole in a race at Haydock Park in 1929. The horse, at odds of 3,400 to 1, won the race and the Englishwoman collected $1,705 for her fifty cents. This stands as the world's longshot record.

Bobby, The Great!

Robert T. Jones, Jr., of Atlanta, Ga., often referred to as the greatest amateur golfer of all time, won the Junior Championship of Atlanta in 1911 when he was only nine years old. At 14, he won four championships, including the Georgia State title. In 1930, he made the "Grand Slam" in golf by winning the British Amateur and Open Tournaments, and then returned to the U.S. to win the USGA Open and Amateur Championships.

WACs Will Play Ord In Test Game This Saturday

The Presidio WAC softball team, pointing for the opening of the newly-formed Army-Air Force Women Softball League, will play the Fort Ord Wac nine in a practice game this Saturday at 1300 hours at the PX Field.

Sgt. Kite, NCOIC of the Post Sports Section, reports that League play will begin around 20 June. Plenty of action will be provided by the four teams already entered in the league, which represent WAC units from Hamilton Air Force Base, Letterman Army Hospital, Parks Air Force Base, and Travis Air Base.

Triple Aces Cut Tall Timber; Battle Deuces For First Place

Spearheaded by O. McFadin with a 576-215, the high-flying Triple Aces took a 3-1 bowling league thriller from the Deuces, thus seriously challenging the Bay league leaders for top spot. The Aces are now in second place only one game behind the Deuces.

High man for the Deuces was V. Dodson with 551-222. Next week's schedule pits the Triple Aces against Hq. Co. 6th Army, and the Deuces against the third place 56th MRU.

In other Bay League games, the 99ners and 30th AAA split their series, 2-2. Top man for the 99ners was F. Fleichmann with 475-166 with F. Patter of the AAA group high for his team with 514-195. Hq. Co. and 56th MRU, fighting it out for third place, also split their series, 2-2. Pacing the Hq.'s attack was Stable with 468-173. High man for the MRU outfit was D. Wehrheim with 514-179.

The Officers Club shut out the cellar dwelling 740th AAA by the score of 4-0. C. Mahan with 533-189 was best man for the winners.

Braves Win First Three; Lead Pony League Play

The front-running Braves led the Pony League as competition moved into the third week of play.

Opening day saw the Braves ride roughshod over the Pirates by 26-11. Sparked by the heavy hitting of Pat Horrell and the sharp pitching of Dale Ruffin, the Braves failed to entirely spike the Pirates' big sticks, however, Horrell's five runs on four hits gave his team an added margin. Ruffin gave up only seven hits as the winning pitcher.

The Braves took a pair later in the week by dumping the Dodgers 13-1 and the Tigers 9-1.

Other games saw the second place Pirates score a twin win as they downed the Tigers 10-6 and the Dodgers 9-6.

In an opening day game the Dodgers beat the Tigers 13-1.

Still in urgent need of players, the Pony League has sent out a call for boys in the 13-15 age group who are eligible for play if their parents have either PX or Commissary privileges.

League games are played on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 1800 hours, with doubleheaders set for Saturdays at 1300 hours. Game site is the Youth Baseball Park behind the 30th Engineer Motor Pool near the 25th Ave. gate.

Those interested in playing should contact Mrs. Horrell at Ext. 2254.

Need Softball Players!

Personnel interested in playing softball for the Presidio Softball Team, please contact M/Sgt. George Van Kirk at Ext. 5323. Play begins on 8 July. The team has entered the 18th Annual City-wide Softball League and will be pointing for the Central Division Playoffs at Fort Ord, 13-17 August.

T.I. Pirates Raid 740th Missileers

Treasure Island's rampaging Pirates hung a 4-1 defeat on the 740th AAA's Missileers on their home grounds at Ft. Barry, last Friday.

Four unearned runs in a fiascoed first inning led to the downfall of the locals, however. After a rocky start right-hander George Hane spiked the sailors' bats for the rest of the game, holding them to a four-hit total.

Ross and Rico were the big guns for the Missileers, garnering two hits apiece.

Garrison Nine Leads Softball Play; Three Teams Boast Clean Records

Company A's undefeated softball nine fattened their already padded batting averages as they whitewashed a hapless Base Post Office team by the score of 37-0. Jerry Kirksey pitched a no-hitter for winners.

Still leading the American League in post intramural play, the US Army Garrison hotshots have now won seven straight.

In other American League games, Hq. Co. Sixth US Army defeated the 16th BPO by the score of 16-0. The third place 56th MRU pounded the Teen Agers by the count of 15-2. The Teen Agers suffered another defeat during the week, this time at the hands of the 46th Ordnance by a score of 13-3.

Hq. Co., firmly entrenched in second place and main threat for the league lead, if the top team should falter, took their second win of the week by trouncing the 56th MRU by the count of 11-4.

In the National League, the undefeated 21st Engineer Co. continue to overwhelm their opponents. Last week, they whitewashed the third place 537th Engr Co. by the tune of 13-0.

In other National League games the second place Hq. 30th Engrs defeated 537th Engr. Co. by the score of 8-4. In the only other game played last week in this league, Hq. Sixth Army Tng. Unit won in easy fashion over 99th Engr. Co. by the count of 11-1.

Northern League leaders, D Btry 9th AAA Bn., barely held on to their untarnished record by trimming 6 Btry 9th AAA Bn., 12-10. Jordan and Burrige. Both members of D Btry, lead their league in batting with 562 and 550 averages, respectively.

In other games, the second place A Btry 9th AAA blanked Hq. Btry 30th AAA, 7-0. The Sixth Army Med Lab nine moved up in the standings by winning two games, beating Hq. Btry 9th AAA by the score of 21-5 and then clobbering the 561st Engineers, 16-11. C Btry trounced the 30th AAA men by the score of 14-4. The cellar dwelling 30th group came back on Monday to win their only game of the season by defeating the 9th AAA, 7-0.

Ernie Shelton, California Military District, was the only Presidio squad member to qualify for the All-Army Track and Field Tournament at the Sixth U.S. Army Track and Field Meet held last week at Monterey.

Shelton will journey to the All-Army Finals at Fort Hood, Texas, this weekend, as a result of his 6'6 1/2" jump which earned him a tie for first place along with Bernard Allard, former University of Notre Dame track star and now stationed at the Yuma Test Station.

In other events, Fred Hickey and Charles Wimberley took third and fourth place respectively in the six-mile run; Bob Kemp placed fourth in the 120-yard high hurdles

Pirtle's 143 Is Best In First Two Rounds

Steady Game Sid Domingue

After two rounds of play, Pfc. Allyn Pirtle, 56th MRU, was a surprise leader in the Annual Intra-Mural Presidio Golf Tournament with 143. Right behind him with a 145 was the old pro, Pfc. Alex "Red" Sutton.

According to last-minute deadline tabulations from the Tournament scorekeeper, Sutton was leading Pirtle in the first nine holes of the third round with 35 while Pirtle shot an even par of 36. The final round will be played today and as things look now, it will be a fight right down to the wire between Sutton and Pirtle.

Right behind Pirtle and Sutton, however, was the sharpshooting M/Sgt. C. H. Shaw with 151 after two rounds, and if the top two should falter, Shaw could cop the championship.

In fourth place was Col. F. Smith with a score of 152, followed by Capt. Charles Monges with 153. Tied for sixth place were M/Sgt. Sid ney Domingue and Pfc. Donald R. Welch with 156.

The top six players of the Tournament will comprise the Presidio golf team which will enter the 6th U.S. Army Tournament scheduled at the Presidio Course 5-9 August.

21st Engineer Team Wins Softball Crown

"Nerveless" Nick Themely tossed a niggardly two-hitter at the San Francisco Angelos to down that previously undefeated softball aggregation by 7-1 as the 21st Engineer Company won a first-round championship in Park Department sponsored Class B Minor Softball League.

Laying their own unblemished record on the line, five straight wins, the locals proved too strong for the city nine. Team and individual awards will be presented the champions.

Besides their city championship, the 21st still leads the 30th Engineer Group Intramural League at the Presidio. Coached by Sp3 John Denver, a former semipro player, the team is led on the field by Pfc. William Julian.

As a result of their fine city showing, the 21st has been invited to play in the 13th Annual Benefit Softball Tournament at Kezar Stadium on Friday night, 21 June. They will tangle with the Class A champion Globes in the tourney's feature game.

This will be the first time since 1935 that a service team has been chosen to play in the main game.

Because of their top record the Engineers will vie in the Class A group during the next round of city competition.

Tickets for the Kezar Benefit are on sale at the 21st's orderly room. All post personnel are invited to come out for an evening of top-notch softball and a chance to root for the home team.

1st Fleet To Test Army Stars Here

Something Special on the ball was demonstrated by Brigadier General Legare Tarrant, deputy commanding general of the Sixth Army, when he fired the only ace in the history of local hole-in-one tournaments. Tarrant's perfect shot came during the annual Army Emergency Relief play at the Presidio Pitch 'n' Putt Course.

Tarrant Fires Big Ace In AER Tournament

The ideal in golf is a hole-in-one, but the ideal ideal is a hole-in-one in a Hole-In-One Tournament.

Last Friday Brigadier General Legarre K. Tarrant, Deputy Commanding General, Sixth Army, fired a 100-yard ace during the Army Emergency Relief Hole-In-One Tournament at the Presidio Pitch and Putt Course.

The General used an 8-iron to score his third ace in 20 years of golfing. He had previously singled at the Military Academy Course during his cadet days, and later one-holed while playing a round in North Carolina.

Friday's feat precipitated a near-crisis since it represented an almost insurmountable barrier to other golfers vying for the AER trophies. However, Post Special Services rose to the occasion by awarding General Tarrant a special Hole-In-One Trophy leaving the original trophies intact for other aspirants.

Sergeant N. J. Atwood, CMD, scored first in the "second flight" as he dropped a shot 2 feet 7 inches from the cup. Runners-up were Col. Franklin Smith, G3, 3 feet 7 inches; Sgt. Julian Kite, Post Special Services, 7 feet 3 inches; Steve Long, Post Motor

White Wins Tennis Single Title In AAA Tourney Play

Floyd H. White, Hq. Btry. 9th AAA Mis. Bn., dominated play in last week's first Annual 30th AAA Group Tennis Tournament by capturing the singles championship from James Rasberry, 436th AAA Mis. Bn., and then going on to cop the doubles title with teammate Thomas L. Falgien, also from the 9th AAA.

White, a graduate of the University of California, and Falgien, former football coach in the city school system at Florence, Colorado, left for Camp Hanford where they will participate in the Sixth Region Army Air Defense Command Championship Tennis Tournament, 13-17 June. Runners-up, Rasberry and Paul Ehrlich, will also represent the SF area in the Eastern Tournament.

This tournament will bring together all the winners from the Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle and Hanford Defense Areas.

The Camp Hanford competition will decide the first tennis titles in the history of the 6th region.

The four finalists at Hanford will represent the 6th Region in the US Army Air Defense Command Tennis Tournament, 20-29 June at Fort Meade, Maryland, headquarters of the 2d Region, US Army Defense Command.

Texas In His Soul!

Sports Editor Ends Tour; Returns To Texas Tech

Wolfe Returns To First Love

Star Presidian Sports Editor Perry Bassel Wolfe, left the Army, the Presidio and California last week to return—not too reluctantly—to his native state of Texas where he will complete his senior year at Texas Tech and earn a degree in commercial art.

Perry, who was an accurate, hard working sports editor, may be more remembered for his abilities as an artist and cartoonist. His most outstanding contribution to Army art was the front and back covers of the Armed Forces Day Edition of the "Star Presidian" published last month. The front cover showed five service women holding their respective service flags. They were backed up by an Army paratrooper who was in turn backed up by the Nike Missile. The symbolic back cover showed a mighty hand holding the atomic mushroom cloud separating the freedom of democracy and the oppression of totalitarianism.

New Editor Is Consul's Son

The Star Presidian's new sports editor, Pvt. Norman Niccoll, has been a sports enthusiast as long as he can remember. His favorite participating sports are basketball, tennis and horseback riding. He is also a familiar figure at the Bay Meadows race track during the first one or two weekends following pay day.

His sports writing background can be traced to high school, where he wrote sports in addition to serving as editor of the year book. He attended college at the University of Southern California and holds a masters degree in international relations. His special interest is Latin America.

Norm's interest in international relations come from his father, who is currently a Consul in the American Embassy at Lima, Peru. His father's world-wide assignments for the State Department have enabled Norm to live in Italy, Canada, Mexico and Switzerland.

Post Parade Will Honor Commanding Officer

Good MP's are Cpl. Arthur Beauchardt, driving, and Pvt. Reinhold J. Dally, Jr., at the radio, the two alert members of the 163rd MP Company who last week apprehended a man after he pulled a gun on them. Their feat was termed "good police work" by Capt. George J. Reuss, Provost Martial Operations Officer.

MP Team Disarms Speeder In 'Movie Type' Arrest

By Sp/3 Dick Lewis
Star Presidian Associate Editor

When a car speeds past you, runs a stop sign and keeps going, there's only one thing to do—if you're a good military policeman.

You jam your patrol car into gear, turn on the red light, sound the siren and give chase.

If the driver of the car ahead increases his speed and swings wide out the Lombard gate in an attempt to shake you, you swing wider and nip him off at the curb—if you're a good military policeman.

Once the offender is stopped, you tell your companion to cover the rear and you walk up to check the driver. If he gives you his drivers license, you tell him to stay in the car and turn for your citation book—if you're a good military policeman.

But if you turn back and find the man has stepped out of his car, drawn an automatic pistol and is ordering you to "stand where you're at and don't try anything foolish," there isn't anything in the book that tells you what to do—even if you're a good military policeman.

Cpl. Arthur Beauchardt of the 163rd MP Company didn't hesitate Saturday morning, 0300 hours, when he suddenly found himself facing this situation.

Looking straight at the man and the pointed gun he shouted to his MP companion, Pvt. Reinhold J. Dally, Jr., who was standing to the rear of the vehicle. "Get behind him, Dally!"

This action startled the man, and he turned, giving Beauchardt time to draw his .45 and order, "Give me that gun." Finding himself outnumbered, the man immediately gave up and handed over his gun. He was later turned over to civilian authorities while still protesting that he didn't know who had stopped him and was only trying to defend himself.

Post Provost Marshal Maj. Wilfred J. Curley lauded Beauchardt for his "cool headedness in a tight situation," and said his actions were a "fine example of Military Police work."

"Don't think I wasn't plenty scared," said Beauchardt, who has been in tight spots before and wears the Purple Heart for wounds received while serving with the Rangers in Italy during World War II. He has been a military policeman for 11 of his 19 years in the Army.

Dally, who is serving his eighth month in the Army, admits that this was the most exciting experience in his life to date.

Fire Fleet Salute

A 15-gun return salute was fired to Vice Admiral Robert Lee Dennison, commander of the First Fleet, by the Presidio yesterday. The fleet's flagship, the "USS Rochester," fired the first salute to Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander.

Twenty-one units of the fleet entered San Francisco as the morning salute was exchanged. Admiral Dennison visited General Young in April of this year.

Matcaroff Signs Up

Master Sergeant William Matcaroff, First Sergeant at the 16th Base Post Office, reenlisted for three years this month. The sergeant was sworn in by his commanding officer, Capt. Alfred L. Brazeau.

Sergeant Matcaroff, who has held his present assignment for two years, is a veteran of more than 12 years of service. Before coming to the Presidio, he was assigned to the 4th BPO in Heidelberg, Germany. The sergeant served in the European Theater of Operations for three years during World War II.

Traditional Ceremonies Set For Col. Lundquist's Retirement

The Presidio's "Mayor of the Town," Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, Post Commander, will take his final formal salute during a full-dress retirement parade at 1130 hours today. The Colonel will write finis to more than 30 years of distinguished military service on 30 June.

The ceremony falls on the 30th anniversary of Colonel Lundquist's graduation from West Point, where he received his commission as a second lieutenant of Infantry on 14 June, 1927. Several of the Colonel's classmates will be on the reviewing stand with him as his guests. They are Col. Joseph H. Gilbreth, Col. Lawton Butler, Col. George F. Pierce, Col. Joy T. Wrean, Col. Arthur Roth, Lt. Col. Forrest S. Sinclair (Ret.), and Mr. Thomas S. McManus.

As a special honor the Sixth U.S. Army Band will play four traditional West Point marches at the ceremony. Scheduled to be featured are the Official West Point March; U.S. Military Academy Graduation March; the Army Blue and Gold; and the Dashing White Sergeant. These numbers are normally played by a 140-piece band.

Colonel Lundquist, who came to the Presidio in September 1954 as Deputy Post Commander, is known on Post as the soldier's soldier, striving constantly to improve the lot of the enlisted personnel.

Under his command the Craft Shop was opened; the Commissary modernized; the Thrift Shop moved from the Crissy Field Area; plans were developed for the Post Theater area, a new main Post Exchange and a new library; and a good NCO Club was established.

The Colonel worked many hours on improving the household goods packing and crating contract with the Pierce-Rodolph Storage Company. He also transferred the operation of the Post Cafeterias to the Bay Area Exchange from a nation-wide food service.

Colonel Lundquist will be remembered for strengthening public relations with the San Francisco-Bay Area. Among the groups with which he established harmonious relations are the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District, Wherry Housing, Marina Property Owners' Assn., Seaciff Area neighbors, USO and Daughters of the American Revolution.

The youth of the Presidio will

A Big Slice of service is symbolized as Presidio's "Mayor of the Town," Commanding Officer Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, cuts the Army's 182nd birthday cake on the very day that he completes 30 years of distinguished military service. Due to retire at the end of this month, traditional ceremonies will honor the Colonel this morning.

not forget Colonel Lundquist's constant backing of wholesome activities for all age groups. He especially emphasized the Youth Council, Little League and Teenage Club.

A combat veteran of World War II, Colonel Lundquist helped plan the invasion of Europe while serving in England with Headquarters, European Theater of Operations. Later he was with the planning section of the Allied Force Headquarters in Algiers and Caserta, Italy.

Following the invasion of Southern France, the Colonel commanded the 141st Infantry Regiment of the 36th Infantry Division in the drive up the Rhone Valley. He also served with the 44th and 71st Infantry Divisions in both combat and occupation duty.

Before coming to the Presidio, the Colonel served as commander of the 4th Infantry Regimental Combat Team in Alaska.

Colonel Lundquist was decorated with the Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary heroism in action against German SS Troops at Regenstauf, Germany. He also holds two Silver Stars and a Bronze Star Medal for gallantry in combat.

CONARC's "Trainfire" To Aid New Stress On Marksmanship

Army recruits will soon be learning marksmanship through the "trainfire" method in place of the formal 200-yard range training traditionally used, according to a Continental Army Command announcement.

A contract to expand the trainfire range has already been let at Fort Jackson, S.C., where many of the trainfire experiments have been conducted. By the end of 1959, all active Army installations in the United States at which marksmanship training is given will have trainfire ranges.

Oversea installations will have them by late 1960; and a year later the new ranges will be available to Reserve components.

The trainfire range has a number of pop-up, OD targets which appear unexpectedly at varying distances and stay up for varying lengths of time. Trainees are told how to shoot and then put out on the firing line.

Priority in building trainfire ranges will go to Army training centers and the Infantry Center at Fort Benning, Ga.

Sixth Army Will Test Atomic Battle Plans

Chard Will Succeed Butler As Army AG

Army Commander, Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, has named Colonel Robert H. Chard to the key post of Sixth U.S. Army Adjutant General. He will succeed Colonel Lawton Butler who retires at the end of this month.

Colonel Chard comes to his new assignment following nearly three years as the Second U.S. Army Adjutant General. Prior to that, he was Deputy Post Commander of Ft. Meade, Md., and earlier Commanding Officer of the Reception Center there.

A graduate of the United States Military Academy with the class of '29, he was originally commissioned in the Infantry and served in that branch until '48 when he transferred to the Adjutant General's Department.

During World War II Colonel Chard served with the Supreme Headquarters Allied Forces, Europe, in the G1 Section. He later became G1 with the SHAPE Mission to France. From there he was assigned as G1 on General Clay's staff in Berlin.

Returning to the states in '45, Colonel Chard was named Executive Officer of the Civil Affairs Division on the War Department's Special Staff, where he served until his assignment as Assistant Commandant of the Adjutant General School, then at Ft. Lee, Va.

Ordered to the Far East, Colonel Chard became Chief of the Civilian Personnel Section for that command. He returned to the states in '53.

Colonel Chard is a graduate of the Command and General Staff School and the Company Officers Course at the Infantry School. He holds the Legion of Merit for service with the Far East Command and a Commendation Ribbon for his service in the War Department.

While a captain, he served as aide to General Walter Krueger, 1938-41, who later became the first Commanding General of the Sixth Army.

Colonel Chard will reside on the Presidio with his wife, Virginia, and daughter, Anne, a second year student at William and Mary College in Virginia. Another daughter, Virginia, is married to Capt. Griffith, who is on duty with the South European Task Force.

Camp Irwin—"Vertical envelopment," the future war concept which adds a third dimension in battlefield tactics, will be tested under an atomic cloud backdrop in mid-August when Sixth U.S. Army takes part in Exercise Desert Rock VII and VIII, Col. Frank G. Forrest, Sixth U.S. Army Aviation Chief, announced this week.

Infantry atomic defense positions will also be tested during the exercise which will be staged to coincide with Operation Plumbob, a series of low yield nuclear tests conducted by the Atomic Energy Commission. The Army's exercise is built around the detonation scheduled for 19 August.

More than 1400 officers and men of the First Battle Group, 12th Infantry Division, at Fort Lewis will participate in the exercise. Army aircraft used in the operation will come from the Eastern United States and will include two helicopter companies with 21 aircraft each and a fixed wing company.

"Never before have such a large number of troops been lifted exclusively by Army aircraft," said Colonel Forrest who expects the entire airlift to take only four hours. During this time the 1400 troops will be trans-

Advance Plans for Exercises Desert Rock VII and VIII are studied at Camp Irwin by Brig. Gen. Walter A. Jensen, Deputy Exercise Director, and Col. Frank G. Forrest, chief of the planning section. Scheduled for 19 August the exercise will test atomic defense and vertical envelopment. General Jensen is the Commanding General of Camp Irwin, and Colonel Forrest is Sixth Army Aviation Chief.

TV-Equipped Drone Will Aid Combat Commanders

Washington (ANS)—A television pickup system using an aerial drone has been designed by the Army to aid combat commanders in obtaining immediate ground evaluation.

Army Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories' scientists say results will be "instantaneous ground evaluation" with broad potentialities. Live TV shots can be made of tactical terrain from the drone and then broadcast to a ground control station.

During the experimental period the converted L-17 aircraft being used in the system will be flown by a pilot to observe the results of remote control operation. After the initial tests, the aircraft will be flown as a pilotless system.

The pilotless system includes an L-17 modified for television photo-drone operation, an auto-pilot that provides effective remote control by means of on-off type radio signals, and a ground control station which can be carried in a jeep.

Upon completion of the drone's mission, the ground controller flicks an "approach" switch that automatically positions landing gear, flaps, propeller pitch and power in proper sequence for approach and landing.

Silver Eagle insignia of a full colonel were pinned on the former Lt. Col. Wayne M. Winder by Col. Franklin G. Smith, G-3, during an informal ceremony held this week. Colonel Winder is with the Operations Branch, G-3.

$1.5 Billion Is Asked For Building Program

Washington (AFPS)—The Defense Department has asked Congress to authorize military construction totaling $1,561,338,000.

The proposal seeks authority for construction in Alaska, Hawaii, the Caribbean Area, Newfoundland, Europe, the Pacific Islands and the Far East.

The bill includes $45,572,000 to build 2,381 family housing units for servicemen and their dependents in addition to military construction at overseas bases and 271 Armed Forces installations in 47 states and the District of Columbia.

Select Hawaiian ROTC Cadets Are Guests Here

This afternoon 61 tired, happy Hawaiian ROTC cadets will say goodbye to the Presidio, San Francisco and extra-curricular activities as they board a train and head north to Fort Lewis, summer training and hard work.

The annual San Francisco stopover is always a highlight of the trip which brings most of the Hawaiian cadets to the United States for the first time. Following summer camp many of the young men will tour parts of the United States before returning to their senior year at the University of Hawaii.

In San Francisco the cadets have been guests of Sixth Army Commander Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young and the Presidio.

During their busy four days they have visited Muir Woods, toured the city, cruised the harbor, attended a first run play and investigated San Francisco night life.

During their Tuesday orientation the cadets were told that they would be recognized in the city and should behave themselves accordingly. As the master sergeant put it: "Everybody's going to be grabbing you by the stack and swivel and checking you for head space."

During this lecture, the cadets were warned of other dangers of the big city: "Stay this side of Market Street and don't go past Turk . . . watch out for the taxi drivers. . . ."

Capt. Emanuel Burack, who handled the advanced planning for the visit to San Francisco, pointed out that the cadets represent the only senior ROTC unit in USARPAC. The University of Hawaii is the only university in the territory with any ROTC program.

Map-Maker Busy With New Models

Interesting and highly specialized assignments have followed Sfc. Michael Moner, 171st Engineer Detachment, 30th Engineer Group, during his 15-year Army career. Sergeant Moner now supervises the construction of plastic relief maps and terrain models made by the detachment.

Sergeant Moner was first confronted with the map-making field in 1952 when he joined the 529th Service Company Cell 1F, which is now the 171st. The unit was then assigned to Fort Belvoir, Va., and the sergeant attended the Army Map School there.

While stationed at Fort Belvoir the unit completed work for the Pentagon and the Smithsonian Institution while maintaining about 600 terrain maps. It was during this assignment that Sergeant Moner began accumulating the highly-skilled background he now possesses.

The sergeant's position as supervisor requires a complete knowledge of the individual jobs and over-all processes used in making both plastic relief maps and terrain models. He not only helps his men develop their map-making skills, but also does such critical jobs as hand correcting plastic relief maps and operating the Pantograph machine which cuts contours directly into the plastic block.

Exacting Skill is required in the daily tasks completed by Sfc. Michael Moner, who supervises the making of plastic relief and terrain model maps made by the 171st Engineer Detachment. The sergeant began developing his skill while stationed at Fort Belvoir, Va.

The 171st, which has been stationed at the Presidio for two years, recently completed a scale relief model of the Presidio for Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Sixth U.S. Army Commander; three scale relief models for the 30th Engineer Group; plastic relief maps of the Fort Ord area; and an 11-sheet plastic relief map of the Hunter Liggett military reservation and its surrounding area.

Before developing his map-making skill, Sergeant Moner was in charge of exhibits at the Command and General Staff College and completed a 23-month tour with the 728th Military Police Battalion doing criminal investigating in Korea.

SGO Suggests Ways To Avoid Heat Injury

More than 1000 cases of heat injury occur each year in Army personnel, and most cases are preventable, according to Maj. Gen. Silas B. Hays, Army Surgeon General.

Heat injury includes heat cramps, heat exhaustion, and heat stroke. Although only a few deaths occur following heat stroke, where death does not occur, the individual may thereafter have a low tolerance for heat conditions, the general said.

In an effort to reduce the number of heat casualties among Army reserve components during the summer months under this year's intensified training schedule, the Department of the Army has issued a circular on prevention of heat injury.

The new directive, Circular 40-8, prepared by the staff of the office of the Army Surgeon General, requires that recruits not accustomed to physical activity under conditions of high temperatures and humidity should be acclimatized to those conditions by graduated exposure and gradual increase in workload, particularly during basic training.

Training schedules might be modified to place the most strenuous activities during the cooler parts of the day.

With a smash success bake sale, the Center's Returnee-Reassignment Station raised $152 under the active gavel of auctioneer Chaplain (Maj.) Michael E. Reynolds. This tops the quota for the entire Center set at $150.

Norwegian Wins Education In America

Americans should celebrate their national holidays such as the Fourth of July with more spirit and unity, according to Pfc. Gunnar Tornoe, a native of Norway who became a U.S. citizen last Tuesday.

"I was very disappointed on the first Independence Day I spent in the United States," he continued. "The observance did not mirror a people who were proud of being Americans and one nation."

The Norwegian Independence Day celebration begins at 2 a.m. and continues throughout the day with everyone joining in, Gunnar explained. He is now assigned to the Finance Inventory and Accounting Division of Post Quartermaster.

Gunnar, who came to this country in 1950, was born in Oslo in 1932. He was graduated from high school in Norway when he was 16. His schooling continued through the war years even though the Germans took over the best schools for living quarters and classes were conducted anywhere possible, such as theaters.

"College students were sent to Germany in about 1943," Gunnar

Finance School Seeks More EM Instructors

A critical shortage of qualified enlisted instructors continues to exist at the Army Finance School, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

This shortage has existed for some time, according to Col. W. E. Sievers, school commandant, and it could become crucial due to normal attrition and overseas transfers.

In an effort to alleviate this condition, the office of the Chief of Finance, Washington, D.C., is still considering requests for transfer to the Finance School from eligible enlisted men at field installations.

The following qualifications are desired of enlisted men contemplating requests for transfer: A demonstrated ability to perform duties of an instructor; aptitude area general technical (AA GT) score of 110 or above; graduate of finance procedures course or enlisted finance course at the Finance School; at least one year's experience in NOS 732 (disbursing specialist), or MOS 733 (accounting specialist) at post, camp or station level; and be in grade E-7, E-6, or E-5.

"Finance Corps enlisted personnel meeting the qualifications listed above, and who desire to become instructors at the Finance School, are especially encouraged to request transfer to the school," said Col. Sievers.

ALL REQUESTS for transfer should be forwarded to the Military Personnel Division of the office of the Chief of Finance, Washington 25, D. C.

Requests must be forwarded through proper channels and be accompanied by a copy of DA Form 20, the enlisted qualification record. A recommendation from the applicant's commanding officer must also accompany the request for transfer.

In no case should any request for transfer be forwarded direct to the Finance School at Fort Harrison.

The provisions for requesting transfer to the Finance School, for duty as an enlisted instructor is contained in Department of the Army Circular No. 614-4, dated 14 June, 1956.

Army School Gives Out 494 Diplomas

For the second time in its history the Army Language School has graduated classes in Thai, Indonesian, and Slovene. Last week's graduating class, the largest single group of the year, brought the total number of May graduates up to 494.

Eleven languages and the number graduated in each class follows: Russian, 112; Korean, 56; Czech, 24; Chinese - Mandarin, 16; Slovene, 16; Hungarian, 15; Vietnamese, 15; Japanese, 13; Indonesian, 10; Thai, 9; Albanian, 5.

Maj. Gen. (Ret.) Edwin K. Wright, former deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency, gave the commencement address.

Gen. Wright described early programs of language training for Army personnel as extremely limited. "A handful of officers studied languages on an exchange basis with officers from other countries, but that was all," he said.

Sp/3 William J. Waller, a student of Slovene, won honors as the outstanding graduate.

First Language School

The Fourth Army Intelligence School, which trained American-Japanese students as translators, interpreters and interrogators for field forces, was opened in an abandoned hangar on Crissy Field in 1941. The school was the forerunner of the present Army Language School at the Presidio of Monterey.

He was awarded a bachelor of arts in business administration last year after more than five years of night study. He was a graduate student in business administration at New York University when he entered the Army about eight months ago.

"I like the Army very much," Gunnar said. "I was able to realize my dream of coming to the West Coast. I like my Army job and I live in the beautiful Marina close to the Post."

A beautiful area means a lot to Gunnar, whose ambition is to settle in Seattle, Washington. He feels that Seattle with its water and outdoor life is an ideal place for Norwegians in America.

Big Picture Series Starts On Holiday

The Army's filmed television series, The Big Picture, will be seen nationally on ABC-TV starting 4 July and each Thursday night thereafter.

As a special attraction marking this debut on ABC-TV, the staff of Big Picture will release for the first time on the air a new film titled, "Fifty Years of Aviation."

Distribution and audience response to The Big Picture, hit a near peak in 1956-57, and the prospects of increasing the audience to the 30 million mark look good for the new fall season, a spokesman said.

The Army's seven-year-old documentary will still be mailed to the more than 300 stations in the U.S. and overseas that have been programming the show each week on a local basis during the past year.

National War College Important Career Factor For Military Men

Occasionally the biography of a high ranking officer visiting or being assigned to the Presidio mentions that he attended the National War College. The importance of such an assignment is spelled out in AR 350-101, 15 Feb., 1957.

An Army student selected for this college, located at Fort Lesley J. McNair in Washington, D. C., and operated under the jurisdiction of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, must "be chosen from the most highly qualified officers . . ." and must "have indicated by actual performance of duty a potentiality for high command and staff position," according to the Army directive.

In addition, the student must have a minimum of 15 years but not more than 23 years of commissioned service. He must be physically qualified for general service and must have credit for the Command and General Staff College.

The mission of the National War

College is stated as follows:

"To conduct a course of study of those agencies of Government and those military, economic, scientific, political, psychological, and social factors of power potential, which are essential parts of national security, in order to enhance the preparation of selected personnel of the Armed Forces and State Department for the exercise of joint and combined high-level policy, command and staff functions, and for the planning of national strategy."

The courses, which last approximately 10 months, begin about the first week in September.

Instruction includes analyzing the nature and interdependence of national power factors of the United States and other nations. The students also study the integration of military and foreign policy and they consider the part played by the United Nations and other means for avoidance of armed conflict between nations.

The influence of economic, scientific, political, psychological and social resources of a nation—both when a nation has the resources and when it is lacking them—is studied. Also studied are the national interests and objectives of significant nations with respect to their international relations, areas of disagreement and conflict and policies designed to prevent war.

The War College students also study the military force necessary to implement national policy in peace and war; strategy and war planning; the impact of science and technology upon the Armed Forces, departmental and interdepartmental problems which concern the national security, and the employment of joint and combined forces as related to national and coalition objectives and policies.

The Department of the Army makes the final selection of students to attend the National War College.

You don't even have to be on furlough time to visit one of the oldest and the loveliest of the California Missions . . . Dolores, which is located on Dolores Street at 18th.

Ship's carpenters from the Spanish sailing vessel San Carlos built the altar for this beautiful relic. The church was only 28 feet long and 14 wide, yet the numbers of Spanish . . . Irish . . . Indian, and Mexican who once worshipped there would fill the world's mightiest cathedrals.

Saint Francis was patron saint of the Mission Dolores. . . He was born in Assisi, Italy, 1182, son of a wealthy clothing merchant. But he left a worldly youth behind him to wear beggar's clothing . . . to live in a cave and call poverty his bride. He kissed the sores of lepers and he befriended every winged creature that crossed his path.

Father Francisco Palou founded the Mission Dolores which later became the literary shrine of California. Here in his little cell he wrote the first book to be written in the State. In his record of the then current events, he described how Indians of the five native San Francisco tribes lived . . . how, in cold weather the men daubed themselves with mud, for warmth . . . of how the women gathered black seeds, crushed them into flour and made tamales the size of an orange.

Indians who stayed at Mission Dolores hunted deer, quail, rabbit, geese, ducks and thrushes. They loved fat whale and seal meat . . . hazelnuts, wild onions, and strawberries . . . and there were odd-looking green bulbs which they both ate and used to make soap.

When a fellow Indian died, the Mission Dolores mourners cut their hair off as a gesture of respect for the departed. The Indian dead were always cremated. Wrongs were righted by a man and his relatives who engaged in savage combat until only one combatant remained standing. They believed that after death they sailed out to sea . . . neither up nor down to any other resting place.

When Father Palou laid the cornerstone of the present Mission Dolores church, larger than the original, he placed in a receptacle in the stone an image of Saint Francis, several coins signifying the church treasure, five medals of various saints and other relics of Saint Pious and earlier martyrs.

Both the Mission founder and the first commandante of the Presidio are buried in the old cemetery at the back of the Mission. With them lie more than one hundred Irish immigrants who had settled in California before the Gold Rush.

Converts came to the Mission from all over California. They loved the high-arched wooden doors . . . the Doric columns supporting the Spanish balcony which runs around the inner church . . . and the tile roof which rested on the beams held together with rachide thongs. The old Spanish bell which called them to Mass turned a strange new magic over their spirits. Cast in Spain in 1792, the bell, imprinted with the crown of the King of Spain is still there.

Although the modern church later built at the side of the old Mission crumbled in the earthquake of 1906, the earlier adobe building came through undamaged.

Mission Dolores has undergone many renovation projects since its birth in 1776 . . . yet a visit there today will transport you to a time when the far West was young. The silence that now haunts the quiet altar . . . the statues of The Virgin Mary, Saint Francis, Saint Joachim, Saint Michael, Saint Clara and Saint Anne, carved in timeless beauty from old California redwood . . . they come alive to tell a story of comedy and tragedy . . . of joy and sorrow . . . of religious fervor embodied in the sword of Spain and in the hearts and the grey habits of the friars who brought Christianity to California.

White To Vie In ADC Tennis Tournament

Floyd H. White, Hq. Btry. 9th AAA Mis. Bn., winner of last week's first Annual 30th AAA Group Tennis Tournament in the singles and doubles division, reached the semifinals in both divisions at the Sixth Region, Army Air Defense Command Championship Tennis Tournament held 13-17 June at Camp Hanford.

Reports from Hanford stated that a terrific wind storm hampered a play considerably, and that it was necessary to line cars around the playing area in order to cut some of the wind down.

As a result of his play at Hanford, White, along with three others, was chosen to represent the Sixth Army in the U.S. Army Air Defense Command Tennis Tournament to be held at Fort Meade, Maryland, on 20-29 June.

The Camp Hanford Tournament decided the first tennis titles in the history of the 6th Region.

Sp3 James L. Shanks, Hq. Det., 660th Engrs., slammed his way into the semifinals of the men's open singles division in the Post Tennis Tournament, which got under way this week, by beating Ronald F. Crawford of the USATU, 1-6, 6-2, and 6-3.

Robert C. Bacon, also from USATU, reached the quarterfinals in the other match by defeating wiry Doug Cutler of Hq. Co., USA Garrison, 6-1, 6-1.

Since this is a double elimination tournament, the losers get another chance at the championship if they win in the second round.

Only three participants are competing in the Single Senior Division. They are Col. Willett Wafe, Col. Robert Rhine, and Major Gordon Wallace. In the first round of play Col. Ware shut out Major Wallace in two sets, 6-0 and 6-0.

In the open doubles division, Peter Shea, USATU, and Crawford teamed up to beat Vladimir Dostal and Wolfgang Duerr, both from the 21st Engineers, by set scores of 6-2, 6-1, in the first round of play.

In the other doubles match, Bacon and John E. Seaholm, USATU, defeated the team of Col. Ware and Col. Rhine by scores of 6-4, 3-6, and 6-4.

The winners and runner-ups of the tournament will comprise the Post Tennis team which will play in the Sixth Army Tourney at Fort Ord on 4-8 August.

In Saturday's game against Fort Ord, Weber pitched four-hit ball but the Ord WACs with the help of a few wild pitches collected seven runs. Lee Brandt of the Presidio WACs came through with a home run in the third inning with nobody on.

Pfc. Allyn Pirtle of the 56th MRU scored an upset victory in the Annual Post Golf Tournament last week by shooting a 213 in three rounds of play, three strokes below his closest rival, Pfc. Alex "Red" Sutton.

Pirtle, unknown in Presidio golf circles until last week, is a native of Texas but has spent most of his life in Colorado. While attending the University of Denver, he played golf for the school team for four years and represented his alma mater in the East-West NCAA tourney. He has also played in various tournaments around the country, including the U. S. Open.

Sutton, the pre-tourney favorite, remained in striking distance until the finish, but Pirtle, displaying championship form throughout the tournament, was able to maintain his slim lead down to the last hole of play.

The next six men, who along with the top two will comprise the Post Golf Team, were, in order of finish: M Sgt. C. H. Shaw with 224; M Sgt. Sidney Domingue with 232; Pfc. Donald R. Welch with 233; Capt. Charles Monges with 240; Pfc. James Jones, and M/Sgt. George De Rosa both with 241.

The team will be cut down to six men on a later date. The reason for having eight men on the team now is to insure, through challenging within the team, that the best possible six will be chosen to represent the Presidio in the Sixth Army Golf Tournament to be held at the Presidio Golf Course on 5-9 August.

In the Senior Division, Col. Franklin Smith topped the field with 233. In second place was Col. Robert Williams with 248 followed

In warm up for the Sixth Army Tournament, the top six men will challenge the Alameda Naval Station in a golf match today at the Presidio Golf Course.

Popular Post Civilian Grew Up With Hogan

For Fred Williams, life today follows a rather definite pattern. Every day around nine in the morning he walks in our office leaving the day's mail, and then proceeds to other offices doing likewise.

Fred's routine life, however, is broken every so often by vivid recollections of times gone by.

For instance, he can remember the time when as a kid he and Ben Hogan were close friends and often caddied and played golf together in Dallas, Texas.

He remembers the biggest thrill of his life when he played golf with the famous Joe Louis.

He can remember the time when he helped to organize the Berkeley Park Club and the Bay Area Golf Club, and later became the Tournament chairman for five years.

He remembers the times when he played in various tournaments around the Bay Area and the time when he was runnerup to Clarence Costa, the Naval Air Champion, in the 1948 Naval Air Station Golf Tournament.

Today, Fred is employed as a Post messenger with the Presidio. He has been in government service since 1943.

Stop him sometimes when you get a chance to and have a few words with him. He's quite an interesting chap, this Post Messenger!

Army Golfers Scuttle First Fleet Team

A combined Presidio team, made up of members of the Presidio Golf Club and military personnel, outclassed the famous First Fleet, in a challenge golf match last Saturday on the Presidio green by the score of 50 1/2 to 21 1/2.

Capt. Reuss' 3 below par 69 was the best score of the day, while Naval Officer CPO Collette and Pfc. Sutton headed the best foursome match.

According to Col. Smith, the match was a great success, and contributed to building up a great amount of good will among the two services.

Pitchers Show Mettle; Shinnick Wins Seventh

The Presidio Toreros continued their winning ways last week as they pounded out two more victories in service competition.

Last Thursday, in the first night game of the year for the locals, the Presidio club downed Travis Air Force Base, 15-9, in a ball game which was marked by a 30 mile per hour wind which hampered both teams considerably.

Fred Crissey was credited for the win as he scattered 10 hits and fanned 14, while his mates were collecting 14 hits and 15 runs in a wild contest. Roger Collins and Amelio Martinez each had 3 for 4 to lead the Presidio attack, while shortstop Mike Drumme blasted his first round tripper of the year in the first inning.

On Saturday, in an Army Day contest the Toreros whipped the Two Rock Ranch Army nine by the score of 7-3. Dick Shinnick notched up his seventh victory as he went all the way, allowing eight hits. This game marked the sixth time in a row that a Torero moundsman has gone the distance without benefit of bullpen help. Shinnick also led the hit parade with 3 for 4, as the Toreros collected 11 hits, all told.

Next Friday, the Toreros leave on a 10-day tour. They will participate in the Atwater Service Tournament on Sunday in which they were runnerups last year, and will also compete against pro and semi-pro ball clubs throughout Oregon and Southern California.

Front Running 'A' Team Still Leading In Intramural Softball Competition

Company A, USA Garrison, led by the big three punch of Myslinski, Critts and Casteel, who are all batting well over .500, continue to trample their opponents in the American League race.

Last week they blanked the third place 56th MRU by the score of 3-0, and then went on to trip the 46th Ordnance nine by the count of 4-1.

The MRU men bounced back to whitewash the hapless 16th BPO, 7-0. The BPOs, who haven't been able to hit the win column yet this year, lost their eighth in a row to Hq. Co., USA Garrison, by the score of 12-5.

Hq. Co. Sixth US Army, firmly secure in second place with a record of 7 wins and 1 loss, defeated the falling 46th Ordnance by the count of 11-7.

The 21st Engr. Co., who have been invited to play in the 13th Annual Benefit Softball Tournament at Kezar Stadium this evening because of their fine play in city league softball, appear to be unbeatable in the National League race, as they steamrolled past the 99th Engr. Co. by the score of 9-0.

The third place 561st Engineers defeated Hq. Btry. by the score of 7-0.

In Northern League play, D Btry. won three big games last week to remain on top of their league with a record of 9 wins and no losses. They defeated the second place A Btry. 10-5, and then went on to shut out the last place Hq. Btry. 30th AAA 7-0. Later this week, they defeated Hq. Btry. 9th AAA by the same score.

A Btry., who up until last week was only half a game away from first place, dropped another game during the week to B Btry. by the score of 7-0. This leaves them in second place, 2 1/2 games behind the leaders.

C Btry. surprised everyone by winning two games. They defeated B Btry. by the score of 11-6, and later in the week they trimmed the Sixth US Army Med. Lab. by the count of 10-7.

The third place 561st Engineers defeated Hq. Btry. by the score of 7-0.

Five Tie For Army High Jumping Title

Ernie Shelton, representing the Presidio and Sixth Army in the All-Army Track Meet which was held last Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Ft. Hood, Texas, tied for first place in the high jump event with four others by clearing the bar at 6'6".

This was one of the highlights of the meet as five frustrated jumpers attempted to beat each other in a cutting crosswind which hampered their performances somewhat.

All five contestants failed in three tries each at 6'8". The other four were Ken Kelley, Fourth Army; Ronald Mitchel, Armed Forces Far East; Elvin Wesley, Second Army, and Anderson Shells, Sixth Army.

This meet marked the finish of the 1957 track season for the service teams. It also marked the end of a frustrating attempt by Shelton to tie the world high jump record of seven feet held by his arch rival, Charles Dumas. It was only last year in the Olympic Tryouts at the Los Angeles Coliseum that Shelton and Dumas staged a tremendous duel for high jump honors, with a very saddened Shelton missing the bar at seven feet just by a hair.

Armed Forces College Offers Special Study

The importance of economic factors to the Armed Forces both in peacetime and in war are reflected in the scope and mission of The Industrial College of the Armed Forces, Fort Lesley J. McNair, Washington, D. C., which holds one 10-month course a year and is open only to students of the highest qualifications.

Not only do the students learn all phases of national economy, but they also study the interrelations of the economic factors with political, military and psychological factors. They also study joint logistic planning, peacetime and potential wartime governmental organizations and wartime controls.

The scope of study extends from the broad aspects of world political, economic and power patterns to the specific problems of mobilization for war and reconversion to a peacetime basis. The economic potential of nations and blocs of nations for war is examined. Further study covers the key governmental agencies which are basically concerned with mobilization of the national economy.

In addition to the regular 10-month course, specially scheduled short courses are conducted at the college or in cities throughout the countries for National Guard and Reserve officers, selected executives of industry, educators and prominent citizens.

To qualify for the long course an Army officer must have at least 15 years but not more than 23 years of commissioned service. He must have credit for Command and general Staff College or phases A, B, and C of the Industrial Mobilization Training Program. And he must be physically qualified for general service.

Living Memorial Is Unique Tribute To Former Presidio Commanding Officer

On a grassy knoll below the Presidio Post Chapel is a cypress tree dedicated and planted to the memory of a garrison commander by enlisted men of the 30th Infantry Regiment when they were stationed here over 18 years ago.

Now about 20 feet tall, the tree honors the late Colonel Charles B. Stone, Jr., who served here as Post commander from 1931 to 1933.

The distinctive quality about the tree is that as far as is known it is the only monument of its kind to be planted here to a commander by his enlisted men. At its present rate of growth it should continue to serve its purpose as a memorial even after the Presidio ceases to exist.

One other, a Dawn Redwood, planted by Daughters of the American Revolution in memory of their members who served in World War II, grows tall now in Pershing Square near the Presidio Officers' Open Mess. And on the parade ground is a Eucalyptus planted by Angelo Bella, a Spanish trader, honoring the 100th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence; in 1876.

Surprisingly little is known historically of Colonel Stone's military background other than that he came up in rank from grade of Private and that he died while still on active duty. His only known relative, a son, Charles B. Stone, III, is a West Point graduate who achieved the rank of Major General in the Army Air Force Reserve and until recently served at Bolling Field, Washington, D. C.

A small bronze plaque at the base of the Stone memorial tree says that it was dedicated and planted by the enlisted men of the 30th Infantry Regiment to the memory of Colonel Stone who served at the Presidio from 26 January, 1931, to 1 August, 1933. The cypress was planted on the Fourth of July, one year after the colonel's death in Knoxville, Tennessee.

Files from the Sixth Army Reference Library say that the 30th Infantry Regiment was organized at the Presidio in 1901. A month later it began two years' service in the Philippines—returning there for its second tour in 1907. The regiment was in Alaska from 1912 to 1914 after which it was sent to special encampments in New York and Texas.

During June, 1917, the 30th contributed two thirds of its strength to form the 38th and 39th Regiments of Infantry, later brigaded as the 6th and sent to Camp Greene, North Carolina. The Division left for France in April, 1917, and remained intact through all of its battles.

As part of the 3rd Division, the 30th served with distinction on the Marne front, during which it was decorated by Marshal Philippe Petain, later forming part of the Army of Occupation on the Rhine. The 30th returned to the Presidio in 1922 after it spent a reorganization period in Camp Pike, Arkansas, and a short period of service at Camp Lewis, Washington.

The regimental motto was "Our Country—Not Ourselves."

New Method of constructing grid square, the Cartographic Grid Ruler, is tried out by Sp2 Benjamin F. Regalado, 21st Engineer Company, 30th Engineer Group. The 21st is conducting a series of tests on the Ruler for the U. S. Army Engineer Test Unit at Fort Belvoir, Va. Grid squares are presently constructed with the Beam Compass.

New Ruler Will Speed MapDraftingTechnique

A series of tests on the Cartographic Grid Ruler, a new instrument for constructing grid squares on a map, is being conducted by the 21st Engineer Company, 30th Engineer Group. The equipment is being tested for the U.S. Army Engineer Test Unit at Fort Belvoir, Va.

Purpose of the tests is to determine the suitability of the new Ruler for field and base operations of grid preparations and to compare it with the present method of constructing grid squares with the Beam Compass.

The new Ruler was designed for field use to decrease the time required for drafting rectangular map grids and to increase the accuracy of constructed grids. Simplicity of design and operation was a prime requisite for the equipment so that highly skilled and experienced personnel would not be required in this phase of mapping.

The Cartographic Grid Ruler incorporates an isosceles linkage for producing straight, parallel grid lines. The mechanism consists of a 61-inch, 50-pound aluminum beam, supported by two end mounts above any standard drafting table, with-precision roller carriages, indexing scales, isosceles linkage and major components which can be carried in a weather-proof, plywood case.

Cleanest Mess Award Goes To 549th Engineers

The 549th Engineer Company, 30th Engineer Group, has been awarded a Letter of Commendation for its excellent work in maintaining a high standard of sanitary principals in its mess hall from January through May 1957. This is the longest recorded violation-free period for any mess hall on the Post.

Inspections were conducted by Capt. Roy Shore, Group Surgeon, and a Post representative. Lt. George Jacob, Company Commander, and Sfc. Hiawatha Crowe, Mess Steward, were especially commended.

The Presidio constructed its own landing field in 1919. Major Henry H. Arnold, later commanding general of the Army Air Force, selected the site and became the field's first commander.

Fund Cuts Will Hurt, Solons Told

Army leaders told the Senate Appropriations committee that cuts voted by the House of Representatives in its FY 1958 money request would cause a slowdown in buying new equipment needed to modernize the Army and would prevent the Army from carrying out training necessary for modern war.

This testimony was given in asking that $191 million of the money cut by the House be put back in the Army money bill.

The Army said that the cut in operations and maintenance funds would mean that one of the four planned division exercises for the next year would have to be dropped. The $1 million planned for buying "pop-up" targets for the conversion to the trainfire marksmanship training system would not be available, the Army said, delaying this program for some time. And $1.75 million, planned to be spent for training Nike, surface-to-surface and electronic repairmen would also be dropped.

This would mean that the Army would have to slow down its program of organizing surface-to-surface missile units and conversion from Nike Ajax to Nike Hercules.

Augmentation Will Go Ahead On Schedule

Army officials said this week that they expected to meet their schedule of submitting the names of about 1,000 officers to the Senate on 26 June for confirmation as Regular Army Officers under the augmentation program.

As of now, it appears that most of the names submitted will be of officers to be appointed in the grades of first and second lieutenant. In fact, approximately 600 are expected to be nominated to be second lieutenants, and most of the 400 balance will be first lieutenants, it now appears.

There's still some "balancing and juggling" of the list to be submitted because of administrative procedures required by law before an individual can become a Regular officer. These are concerned mostly with clearances required before names can be submitted to the Senate.

The Army said it expected to be able to release the names of those to be nominated in time for them to be printed in the next issue of Army Times dated after 26 June.

Five Civilians Win Cash For Outstanding Ratings

Two former Meritorious Civilian Service Award winners were presented with $300 checks and Department of the Army Performance Award Certificates this week. The recipients were among five local civilians who received awards.

Ralph J. Markley, Maintenance Officer, Post Ordnance, and Donald Maloney, Chief of the Procurement Division, G-4, were the top winners. Mr. Markley also received an "Outstanding" award. Col. Carl E. Lundquist, Post Commander, and Col. J. B. Collidge, G-4, made the respective presentations.

Three $200 checks and performance certificates were presented to Emilia Davidson, John F. Miglian and Juanita K. Trask. Miss Davidson, a Budget Analyst, Sixth U. S. Army Medical Section, received her awards from Col. William W. Rowe, Jr., Deputy Sixth U. S. Army Surgeon.

Mr. Miglian, Management Analyst, G-1 Manpower Division, and Miss Trask, Supervisory Statistical Assistant in the same division, received their awards from Col. Robert Erlenkotter, G-1.

Higher Skills Face Future Army Fliers

Camp Gary, Tex. — Army aviators face stiffer standards in the future as the need for an airborne Army increases. student officers of Army primary flight training class 57-10 were told at graduation ceremonies at Camp Gary, Texas, last week.

Speaking to 67 officers who received certificates of flying proficiency, Lt. Col. Miller T. Nesbitt outlined the stiff requirements they must meet at the Army Aviation School at Fort Rucker, Ala.

"The standards become more and more exacting and will continue," said Col. Nesbitt, director of the Aviation School's fixed wing department.

He compared the rigorous flying training now to the emergency training early in World War II.

"Training you receive now is a far cry from the 60-hour pilots that were graduated back in '42 to be aerial observers and then sent to combat zones," he said.

Today, Army aviators receive 120 hours of primary flight training at the contract flying school operated by William J. Graham & Son at Camp Gary before being sent to Fort Rucker for advanced and tactical training.

Atomic Battle Plan

ported from their atomic defense position to a point 30 miles behind the aggressor lines.

The grand scheme of the problem has Sixth U.S. Army defending Las Vegas from an aggressor attack. During the defensive period of the play the real atomic blast will test the defensive position of the First Battle Group. The play calls for this group to be partially destroyed by the blast. In actuality the troops will be watching the explosion from the same area as the other witnesses.

The play calls for both sides to exchange atomic artillery and guided missile shots. Then Sixth U.S. Army moves to counterattack. It is at this point that the First Battle Group—now playing an attack unit—will be lifted from their trenches to an elevated position behind the enemy.

This is the only real body of troops involved in the exercise. However, according to the play three battle groups would be lifted behind the enemy simultaneously. At the same time an armored ground attack would be hurled at the enemy and the Air Force would seize control of the sky.

"This tactic of vertical envelopment gives us complete freedom of initiative," said Colonel Forrest, who will serve as corps aviation officer during the exercise. "About the only protection the enemy could use against this tactic would be to counter with an air mobile force of their own."

The infantry battle group and the Army aviation battalion, the two main units which will take part in the exercise, are both new types of Army units brought about by developments in atomic warfare.

The battle group has replaced the regiment as the main infantry element of the division. Five of these units—each smaller than a regiment but larger than a battalion—make up one division. Other major combat units in the division are a cavalry squadron, an armor battalion and division artillery.

The Army aviation battalions are usually assigned as field Army troops and are used to conduct Army air mobile operations in the battle zone. This flexible unit consists of several helicopter and/or airplane companies.

Last spring CONARC determined that Sixth U.S. Army would be given the mission of building an exercise around one of Operation Plumbob's atomic detonations. Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young was designated Exercise Director. Brig. Gen. Walter A. Jensen, commanding general of Camp Irwin, which is the staging area for Desert Rock activities, was named Deputy Exercise Director.

He has been assisted by a group of seven officers who this week at Camp Irwin concluded the planning phase of the exercise. Colonel Forrest, chief of the group, was assisted by Lt. Col. Freeman Gage, Sixth U.S. Army G4, and officers from Fort Ord, Fort Lewis, the Infantry School at Fort Benning and the Aviation School at Fort Rucker.

Why are soldiers with skills in one field given jobs in a completely different field?

"It's the old story of supply and demand," said one of the Army's top personnel management men who visited the Presidio this week. "We do our best to match skills and jobs, but the first requirement is to fulfill the personnel requirement of the Army."

Lt. Col. Carroll L. Nunn, chief of the field activities section, personnel management branch, Personnel Research and Procedures Division, TAG, visited the Presidio Tuesday on his annual inspection tour of the DA Military Personnel Management Team located here.

"We have five personnel management teams in the United States," he said, "with the mission of checking implementation of DA personnel policies and directives, assisting field personnel on interpretation of these policies, evaluating practices and making recommendations." The mission and responsibilities of the teams are explained thoroughly in the recently published AR 600-27.

"Scientific and Professional program—that's our baby," he said, explaining that the personnel management teams spend about 50 per cent of their time fitting enlisted men to the best job.

Colonel Nunn indicated that the Army has come a long way in effective manpower utilization, but it has much farther to go before it reaches its goals in this field.

Attitude and opinion polls are also conducted by the field activities branch on a world-wide basis. In 1956 surveys were made on such subjects as the RFA

Currently the office is preparing questionnaires to determine the Army personnel attitude on the gyroscope program.

Armed Forces Staff College Has Key Plan

In order that United States military officers may be well versed in the organization and planning of joint and combined operations, the Armed Forces Staff College, under the jurisdiction of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, holds two five-month courses each year.

The characteristics, organization and employment of each of the Armed Forces; their relationship to each other; their limitations and their capabilities are all examined at the college.

The principles of United States unified command organization, the organization of joint and combined commands and staffs and their responsibilities and procedures are learned during the course of the instruction.

The organization and composition of current major combined commands in which the United States participates are studied. And the functions of these commands with respect to strategical, tactical and logistical responsibilities of each commander are emphasized.

The military students also learn the trends of new weapons and scientific developments and their effects on joint and combined operations. In addition, they consider the military, political, geographic, historical, economic, psychological ideological and other factors affecting the capabilities and limitations of actual and potential allies and enemies.

Students selected from the Army for the Armed Forces Staff College must have a minimum of 10 years but not more than 21 years of commissioned service. They must have credit for the Command and General Staff College, be physically qualified for general service and have indicated by actual performance of duty a potentiality for high command and staff position.

West Pointers Spend Two Days Signal Base

Fort Monmouth, N. J. — West Point's Class of 1959 arrived here 6 June for two days of Signal Corps training, the first stop for 530 cadets on a combined arms trip covering six weeks of training at selected Army, Navy and Air Force installations.

The second classmen, during their Fort Monmouth visit on an annual summer training program, saw advancements made in signal communications, and were instructed in new concepts and techniques of signal units, with emphasis on combat communications and tactics.

Soldier Opinions are important, according to Lt. Col. Carroll L. Nunn, chief, field activities section, personnel management branch, Personnel Research & Procedures Division, TAG, who visited the Presidio this week. He points to a digest containing results of world-wide attitude and opinion studies undertaken by his office.

station will hold open house from 0800 to 1400 hours in Bldg. 311. The new Sixth U. S. Army Communication Center will hold open house from 0930 to 1400 hours. The center can be reached through the rear door of Room 106, Bldg. 35.

New Signal Facsimile Set Unveiled By Signal Corps

The unveiling of its newest facsimile set, the fastest known means that will flash a photograph from one spot to another, has been announced by the Department of the Army.

Developed by the U.S. Army Signal Engineering Laboratories at Fort Monmouth, N. J., the new portable radio facsimile system can put a high-quality photo in the hands of a person miles away five minutes after the photographer clicks the shutter.

The set can flash vital military reconnaissance pictures by radio to Command Headquarters in time to affect a critical decision and perhaps change the course of a battle. Its record speed could also revolutionize photo reporting by daily newspapers.

The new facsimile equipment fits easily into the back of a radio-equipped jeep or car and can send a picture to its companion receiver 40 miles away. The set also can send a photo thousands of miles, over standard telephone lines or around the world, by long-range radio circuits.

The facsimile combines high-speed Army picture-sending techniques with a polaroid film that produces a finished print one minute after exposure. No darkrooms or messengers are needed.

The first field model was built under Army Signal Corps sponsorship by the Times Facsimile Corporation, New York. It was designed by John Erhart of the Signal Engineering Laboratories' Telecommunication Division.

Returns From Bliss

Major Sammie H. Owen has recently returned from temporary duty at The Artillery School, Fort Bliss, Texas, where he attended the Special Weapons and Guided Missile Orientation Course.

Major Owen has been serving as Adjutant in the 29th Antiaircraft Artillery Group since its activation in September, 1956. The 29th Antiaircraft Artillery Group, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Sanford J. Butler, provides tactical control and administrative supervision of the 436th Antiaircraft Artillery Missile Battalion (NIKE), employed in the antiaircraft defense of Travis Air Force Base, California.

Army To Convert All Its Weapons To Metric Scale

Washington (AFPS) — The Army will discard the traditional linear scale for the metric system in measuring distances for artillery and rifle fire.

According to AR-700-75, dated 14 May, 1957, ordering the conversion from feet, yards and miles to the standard European system, reasons for the change are:

- to establish a common unit of measurement with NATO nations;
- to permit greater use of Allied or captured enemy war materiel;
- to simplify firing procedures for indirect-fire weapons.

Existing survey, fire direction equipment and data for Army weapons will be converted with the "least practicable delay" to measure ranges and heights in meters.

Equipment will not be modified if it is to be replaced by items being developed or scheduled for use before 1 January, 1966, the date for change-over to be completed.

Known distances for firing data, the new regulation says, will be redesignated to the nearest 10 meters, and new ranges will be built in "round hundreds" of meters.

A meter is 39.37 inches. Other comparable measurements under the metric system are: One foot, 0.3048 meter; one yard, 0.9144 meter; and one mile, 1,609.35 meters.

All new Army weapons and related equipment, including sighting and fire control systems, will be designed to employ the meter as the unit of linear measurement.

Signal School Adds Three New Courses

Three new enlisted courses have been added to the curriculum of the U.S. Army Signal School at Fort Monmouth, N. J. The courses are Radio Wave Propagation Specialist, Ground Control Approach Equipment Repair and Fixed Electronic Cryptographic Equipment Repair.

A 29-week course is planned for radio wave propagation specialists, MOS 287. Among the prerequisites are two years' service time remaining after the course is completed.

The 20-week ground control approach equipment repair course will fall under MOS 282.2. Applicants must have 17 months of service remaining after completion of the course.

The fixed electronic cryptographic equipment repair course is 32 weeks long and falls into MOS 343. Prerequisites include a member of the Regular Army, two years' service remaining after completion of the course and an interim security clearance to include TOP SECRET and cryptographic before enrollment.

Army Names New Ship After Medal Of Honor Winner

The Army's new 338-foot beach discharge lighter (BDL-1X) will be named in honor of Lt. Col. John U. D. Page, who was posthumously awarded the Medal of Honor for his heroic actions in Korea, the Department of the Army has announced.

The experimental vessel, newest of the Army Transportation Corps' over-the-beach landing craft, is scheduled for launching ceremonies next September at the National Steel and Shipbuilding Corp. in San Diego.

Col. Page was a member of the X Corps Artillery and attached to the 52d Transportation Truck Bn., near the Chosin Reservoir, Korea, when he was mortally wounded on 11 December, 1950.

Expanded Army Com Center Will Make Public Debut

The newly-expanded Sixth U.S. Army Communication Center will be opened with traditional ribbon and cake-cutting ceremonies during the local observance of the Army Signal Corps' 97th anniversary today. Maj. Gen. J. J. Binns, Sixth Army Chief of Staff, will preside at the ceremonies scheduled at 0900 hours.

The center, which can be reached through the rear door of Room 106, Bldg. 35, will be open to all personnel from 0930 to 1400 hours. In addition the Headquarters, Military Affiliate Radio Station (MARS) will hold open house from 0800 to 1400 hours in Bldg. 311.

Communication Center open house delights will include a special closed circuit television and facilities set up by MARS, whereby immediate families of Army personnel will have an opportunity

Army Commander Message

Ninety-seven years of exceptional service to the Army and the nation's communications are celebrated in the United States Army Signal Corps' anniversary, 21 June 1957.

The evolution of the modern Army owes much to the often spectacular advances in transmission techniques and devices achieved by the Corps. It has more than kept pace with modern electronic developments. The Signal Corps pioneered in devising aids to aviation safety, in the use of radar, transistors and devises for the rapid assembly of radio and television parts. These are only a few among the many Signal Corps innovations that serve the nation as well as the Army.

Outstanding is the radio relay and land lines network of the Alaska Communication System with which, over half a century ago, the Signal Corps created the world's first adaptation of wireless to long-range communications. That system continues today to provide the contact between the most remote Alaskan outpost and the outside world, and gives strength to the outer defenses of the United States.

The Sixth United States Army is proud to acknowledge its obligation to the Army Signal Corps and takes pleasure in this opportunity to congratulate the Signal Corps on its anniversary.

MARS also will sponsor Morse Code Receiving and and Radio teletypewriter competitions and a Military to Amateur Station Test. The Morse Code competition will feature a message to all MARS members and amateur radio operators in the Sixth Administration Network via the transmitting station at Davis, Calif.

With the new center, local messages will first be cleared through Sixth Army AG; from AG the message will travel via direct tube to the Communication Center; center employees will transcribe the message manually on tape and transmit it to Davis; from Davis the message is sent automatically anywhere in the world. Incoming messages are transmitted through Davis to the Communication Center and back to AG.

First 'Long Line' Reserve Unit Set For This Area

The first and only Signal Corps "long lines" reserve unit in the Sixth U.S. Army area became affiliated with the Lenkurt Electric Company this week. The affiliation agreement was signed at a joint Army-Lenkurt luncheon held Monday.

Maj. Gen. R. L. Howze, Jr., Deputy Commanding General, Sixth U.S. Army Reserve Forces, was the principal speaker at the luncheon.

"Present conditions offer a new kind of challenge to the time-tested relationship between the communications electronics industry and the Signal Corps," General Howze told the guests. "For the first time in history we need a large, well trained ready reserve force."

The unit, the 396th Signal Company (Long Lines) USAR, has an authorized strength of 12 officers and 220 enlisted men. Its mission is to install, operate and maintain fixed wire terminal and repeater facilities. In wartime a "long lines" unit is expected to rehabilitate and operate civilian as well as captured military telephone and telegraph facilities.

Presently stationed at 215 Hamilton Avenue in Palo Alto, the unit is scheduled to move into a new armory at Bayshore and Middlefield Road in Mountain View.

Post Library's Hi-Fi Program Offers Best In New, Classics

A strong contender for the "better than ever" title this year is your Post Library (Presidio, Fort Baker, Fort Cronkhite, Fort Scott—and, the Bookmobile) which offers not only a fine collection of classic and current books, magazines, and reference materials, but a well-rounded record collection as well.

Music? A wide selection from classics to current. But for new adventures in listening we offer the "non-music" section of the record library—a section which boasts poetry, prose, plays, documentation and humor. Though it can't quite compare with the pleasure of reading "the book" itself, these fields seem to take on new meaning with impetus of sound.

Of all the categories, the one where the recorded version is most likely to be an improvement over its printed brother is poetry. An outstanding example of this is the performance of Stephen Vincent Benét's poetic history of the Civil War, Joha Brown's Body, strikingly presented by Tyrone Power, Raymond Massey, Judith Anderson and chorus. Other poets whose works have been further enriched by the spoken word range all the way from Chaucer through Browning, and such individual poets as Poe, Sandburg, Dante, Frost, Eliot, Beerbohm, Millay, Miller, MacLeish, Cummings, Auden and Dylan Thomas. The recent innovation of recording the poet reading from his own works has proved increasingly popular and effective.

For entertaining examples of what can be done with prose selections on records we offer such works as Dickens' Tale of Two Cities, Dumas' Three Musketeers, Carroll's Alice in Wonderland, Poe's great tales—and again such individual authors as Sandburg, Porter, Welty, Faulkner, Arnold, O'Casey, Aiken, and Lindsay, some of whom read from their own works. If you are a student of Lincoln we have a recording of Carl Sandburg Walter Houston, Orson Wells and Agnes Moorehead reading a cross-section of poetry and prose based on Abe Lincoln.

The drama lends itself quite naturally to recordings and it is well represented on non-music records. There is a strong field to choose from and Shakespeare, as always, holds a dominant position. To introduce Shakespeare on records we have: Margaret Webster's production of Romeo and Juliet, enhanced by Tchaikovsky's music; John Gielgud's Hamlet; the Old Vic productions of Macbeth and Midsummer Night's Dream; Orson Wells' Julius Ceaser; as well as Henry VIII, Richard III, and The Tempest. In contrast to the several Shakesperian productions available on records, we have the inimitable and audacious George Bernard Shaw, the only playwright who considered himself superior to the Bard of Avon. The caliber of the recorded Shaw, Don Juan In Hell (third act of Man and Superman), atones for any impertinence on his part. Other fine performances are given of Miller's Death of a Salesman, Eliot's Cocktail Party, Fry's The Lady's Not for Burning, and Wilde's Importance of Being Earnest.

The development of the documentary style on records is primarily the work of Edward R. Murrow. His I Can Hear It Now series makes excellent listening, as do such recordings as the Voice of Freedom, American Heritage, You Are There, and This Is Paris. Of added interest is Hark, the Years! a recorded scrapbook of famous personalities and historical events from two centuries. The category of humor is still largely unexplored, however we can offer such humorists as Ogden Nash and Will Rogers or, if you prefer, Anna Russell and Victor Borge. All are guaranteed to lighten your listening time.

The Holy Bible—a series of recordings (comprising 20 listening hours) of the four Gospels, the complete Book of Psalms, the Book of Solomon, Proverbs, and Ecclesiastics.

The record library can also supply unusual sound recordings, foreign language records, Gregg shorthand studies, and the Landmark children's series. If you want to take a break from turning book pages, or just give your eyes a rest from the printed page, choose some listening material from your Post Library's record collection and enjoy them at your leisure.

Recent books made available from the Sixth Army Library include the following titles. They may be reviewed at the library or through loan from the Post libraries.

THE WORLD OF MATHEMATICS, by J. R. Newman, is a small library of the literature of mathematics from A-h-mose the scribe, to Alfred Einstein, presented with commentaries and notes. Since it is not necessary that the volumes be read in order, the library will furnish one volume at a time, as available.

MODERN PUBLIC OPINION, by William Albright, is a revision and modernization of the author's Public Opinion. It discusses the psychological processes involved in public opinion, its measurement, recording and polling, the restrictions applied by censorship and the processes of special pleading and propaganda.

ENERGY AND SOCIETY, by W. F. Cottrell, shows the relation between energy, social change, and economic development. It traces the patterns of energy from such readily available sources as plants, wind and water, to technological complex sources like electricity and nuclear energy, and explores the economic, political and psychological consequences of various types of energy exploitation.

SOLAR ENERGY RESEARCH, edited by Daniels, Farrington and Duffie, presents 11 authorities writing informally on the potentialities of tapping the sun's energy for useful purposes and on the present state of affairs.

RELIABILITY FACTORS FOR GROUND ELECTRONIC EQUIPMENT, by Henney, Keith and other writers, show facts and research results on improving the reliability of electronic equipment provided for the Armed Forces, based on work done by both governmental and private agencies.

THE ATLANTIC BATTLE WON, by S. E. Morison, is a history of U. S. Naval operations in World War II. Like the previous volumes, it is written on the tactical level, following all the little anti-submarine action in remarkable detail.

Service Widows Face Deadline On Increased Monies

Widows of 14,000 veterans stand to lose unless they apply for increased compensation payments within the next two weeks, Veterans Administration said today.

They are widows whose husbands died of service-connected causes before this year, and who may have the higher payments slated back to 1 January if they apply by 1 July, VA added.

VA said the 104,000 widows eligible for the increased benefit have been notified, and that 90,000 already have made application.

With a few exceptions, those applying after 1 July will have their payments increased only as of the day VA gets the application.

Widows who have not made application for the higher payments are urged to contact the nearest VA office immediately for details.

Those versatile Presidio MP's have added another feat to their varied list of accomplishments.

Last Sunday afternoon, Sp3 James H. Campsey, MB, formerly of Goodlett, Texas, switched from his Ford to a horse to accompany a group of fifty members of the San Francisco Horseman's Association, who were winding up their Annual Past Horseman's Ride from Daly City via the Great Highway and Golden Gate Park.

Campsey, clad in full Western regalia, met the horsemen at the Mountain Lake Bridge Path (Funston Gate) at the Presidio, and escorted them to the picnic grounds on Washington Blvd., near Battery Caulfield.

White To Vie In ADC Tennis Tournament

Floyd H. White, Hq. Btry. 9th AAA Mis. Bn., winner of last week's first Annual 30th AAA Group Tennis Tournament in the singles and doubles division, reached the semifinals in both divisions at the Sixth Region, Army Air Defense Command Championship Tennis Tournament held 13-17 June at Camp Hanford.

Reports from Hanford stated that a terrific wind storm hampered play considerably, and that it was necessary to line cars around the playing area in order to cut some of the wind down.

As a result of his play at Hanford, White, along with three others, was chosen to represent the Sixth Army in the U.S. Army Air Defense Command Tennis Tournament to be held at Fort Meade, Maryland, on 20-29 June.

The Camp Hanford Tournament decided the first tennis titles in the history of the 6th Region.

Sp3 James L. Shanks, Hq. Det., 660th Engrs., slammed his way into the semifinals of the men's open singles division in the Post Tennis Tournament, which got under way this week, by beating Ronald F. Crawford of the USATU, 1-6, 6-2, and 6-3.

Robert C. Bacon, also from USATU, reached the quarterfinals in the other match by defeating wiry Doug Cutler of Hq. Co., USA Garrison, 6-1, 6-1.

Since this is a double elimination tournament, the losers get another chance at the championship if they win in the second round.

Only three participants are competing in the Single Senior Division. They are Col. Willett Ware, Col. Robert Rhine, and Major Gordon Wallace. In the first round of play Col. Ware shut out Major Wallace in two sets, 6-0 and 6-0.

In the open doubles division, Peter Shea, USATU, and Crawford teamed up to beat Vladiner Dostal and Wolfgang Duerr, both from the 21st Engineers, by set scores of 6-2, 6-1, in the first round of play.

In the other doubles match, Bacon and John E. Seaholm, USATU, defeated the team of Col. Ware and Col. Rhine by scores of 6-4, 3-6, and 6-4.

The winners and runner-ups of the tournament will comprise the Post Tennis team which will play in the Sixth Army Tourney at Fort Ord on 4-8 August.

Practice Pair Sees WACs Dump TI; Lose To Ft. Ord

In two practice games over the past week, the Presidio WAC softball team beat the Treasure Island Waves by the score of 10-7, while losing to Fort Ord by the count of 7-4.

Rosemary Weber, of the Presidio club, got credit for Thursday's win over Treasure Island. The WACs got only seven hits, but as a result of three costly errors by the Waves were able to push across ten runs. Weber and Peggy Harris were top hitters for the WACs with two hits apiece.

In Saturday's game against Fort Ord, Weber pitched four-hit ball but the Ord WACs with the help of a few wild pitches collected seven runs. Lee Brandl of the Presidio WACs came through with a home run in the third inning with nobody on.

Table tennis was given the name of ping-pong by a group of Englishmen during the 19th Cent. The "ping" was for the sound when the bat hit the ball; pong for when it struck the table.

New Post Champion
Pfc. Allyn Pirtle

Senior Division Champ
Col. Franklin Smith

By Pfc. Norm Niccoll

Star Presidian Sports Editor

Pfc. Allyn Pirtle of the 56th MRU scored an upset victory in the Annual Post Golf Tournament last week by shooting a 213 in three rounds of play, three strokes below his closest rival, Pfc. Alex "Red" Sutton.

Pirtle, unknown in Presidio golf circles until last week, is a native of Texas but has spent most of his life in Colorado. While attending the University of Denver, he played golf for the school team for four years and represented his alma mater in the East-West NCAA tourney. He has also played in various tournaments around the country, including the U. S. Open.

Sutton, the pre-tourney favorite, remained in striking distance until the finish, but Pirtle, displaying championship form throughout the tournament, was able to maintain his slim lead down to the last hole of play.

The next six men, who along with the top two will comprise the Post Golf Team, were, in order of finish: M/Sgt. C. H. Shaw with 224; M/Sgt. Sidney Domingue with 232; Pfc. Donald R. Welch with 233; Capt. Charles Monges with 240; Pfc. James Jones, and M/Sgt. George De Rosa both with 241.

The team will be cut down to six men on a later date. The reason for having eight men on the team now is to insure, through challenging within the team, that the best possible six will be chosen to represent the Presidio in the Sixth Army Golf Tournament to be held at the Presidio Golf Course on 5-9 August.

In the Senior Division, Col. Franklin Smith topped the field with 233. In second place was Col. Robert Williams with 248 followed by Col. Archie Clark with 253 and Col. Hunt with 259. These four men will also compete in the Sixth Army Tournament.

Capt. George Reuss, officer in charge of the Presidio Golf Team, has announced that personnel who were unable to participate in the tourney because of sickness or for other legitimate reasons, may challenge any of the present team members in order to gain a spot on the club.

Popular Post Civilian Grew Up With Hogan

For Fred Williams, life today follows a rather definite pattern. Every day around nine in the morning he walks in our office leaving the day's mail, and then proceeds to other offices doing likewise.

Fred's routine life, however, is broken every so often by vivid recollections of times gone by.

For instance, he can remember the time when as a kid he and Ben Hogan were close friends and often caddied and played golf together in Dallas, Texas.

He remembers the biggest thrill of his life when he played golf with the famous Joe Louis.

He can remember the time when he helped to organize the Berkeley Park Club and the Bay Area Golf Club, and later became the Tournament chairman for five years.

He remembers the times when he played in various tournaments around the Bay Area and the time when he was runnerup to Clarence Costa, the Naval Air Champion, in the 1948 Naval Air Station Golf Tournament.

Today, Fred is employed as a Post messenger with the Presidio. He has been in government service since 1943.

Stop him sometimes when you get a chance to and have a few words with him. He's quite an interesting chap, this Post Messenger!

Army Golfers Scuttle First Fleet Team

A combined Presidio team, made up of members of the Presidio Golf Club and military personnel, outclassed the famous First Fleet, in a challenge golf match last Saturday on the Presidio green by the score of 50 1/2 to 21 1/2.

Capt. Reuss' 3 below par 69 was the best score of the day, while Naval Officer CPO Collette and Pfc. Sutton headed the best foursome match.

According to Col. Smith, the match was a great success, and contributed to building up a great amount of good will among the two services.

Pitchers Show Mettle; Shinnick Wins Seventh

The Presidio Toreros continued their winning ways last week as they pounded out two more victories in service competition.

Last Thursday, in the first night game of the year for the locals, the Presidio club downed Travis Air Force Base, 15-9, in a ball game which was marked by a 30 mile per hour wind which hampered both teams considerably.

Fred Crissey was credited for the win as he scattered 10 hits and fanned 14, while his mates were collecting 14 hits and 15 runs in a wild contest. Roger Collins and Amelio Martinez each had 3 for 4 to lead the Presidio attack, while shortstop Mike Drummey blasted his first round tripper of the year in the first inning.

On Saturday, in an Army Day contest the Toreros whipped the Two Rock Ranch Army nine by the score of 7-3. Dick Shinnick notched up his seventh victory as he went all the way, allowing eight hits. This game marked the sixth time in a row that a Torero moundman has gone the distance without benefit of bullpen help.

Shinnick also led the hit parade with 3 for 4, as the Toreros collected 11 hits, all told.

Next Friday, the Toreros leave on a 10-day tour. They will participate in the Atwater Service Tournament on Sunday in which they were runnerups last year, and will also compete against pro and semi-pro ball clubs throughout Oregon and Southern California.

Front Running 'A' Team Still Leading In Intramural Softball Competition

Company A, USA Garrison, led by the big three punch of Myslinski, Critts and Casteel, who are all batting well over .500, continue to trample their opponents in the American League race.

Last week they blanked the third place 56th MRU by the score of 3-0, and then went on to trip the 46th Ordnance nine by the count of 4-1.

The MRU men bounced back to whitewash the hapless 16th BPO, 7-0. The BPOs, who haven't been able to hit the win column yet this year, lost their eighth in a row to Hq. Co., USA Garrison, by the score of 12-5.

Hq. Co. Sixth US Army, firmly secure in second place with a record of 7 wins and 1 loss, defeated the falling 46th Ordnance by the count of 11-7.

The 21st Engr. Co., who have been invited to play in the 13th Annual Benefit Softball Tournament at Kezar Stadium this evening because of their fine play in city league softball, appear to be unbeatable in the National League race, as they steamrolled past the 99th Engr. Co. by the score of 9-0.

The 99th came back to trounce the last place Hq. Det. 660th Engrs. by the count of 8-1.

Hq. Co. 30th Engrs., who are only half a game behind first place, edged the Hq. Sixth Army Tng. Unit by the score of 7-5.

In Northern League play, D Btry. won three big games last week to remain on top of their league with a record of 9 wins and no losses. They defeated the second place A Btry. 10-5, and then went on to shut out the last place Hq. Btry. 30th AAA 7-0. Later this week, they defeated Hq. Btry. 9th AAA by the same score.

A Btry., who up until last week was only half a game away from first place, dropped another game during the week to B Btry. by the score of 7-0. This leaves them in second place, 2 1/2 games behind the leaders.

C Btry. surprised everyone by winning two games. They defeated B Btry. by the score of 11-6, and later in the week they trimmed the Sixth US Army Med. Lab. by the count of 10-7.

The third place 561st Engineers defeated Hq. Btry. by the score of 7-0.

Five Tie For Army High Jumping Title

Ernie Shelton, representing the Presidio and Sixth Army in the All-Army Track Meet which was held last Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Ft. Hood, Texas, tied for first place in the high jump event with four others by clearing the bar at 6'6".

This was one of the highlights of the meet as five frustrated jumpers attempted to beat each other in a cutting crosswind which hampered their performances somewhat.

All five contestants failed in three tries each at 6'8". The other four were Ken Kelley, Fourth Army; Ronald Mitchel, Armed Forces Far East; Elvin Wesley, Second Army, and Anderson Shells, Sixth Army.

This meet marked the finish of the 1957 track season for the service teams. It also marked the end of a frustrating attempt by Shelton to tie the world high jump record of seven feet held by his arch rival, Charles Dumas. It was only last year in the Olympic Tryouts at the Los Angeles Coliseum that Shelton and Dumas staged a tremendous duel for high jump honors, with a very saddened Shelton missing the bar at seven feet just by a hair.

Fort Ord Selects Athletic Director

Fort Ord, Calif.—James O. Tidwell of Monterey Peninsula College has been named athletic director of Fort Ord by Maj. Gen. William M. Breckinridge, CG of Ord. Tidwell will assume his position in August, replacing Don Coryell who will become coach at Whittier College.

Tidwell played football, baseball and basketball at Duke University and has coached all three sports.

Casaba Due Summer Play By Post Five

Presidio's talented basketball team, runnerups in last season's All-Army Tournament, will play in the 5th Annual Drake Summer League, which gets under way on Wednesday, 25 June.

Included on the Torero's roster are Carroll Williams and Tony Psaltis, both chosen on the 1957 Army All-Star Team.

The first game for the locals will be on 25 June, against the St. Agnes quintet. Other teams entered in the League are College of Marin, Dugout Dandies, Quality, and Bevit Enterprises.

Army Sports Chief Leaves for Europe

Washington—Lt. Col. Hugh T. Paris, chief of the Army's Sports Branch in the Office of the Adjutant General, will depart soon for his new assignment as Chief, Athletic Section, Special Activities Division, Hqs. USAREUR, in Nurnberg, Germany.

New chief of the Sports Branch is Maj. Jene Myers.

Last year was one of the Army's biggest years in sports as more than 11,000 athletic teams played football, baseball, softball and volleyball in organized leagues. Also, more than 1000 soldier-athletes entered Olympic trials with 44 of these men chosen for the U.S. Olympic team.

According to the annual hunter questionnaire of the California Department of Fish and Game, ducks led all species, including doves and quail, in the bag of California hunters last year.

ADC Will Compete In Major Tourneys

Colorado Springs, Colo.—Command-wide competition in four sports—softball, volleyball, basketball, and tennis—has been scheduled by the Army Air Defense Command for the coming fiscal year.

Tournaments and host regions for the coming 12 months are as follows:

Softball—19-26 September, 6th Region, Fort Baker, Calif.
Volleyball—5-12 December, 2d Region, Fort Meade, Md.
Basketball—22 March-3 April, 5th Region, Fort Sheridan, Ill.
Tennis—19-26 June, 1st Region, Fort Totten, N. Y.

Also included in the new program are plans for completing construction of multi-purpose athletic courts and for stimulating crafts programs at Nike guided missile sites.

Approximately 245 "combination" type athletic courts will be completed at Nike sites during the next 12 months. Many contracts for the courts have already been let under a special grant made to ARADCOM from the Army Central Welfare Fund. This grant, made from funds derived from profits of the Army post exchanges, included $1,492,000 for the athletic courts and $508,000 for dayroom furnishings.

ARADCOM's special services program is aimed especially at the battery level and offers a variety of voluntary activities intended to include something which will appeal to each man.

Organized team and individual competition is encouraged in more than two dozen sports at the battery level. While only a few sports are selected for nationwide competition among the major field

Pony League Falters; In Need Of Help

In the only game played last week in the Pony League, the front running Braves routed the Tigers by the lopsided score of 16-5.

The Braves, undefeated in the league, got twelve hits off pitcher Dickie Ryan of the Tigers. Pacing the attack for the winners were Tom Delaney, Doug Campbell, Bob Clark, and Marvin Lupo, all with two hits apiece.

The winning pitcher was Dale Ruffin, who only allowed six scattered hits.

The rest of the scheduled games were forfeited due to inadequate turnout of players at game time. Mrs. Horrell attributes this to "a lack of interest among the players and a definite shortage of young boys."

Boys between the ages of 13 and 15 who desire to play for the league, are urged to contact the Sports Office, Ext. 3968.

Sixth Army Sweeps Pistol Team Matches At Benning

Sixth U.S. Army teams found themselves ahead of the field and competing with each other for top honors in the .45 caliber team championship during the sixth day of the 1957 All-Army Rifle and Pistol Matches at Ft. Benning, Ga.

The Sixth U. S. Army Gold Squad nipped the Bronze Squad by just seven points to win first honors with a total of 1113 out of a possible 1200. Gold Squad members were M/Sgts. John R. Davis, Fort Lewis; James L. Wade, Presidio of San Francisco; CWO Victor E. Moass, Fort Ord, and Pfc. Fred A. Grant, Fort Lewis.

The same day of firing saw last year's Service Rifle Team Championship Match record of 1404-99V's held by Sixth U.S. Army broken by the U.S. Army Alaska Rifle Squad which set a new Army record in match 19 National Match Course when its six shooters combined a score of 1437-109V's out of a possible 1500.

Probably the hottest man in the whole competition has been the Presidio's M/Sgt. Wade who, besides his membership on the winning team, earlier became the only pistoleer to cop two first places out of the five .45 caliber matches.

He fired a score of 195 out of a possible 200 in match 113, 20 shots out of fire at 25 yards, and an 859 out of a possible 900 in match 115 which is the combined scores of the first four .45 caliber matches. He also took second place in match 111, 20 shots slow fire at 50 yards with a total of 189.

During this same series of matches, M/Sgt. George Ferguson of Fort Ord took match 112, 20 shots timed fire at 25 yards with a total of 198.

Other All-Army Rifle and Pistol Match results of special Sixth U.S. Army interest are as follows:

● M/Sgt. William D. Perry, Fort Ord, took rifle match 15, a two-staged new event with firing at 600 and 200 yards.

● M/Sgt. M. J. Pitts, Fort Lewis, placed fourth in Rifle Match 12, which called for 200-yard rapid fire standing to kneeling or sitting.

● Names of other Sixth U.S. Army personnel who placed in a match are: M/Sgt. George C. Ferguson, Fort Ord; Sfc. Leonard L. Evans; Sfc. Nelson H. Lincoln; Sp3 Donald R. Carroll, Fort Ord; Sfc. Arthur Odgen, USAA GP (USAR); Sfc. Richard C. Galloway, Fort Ord; and M/Sgt. William D. Perry, Fort Ord.

● Sixth Army Gold Team fired 1153 in match 18 .22 caliber event which tied the Fourth Army Blue team but lost to the Third Army Red Team which set a new Army record with 1155.

● M/Sgt. Jacob Svela, USA AMU, set a new national match course rifle record on 14 June when he posted a phenomenal 248-29V's score out of 250.

Presidio WACs Win First Game In League Opener

The Presidio WACs displayed terrific power in the opening game of the newly-formed Army-Air Force Women Softball League, as they smothered the LAH WACs by the phenomenal score of 33-1.

Mary Willard was the winning pitcher for the Presidio outfit, as the game was called after five innings to spare any further misery for the hapless LAH WACs. The locals scored 32 runs in the first inning.

Other teams entered in the League are Hamilton Air Force Base, Parks Air Force Base, and Travis Air Base.

Summer League Play Sizzles; Three Teams Battle For Lead

Three teams are tied for first place in the newly formed Summer Presidio Bowling League. The Wizards, Keystone Kops, and 46th Ord. are heading the league with four wins apiece while suffering no setbacks.

In the first week of play, the Wizards took four games from the King Pins. High man for the Wizards was newcomer Wil Purves with 592-242. Palomares was top man for the losers with 566-222.

The Kops, paced by McInturff with 595-202, whitewashed the Hilltoppers 4-0. Leonard was high man for the Toppers with 538-197. The 46th Ordnance took four games from the 21st Engineers. Dubois with 499-176 was tops for the Ordnance group while Malone headed his team with 416-156.

The Hardnoses and Hq. Co. 6A split their series, 2-2, to tie for second place. Van Kirk's 566-234 was high for his team, while Alexander paced his team with 528-187.

In the Bay League, the Deuces continued their torrid pacesetting by defeating the 56th MRU by the score of 3-1. V. Dodson of the winners set a new league high in series with a total of 606 points and a high game of 248.

The Triple Aces fell back to third place as they lost to Hq. Co.

6A by the count of 4-0. Rosebaum with 565-232 and Bauman with 565-211 paced the Hq. attack, while McFadin was best for the losers with 490-177.

The 99ers blanked the Officers Mess by the score of 4-0. Levy was high man for the 99ers with 491-175. Chapman was top man for the Officers Mess with 518-183.

The last place 740th AAA surprised the 30th AAA by taking a 3-1 decision. Schweikhard topped his team with 483-174, while Potter was best man for the 30th group with 509-179.

Post Dental Surgeon Assigned To Germany

The Presidio's popular Dental Surgeon, Col. Clare T. Budge, leaves the Presidio Monday for a new assignment in Heidelberg, Germany, where he will accept a dual assignment, Headquarters Area Command Dental Surgeon for Germany and Dental Surgeon for the 130th Station Hospital in Heidelberg.

Colonel Budge came to the Presidio two and half years ago from the Surgeon General's office in Washington, D. C. Under his direction, major improvements have been made in the Post Dental service. The prosthetics laboratory has been improved, partitions have been installed in the dental work area and a new dental van has been acquired to extend complete service to outlying Nike stations.

"The service, organization and personnel of the Post Dental section are the finest I have encountered in my years of Army service," Post Deputy Commanding Officer Col. Charles G. Rau said this week.

The Presidio's new Dental Surgeon will arrive here in late July from his present assignment in Puerto Rico. He is Col. Conrad Kvam. In the interim, Lt. Col. Wendell T. Jackson will act as Post Dental Surgeon.

Other personnel who depart from the dental section this month are Maj. Virgil Woods, who reports to Letterman for a two-year residency in prosthetics; Capt. Edward Hartman, who returns to private practice in Kalamazoo, Mich.; and Capt. John E. Page, who returns to private practice in Detroit, Mich.

Lt. James Howard Karr will join the Post dental staff in mid-July. He is completing his dental internship at LAH.

Guardsmen Rally Adds $84 To Post Youth Program

A total of $84 was earned for the Presidio Youth Activities fund through the sale of tickets for the recent Guardsmen Drawing. Members of the various youth organizations sold a total of 509 tickets.

Groups that participated as sellers were Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Youth Baseball League, Little League, Junior Rifliers and the Teen Age Club.

Over-all proceeds from the drawing cover summer-camp costs for needy children.

★ ★ ★ Ceremonies Draw Top Attendance

Some 1,500 persons, including top active and retired military personnel attended the full-dress retirement ceremony held for Col. Carl E. Lundquist, Post Commander, last Friday. Colonel Lundquist formally retires from active duty on 30 June.

The ceremony fell on the 30th anniversary of the colonel's graduation from West Point. Several of his 1927 classmates were on the reviewing stand with him. The parade was highlighted by special West Point graduation marches played by the Sixth U. S. Army Band.

In addition to the parade, the military visitors, military families and residents of the surrounding area visited the special exhibits set up for the 182nd Army Birthday celebration. Tours to the Nike sites located at Fort Scott attracted many of the visitors.

Colonel Lundquist came to the Presidio in 1954 as Deputy Post Commander. Before his local assignment he was commander of the 4th Infantry Regimental Combat Team in Alaska.

Fast Thinking Army Doctor Saves Life

A Letterman Army Hospital intern was credited with saving an Army wife's life while on duty as emergency officer this week.

"The most unusual situation he has encountered" confronted Lt. Richard Aldous via a phone call in the early morning hours Tuesday.

"If you take 70 sleeping pills will you die?" Maria Vilez, 35-year-old mother-of-three asked.

"Well, it all depends," the lieutenant began his answer. He then managed to find out her address, hang up, and dispatch a Letterman ambulance in record time.

The ambulance crew rushed to the address and found Mrs. Vilez lying on the floor near the phone. They took her to San Francisco Hospital for emergency care; she later was transferred to Letterman.

The three Vilez children, ages 7, 4, and 2, slept through the lieutenant's rescue.

Lieutenant Aldous, who received his M.D. from the University of Utah, will complete his internship on 1 July. He then will begin a Twenty-five Army officers and four enlisted men, the largest group to retire at the Presidio in a single month, will officially end their military careers Sunday. A retirement ceremony is scheduled at 1600 hours today.

The ceremony will be highlighted by the retirement of Major Florence B. Boush, the first member of the Women's Army Corps to retire at the Presidio. Major Boush and Col. Lawton Butler, Sixth U.S. Army Adjutant General, have been designated the reviewing officers for today's parade.

Heading the list of those retiring is Col. Joseph H. Gilbreth, Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations in Sixth U.S. Army Headquarters. A 1927 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy, Colonel Gilbreth served in the European Theater during World War II with the 8th and 9th Armored Groups. An athlete and sportsman, the colonel was with the All-Army Football Team of 1927 and the Infantry Rifle Teams of 1928 and 1929. Stationed at the Presidio since October 1954, Colonel Gilbreth holds the Bronze Star Medal for valor and the Purple Heart for wounds received at Villerou, Belgium.

Colonel Butler, who became Sixth U.S. Army Adjutant General last June, was graduated from the Military Academy with Colonel Gilbreth. During World War II he served in Europe with the 7th Corps, taking part in the Normandy, Northern France, Rhineland, Ardennes and Central Europe campaigns. He holds the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star Medal with one Oak Leaf Cluster and the Croix de Guerre with Palm.

Major Boush, who will set the WAC precedent, is Chief of the Administrative Services Division in the Post Adjutant Office. A graduate of the second class of the WAC Officer Candidate School in 1942, the major served with Eighth Army Headquarters in the Far East for 26 months.

Colonel Albert Hettrich, 46th Ordnance Group Commanding Officer, will retire after 26 years of service. Colonel Hettrich served in the China-Burma-India Theater during World War II under General Joseph Stilwell and was Ordnance Advisor for the newly organized ROK Army during the Korean conflict. He wears the Bronze Star Medal, Legion of Merit and Ulchi Medal (Korea) among his decorations and awards.

Colonel John D. Burke, Executive Officer of G4, will retire

after 29 years of service. During World War II he was commanding officer for Prisoner of War camps in Oklahoma and Texas. After the war he served with the Army of Occupation in Germany and as a military government officer in Bavaria.

Colonel Buethel M. Kitchen, an Assistant Inspector General for the Sixth U.S. Army, will complete 20 years of active duty. During World War II he served in Europe taking part in the Central Europe and Rhineland campaigns as a unit tank commander for which he received the Bronze Star Medal for valor.

Lt. Col. Herman Bretzer, Chief of the Personnel Management Branch of the Sixth U.S. Army Adjutant General Section, has been at the Presidio since 1954. Completing more than 23 years of active service, Colonel Bretzer received his commission through the Adjutant General's Officer Candidate School.

Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Sixth U. S. Army Commander, today named Colonel Charles G. Rau the new Commanding Officer of the Presidio. Colonel Rau, the present Deputy Commanding Officer, will succeed Colonel Carl E. Lundquist on 1 July.

The new Post Commander, who served his first tour at the Presidio with the 30th Infantry Regiment in 1930-31, was a combat veteran in Africa and Europe during World War II and is an outstanding figure in international and national rifle and pistol competitions.

A veteran of 28 years of Army service, Colonel Rau started his third tour of duty at the Presidio in October 1955 as Deputy G-2, Sixth U. S. Army. In February 1956 he was transferred to Post Headquarters and named Executive Officer; last April he was appointed Deputy Commanding Officer of the Presidio.

Graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1929, Colonel Rau was well-known in competitive shooting circles by the late 1930's. He was team captain of the U. S. Infantry Pistol team that won the National Pistol championship in 1938 and again in 1940. His team was runnerup in 1939.

Shortly after the United States entered World War II, Colonel Rau joined the 2nd Armored ("Hell on Wheels") Division and fought with the Division in French Morocco and Sicilian campaigns, making the initial landing in Sicily.

Chief, Brucker Score Future Red Expansion

Washington (ANS) — Communist expansionism still threatens the Free World, although the likelihood of an all-out general war has decreased, Army Chief of Staff Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor said here recently.

"As leaders of the Communist world become aware of the consequences of general nuclear warfare it becomes increasingly unlikely that they will deliberately embark on a war which could only end in destruction of themselves and their system," General Taylor informed Senators during his most recent appearance on Capitol Hill.

"However," he warned, "it does not follow that Communism will renounce aggression as a tool of policy. Inherent in the nature of the Communist movement is a need for dynamism—for expansion—for a foreign enemy to unite their people."

(Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker also warned against the constant Communist threat in a recent address here. He said, "Whatever devious course the Communist may choose to follow, we can be sure their goal remains unchanged—the complete subjugation of the whole world to the Communist tyranny.")

New Service Ruling

Time spent as an intern on active medical duty counts toward building up special pay later on, the Controller General has ruled.

The ruling holds that a year served as an intern on active duty counts as one of the two years of service required for the first boost in special pay.

Liberty's Legacies

America Exciting To Former Prussian

In 1945 when the Russians entered a small East Prussian village, rounded up all able bodied men over 12 years of age and shipped them off to labor camps, they left Johannes Moeck behind with his mother. He had just turned 13 but was small for his age.

That was 12 years ago. Today Pvt. John Moeck is a clerk at Post Headquarters. After his Army tour he would like to go to college and study either accounting or drafting. And he is confident of his future in the United States. "Here one has the choice to do anything," he says.

The trip to America really started for John in 1949. He, his mother and his sister had been living under Polish Communist rule in East Prussia, and now they were given the choice of becoming Polish citizens or getting out.

They fled to East Berlin. But there the refugee concentration was so great that they were not allowed to register and so could buy no food. They went on toward West Germany and were eventually able to slip across the border. They settled in West Germany where John was able to attend high school.

In 1950 his mother died. Later his sister married and John found himself working in a bank quite alone in a strange part of Germany. Then in 1955 John and a cousin just returned from a Russian labor camp were given permission to emigrate to the U.S.

They first went to Cleveland, Ohio, where John worked for General Electric nearly a year before he was called to the Army. He's pleased at being stationed in San Francisco and is looking forward to the future with brimming confidence.

For this young man who has lived most of his life under one or another form of dictatorship, "the way the people live democracy," is the most exciting thing about America.

"Sure, in Europe everybody knows that the United States is a strong power, but it is impossible to know that everybody is actually taking part in democracy—the schools, the newspapers, the youth groups, the government."

Of his past life John says, "It is better, I think, not to try to remember too much of it."

He lived and worked next to Russians for a year and a half. As individuals he found them "pretty nice people—more passionate than the Germans." He even remembers an incident of a soldier taking the shoes from a German man and giving them to a child.

"But they live in a continual state of fear, never knowing if their friends will inform on them for thinking a wrong thought." His German friends who returned from Russia told him that the Russian people were sometimes oppressed as much or more than the German prisoners.

New Emphasis On Language Study Firmed

Washington (ANS) — The Department of the Army has initiated a foreign language proficiency program aimed at providing language training opportunities for all of its career officers who possess aptitudes along these lines.

The program will be conducted within the established DA budgetary limitations and since the capacity of the Army Language School is limited, its use will be on a controlled basis. The Army points out, however, that many officers may acquire such training through their installation educational facilities.

Army Regulation 350-24 further states that commanders will encourage participation in the program by reviewing the qualification records of all career Army officers annually and reminding them of this language requirement.

The Adjutant General of the Army, Maj. Gen. Herbert M. Jones, in lending his support to the program said, "US Army officers are currently stationed in 73 countries of the world and experience has shown that the effectiveness of officers serving in these foreign countries is increased if they speak the native language."

Two Bay Area Officers Here On Reserve Duty

Two Bay Area Reserve officers are on two-week training duty with the G4 section. The officers are Lt. Col. Don C. Corbett and Capt. Herbert M. Bergen, Jr.

Colonel Corbett, who is with the Plans Division, is from Berkeley. He completes his training today.

Assigned to the Supply Division, Captain Bergen will be on duty until 5 July. His home is in San Anselmo.

Twenty-three Years of Federal Service ranging from page boy to military man were completed this week by Mr. Arthur LeDuc, Post Fire Inspector. Mr. LeDuc received a Certificate of Achievement from Col. Ralph Griffin, Acting Post Engineer. Fire Chief George Geller also participated in the presentation.

Presidio Fire Inspector Retires; Has Lead Varied, Colorful Career

A 23-year Civil Service career which he began as a page boy in the Nation's Capitol ended this week for Mr. Arthur LeDuc, Post Fire Inspector. Mr. LeDuc was presented with a Certificate of Achievement by Col. Ralph Griffin, Acting Post Engineer.

Following page boy duties, which began when he was 11, Mr. LeDuc spent four years in a similar assignment at the Library of Congress. After the outbreak of World War I he entered the Army and was in France 22 days later. He saw action in the Meuse Argonne salient, in the Flanders Section while attached to the Australian First Army, and at St. Mihiel.

Mr. LeDuc spent 19 years on the editorial staff of the Journal-American newspaper in New York City. In 1937 he became advertising director and vice president of the Wayne Light Company in New York, and during the Chicago World's Fair and the New York World's Fair, he handled publicity for the Robert Ripley's "Believe It or Not" exhibits.

Devoted to improving fire safety while on Post, Mr. LeDuc has received 22 commendation from various military and civilian groups.

In the 1956 Fire Prevention Contest conducted by the National Fire Protection Association, the Presidio was named grand award winner among all U. S. Army entrants, stateside and overseas. The year before the Presidio took second place in the national contest. As Fire Inspector, Mr. LeDuc was a vital force in the Fire Prevention program both years.

Mr. LeDuc plans to write two books, one on his newspaper experience and the other, an illustrated children's book.

Top Plaque Presented At Sixth Army

The Presidio of San Francisco, winner of the 1956 Grand Award for Fire Prevention, has received the official plaque and certificate from the National Fire Prevention Association.

It was presented officially to Col. Carl E. Lundquist, Commanding Officer of the Presidio, by Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Sixth US Army Commander. Also attending the ceremony was Col. James R. Rundell, Post Engineer and Fire Marshal.

The Presidio won out over all US Army installations, both stateside and overseas, after placing second in the 1955 contest. The 1957 competition will mark the 30th annual contest in the fire prevention program.

Equipped with the newest design fire fighting apparatus, the Presidio Fire Department conducts a regular training program in the latest fire fighting techniques for both military and civilian members of the Post.

The Department is headed by Fire Chief George Geller, a former deputy chief of the New York City fire department who has had almost 40 years' experience in fire fighting.

Colonel Rundell, at the time the award was announced, stated: "The Presidio Fire Department is considered a model organization by numerous 'visiting firemen' from departments throughout the country."

Chief Geller stressed that fire prevention is not an annual observance but a continuing process to be emphasized each day of the year.

Gen. Ford Named First For Master Aviator Badge

The first Master Army Aviator badge was presented to Brig. Gen. W. W. Ford (Ret.) during recent Army Aviation birthday ceremonies at Fort Rucker, Ala. General Ford is credited as the "father of Army aviation."

Aerial Taxi service was inaugurated at the Presidio on 16 June when Lt. Col. John Rankin, Sixth U. S. Army, G-3, made the initial flight to San Francisco International Airport. He receives his Travel Request from Lyn Rubenstein of Post Transportation. Mary Poncia, front seat, who is also from Post Transportation Section witnesses the ceremony. At her left, Pilot Chuck Naylor looks on.

New Flying Service Proving Very Popular

More than 30 Presidio TDY and PCS travelers have already taken advantage of a new commercial aerial taxi service which started on Post recently.

It takes just 10 minutes to fly from Crissy field to San Francisco International Airport in the four-place Piper Tri-Pacer operated by Stanlakes Flying Service. Flights may also be chartered to Hamilton, Moffett Castle, Travis or McClellan air bases.

The new service, available through Post Transportation section, is for all military and civilian Army personnel and dependents on official travel where a travel request for air has been issued.

The aerial taxi service is available seven days a week from sunrise to sunset, weather conditions permitting. However, reservations for the service must be obtained at Post Transportation's passenger service branch during normal duty hours. For information or reservations call 2831 or 3039.

Personnel living in Marin County have the option of departing from San Francisco Bay Airport in San Rafael instead of Crissy.

All personnel must schedule departure to San Francisco International Airport at least one hour before their commercial flight time. The aerial taxi will land right at the main terminal about a three minute walk from the departure ramp.

It is emphasized that the flight cost is paid, not by Post Transportation, but by the travel appropriation fund cited in the individual's TDY or PCS orders.

The airport flight cost for one, two or three passengers, is an unbelievably low $3.75. Costs are figured on the basis of 12 cents per mile.

Individuals may also utilize the service for return flights to the Presidio.

CWO's Progress Explodes Lack Of Opportunity Myth

A phenomenal three-year jump from Private E-2 to Chief Warrant Officer was completed this week by newly promoted CWO Donald P. Randolph of the 740th AAA Missile Battalion.

Now assigned to "C" Battery of the battalion, CWO Randolph has been with the unit since he completed Army Guided Missile School in June 1954. At that time he was still a Private E-2 because promotions were not given out during the year-long missile course.

CWO Randolph said. "It is up to the individual to find the opportunity." His next goal is to progress through the two top warrant officer grades.

Now an Integrated Fire Control Officer with the Nike-Ajax system, CWO Randolph was an IFC maintenance technician when first assigned to the battery.

Lt. Col. Charles Sampson, 740th Commanding Officer, and Maj. Raymond E. Siegrist, battalion Executive Officer, participated in the promotion ceremonies.

Sensational Rise
CWO D. P. Randolph

Two and a half months after joining the 740th, CWO Randolph was promoted to private first class; six months later he became a corporal; and in January 1955 was appointed to Warrant Officer Junior Grade.

Choose Presidio Workers As King, Queen Of Dancing

Mrs. Veronica Weber, Sixth Army Provost Marshal civilian employee, and Lt. Col. Robert E. Broadus, Letterman Army Hospital, were selected king and queen of the coronation ball by the 40-strong student body. The derby started the end of May and runs through tomorrow.

Mrs. Weber, who has been attending for about eight weeks, is taking Ballroom Dancing.

Puzzle Answer

Now, that it is midsummer and furlough time for many soldiers at the Presidio, the SKETCHBOOK presents the last in a series of four introductions to leading local Missions built by Spanish priests for the glory of God . . . and for the King of Spain. It is hoped that readers will, through this and past columns . . . better enjoy their visits to any or all of the missions . . . God's own windows . . . lighting the coastway from San Francisco to San Diego.

Father Junipero Serra . . . a Mexican friar of the Jesuit Order, was the pioneer who led other Mexican and Spanish priests to the founding of the missions during the year 1769.

Like Saint Francis . . . Father Serra believed that the body was mortal enemy of man's soul. In his zeal and penitence, he wore a hair shirt . . . slept on boards . . . and even in the pulpit he held a crucifix aloft in his right hand while holding a stone in his left . . . to beat his breast until the blood ran down his sandalled feet. In six years he had walked 2000 miles as a mission priest. He it was who led the Jesuits to California . . . after they were expelled from Mexico by the Mexican king . . . with nothing to take with them but their breviaries and the habits which they wore.

In California in the year 1769, the Spaniards arrived to catch up with the Mexicans . . . and through their united efforts was established religious faith in the Western wilderness.

San Diego de Alcalá was the first Mission founded in California. Now known as San Diego Mission, it is located in the famous Navy city of the same name . . . one of the most popular of the 22 still standing.

Historians say that Saint Didacus, for whom the Mission in San Diego is named, was known for his many miracles . . . but it took some time before he was able to move the hearts of the Indians. They watched Father Serra and the soldiers as they built a small wooden chapel . . . stared, as dressed in his colorful Latin vestments, he blessed the cross erected after the Mission's completion . . . and finally chanted his first High Mass on their pagan ground. They greedily accepted gifts but they were as shy as fawns.

In time, one small native boy entered the Mission. He stayed and learned to speak Spanish and Mexican . . . but even fireworks did not beguile the others. They laughed and mimicked the sounds . . . and they soon began to steal the very bed sheets in the Mission, and to cut the sails on the "San Carlos" which had brought the travelers there.

With true Mission zeal, Father Serra began to make clothing for the Indian children . . . it brought the beginning of friendship from the Indians and of conversions for Father Serra. The first baptism in San Diego Mission took place in April 1770, when a child was christened Francisco Antonio.

In May 1772, the Mission priests were on the point of starvation. Two years later they harvested 50 bushels of corn and wheat . . . they had 306 cattle, and buildings progressed rapidly . . . when soldiers, seamen and a few Indians began to make adobe bricks from mud. Then came a house for the Friars, and a barracks . . . then also came discontent and jealousy . . . when the Indians refused to come to the Mission because they resented the popularity of the Spanish soldiers who so readily attracted the Indian girls.

As time went on the Indians became masons, bricklayers, carpenters, saddlers, tailors, butchers, harness, candy and soap makers. Girls who slept at the Mission were under lock and key . . . guarded by older women.

After a long series of conflicts . . . uprisings . . . massacres . . . rebuildings of the church and barracks, the Mission San Diego was the font at which 7,126 Indians had been baptized. The enclosure was later turned into a barracks for U.S. Army troops . . . 1852-1862. The orchards were cut down for fuel, the church roof burned . . . and soon the old tower fell down carrying the ancient Spanish bells. Seven Mexican and Spanish friars were buried in the old church.

When the Mission was restored in 1931, the oldest of its church bells was rehung there. It was cast in Spain in the year 1738.

During the years of the restoration of all Spanish missions in California, a non-denominational group collected and spent $100,000 to restore San Diego Mission.

Of the original church, only the broken wall remains . . . beside a massive cross fashioned from pieces of tile from the building erected by Father Serra. It holds together the majesty of the past and the progress of the present.

movie previews

NIGHT PASSAGE is the story of the two McLaine brothers who have always hated each other for the life the other has led. Grant, played by Jimmy Stewart, is older, fast with a gun, but has tried to stay on the side of the law. The Utica Kid (Audie Murphy) is a reckless and daring hardened criminal. Their paths cross closely when the Kid's gang holds up a payroll train on which Grant is carrying the payroll.

THE MONTE CARLO STORY is filmed in the picture book setting of fabulous Monaco, with its grand hotels, lavish scenery and world famous Casino. The main characters are an impoverished Italian count, a beautiful French marquise, who also is temporarily short of funds, and a handsome American multi-millionaire industrialist.

THE ABDUCTORS is a story taken directly from the closed files of the United States Secret Service. Set in 1876, the film evolves around an ex-convict and an undertaker who conspire to abduct the entombed remains of President Lincoln seeking, in exchange, the freedom of an imprisoned counterfeiter who has engraved an almost perfect fifty dollar bill. Murder and the Secret Service also enter the plot.

FIRE DOWN BELOW is the story of two fishing boat partners, Robert Mitchum and Jack Lemmon, who quarrel bitterly over Rita Hayworth. Lemmon wants to marry Rita, but the experienced Mitchum calls her "no good." To break up the affair Mitchum works a double-cross that costs them their boat and forces Lemmon to flee the police.

ACCUSED OF MURDER finds a glamorous nightclub singer and a notorious hoodlum implicated in the murder of a gangland lawyer. A sympathetic Police Lieutenant tries to protect the singer and incurs the distrust of his associate and his superiors.

On New Books List

Among the new titles at the Presidio Library is THE SHORT REIGN OF PIPPIN IV. The unpredictable John Steinbeck throws a curve at his critics with this frothy extravaganza about French politics (and various other matters). Mr. Steinbeck has himself a ball in this good-natured satire—so full of fun that it almost bubbles over. Hard to imagine this change of pace? Just try it and you'll see how much he enjoyed writing it, and, even more, how much you will enjoy reading it.

Or you might try Norman Vincent Peale's latest work, STAY ALIVE ALL YOUR LIFE, in which the author repeats the successful formula of POWER OF POSITIVE THINKING. Mr. Peale offers further spiritual inspiration and guidance that assures an uplifted spirit and a calm mind.

A truly uplifted spirit is that of a boy whose dream comes true as BATBOY FOR THE BRAVES, by Wick. From April to September of each year Paul's spirit soars as he sits alongside such noted sluggers as Aaron, Matthews and Adcock, and he knows the thrill of being identified with a major league ball club.

If you crave the best sellers for your summer reading diet, try BEST SELLER. Author Murray's impertinent novel is a rash, witty parody on the 3-ring circus of publishing, publicity and powerhouse personalities. It isn't true—but it skirts the truth closely enough to bring forth blushes from many quarters. If you like your literary tea strong then this bold comedy is for you.

A book which needs almost no introduction is Lord's DAY OF INFAMY. Which day? Sunday, December 7, 1941. What event? The Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. A day, an act no one will forget. The author does full justice to the epic events of that incredible day.

Another World War II book SAMURAI gives us a new perspective on the fighting in the Pacific. Japan's leading air ace, Saburo Sakai, gives eye-witness accounts of the great air battles fought over the Pacific. He tells of attacks against Luzon, savage air struggles over Lae and Rabaul, running air fights against the formidable B-17s, Japanese opposition to the Guadalcanal invasion, and the air slaughter of his own and enemy pilots over Iwo Jima and Japan itself.

War II is also well represented by Pawle's THE SECRET WAR, an examination of the scientific wizardry of World War II, DEATH IN THE SOUTH ATLANTIC, an account of the last voyage of Germany's Graf Spee, and Trumbull's NINE WHO SURVIVED HIROSHIMA AND NAGASAKI.

Swinging away from the field of battle we have: THE THIRD EYE, an autobiography of a Tibetan lama, by Rampa; de Kruif's MAN AGAINST INSANITY which advances new methods of treating

Two Top Teams Cinch Softball Titles

To The Victors go not only the spoils but some real post game enthusiasm that saw them literally carry winning pitcher Nick Themely away. Scene followed the 21st Engineer's 6-1 win over the high rated 2400 Club in a Kezar Benefit tilt. Themely tossed a one-hitter at the favored city nine.

Company 'A', Engineers Remain Undefeated In Intramural Play

With only one week of play remaining in the three-Post Intra-Mural Softball leagues, Co. "A," USA Garrison, and the 21st Engineers have clinched top spot in their respective leagues.

As a result of wins over the Teenagers by the score of 22-6 and over Hq. Co., 6th US army, by the count of 11-2, the Honor Guard copped the American league pennant with 11 wins and no defeats. Only one more game remains on their slate, but will have no bearing on the standings since second place Hq. Co. dropped out of the race for top honors by losing to the winners.

The amazing 21st Engineers, who beat one of the top City softball teams in a benefit tournament held at Kezar Stadium last week, walloped the second place 30th Engineers, 10-0, on Nick Themely's no-hitter, thus insuring their hold on first place.

The Northern league race is still undecided, as there are several make-up games to be played. "D" Battery, 9th AAA Bn., however, with their record of 11 wins and no losses, are favored to take top honors.

In other games, 56th MRU trounced Hq. Co., USA Garrison, 15-1, and then went on to nip the 46th Ordnance, 15-12. Hq. Co., 6th US Army, still hoping last week to overtake the front running A Co., shut out the Teenagers, 7-0.

46th Ord. handed the 16th Base Post Office their 10th straight defeat by blanking them, 7-0. Hq. Co. USA Garrison defeated the Teenagers by the same score.

In the National league, the unbeatable 21st Engrs. added another win to their perfect season by beating the Hq. 6th US Army Trng Unit, 7-0. Hq. 30th Engrs. won two games, trouncing the hapless Hq. Det. 660th Engrs., 20-3, and sailing over the 99th Engrs. by the score of 12-3.

The 99th Engrs. came back to edge the 537th Engrs., 11-9. Hq. 6th US Army Trng. Unit handed the 660th another loss by beating them, 13-7.

In the Northern league, the second place 561st Engr. Co., who still maintains a slim mathematical chance to win the pennant, blanked C Btry, 9th AAA Bn., by the score of 7-0. Front running D Btry walloped "B" Btry by the tune of 26-0.

The fourth place B Btry won two, blanking Hq. Btry, 9th AAA,

7-0, and Hq. Btry., 30th AAA, by the same score. The 6th US Army Med Lab also won two games, defeating A Btry by the score of 13-4 and shutting out the 30th AAA, 7-0.

A Btry defeated C Btry by the count of 14-7. C Btry came back to hand Hq. Btry, 9th AAA their second loss of the week by whitewashing them, 7-0.

After the three leagues wind up their season next week, there will be a double elimination play-off between the winners and runners-ups of all three leagues to determine the Post champion, who will be awarded a winner's trophy.

Presidio-LAH Fencers Show Well In U.S. National Championship Try

The combined Letterman Army Hospital-Presidio Fencing team has returned from the U. S. National Fencing Championship Matches after a solid week of fencing against the World Championship Hungarian team, the Mexican Olympic team, teams from Canada and Japan, in addition to the individual world and national champions, the American Olympic team, and other top flight fencers of this country.

The LAH-PSF group was made up of Lawrence Brownlee, PSF, Jose Tafoya, Leo Thompson, David Heald, and William O'Brien, coach, all from LAH. The meet was held at Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Brownlee did an excellent job of fencing in the preliminary rounds of the individual foil and sabre events. He reached the semi-finals in the sabre, and just barely missed to qualify for the foil semi-finals. The highlight of the Brownlee matches was when he defeated the Mexican National Foil Champion, Conrad Schaepler.

Tafoya faced a rough slate of Olympic and other top flight foil fencers. He managed to win in the preliminary rounds, but lost to Hungarian and Olympic Fencers in the quarter-finals.

In the individual epee Leo Thompson defeated Pilar Roldan, the National epee champion of Mexico, in an outstanding bout to qualify for the quarter-finals.

Heald had an extremely rough going as he faced two nationally-ranked fencers who later placed in the finals.

In the group matches, the local foil team beat the New England Division, 5-4, but lost to Michigan, by the same score, thus failing to make the finals. In the epee events the going was very rough as they met two of the American Olympic teams. The sabre team made a strong showing but were shaded by the opposition.

The Mexican team has asked the local group to schedule two meets

21st Engineers Dump SF City Champs 6-1

In a benefit game played at Kezar Stadium last Friday evening, the 21st Engineer softball team, behind the superb pitching of Nick Themely, downed the "24 Hundred Club," leaders of the class A City Softball league, by the score of 6-1.

Themely allowed only one hit. His teammates came through with 9 hits, with Devault and Wendt both pacing the attack with two hits apiece.

Because of their fine showing in city league baseball, the team will be reclassified into the class A league for the next round. They have already clinched top spot in the Post National league race, and will certainly be the team to watch in the Post championship play-offs, to be held in two weeks.

Themely, a graduate of Michigan State University and a star softball player with several fine clubs in Michigan, has pitched two no-hitters this year, in addition to his one-hitter against the 24 Hundred Club.

WACs Split Series With Moffett Waves

The Presidio WACs split a two game softball series with the Moffett Waves, winning the first by the score of 9-2 and dropping the second by the count of 18-17.

In the first game Mary Willard, star pitcher for the WACs, threw a nifty three-hitter, as her team easily coasted to a 9-2 win. The locals got five hits. Dorothy Alexander was the top hitter for the WACs with two singles.

One of the three hits allowed by Willard was a home run off the bat of Zoe.

In the second game, after leading, 16-9, the Waves put the pressure on in their half of the seventh inning as they pushed across seven runs on four hits and two bases on balls to tie the game. In the eighth inning they forged ahead by one run and were never behind again.

The winning pitcher was Carol Willard started for the WACs but was replaced by Rosemary Weber, who got credit for the loss. Weber came through with a home run.

League play resumes on 27 June when the WACs tangle with the Travis AFB Waves at the PX field at 1730 hours.

Pirtle Bests Presidio Course Record

740th Nine Drops Two, Wins One

The 740th AAA Msl. Bn. baseball team dropped two games and won one over the past week.

They defeated the Santa Rosa Rosebuds by the score of 2-1 on Frank Kramer's six hit pitching. Kramer pitched superb ball as he fanned 12 batters. The slim margin of victory was the result of a tremendous home run by Rudy Buffin in the seventh inning.

Last Sunday, the 740th was nipped by the Tiburon Merchants, 7-6. The winning pitcher was Thurman, while Kerchelic was credited with the loss. Top hitters for the Missilemen were Hubie Brown with a double and a home run, Rudy Buffin with a double, and Enrique Ricco with a long triple to center field.

Pacing the hitting attack for the Tiburons, were catcher Chaon with two doubles and a triple and first baseman Sapp with three singles.

The other loss came at the hands of Castle Air Force Base by the score of 8-5. The hitting stars for the AAA group were Jack Gentry with 3 hits, including a home run.

"I Could Do it again, maybe better," was Allwyn Pirtle's candid comment following the above special congratulations at the end of his record-breaking 63 at the Presidio Course. Pirtle bettered by two strokes the official course record. The Girls? Oh, they're "special type" greeters, Margie Luba and Jan Jensen, of Presidio Civilian Personnel, and have promised to duplicate greeting for the first six golfers who beat Pirtle's score.

Shaves Two Strokes Off Yost's Mark

Not since Sailor Gene Littler rose from relative obscurity to take the professional trail to national prominence have the Armed Forces boasted a hotter golf property than the current Presidio Champion, Pfc. Allwyn Pirtle.

Last Friday the slender University of Denver shot-maker shaved two strokes off the course record at the tough Presidio Club as he fired a non-official 63. The official record was set by Dick Yost, a former collegian and Northwest Amateur Champion, who soldiered at the Presidio some two years ago, during play in the 1954 Post Tournament.

Another yardstick for Pirtle's record bettering round is last year's Western Open play where only three of the country's top pros could manage a round of 66 including eventual winner, Mike Fetchick.

Pirtle's top score came hard on the heels of last week's victory in the Presidio Tournament where he shot a par 213 over the 54-hole tournament layout to down pro Red Sutton for the local title.

46th Ordnance Keglers Hot; 12 Straight Wins Top League

The 46th Ordnance remains undefeated in the new summer Presidio Bowling League with a record of 12 wins and no losses, as they took four games from the King Pins last week, and then shut out Hq. Co., Sixth Army, on Wednesday night by the count of 4-0.

Dubois was high man for the Ordnance group with 504-197, while Frankberry led the loser's attack with 483-171. In this week's game, Hauser and Hall were tops for the leaders with 528-182 and 528-195, respectively. Wilmouth was best man for Hq. Co., Sixth Army, with 544-201.

The Keystone Kops moved up to second place by blanking the 21st Engineers, 4-0. Last week, however, they lost four games to Hq. Co., Sixth Army. In that game Wilmouth, of Hq. Co., set a new series high of 622, only to be topped this week by Mahon of the Kops with a new series and game high of 657-256.

The Wizards and the 21st Engineers split their four games, 2-2, last week. High man for the Wizards was Bill Purves with 527-199, while Pepe was tops for the Engineers with 405-156. This week, the Wizards dropped a 3-1 decision to the Hilltoppers. High man for the winners was Duke, with 477-191. Purves once again led his team with 527-188.

The sixth place Hardnoses lost to the King Pins by the count of 3-1. Nance paced the winner's attack with 504-201, while Bedell was best for the Hardnoses with 549-224.

CMD still heads the Pacific League. They split last week's series with the last place Missilers, 2-2. High man for CMD was Marks with 517-190. The Missilers' top man was Smith, with 476-169.

The Signaleers, despite their 3-1 loss at the hands of the Compt-

Rollers, remained in second spot. Routen of the Compt-Rollers was high man for his team with 516-214. The Signaleers were headed by Powell with 493-168.

The third place Spoilers defeated the Mixups by the score of 3-1. Corbin of the Spoilers led his teammates with 528-218, and steady-bowler De Mario led his team's attack with 469-167.

In the remaining series, the Presidio Cops downed the falling Phillips by the count of 4-0. Beveridge led the winners with 556-200, while the Cops' high man was Kaminsky with 470-175.

The 99ers upset the Bay league Deuces by the score of 3-1 last week. High man for the 99ers was F. Levy, with 479-173. D Thraikill led the Deuces with 512-184.

Hq. Co., Sixth Army, still within shooting distance of first place, took three games from the Officers Mess. Pacing the winners was J. Rosebaum with 546-191, while C. Mahon was best man for the losers with 527-195.

The fourth place 56th MRU, only two games from third place, defeated the hapless 740th AAA by the score of 3-1. High for the MRU outfit was F. Martin with 528-208. O. Vitan led the losers with 490-175.

Braves Still Leading Pony League; Dump Pirates 12-6

Only one game was played last week in the faltering Pony League. The front-running Braves continued their torrid pace as they came from behind to beat the last place Tigers by the score of 12-6. The other scheduled games were called off due to a poor turnout of players.

After a shaky start, Pat Horrell settled down and went all the way for the winners allowing the Tigers only three scattered hits.

Doug Campbell was the top hitter for the Braves, with one single, a double, and a triple, for four times at bat. Horrell, who leads the league in batting with a .700 average, came through with one of the longest home runs ever hit by a small leaguer in the Youth Baseball park. This came in the fifth inning with nobody on.

Tom Stewart of the Pirates led his team in hitting with two singles. The Pirates got five runs in the first inning on three walks and a single by Terry Haines, but the Braves went on a hitting barrage in the next two innings, collecting 10 runs on six hits and coasted the rest of the way for an easy victory.

Interested players between the ages of 13 and 15, are again reminded to contact the Sports Office, Ext. 3968, as soon as possible.

Army Science Confab Starts At West Point

Scientific papers, exploring a variety of subjects ranging from earth satellite and shock waves to nuclear detonations and radiation, will be presented during the three-day Army Science Conference now under way at the U.S. Military Academy. The conference opened 26 June.

About 400 persons are attending the first such Army-wide event ever held. The conference is designed to provide an opportunity for Army scientists to present their classified work for critical comments and discussion.

Regimental Homes Due

Each of the Army's 164 permanent regiments will get a permanent "home" in continental United States, the Army has announced.

In addition, tactical units of the Army Reserve and National Guard will come under the Combat Arms Regimental System (CARS). These facts about CARS are in a pamphlet scheduled for distribution within a month.

Lots of Eggheads!

By the end of 1956, more than 850 students from 25 educational institutions throughout the country were employed at Army installations under the five-year cooperative training program for students in engineering and science.

Founding Day plans for this weekend's observance were completed recently by Col. Carl E. Lundquist, Post Commander; Theresa McGettigan, this year's La Favorita; and Mayor George Christopher of San Francisco. Traditionally hosted by the Post Commander, the annual luncheon is scheduled tomorrow at the Presidio Officers' Open Mess.

Presidio To Participate In SF's Birthday Celebration

The week long series of events commemorating San Francisco's 181st birthday will culminate Saturday at the Presidio with the traditional birthday luncheon at the Presidio Officers' Club.

Strolling musicians will provide background music at this colorful event. Then with trumpet fanfare and rolling drums La Favorita Theresa McGettigan, assisted by Post Commander Carl E. Lundquist, will take a saber and cut San Francisco's birthday cake. Following this ceremony, the Post Commander will propose a toast to La Favorita. She in turn will propose a toast to San Francisco.

AG Supervisor Wins Performance Cash, Certificate

Mrs. Lawrence F. (Betty) Cheney, a Post Adjutant Section supervisor in the Officers Branch, received a $200 check and Department of the Army performance award certificate this week. Col. Charles G. Rau, Post Deputy Commanding Officer, presented the awards.

Mrs. Cheney, who has been with the Post Adjutant Section since 1951, began her Civil Service career in 1942 at the San Francisco District Engineers Office. Her career includes positions at Fort Ord and the Coast Artillery School at Fort Scott.

AADC Officer Wins Majority

Captain John J. Kentzel, Supply and Maintenance Officer of Headquarters, 6th Region, U.S. Army Air Defense Command, was promoted to major last week.

Assigned to the Fort Baker headquarters since last January, Major Kentzel's previous assignment was with the 500th Engineer Detachment Headquarters, 7th Army in Stuttgart, Germany.

The major, who entered the Army in 1940, completed basic training at the Presidio. He was commissioned in 1942 and has served in the Southwest Pacific, Korea and Germany. Major Kentzel holds the Bronze Star Medal for Meritorious Service.

Dual Comp Ruling

For most classes of retired Reserve officers, the $10,000 dual pay limit is now a thing of the past. This week the Controller General extended the "Tanner" exemption to include Title III reservists retired under all other laws.

The exemption is still limited to officers who continue to have Reserve commissioned status in retirement.

2000 Cut Due In California Officer Rolls

Some 3,300 Reserve Officers in the Sixth US Army area will be transferred to a non-pay drill status on 1 July, according to a new Department of the Army policy. Nearly 2,000 are located in California.

The Army-wide policy will affect 22,000 Reserve officers who will be transferred to the new status in order to gain the maximum number of six-month enlisted trainees within budgetary and space ceilings available to the Army Reserve.

The Reservists affected are Officer Mobilization Designees and Officer Students in USAR Schools. About 1,000 of the total 9,000 designees to be changed are in the Sixth US Army area. A total of 13,000 students, 2,300 in Sixth Army, will come under the non-pay drill status.

The staffs and faculties of the USAR schools will remain on a 48-drill pay basis plus not more than 17 days active duty each year.

The students and designees affected by the change will continue to serve a maximum of 17 days on active duty for training with pay each year and will still have the same promotion provisions and retirement point credits.

New Deadline

Due to the Independence Day holiday on 4 July, the next Star Presidian will be distributed on Wednesday, 3 July. Copy and picture deadline for that issue will be noon, Monday, 1 July.

land and Ardennes campaigns and then headed Combat Command "R," and subsequently Combat Command "B," of the 13th Armored Division during the campaign for Central Europe.

The colonel began his second tour at the Presidio in 1946 with the reactivation of Sixth Army Headquarters in the United States. His assignment was Chief of the Organized Reserve Corps Branch of the Plans, Training and Operations Division, G-3, of the headquarters.

In October 1948 Colonel Rau joined the U. S. Advisory Group to Turkey as tactical advisor in Ankara and one year later became Chief, Armor Section, U. S. Army Group, Joint American Military Mission for Aid to Turkey.

The colonel's next stateside assignment was as Chief, Policy Planning Branch, Plans Division, G-3, Department of the Army in Washington, where he remained until June 1953.

Continuing his interest in competitive marksmanship, Colonel Rau was appointed executive officer and coach of the United States 1952 International Shooting team and Olympic Rifle and Pistol team which participated in the 35th World Championships in Oslo, Norway, and Helsinki, Finland, that year.

From July 1953 to September 1955 the new Post Commander served as Executive Officer of the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice under the Assistant Secretary of the Army. In 1954 he was executive officer and coach for the U. S. International Shooting team which participated in the 36th World Championships held in Caracas, Venezuela; he later became captain, designate of the contingent of the team chosen

Colonel Rau is a life member and director of the National Rifle Association. He was awarded the Army "Excellence-in-Competition" badge in pistol marksmanship four times and in 1939 was designated a Distinguished Pistol Shot by the Army. Since returning to the Presidio last year the colonel has been a vital force in the local marksmanship program.

The colonel holds the Combat Infantryman's Badge, Silver Star, Soldier's Medal, Bronze Star with three Oak Leaf Clusters, Army Commendation Ribbon and the Purple Heart. Project Paydirt Tops July Programs

★ ★ ★ $353,950 Is Area Profit On Program

Sixth Army civilian and military personnel have been urged to "draw on your resource of knowledge and experience to submit a suggestion during the month of July," by Maj. Gen. John J. Binns, Sixth US Army Chief of Staff.

"I am confident that many of you have ideas for improving work methods, combining functions, eliminating duplication or otherwise improving Army efficiency from the standpoint of your operation which you have not reduced to writing on an Employee Suggestion Form," said General Binns in support of Project Paydirt which is receiving special emphasis during July.

Submitting a suggestion, which is defined by Ar 672-301 as a "constructive idea designed to accomplish a job better, faster, and/or cheaper," is but one way to earn money through the Army Incentive Awards Program. Cash is also awarded for sustained superior performance and for special acts or services.

Last year Sixth US Army paid out $13,984 in award money which resulted in an estimated saving of $353,950. Total Army investment in the Incentive Awards Program came to $417,726 in 1956 for which it returned $17,115,573. This figures to be a saving of $41 for every dollar invested.

An individual can receive awards several times for the same idea through the suggestion. It is possible for a suggestion to be first adopted at the local level. Then if it is applicable at Army level the individual can receive another cash award. Some suggestions are then passed on to the DA suggestion committee where they are again

★ ★ ★ Ideas Save Post $63,874 During FY '57

Suggestions on how to do jobs better, faster and cheaper saved the Presidio an estimated $63,874 during the 1957 fiscal year, Ann Imobersteg, secretary of the Local Incentive Awards Committee, announced this week.

All told 307 suggestions went before the committee during the past 12 months. Of those submitted 90 were approved and paid the authors a total of $3,660.

"The little suggestions—lots of them—are the backbone of our program," said Mrs. Imobersteg, who went on to explain just how the suggestion program works at the Presidio.

First, of course, the man with the idea must put his thought in writing on a DA form 1045. These forms are located at suggestion boxes all around the Post. The completed form, and any drawings, plans, etc. necessary to clarify the idea, should then be sent through the Post message center to Secretary of the Local Incentive Awards Committee, room 102, building 220.

NCO Parade Friday; Bronze Star Slated

A Bronze Star Medal for "exemplary conduct against the enemy" will be presented to Sergeant First Class Joe Ventura at an awards and decoration ceremony on the Main Parade Ground, this Friday at 1600 hours. Colonel Thomas F. Bienvenu will make the presentation.

The award is in recognition of Sfc. Ventura's World War II service with the 30th Infantry Regiment in Germany. His unit, a part of the Third Infantry Division, took part in the Rhineland and Central Europe campaigns. Prior to D-Day in Europe, he served with the Quartermaster Corps in England.

In addition to the Bronze Star Medal, he holds the Combat Infantryman Badge and the Good Conduct Medal with one clasp.

A career soldier with more than 14 years of service, Sfc. Ventura is presently assigned to the Mobile Food Service Team and has been stationed at the Presidio since he returned from Korea in 1952.

Friday's parade will be led by non-commissioned officers. M/Sgt. Michael L. Bray, S-3, will be commander of troops. M/Sgt. John T. Lupo, Sixth Army Special Services, will command the first battalion, and M/Sgt. Stephen Popovich, 660th Engrs., will command the second battalion.

Coffin Nails Up!

The price of regular size cigarettes was upped one cent a package in Post Exchanges yesterday. Mr. George G. Elliott, Post Exchange Officer, announced. The increase follows the national policy announced by the Army and Air Force Exchange Service.

King-size cigarettes will not undergo a similar raise. The increase is attributed to a recent raise in wholesale cigarette prices.

5 Presidians On Early List

One hundred and five officers in the Sixth U.S. Army area are among the first 1032 officers to be integrated into the Regular Army under the Augmentation Program, according to a Sixth U. S. Army announcement. Ninety-three of the total are on active duty; the others are Reserve Officers who will be called to active duty.

The first list which consists mainly of first and second lieutenants is not final for any grade or branch. The second list will be released about 15 January, 1958.

Omission from this first list does not imply failure to be selected. Administrative requirements or determination of physical qualification may have delayed action.

General Young's Message

Our custodianship of American freedom enters upon its 182d year. The right to live as free men so boldly proclaimed in 1776, the independence we acclaim today, was won with the agony and toil of patriots and sustained with the sacrifice of legions of Americans at arms.

Despite the victories of the past and the bright assurance of the present, there is no certainty that freedom will be permanently ours. Aggression against the mind and spirit of man goes on today in a struggle as unrelenting as any in our history.

As soldiers of the United States our mission is clear: to preserve and defend our country's liberty at all times and at all costs. American liberty must and shall thrive in our keeping so that, untrammelled and uncurbed, it will be bequeathed to our posterity and by them to theirs, for all the generations of America's luminous future.

We of the Sixth United States Army join our fellows in the Armed Services in dedicating to the fulfillment of that mission ourselves and all that is in us of steadfast vision and determined purpose on this Fourth of July, 1957.

ROBERT N. YOUNG
Lieutenant General, USA
Commanding

Colonel Rau's Message

"The effervescent and spirited patriotism that once marked celebrations of the anniversary of our independence have seemingly gone with our youth.

"No longer do we note with fireworks, picnics and patriotic rallies the day of our national entity.

"Perhaps this is well. Perhaps this is an indication that we have passed from reckless, and often foolhardy, youth into a true national maturity. Such a maturity is a prerequisite for world leadership in this Nuclear Age.

"And yet, we must never forget that the seeds of our liberty were sown by a small band of fearless visionaries; were harrowed by adventuresome statesmanship; were fertilized with the blood of American soldiers of every race, color and creed.

"It behooves us then, on this 181st year of our Independence, to rededicate ourselves to this original heritage of individual dignity and national liberty."

Want To Be A Headline?

525 KILLED OVER HOLIDAY WEEKEND.

Cheerful headlines for Monday morning? Be prepared to read them, for the National Safety Council estimates that at least 525 persons will die in their automobiles between 6 p.m. today and midnight Sunday.

These people will die because they refuse to stop mixing liquor and gas; because they refuse to gauge their driving to holiday traffic; because they refuse to exercise brain power while sitting behind the wheel of their automobiles.

The National Safety Council with the cooperation of local military and civic groups has planned Family Days to save these people's lives; the automobile industry has added the necessary safety devices to save these people's lives; the various mass media have warned these people to save their lives.

So don't feel sorry for them, don't be appalled with the statistics, don't mourn their deaths, for these people want to die.

Are you one of these people? Will we be seeing you or reading about you Monday morning?

NewDentalAdvisoryGroup Plans First Meet 8 July

Washington (ANS)—A new Dental Advisory Committee appointed by the Department of Defense will meet 8 July in the office of the Army's Surgeon General to begin study of possible changes to the dental care provisions of the Dependents' Medical Care Program.

At present, dental care is available only in remote areas of the Continental United States, or only if necessary to medical or surgical treatment. In overseas areas, this care is provided military dependents on a "space available" basis.

The Dependents' Medical Care Act became effective last December, and is one of the recently enacted "Career Incentive Acts" which together with other changes, has helped make an Army Career one of the most attractive in military history. This act assures hospital care for wives, children and dependent husbands of active duty personnel.

A readable condensation of the Act including a summary of medical services provided and limitations on free services has been distributed within the Army as DA Pamphlet 21-91. High ranking officials have repeatedly stressed that all Army personnel should be sure their dependents have a copy of the pamphlet and fully understand its contents.

The Dependents' Medical Care Program is administered for all United States uniformed Services by the Office of Dependents' Medical Care, headed by Major General Paul I. Robinson, in the Office of the Surgeon General, U. S. Army.

Liberty's Legacies

Family Reborn Under American Flag

Two bottles of whiskey used to bribe a Russian border guard and his companion, have altered if not saved the lives of a whole family.

Private Friedhelm E. Marunde, of the 99th Engineer Company, 30th Engineer Group, will never forget that incident nor will he forget the events preceding and following it which brought his family from Russian Occupied Germany to his final home in a suburb of Chicago.

Marunde, who recently received his final citizenship papers, was born in Jastrow, Pomerania, in what was then a part of Germany. When the Russians arrived in January, 1945, the Marunde family made their first attempt to escape.

Traveling by foot in sub-freezing weather, Friedhelm, his mother and his sister, were caught by the advancing Russians just 15 miles out of town and forced to live in a small village outside of Jastrow for eight months under heavy Russian guard.

With the ensuing partition of Germany, Jastrow was taken over by Poland and all the inhabitants were shipped en-mass to Franzburg, in the Russian zone of Germany. The trip, which normally took 12 hours, was made by flat car in freezing weather and took three weeks to complete.

Marunde's father had been forced into the war in the German Army where he remained for six long years. The remaining Marundes had not been able to locate him when the war was over. The Russians allowed them very little access to the Red Cross. This, plus the constant oppression of the Russians, was the deciding factor in the decision which eventually led the family to freedom in West Germany.

In October, 1946, the family left their small one-room apartment in East Germany as though they were going visiting. They traveled by bus as close to the border as possible. The remaining 15 miles were made on foot. As they neared the border to the British zone, they were accosted by two Russian border guards. Having heard stories of people being imprisoned and even shot for trying to escape, the Troops To Get New Anti-Flu Shots Right Away

All members of the Armed Forces will be inoculated with a single-strain anti-influenza vaccine as soon as possible to combat a previously unknown virus in the Far East, the Department of Defense has announced.

The single-strain vaccine also will be made available to military dependents and civilian employees at overseas bases voluntarily.

Life In Danger?

The following true or false questions are taken from a sample California Driver's License Test. Test and check yourself. Give yourself 10 points for each correct answer, 30 points or less and your life is in danger.

1. If you have an accident resulting in injury, whether it is your fault or not, it is your duty to make a written report to the California Highway Patrol or the Police Department within 24 hours and the Department of Motor Vehicles within 15 days.
2. You may cross a double white line if the line on your side is a broken one.
3. If you come to a school bus stopped on the opposite side of an undivided highway to pick up children, you may drive past without stopping so long as there are no flashing red lights in operation on the bus.
4. A curb painted yellow means parking is allowed for loading or unloading of freight or passengers.
5. When two cars reach a corner, the car in the intersection has the right-of-way, if there are no stop signs or signals.

THE FOURTH OF JULY—1776.

This is the day of the year which announces to mankind the great fact of American Independence. . . . This fresh and brilliant morning blesses our vision with another beholding of the birthday of our Nation . . . and we see the Nation . . . of recent origin . . . now among the most considerable and the most powerful . . . spreading from sea to sea . . . over the Continent.

The above address portrays the patriotic sentiments of the great statesman, Daniel Webster, given in Philadelphia, 4 July, 1851. . . . It baptized the birth of a day . . . seventy-five years earlier . . . when on a cloudless summer morning . . . an old man and a small boy . . . his grandson . . . stand on the bell tower crowning the English brick statehouse in the City of Brotherly Love.

Inside the statehouse some 56 men have assembled . . . traders . . . farmers . . . shopkeepers and mechanics . . . come to break the bond being forged through covetous empire makers . . . the steel with which to sever them? The power of the written word . . . on a signed parchment scroll.

Some are ready to sign . . . some argue in fear against it. Treason against the Crown? . . . the hangman's noose dangles from a lamp post in the square!

The old man and the little boy wait in the bell tower. . . . The child is to give his grandfather the signal—"Ring It"—when and if the Declaration is signed . . . and the men in session announce it to the troubled people waiting in the square.

Fear holds fast the quill pen . . . lean Thomas Jefferson rises from his chair; . . . Gibbet! . . . who fears it? They may stretch our necks on every scaffold . . . turn every tree into a gallows . . . yet the words written on this parchment can never die. . . . They may pour our blood on a thousand altars . . . yet from every drop that stains the earth will be born a new martyr!

Silence . . . like thunder . . . then the determined scratching of a quill pen on a yellowed roll of paper . . . the birth of a new Nation . . . Ring It, Grandpa. . . . Ring It! . . . Ring for Liberty . . . for all our hopes in life or death . . . for Home . . . for husbands . . . wives and children . . . for the oppressed everywhere . . . God has given America to the free.

Deborah Logan, a housewife living in Independence Square wrote later that the audience to the signing of the Declaration on that long ago morning was neither numerous nor composed of the most respected class of Philadelphia citizens

Its birthdate was marked as an Army holiday when General Washington wrote it in General Orders, 9 July, 1776. . . . In part, the Orders read. . . .

"The several brigades are to be drawn up on their respective parades at 6 o'clock, when the Declaration of Congress, showing the grounds and the reasons for this measure is to be read in an audible voice. The General hopes this important event will serve as a fresh incentive to every officer and soldier, to act with fidelity and courage, as knowing now that the peace and safety of his country depends under God, on the success of our arms, and that he is now in the service of a state possessed of sufficient power to reward his merit and advance him to the highest honors of a free country!"

The first time the Fourth of July was celebrated as a military holiday in California was in 1847. . . . It was at Fort Moore, near Los Angeles, when the fort was dedicated to the city as its protector against the Indians.

The fort was named in honor of Captain Benjamin D. Moore, of the First United Dragoons, killed at the battle of San Pascual. The outpost was designed to accommodate 200 soldiers, in protection of the pueblo and its territory.

In its infancy, the Fourth was an unruly baby . . . given to wild displays of patriotism more violent than inspired. Newspapers, in those days were concerned with the totals of deaths and injuries from Fourth of July explosives as much as they are with the present day loss of life through automobile accidents on the highways. It finally became such a harbinger of violent death that the use of large-scale firecracker displays was outlawed by Congress.

Today, the Fourth of July is celebrated with a great degree of common sense and the advance use of Safety slogans. . . . There will be firecrackers . . . but noticeably few fires . . . and the only untimely deaths will be those resulting from automobile accidents induced by speeding and a lack of judgment on the part of drivers and pedestrians

Friday's news headlines will show more concern for the folly of the automobile driver than for the patriotic spirit which marked celebration of this year's Fourth of July!

We've come a long way from Independence Square in 1776 when a small boy and his grandfather put their patriotic sentiments into the ringing of a bell in an old courthouse where American history had just been made!

Monges and decided to make a unit donation.

Service Club Directors Win Civilian Award

The four directors of the Presidio and Fort Baker Service Clubs were awarded a group $200 check and performance awards certificates recently. Dividing the check were Miss Mary Elizabeth de la Torre, Miss Isabelle M. Walker, Miss Dorothy Webb and Miss Donna Bedford.

The awards were presented in recognition of leadership and creative ability in organizing and producing outstanding programs which brought national recognition to the clubs. The presentations were made by Maj. John P. Hoover, Post Special Services Officer.

Miss de la Torre, Presidio Service Club Director, was graduated from the University of California and has been with the local club since May 1951.

Her assistant, Miss Walker, was assigned to the Presidio Club last August after five months at the Fort Cronkhite Service Club. Miss Walker was graduated from Mills College.

Miss Webb, Fort Baker Service Club Director since January 1955, came to the Post from a similar position in Okinawa. She was graduated from San Diego State College.

on our shelves

Variety ranging from military through psychology to technical books keynotes the latest book list distributed by the Sixth Army Library and Library Depot. The books are available on two-week loan.

The latest military history books include LINCOLN'S COMMANDO, a biography of Commander W. B. Cushing, U.S.N., and REBELS AND REDCOATS based on the American Revolution.

The Cushing biography written by R. J. Roske and Charles Van Doren dramatizes the naval exploits of the Yankee officer. In REBELS AND REDCOATS, G. F. Schoer and H. F. Rankin attempt "to fabricate a mosaic" of the American Revolution into a readable, running narrative. Their original sources include the press, diaries, letters, official and personal reports.

The military dog and mule take the spotlight in two new epics. DOGS FOR DEFENSE by Fairfax Downey tells the story of American dogs in the Second World War. M. F. Parrino unveils the role of the mule, past and present, in war and peace in AN INTRODUCTION TO PACK TRANSPORT AND PACK ARTILLERY.

Latest psychology additions are ADOLESCENT DEVELOPMENT AND ADJUSTMENT by L. D. and Alice Crow and NEW PSYCHOLOGY FOR LEADERSHIP by D. A. and E. C. Laird. The latter book presents findings from 22 research centers in non-technical language, graphs and charts.

New Technical books include HANDBOOK OF TROPICAL AQUARIUM FISHERIES by H. R. Axelrod and L. P. Schultze and SAFETY MANAGEMENT by R. H. Simonds and J. V. Grimaldi. The tropical aquarium fish book describes 449 species in detail. The safety book is intended as a textbook for college level courses in accident prevention and safety administration.

Best Coaching Record

Robert J. H. Kiphuth of Yale holds the most remarkable record ever compiled by a swimming coach. Since 1918 his teams have won 458 dual college meets and lost only 12.

Peach of a Start?

Two peach baskets fastened to a gymnasium balcony in the winter of 1891 at Springfield, Mass., provided the start for the game which later became known as basketball.

Presidio's Ernie Shelton, yet to reach his peak performance after a long layoff, finished in a five-way tie in the recent All-Army high jump competition and second behind Charlie Dumas, his former USC schoolmate, in last week's National AAU Meet at Dayton, Ohio. Dumas cleared the bar at 6-10 1/4 while Shelton's best effort was 6-9. This will be Shelton's second trip abroad for State. He toured with another team in 1955.

Fort Lewis' Ken Reiser was a triple winner in the Sixth Army Track Meet at Ft. Ord. He won the 2-mile run, 2-mile steeplechase and the 3-mile run. In the All-Army Meet he won the 2-mile steeplechase in the good time of 10:37.2. Reiser's showing in the AAU Meet was not available at press time.

Both Reiser and Shelton will be away for about 30 days and are slated for the Italian contingent.

Two other Army stars will take at least one of the five tours which include visits to France, Sweden, Italy, Finland and one other as yet unannounced country. Tom Courtney of First Army will compete in the event for which he holds the world's record, the 880; Charlie Pratt, also of First Army, will vie in the 120-yard high hurdles. Both were winners in the All-Army Meet.

In the last week of play, "D" Btry., 9th AAA Bn., clinched first place in the Northern softball league by trouncing the 6th U. S. Army Med. Lab. 18-2 and then winning over the third place 561st Engr. Co. by the count of 19-4.

The twin victory left "D" Btry. with a season record of 13 wins and no defeats. The second place team, which will play in the Post Playoffs beginning next week, has not been decided yet. The 561st with a record of 9 and 4 will play "D" Btry. in a makeup game, and if they should upset the champs they would be in a tie for second place with "A" Btry., thus forcing a playoff game between the two teams.

In other National League games, the 561st defeated Hq., 30th AAA, 7-0. "A" Btry. won two games, shutting out Hq. Btry., 9th AAA Bn., 7-0, and edging the 561st by the score of 12-11.

assured its first division standing by clipping the fifth place "B" Btry. 11-10. "C" Btry. blanked the hapless Hq. Btry., 30th AAA, by the score of 7-0.

The shouting is all over in the other two leagues. Co. "A," assured of first place in the American League a week ago, kept on winning by beating second place Hq. Co., 6th U. S. Army, by the score of 11-2, and then defeating Hq. Co., USA Garrison, 10-3. In the latter game, the garrison nine turned in valiant effort and at first it looked as though Co. "A" might suffer its first defeat of the season, but in the final innings the pressure proved too much and the league leaders pushed across the necessary runs to win the game.

Hq. Co., 6th U. S. Army, in second place and assured of a berth in the Post Playoffs, shut out the last place 16th Base Post Office 7-0. Hq. Co., USA Garrison, suffered its second defeat of the week by losing to the fourth place 46th Ordnance Co. 7-0. The 56 MRU clubbed the Teen Agers, by the count of 7-0.

In the National League the unbeatable 21st Engineers kept on rolling over their opponents with the greatest of ease. They clobbered Hq. Det., 660th Engrs., by the football score of 39-2; shut out Hq. Co., 30th Engrs., 10-0; and then trounced 99th Engrs. 22-3.

In other National League games, the 537th Engr. Co. defeated Hq., 6th U. S. Army Tng. Unit, by the score of 8-0. The Tng. Unit suffered another defeat at the hands of Hq. Det., 660th Engr. Co., by the count of 7-0.

What's in a Tooth?

Rulership, who appears to be one of the best two-year-old racing horses in this country today, will most likely be named the Toothless Wonder if he goes on to fame, for he has only gums downstairs. He lost all his lower teeth when he got tangled in a halter the day he was weaned.

Pirates Move Into Second; Braves Still Lead League

Tommy Mlakar pitched a no-hitter for the Pirates to sparkle his team to a 10-2 victory over the Tigers. As a result of their win, the Pirates moved up to second place in the Pony League Standings.

Mlakar further helped his team's cause by getting three hits, a single, a double, and a triple.

The front-running Braves continued to clobber their opponents by beating the Dodgers 12-3. Bob Clark went all the way for the winners, giving up only three hits. Dutch Riggs was the losing pitcher.

Top hitters for the Braves were Pat Horrell with a home run and Clark with a double.

The game between the Braves and the Pirates scheduled for the Fourth of July will be played tonight instead at 1800 hours.

The Pony League winds up its first half of play on 11 July. The teams resume play on 30 July.

Got Indoor Start

Softball was first played indoors as a substitute for baseball during the winter months. The large ball was adopted so it could not be hit as far as the regular baseball.

Toreros Will Vie In Top Tournament

The Torero baseball team left last Saturday on a five-day tour of the Northwest. They will compete against pro and semi-pro clubs throughout Oregon and Northern California.

On 6 July, the Presidio nine will return to play in the Central California Baseball Managers' Association Championship Baseball Tournament to be held in Oakland. This Tournament is sponsored by the Oakland Tribune which will donate individual trophies to the players of the winning team. Two defeats will eliminate any team from the tourney.

Among the outstanding semi-pro clubs which have already entered the tournament, is the Lucky Lager team which boasts some top players including Earl Robinson, who last year made the College All American team for his fine play with the University of California.

This is an invitational tournament and the Toreros were the only service team to be invited.

Capt. Jack Moore

New Special Services Boss Was USF Star

Replacing Major John P. Hoover, as officer in charge of the Post Special Services Section, is Captain Jack R. Moore.

Capt. Moore took over his new assignment on TDY basis, and is still permanently assigned with the 740th AAA Missile Battalion, at Fort Scott.

Capt. Moore served as Public Information Officer with the 740th and was also connected with the S-2 Section. He has been with the Army for the last ten years.

He comes from Fresno, California, but has spent most of his life around the Bay Area. He graduated from the University of San Francisco, where he participated in football and track.

Volatile Bob Loses Tennis Game; Rhine Wins Senior Title Easily

Displaying championship form, James L. Shanks came from behind to beat temperamental Robert C. Bacon, 3-6, 6-4, and 6-4, to reach the open singles finals in the Post Tennis Tournament.

Bacon, who virtually blew the last set by letting his temper get the best of him, gets another chance to play Shanks in the finals as a result of his win over Neil Kurn last Monday by set scores of 6-3 and 6-4. Since this is a double elimination tournament, a player must lose twice before being disqualified. Bacon and Shanks play this week for the singles crown.

Col. Robert Rhine overpowered Col. Willett Ware, 6-1, 6-3, to capture the singles senior division crown. Both finalists will represent the Presidio in the Sixth Army Tennis Tournament to be held at Fort Ord on 4-8 August.

In the doubles division, Ronal E. Crawford and Peter L. Shea reached the finals by beating John O. Smith and Shanks, 6-4, 6-4. In the other round of play, Colonel Ware and Colonel Rhine teamed up to hand Smith and Shanks their second straight loss thus eliminating them from the tournament, by set scores of 6-3 and 6-1. The two double finalists will play their match next Tuesday.

In the women's open singles, Sylvia Bernardini won her first two rounds to reach the finals. She defeated Beatrice Van Houten, 6-3, 6-1, and then went on to upset Julian Kite by set scores of 6-2, 6-3. Kite gets another chance to play Bernardini in the finals if she can defeat the winner of the Van Houten-Kelly match. Kite won her first round over Elizabeth Kelly, 6-0 and 6-3.

Harris' Round Trippers KO Travis 13-7

Peggy Harris of the Presidio WACs slammed three home runs, driving in 9 runs, to lead her teammates to a 13-7 victory over the Travis Air Force Base, last Thursday afternoon at the PX Field.

The three clouts came in the 3rd, 4th and 5th innings with two players on base each time. Mary Willard got credit for the win as she allowed only five scattered hits.

The Presidio club is now tied for first place with the Hamilton Waves in the newly formed Army-Air Force Women Softball League. Next game for the locals is against the Alameda Naval Air Station Waves on 9 July at the PX Field at 1730 hours.

Top Keglers will give Presidians an exhibition of the skill that earned them the title of "Mr. and Mrs. Bowling" when Joe and June Kristof appear at the Main Bowling Alley on Friday night. Following an exhibition, Joe and June will play a match with a top local pair and give special instructions for those who desire to improve their bowling techniques.

Top Married Bowlers To Display Technique

Two nationally ranked bowlers will stage an exhibition match, and will offer instructions to interested persons this Friday at the Main Bowling Alley in Bldg. 135 at 2000 hours.

Mr. Joe Kristof and wife June, both of whom have had bowling careers that would make any bowler's eyes swell, are famed as the top Mr. and Mrs. team in the sport.

Joe Kristoff, a member of the National Match Game Championship Team from 1947 to 1949, has averaged 200 plus per game for the past 18 years. In exhibitions, league and match play, he has rolled twenty-one 300 games, two of them in succession in 1948.

His wife, June, with an almost equally impressive bowling background, has been bowling for the last twenty years with various teams around the country. Her highest three-game series have been well over 700. The best single game was a 279.

During the 1950-51 season, she maintained a 196 average.

11,000 August Draft

Selective Service has been requested to furnish the Army with 11,000 men in August, the Department of Defense has announced. The total represents a decrease of 2,000 from the July call.

The other services do not expect to issue calls for August.

Every Idea Has Chance

The assurance that ideas submitted as suggestions will be carefully studied was cited this week by Anthony P. Breglia, chief of the Office Services Branch, Sixth U. S. Army Signal Section, as a most important "bi-product" of the Department of the Army Employee Suggestion Program.

"When I want an idea considered I, quite frankly, put it in the suggestion channels, and even if nothing comes of it, I know it has been seriously evaluated. The old way—putting the idea on a disposition form—one person could say no and that was the end of it."

Ideas have paid off for Mr. Breglia from a strictly cash standpoint, too. For his suggestion for adopting a printed form to replace a month-end letter report, he has received $35 at Post level and $100 from the Signal Corps Incentive Awards Committee in Washington, D. C. Presently his idea is under consideration by other services, which may mean the same idea will pay off again for him.

"Most of the ideas are involved in things we do every day," he says. Each month Mr. Breglia used to have 60 to 90 letter reports from three Sixth U. S. Army Signal installations coming across his desk. All were similar in form and all had been prepared by hand. So, in went the suggestion to substitute a printed form for the individual letters, and back came acceptance and prize money.

Mr. Breglia came to the Signal Section at the Presidio five and a half years ago. Prior to that time he had been with the Veterans Administration in Oakland.

Mrs. Imobersteg will acknowledge receipt of the suggestion and send it to the section on Post where it is designed to be used. There it will be determined if the suggestion is both feasible and practical.

Next the suggestion goes to the Local Incentive Awards Committee. It should be noted that the suggestion goes to the committee for study whether or not it has been approved by the section designated to evaluate it. If the suggestion has been put into operation, the committee determines how much money to award the suggestor.

The Local Incentive Awards Committee, under the chairmanship of Col. Thomas F. Biennu, post comptroller, is made up of civilian and military personnel from Post and Sixth US Army Headquarters. The varied backgrounds of the committee members enable them to thoroughly evaluate each suggestion. The committee has the authority to overrule the evaluation agency which first passed judgment on the suggestion.

If it is possible that the suggestion could be used in other areas, the committee will send it on to the Sixth US Army Incentive Awards Committee. Sometimes suggestions can only be adopted at Sixth US Army or Department of the Army level. In that case they are sent directly to the committee having jurisdiction over the area covered by the suggestion.

The Local Incentive Awards Committee also makes cash awards to Presidio personnel for sustained superior performance and special acts or service. During the fiscal year 1957 a total of $17,100 was awarded to 74 civilian employees for sustained superior performance. Under the special act or service category $1,165 was awarded to nine persons for savings of $19,475.

Six Time Award Winner

Winner of six suggestion awards in the past two years, Wolffred Bauer, director of Central Film and Equipment Exchange, has this comment on the production of suggestions:

"Every one of us has problems—whether we're pushing a broom or running a large organization. If people would only stop griping, sit down and figure out a solution to the problem, we'd have a lot more ideas coming in."

Ideas Pay Off!
Wolffred Bauer

His method is first to determine if the idea is practicable. He lists the advantages and the disadvantages of the proposed change, and, if there are tangibles, he figures the costs. If it adds up to a plus, he goes ahead and turns in the suggestion.

Mr. Bauer, who spends more time working on other people's ideas than his own, believes the suggestion program is very compatible with human nature. "People like to change things, to constantly improve them, whether they are systems or physical facilities."

He lauds the Local Incentive Awards Committee for the active and rapid manner in which it operates. He feels the one slow point in the system is the time taken by the technical experts who evaluate the individual ideas.

Suggestions of both procedural and physical nature have been submitted by Mr. Bauer. Two of his ideas are so extensive that they are presently being evaluated at Army level.

Among the suggestions at local level that have paid off for Mr. Bauer are a mobile rack for storage of screens, a mobile bench for repairing movie projectors, and storage system for viewgraphy transparencies and a redesigned and simplified shipping tag form for film.

Mr. Bauer, who came to the Presidio in 1954, has 17 years of service in the Navy behind him. He is a captain in the USNR and serves as Director of the Naval Reserve Officers School in San Mateo.

Nursery Donates Trees, Shrubbery To Nike Site

Members of Battery D of the 740th AAA Missile Battalion went to the experts to solve the problem of making their Nike site beautiful and the result was not only advice but vegetation, too.

When it was explained that Battery D lacked funds for the purchase of trees and shrubs, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Roeding of the California Nursery Company donated 200 budding plants and 180 trees in behalf of the Fremont Garden Society.

Site beautification projects are currently under way at all Nike units.

Reorganize Bay Area AAA Command

TV Experts Film 740th AAA Picture

Television experts from four European countries turned A Battery, 740th AAA Missile Battalion, into a movie site last week. The men are filming a show on the Air Defense of the continental United States for the European viewing public.

Sponsored and edited by NATO, the film is intended to bolster faith in the alliance by demonstrating the defense capabilities of its members.

The video-journalists were from France, England, Italy and Germany. The men explained that TV viewers in England, France and Italy pay for productions directly through an annual TV tax; therefore commercials are not used on the stations.

RA Nominee for commission, Maj. Joseph C. Fimiani, is congratulated by Maj. Gen. E. J. McGaw, Commander of the 6th Region, U. S. Army Air Defense Command. Major Fimiani, Missile Officer for the command, was nominated for a Regular Army captaincy in the first list issued under the Officers' Augmentation Act. The nominations must be approved by Congress.

DA Asks 3,000 Slot Reduction Nationwide

Special to the Star Presidian

A total of 102 manpower spaces within the 30th AAA Group and its three subordinate battalions in the Bay Area have been eliminated due to a national reduction of strength in the U.S. Army Air Defense Command. The entire Air Defense Command was ordered to cut 3000 spaces before 30 June by the Department of the Army.

The cut was accomplished by reorganizing and consolidating the headquarters and headquarters batteries. Units affected were Headquarters 30th AAA Group, Fort Barry; 740th AAA Missile Battalion, Fort Scott; 9th AAA Missile Battalion, Fort Baker; and the 441st AAA Missile Battalion, Berkeley.

Some of the men affected were relocated in the Bay Area; others have been placed on a surplus list submitted to the U.S. Army Air Defense Command. The surplus manpower is subject to reassignment within the Air Defense Command system.

The reorganization is a general return to the regimental type system of operation. The Group Headquarters and Headquarters Battery now performs all administrative, logistical and motor maintenance functions that were previously performed by battalion headquarters and headquarters batteries. Each battalion headquarters battery lost 36 spaces and Group gained six spaces.

A 13-member command group will continue to supervise the operation and training of the firing batteries at battalion level.

The personnel sections of the 9th and 740th have been moved to Group headquarters; the 441st will remain in the East Bay Area. All incoming personnel will be assigned by Group to subordinate units.

The 9th and 740th supply sections have been dissolved and consolidated into the group supply section located at the Presidio. The 441st supply section will operate as a sub-activity of the Group S-4 and supply East Bay units from its Oakland Army Terminal location.

Battalion intelligence officers and sections have been eliminated.

Sgt's Quick Thinking Averts Fire Disaster

"It wasn't anything—we're supposed to be able to act in an emergency," says Sgt. Manuel Perez, Headquarters Company, Sixth U.S. Army, of his actions early Tuesday morning.

But for dozens of people able to flee their flaming apartment building after being aroused from their slumber by Sergeant Perez, the actions were "indeed something!"

Walking home to his barracks about 0130 Sergeant Perez noticed smoke billowing out from the basement of a Broderick Street dwelling about two blocks from the Presidio's Lombard Gate. He leaped into action as flame burst out from the smoke.

He spotted a youth by a fire alarm and barked an order to break the glass and pull the chain. Then he ran in the door of the building on fire and started pounding on doors in the smoke-filled hall.

"I didn't shout 'fire,' because I saw that happen once in Europe and four people were hurt in the panic," explains Sergeant Perez who instead knocked on each door and explained quietly that there was a fire and they should get out. "The smoke was the worst; I got down to the end of that first hall and had trouble getting back out again."

After waking all in the first building, Sergeant Perez went into both the adjoining buildings and wakened the occupants there. Except for helping one

6-Mo. Trainees Being Accepted, Army Announces

Washington (AFPS)—The Army has resumed reserve enlistments of six-month trainees on a "limited quota" basis.

Recruiting for the program was suspended on 14 May due to the excessive number volunteering for the six-month training.

To keep within strength and budgetary ceilings, enlistments of young men without prior military service will be held to a total of 11,900 through next 30 December. Plans beyond that date will be announced later.

The Army said enlistments will be reopened to men 17 to 26 years of age, with the majority of allocations going to those between 17 and 18½ years old under the Reserve Forces Act of 1955.

About 2,000 will be accepted monthly under ZI Army quotas, with 6,300 men 17 to 18½ and 2,600 between 18½ and 26 years old being signed up for immediate six-month enlistments.

Some 3,000 youths also will be granted deferments to complete high school, the Army said.

Name Schrader Sixth U.S. Army Comptroller

Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Sixth U. S. Army Commander, has named Colonel Curtis A. Schrader Comptroller of the Sixth Army area.

Graduated from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point in 1932, Colonel Schrader came to the Presidio from a three-year assignment as Comptroller of the Academy.

During his 25 years of service the colonel has served as Comptroller of USA Caribbean in Panama and 14th Corps Finance Officer in the Southwest Pacific during World War II.

Colonel Schrader was graduated from the Industrial College of the Armed Forces, Economic Mobilization Course, Field Artillery Regular Course and the Finance School. He was granted an MBA from Harvard University in 1948.

The Sixth Army Comptroller holds the Bronze Star Medal and the Commendation Ribbon.

Accompanied to the Presidio by his wife and daughter, Colonel Schrader also has a son who will be reporting to the Army next week as a second lieutenant in the Artillery Reserve after being graduated from Washington and Jefferson College in Washington, Pa., in June.

at a Monday morning fire on Broderick Street near the Presidio can be attributed to quick action by Sgt. Manuel Perez, Hq. Co., Sixth U. S. Army. On his way back to his Presidio barracks Sergeant Perez spotted smoke and quickly ran through the apartment building pounding on doors to wake the slumbering tenants. A barking dog was also credited with waking some of the people in the burning building.

Army Salts Save Three In Dramatic Sea Rescue

Two men and a woman, clinging to inner tubes by their overturned sailboat, were picked up by a U.S. Army T-boat off Angel Island Saturday. A third man made his way to the rocks on the island and was picked up by an ambulance from D Battery, 9th AAA.

One of the men was in "bad shape" when rescued, according to the T-boat skipper, Sfc. Elvin Goforth, Post Transportation Harbor Craft Detachment. "He collapsed on the deck as soon as we hauled him aboard. He couldn't swim and had bad cramps."

The crew members gave the three hot coffee and blankets, notified the Coast Guard and then put in to the Angel Island boat landing. Later the T-boat took the four boaters to Fort Baker, where an ambulance was waiting to take them to Letterman Army Hospital for a check up. The Coast Guard towed the sail boat to Tiburon.

Other members of the T-boat crew participating in the rescue were M/Sgt. Kenneth C. Kraemer, Sgt. Peter J. Montano and Sp2 LeRoy F. Ducharme.

"It wasn't anything special," said Sergeant Goforth, "two or three times a month we get an emergency of one kind or another."

Parade Plaque Winner

Headquarters Company, USA Garrison, was awarded the plaque for the best marching unit in the 5 July parade. M/Sgt. John E. McConnell, who acted as Company Commander, accepted the plaque.

The award was presented by M/Sgt. Michael Bray, Commander of Troops for the day.

Water—Friend or Foe?

Water—the recreational haven in many areas of the United States—took 174 lives during the four-day Fourth of July weekend, according to Safety officials. Eight of these persons were drowned in California.

Ten common sense safety tips for swimmers and boaters have been released by the American Red Cross to defend against this danger, second only to the automobile death toll last weekend.

● The first three rules are to learn to swim, swim with or near another person and swim in a safe place—the presence of life guards usually indicates the area is safe for swimming.

● Swimmers also are warned to know the area. Before diving, make sure the water is deep enough and that it is not hiding objects such as submerged rocks. Respect the water and know your limitations.

● Use discretion—don't swim right after eating or when overheated or overtired. Remain calm in case of trouble; assume a face up floating position, keep your hands under water and slowly move your hands and feet.

● Boaters should carry safety equipment in their craft. When riding in a small craft, it is usually wise to wear a life vest or to attach a seat cushion life preserver to your body with a line.

Family Days Effective Program

My most conservative estimator says that some 11,000 people visited the Presidio, its subposts and local Nike sites over the long Fourth of July weekend. 9600 of this approximation was tabulated at the Presidio proper. Proof indeed that many were encouraged to avoid the crowded, death-plagued highways and enjoy a saner and happier Independence Day. The National Safety Council, San Francisco and the Army can take a bow for a welltimed and effective approach toward diminishing the staggering American accident toll.

A Hint To The Wise

Dog Days and the Summer Buckup (formerly Spring) are upon us. Uniform wearing and military courtesy will be primary command interests during the next few months and officer and enlisted personnel will be taken to task for failure in any of these areas: Proper wearing of the uniform with decorations, including all marksmanship awards; consistently neat personal appearance; proper attention to every detail of standard military courtesy; take heed and stay out of the command doghouse.

Making Them Feel At Home

Many Reserve and National Guard personnel are now on temporary active duty at the Presidio. Every individual, military and civilian, has a clearly defined command imperative—make them feel at home! A great deal of our modern defense planning is anchored on the steadfast belief that in times of national crisis it will be a well trained and dedicated Reserve that provides the margin of victory. To give purpose and scope to any part-time service, the individual must have a feeling of belonging, of being a real part of a bigger picture. This cannot be accomplished by directive—it can be accomplished by an individual effort on the part of each of us to demonstrate courtesy and genuine interest in helping these part-time soldiers feel they are a real and important part of the greatest Army in the world.

woman wake two of her children, he didn't stop to help individuals. "I was too busy hurrying to wake everybody up."

The fire department arrived 10 or 15 minutes after the alarm had been set. It is doubtful that the $15,000 fire would have been casualty-free if a Presidio sergeant hadn't "acted in an emergency."

Liberty's Legacies

Democratic Process Stirs Panamanian

When Pvt. Moises Z. Heres, 163rd MP Company, gets out of the Army he's going to attend college and work for a few years in the United States, and then he's going back to his home in Panama.

Moises isn't going to leave the United States because he's unhappy here. Rather, it's because he's seen things and liked things here that he's impatient to get home. Someday he plans to go into politics with the hopes of helping to raise the Panama standard of living and standard of government to be more like that of the United States.

Although his mother is Egyptian and his father Israeli, Moises was born and grew up in Panama. He came to the United States and attended high school in Brooklyn. Then after attending a junior college in the Canal Zone he returned to New York to work and attend night school. He was drafted before he could finish his education.

The best thing about Panama is the people, according to Moises. "They are a very sociable, kind, humble people—and very friendly.

Likes U.S. Democracy

Pvt. Moises Z. Heres

They are happy; during the holidays they dance and sing in the streets."

There are just three kinds of people in Panama—poor, middle class, and rich. Although Panama is a democracy, and proud of that fact, the rich class of people seem to hold all the governmental positions and political offices.

"There are a lot of corrupt people in the government who are not doing any good," says Moises, who goes on to explain that thing "are not as bad as they were." He believes that the American influence exerts a positive force on the Panama government.

He would like to take the ideas he has formed in the United States and put them to use in Panama. "I think I'm going to have a very hard time, but I would like to see a lot of changes. We need road improvement, rural education and more hospitals.

"Many Indians who are sick can't make it to the hospitals," says Moises, who explains that in Panama, the jungle, home of the San Blas Indians, begins as soon as civilization stops. "Many of these Indians have never seen a white person."

Moises remembers the attempted revolution of 1955 when Panama's president, Jose Cantera Ramon was murdered. He thinks the president was killed by reactionary forces who resented the social reforms that were then being attempted by the government.

Modern Horse is straddled by young visitors to Battery B, 740th AAA Missile Battalion. The children learned about the Nike while touring the Fort Scott site during last week's Family Days program. Capt. Albert J. McClure, commander of the battery, hosted the tours.

'Family Days' Program Draws Record Crowd

Some 9600 persons took advantage of the planned tours of Old Fort Point and Nike sites at Fort Scott and Fort Funston over the four-day Fourth of July weekend, according to Capt. Edward P. Endres, Sixth U.S. Army Office of Information Activities.

The tours along with opening the Presidio picnic grounds over the weekend comprised part of the local participation in the National Safety Council sponsored Family Days. A retreat parade and performances by the Sixth U.S. Army Band and the Sixth U.S. Army Pipe Band were also on the schedule.

According to the NSC office, only one traffic fatality occurred in San Francisco over the four days. This was favorably compared to one traffic death over the last long Fourth of July weekend in 1950 when traffic was lighter in the city.

National statistics released last Sunday night listed 384 persons had died in traffic accidents during the holiday; 49 of these occurred in San Francisco.

Army Pistol Team Wins Another

Ft. Benning, Ga.—The U.S. Army Pistol team added another major tournament championship to its record as a 12-man Army delegation swept 20 of 23 scheduled events in the 18th Annual Maryland State Pistol Matches, 21-23 June, at Sparrows Point, Md.

Other shooting news from the June Marksmanship News Letter, Fort Benning, Ga., is as follows:

In the Maryland match the four-man U.S. Army "Grey" team won the .22 caliber team title by posting an 1177 total, just one point from the National record set in March by the U.S. Army "Blue" team during the Flamingo Open at Coral Gables.

At the same tournament the U.S. Army "Blue" took the .38 caliber team championship and top honors in the .45 caliber match, as the four-man squads fired an 1156 score in the service pistol event, seven points higher than the National Match record, and 1131 score out of a possible 1200 points in the Center Fire team match.

At the recently concluded All-Army Rifle and Pistol Matches at Fort Benning one spectacular achievement that stands out from the many fine performances came from a U.S. Army Rifle Team coach, M/Sgt. Jacob Svela, USA AMU. This shooter, who has 20 years of competitive experience behind him, posted a record shattering 248-29V score over the National Match Course. Sergeant Svela's total was two points and 10Vs higher than any previous service rifle score recorded for the four-stage match.

One Sixth U.S. Army soldier, M/Sgt. William D. Peery, made a special name for himself in the long distance firing when he posted a 149-16V score to out-V Maj. Alfred D. Dunn, USA AMU, by 2-Vs in the 200-600 yard slow fire match.

The Army's top pistol champion, M/Sgt. Joe Benner, broke a pair of Army records on his way to individual championship. He posted an 888, .22 caliber aggregate, and a 297, .22 caliber National Match Course score, to top Lt. Col. William A. Hancock's 884 in 1956 and a 295 NMC score fired by Lt. Col. Thomas J. Sharpe in 1954. Sergeant Benner holds the National Open record for the .22 caliber aggregate with an 893 total out of a possible 900 points.

The Sixth U.S. Army "Gold" squad broke the Third Army's grip on the team matches by taking the important .45 Caliber Team Championship with an 1113 score, just three points under the Army record. Members of the Sixth U.S. Army team included M/Sgt. John J. Davis, CWO Victor E. Maass, M/Sgt. James L. Wade and Pfc. Fred A. Grant.

Sfc. L. D. Wolford and Lt. George Beckwith, both of Sixth Army, attended a six-hour block of instruction on the subject of glass-bedding the M-1 rifle during the 1957 U.S. Army Rifle and Pistol Championships. Representatives of each of the teams attended the instruction.

Receiving Medal in recognition of his World War II service with the 30th Infantry Regiment in Germany is Sfc. Joe Ventura, now assigned to the Mobile Food Service Team, Sixth Army Quartermaster. Sergeant Ventura, who received the award from Col. Thomas F. Biennu, was awarded the Bronze Star Medal. The presentation was made at last week's award and decoration ceremony.

"Lovers' Lane" tree planted 70 years ago was revisited during last week's "Family Days" open house by Mrs. Josephine Hill (left) and Mrs. Elizabeth Van Liew. The tree, planted by the two ladies at the Presidio when they were school children, was pointed out to Pvt. Charles R. Goins, Headquarters Company, Sixth U. S. Army.

Little Old Ladies: 'Their Tree!'

Two charming San Francisco ladies, both well past the three score and ten mark, took advantage of last week-end's Family Days to tour the Presidio and renew memories of their youth.

The ladies, Mrs. Josephine Hill and Mrs. Elizabeth Van Liew, found they had much in common insofar as the Presidio was concerned, even though they had not met before their visit.

Both had lived as children near the Post and had played in its fields. Mrs. Hill, who was employed as a gardener at the Presidio during World War II, supervised the building of some of the rock gardens and other landscaped areas now on Post.

Both ladies recalled that as elementary school pupils more than 70 years ago, they had planted pine seedlings along "Lovers' Lane" which was then a dirt path leading into the Presidio from the Presidio Avenue gate. The trees today are nearly two feet in diameter.

When asked what prompted their visit at this time, Mrs. Van Liew confessed that she was "homesick" after attending the play "No Time For Sergeants." Mrs. Hill said she had "read about the tour in the paper."

The people you meet when on furlough . . . and the things you hear . . . the places you see . . . They blend, particularly if you choose to be a solitary wanderer, to form a small lovely symphony which reunites you with the world at large and reaffirms a half-forgotten truth . . . that even though you are a soldier, you are never alien . . . never alone . . . never far removed from the tapestry that shapes your civilian brother's way of life!

It is good to be a soldier on Leave . . . for then your ear is doubly alert to the sights and sounds uncommon to daily life on a military reservation . . . your mind sharp to the joys and sorrows of an outer world temporarily your own.

Had you been a soldier vacation-bound from the Presidio last week . . . and, depending on what train you took . . . what steamship you traveled on . . . what quiet lake you circled, here are some of the incidents which would have undoubtedly spotlighted some of your days.

If you were having breakfast in the restaurant at San Francisco International Airport one morning last week, you would meet a woman and a strikingly pretty girl . . . They were carrying several pieces of luggage, and the girl bore a sword in a leather scabbard.

Perhaps because you were sitting close by, and the travelers sensed some hint of curiosity in your glance, they introduced themselves, and you, in turn told them that you were a soldier from the Presidio.

Then . . . with the sword held by the girl becoming the handclasp which established your common heritage, you would have learned that they were the widow and the daughter of a West Point officer who had once served as a corporal at the Presidio.

The colonel went to Korea with his regiment in 1950, leaving his wife, son and daughter in Washington. . . . Less than a year later, the American Graves Registration sent home his sword and his Cavalry boots.

"He was too young to die," his widow said, "but who am I to say?"

Meanwhile, the girl graduated from college and went to work for the United States Embassy in Athens, Greece. . . . The boy became a military officer assigned to duty in Hawaii. And now . . . he was about to be married to a Navy nurse in the Philippines. The girl had traveled half across the world to join her mother for the journey there . . . bringing her father's sword to her brother's wedding . . . representing the absent guest.

You might have been on the Oakland ferry beginning your furlough to Canada . . . when, from beside you came the anguished voice of an old man exclaiming to his companion, "don't say another thing about that little bird to me, Margaret! I just left the men's room where I had my last cry over him. He's gone, so let's try and be happy without him!"

Or you might well have been on the Canadian Pacific streamliner circling Mount Hood, Oregon. Among the passengers you would have seen a man, a woman and a small girl. . . . The woman wore the sort of clothing that indicates wealth and an exalted way of life. The man was reading the New York Times. The child seemed bored and in need of attention. . . . Suddenly she took a stance of defiance toward the man and woman. "Do you know something," she demanded of all and sundry, "I am the only person in my whole family who doesn't wet the bed!"

To the Rockies you traveled in a 24-car train which at one point made such a complete circle 'round a high curve that the engineer was able to demonstrate to you how easily he could reach out and shake hands with the conductor on the last car. . . . And in Banff you met a Jesuit priest who had just completed a journey of 500 miles . . . to visit a child dying of leukemia, because she had heard his voice on the radio and wanted to see for herself whether he was a boy or an old man. . . . And you learned later that on the return journey he was fasting . . . because he didn't have enough money left with which to buy a meal.

In the Rockies, you met and talked with people from all corners of the world . . . from South Africa and Norway . . . from Scotland, Ireland and India . . . from your own America.

You walked in mountain snow three feet deep . . . near Lake Louise where three glaciers meet and melt to feed one of the world's most lovely water holes. . . . You watched a herd of wild buffalo grazing while a female in the flock bore her calf under a Canadian spruce tree. . . . You watched a small black bear go fishing in the lake . . . or an enormous deer make a dawn raid on a vegetable garden.

You ate Canadian wheat bread, hot buttered, with honey . . . home-cured ham and the world's best bacon. . . . Traveled over the new trans-Canada highway which is costing a million-a-mile to build . . . train-paced the mighty Columbia river for 900 miles, watching the salmon leap in its shallows . . . lingered in a world of emerald lakes and towering mountains.

On the steamer Princess Pat . . . homeward bound . . . you began to realize that rather than limiting your way of life, your military uniform is part of the universal passport to courtesy and to beauty . . . that the things you saw and heard would fill a book . . . if you ever had time to write it. . . . And you knew quite definitely . . . that it is good to be a soldier . . . to be a soldier on furlough, coming home to the Presidio.

Special Awards Due For Volunteer Help

A birthday celebration marking the 8th anniversary of the founding of the Presidio Service Club takes place this Sunday at 2000 hours.

Major Gen. John J. Binns, Chief of Staff, Sixth U.S. Army, and Col. Charles G. Rau, Post Commander, will present addresses highlighting the social and recreational achievements of the Service Club since it first opened its doors in 1949.

General Mark Clark, former Commanding General of the Sixth U. S. Army, an ardent champion of the social requirements of the garrison soldier, was instrumental in establishing the building of the club, present site of which was formerly a eucalyptus grove overlooking the parade ground.

The club exterior is of Spanish design, conforming with the original Presidio architecture. The interior is contemporary, boasting maple floors, indirect lighting and hot water heating.

Posts, camps and stations now deactivated contributed the furniture for the Presidio Service Club, cutting the cost of the building to a minimum.

Since the club was officially opened to servicemen and women, more than 900,000 enlisted personnel and their guests have availed of its social and recreational facilities.

Highlights marking the history of the club includes its being chosen the headquarters for officers signing the Tri-partite Pact between the United States, New Zealand and Australia, in 1951.

During 1951 also, the Japanese Non-Aggression Pact was signed in the main club lobby, when John Foster Dulles, Dean Acheson, Shigeru Yoshida and the ministers of New Zealand and Australia presided at the club.

Later, the eldest son of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek and ranking officers of the Chinese Nationalist Army were interviewed there for nation-wide press and radio.

In September 1953, some eight Army transports docked at Fort Mason with Korean Prisoners of

Pearl Harbor Lease

The Senate approved the leasing of Pearl Harbor as a base for the United States Navy in 1887.

War. The American soldiers were dinner guests at the club where they were interviewed by representatives of all major news services.

The Presidio Service Club has won two awards in the field of expert programming toward the well-being of military men and women in the Western area.

Sunday's anniversary program at the club includes the awarding of honor citations to enlisted members who have volunteered their services toward advancement of the club's over-all purpose.

The awards ceremony will be followed by a special performance by the Braden Follies group, long active and honored as a contributing factor in top soldier entertainment here.

Following the anniversary cake cutting at the club there will be refreshments for all guests.

Participants in the anniversary show which features singers, dancers, variety players and musicians, will be The Masonettes, Bill McCubbin, Louis Silva group, Elsi Norwood, Terry and Penny Worth, The Apostolis Brothers, Lindsay Ouelette, Nancy Jo Wiley, Daisy Trapotis and Joyce Birelli.

Presidio Pair Tops In Model Plane Test

The Presidio's two model airplane aces, Pfc. Morris Howland and Sp2 Ronald F. Crawford, came home from the "Top Hat" West Coast Invitational All-Service Model Airplane Championships this week with an impressive string of victories and sure-positions on the Sixth U. S. Army model airplane team.

Pfc. Howland grabbed both Top Hat and Sixth U. S. Army first place trophies for the "Control Line Precision Acrobatic Event." Sp2 Crawford won a Sixth U. S. Army first in the "1/2 A Speed Event" and a third in "Combat" class. He also picked up a fifth in the "1/2 A Speed Event for Top Hat."

Although he's been flying model airplanes for many years, this was the first real competition that Sp2 Crawford had entered.

Pfc. Howland, who has been competing for years in nearly every field of model competition, is rated as number two man on the 10-member Sixth U. S. Army team which will see action at Fort Lewis, 21-25 August in the 1957 All-Army Model Airplane Meet. He plans to have a new, fast "combat" plane ready for the meet.

C. T. Sena, Staff Crafts Director for Sixth U. S. Army, rated the San Bernardino competition as "a very successful meet with keen competition." He indicated that this is only the beginning and hopes "to have future successful meets."

Band Show Set

"The Fort Point March" by CWO Louis Ferraro, Sixth U. S. Army Band Director, will be featured on the band's radio show at 1815 hours, Sunday, over KGO.

The balance of the program includes "Thunder and Blazes," "Bombasto March," and "American Legion."

Best Acts Will Vie At Solano Fair

Three Fort Ord acts will compete against the best Navy and Air Force talent tonight in an Armed Forces entertainment competition scheduled at the Solano County Fair. The Fort Ord entertainers were selected to represent the Army Monday evening.

Winning the top three places among the nine entrants in the Army contest were the Rigoletto Quartette; Sp3 James J. Young, Samoan fire dancer; and Sp3 Joe Jones, piano soloist. The quartette was among the Sixth U. S. Army entrants in the recent all-Army Entertainment Contest.

Competing from the Presidio were a Western band composed of Pfc. Jim Stafford, Pfc. Buster Dozer, Pfc. Chuck Walker, and Sp2 Raymond Cummings; Sp3 Herb Nesmith, Spanish guitarist; and Pvt. Frances Black, vocal soloist.

The Army topped the other three services in the past two contests.

Like To Go To Jail?

A conducted tour of the California State Prison at San Quentin is planned by the Service Club for Saturday, 20 July.

Enlisted men interested in going on tour of one of the nation's largest prisons are asked to sign up at the Presidio Service Club. If there are enough signatures to warrant the trip, the tour will leave from the club at noon, Sunday.

Club Elects New Governors Board At Annual Meet

Three re-elected and four newly elected officers were named to the Board of Governors of the Presidio Officers' Open Mess at last week's election.

Col. John G. Ondrick and Col. Thomas F. Bienvenu were re-elected to serve their second one-year terms. Maj. Emily Miller, Capt. Richard M. Anderson, Capt. George J. Reuss and 1st Lt. Jack P. Carter are new members of the Board.

Col. Karol B. Kozlowski (USA Ret.) was re-elected to represent the club's associate membership.

21st Engs. Axe First Foo In Post Softball Tests

The Post Softball Playoffs got off to a flying start this week as the 21st Engineers, behind the superlative pitching of Nick Themely, toppled A Btry., 9th AAA, by the score of 6-2.

The unbeatable Themely allowed only two hits and struck out fifteen batters. Julian and Themely were top hitters for their team with two hits apiece. Smith, of A Btry., came through with a triple.

In one of the top games this week, the 21st Engineers will face Co. A, USA Garrison, who drew a bye in the first round, thus automatically advancing to the quarter-finals.

D Btry., 9th AAA, plays Hq., 30th Engineers, in the other contest. Hq. Co., Sixth U. S. Army, drew a bye and will play the winner of the above game.

Since this is a double elimination tournament, a team must lose twice before being disqualified.

Red Cross Sets Summer Swim Program At LAH

As part of the Red Cross annual free summer swim program, the LAH pool will offer swim classes on weekdays from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. daily. The program began last Monday and will extend through 30 August.

These classes cover all levels of swim skills from beginners to advanced swimmers. Classes are offered in five two week sessions each consisting of ten 30 minute lessons.

In addition to classes covering all levels of swim skills, two two-week long lifesaving classes will be taught. These will take place on 22 July through 2 August, and 19 August through 30 August.

The Red Cross estimates that some 1,000 youngsters will have received free swim lessons in the LAH pool by the end of the summer.

Star Pitcher Nick Themely of the 21st Engineers, will see plenty of action in upcoming softball playoffs. Themely has pitched two no-hitters this year and hurled a nifty one-hitter against the 24 Hundred Club of the City A League.

Children of military personnel are welcomed to sign up for the lessons by dropping a post card to Red Cross at 1625 Van Ness. Post card invitations will be sent to them telling them the date of the session to which they have been assigned, and the time of the class.

Some 338 children of military personnel stationed at the Presidio and at Letterman Army Hospital have already signed up for the program.

Local Keglers Dump Famous Kristof Team

Col. Leland D. Esh and M/Sgt. Robert Wilmouth scored a stunning upset last Friday night as they defeated the nationally renowned husband and wife bowling team, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kristof, by the score of 2-0.

The top Mr. and Mrs. team, who have won many national honors in their sport, staged an exhibition match last Friday at the Main Bowling Alley against the two popular Presidio bowlers.

At first it looked as if the two visitors would run away with the match as Mrs. Kristof started like a house of fire by getting four straight strikes. Things cooled off considerably after that and the two Presidio bowlers went on to register the stunning upset.

High point man for the evening was Col. Esh with 224.

19th Win

Behind the fine pitching of Bob Clark, the 740th AAA NIKE baseball team won their nineteenth game as they defeated Fort Bragg by the score of 6-1. Clark allowed only one hit and did not walk a single man.

Pacing the attack for the locals was Hubie Brown with three hits for 5 times at bat. The 740th played good defensive ball as they committed but one error against Fort Bragg's four.

So Solly!

In last week's edition, Sfc. Billy Horrell's name was omitted from the group picture of the Braves baseball team of the Pony League. He is the manager of the front-running Braves.

Kops Four-Time 46th

The classy Deuces keep on winning as they please in the Bay Bowling League. Last week, they beat the 30th AAA by the score of 3-1. Kiersztian of the winners was top man with 554-189. Pacing the loser's attack was Butler with 495-180.

The last place 740th AAA scored one of the major upsets of the bowling season by beating the second place Hq. Co., 6th US Army, by the count of 3-1. Schweikhard of the AAA outfit was high man for his team with 471-179, while Stabile was tops for Hq. Co. with 496-181.

The hot 56th MRU bowlers, who are only one game away from second place, beat the Officers' Mess 3-1. Pacing the MRU attack was Wehrheim with 489-199. Brunn was best for the losers with 471-176.

The hot and cold Triple Aces, who were in second place only a few weeks ago, tied the 99ers 2-2. High man for the Aces was Culuris with 505-176. Heidman was top man for the 99ers with 476-168.

In the MRU-Officers' Mess series, there were a total of 49 splits. Some of the hard-to-get splits were picked up by Del Wehrheim of the MRU outfit who knocked pins 4-7-9 and 10 over on his second try; by Charles Mahon of the Officers' Mess who spilled 6 and 7 on the second shot; and by Leo Pilachowski of the MRU and Karl

Beats Shanks Easily; Doubles Title Defaulted

Robert C. Bacon redeemed himself last week by capturing the singles tennis crown from James L. Shanks in straight sets, 6-1 and 6-3.

Bacon, who had lost to Shanks a week earlier, beat his competitor in convincing fashion, as his powerful serves and smashes proved too hot to handle.

Bacon is now the No. 1 man on the Post Tennis team, which will compete in the Sixth Army Finals at Fort Ord on 4-8 August.

The scheduled doubles final match between Ronald E. Crawford-Peter L. Shea and Col. Robert Rhine-Col. Willett Ware was cancelled due to a foot injury suffered by Col. Rhine. Crawford and Shea thus won by forfeit.

In the women's open singles, Julian Kite plays Sylvia Bernardini in the finals. The first set was played last Tuesday and it went 16 games before Bernardini took the set 9-7. The other set will be played next week.

Behind Bacon on the Post Tennis team are Shanks, Crawford and Shea in that order. Interested personnel may challenge any of the players for a spot on the team. In a match this week, Captain Frank W. Sample, newly assigned officer to the Presidio who participated in the inter-service tennis finals in Washington, D. C., last year, challenges the fourth seeded Shea.

Distaff Golf Star

Lt. Saralea Storts qualified for the Presidio Golf team with a 93. She will enter the Sixth Army Tournament to be held here on 5-9 August.

Feller Still Tops

Bob Feller, one time pitcher for the Cleveland Indians, still holds the modern major league strikeout record of 18 for a 9-inning game.

Skeet Meet Set

The Sixth Army Skeet Meet will be held on 25-26 July between 0900 and 1400 hours at the Post Skeet range. All personnel and civilians are invited to attend.

Hq. Team Tops Mixed Bowling League Play

Bowlers from Headquarters, Sixth US Army Recruiting Service, captured top honors in the recently completed Special Service Mixed Bowling League, with 90½ wins against 41½ losses. They also took first and second high series and high game.

Sgt. First Class Glenn Bolton led the team and league with a high game of 269 and maintained an average of 176 for 90 games. He also placed second in league high series to his teammate Sgt. Toshiki Sakurada's 660 with 643.

Other members of the winning team were M/Sgt. Carlton Burmeister, Mrs. Burmeister and Mrs. Bolton.

Hq. Co., Sixth US Army, and the 21st Engineers split their series, 2-2. Alexander with 541-220 was best for the Hq. Co. bowlers, while McDonald was tops for the Engineers with 507-186.

Braves Still Unbeaten; Trounce Pirates 12-5

The Braves won their ninth and tenth straight games as they continue to remain undefeated in Pony League play. Last week they walloped the second place Pirates by the score of 12-5. Dale Ruffin was credited with the win. Lee Saunders, relieved in the last few innings by Tommy Mlakar, was the losing pitcher.

On Saturday, in a very tight pitching game, the Braves beat the Tigers by the count of 7-4. Bobbie Clark was the winning pitcher, allowing only three hits. Stan Adelson of the Tigers got two of the three hits. Marv Lupo of the Braves collected half of his team's four hits.

In the second game, the Pirates edged the Dodgers, 13-10. Mlakar was the winning pitcher. Tom Stewart of the Pirates smacked two home runs to drive in four runs. Pitcher Butch Riggs of the Dodgers was credited with the loss. Top hitter for the Dodgers was Tom Sparks with two hits.

This Saturday the Pirates and the Tigers tangle in a makeup game. This will be the last game of the first half of play. Play resumes on 30 July.

Sgt. Long, manager of the Dodgers, is being transferred and the team is in desperate need of a new replacement. Coaches are also urgently needed for some of the other teams. Interested personnel please contact Mr. George McLaughlin at the Sports Office, Ext. 3968.

Little Leaguers Will Vie In District Tournament

The Golden Gate Little League, which is made up of eight teams consisting of young boys whose parents are stationed at the Presidio, LAH, and at other Presidio subposts, will enter an all-star team in the District Tournament to be held on 25 July.

The all-star team will be managed by M/Sgt. Mullender and assisted by M/Sgts. James W. McKrell and Sheldon H. Gouker.

If the Presidio team is successful, they will go on to the District Playoffs in Marin County in the latter part of July. If they get by this, they will journey to Sacramento for the Section Playoffs on 1, 2, and 3 August.

The State Championship Play-off will be held in Santa Monica on 8, 9, and 10 August. The state champions will then participate in the Little League World Series at Williamsport, Virginia, on 23 and 24 August.

Harris Belts Four More Home Runs

Peggy Harris of the Presidio WACs went on another home run barrage this week as she belted four home runs to lead her team to a lopsided 29-1 decision over the visiting Alameda Air Station Waves. This marked her seventh home run in her last ten times at bat!

Rosemary Weber also had a lot to do with her team's win as she pitched a nifty no-hitter and smacked one home run. Nina Hefner also collected a home run for the WACs. In total, the locals got nineteen hits.

The Waves tallied their only run as a result of a wild pitch by Weber.

The high-flying WACs take on the Hamilton Air Force WAFs this week in an important league game. Both teams are tied for first place with a 2 and 0 record.

Toreros Win Pair; Lose To Top Rated Lagers

The Presidio Torero baseball team returned from their trip with two more victories added to their string.

They defeated the Oroville Olives of Northern California by the score of 5-3, and then dumped the Louis Stores by an 8-6 count. The Oroville contest featured a fine ninth-inning comeback by the Toreros.

Trailing 3 to 1 going into the last inning, the Presidio men put together a walk and four consecutive base hits for four runs.

Fred Crissey started for the locals but was relieved in the seventh inning by Bob Clark who turned in a fine relief job to get credit for the win.

Charlie Gritts, the Torero centerfielder, again led his team in hitting with two singles in three trips at bat. He is currently leading the Presidio batters with a torrid .380 batting average while continuing to play his usual stellar game in the field.

Last Saturday the Toreros played their first game in the Oakland Tribune Tournament, which features some outstanding semi-pro clubs around the Bay Area. They lost in the first round of play to the top seeded Lucky Lager team by the score of 7-0.

The Lager men got five runs on five hits off starter Roger Collins to coast easily to their win. Two costly errors by the Toreros also aided their cause.

The Presidio team, however, bounced back in the second round to defeat a very strong Louis Stores team by the score of 8-6.

Kenny Carroll, Dick Shinnick and Roger Collins each belted over the wall home runs to lead their team in hitting. Each of the Torero starting nine, however, collected at least one hit as the team garnered a total of 13 hits.

Shinnick went all the way for the locals to register his tenth victory of the season.

The Toreros continue their play in the double elimination tourney this Saturday afternoon in Alameda against a team not yet selected.

LAH Fisherman patients display well over 100 pounds of salmon caught on a day's deep sea fishing trip with Sp3 Del Medford (upper right) of Letterman Hospital Special Services. Each Wednesday the LAH patients have the opportunity to go on a free fishing trip—one of the many activities planned for their entertainment. The fishermen are, from the left, front row: Sfc. J. Otani, Pfc. Joe Mayfield, Maj. Donald Brown; back row: Sp3 Joe Fink, Ray Hansen (boat captain), Sfc. Richard Lambert and Sp3 Medford.

LAH Patients Go Fishing

When the 40 pounders are snapping, does deep sea fishing appeal to you? Do you like to see the pro games—football, basketball, baseball? Can you be enticed to eat out at a night club if it's free?

There's one young soldier on Post who does all these things all the time, because it's his job.

Sp3 Del Medford as "Man Friday" for Letterman Hospital Special Services has the job of planning interesting things for LAH patients to do. And as chaperon he has to take full part in the activities, too.

But even fun can be a grind, says Del, who sometimes goes through a two-day schedule like this:

Up at 0400 to start preparations for deep sea fishing trip which will end at 1730. At 1800 start setting up lights for visiting water follies group. Finish operating lights at 2230. Bed at 2330. Next morning up at 0530, drive to airport, and pick up visiting volleyball team. Back to hospital and gather up group to go trout fishing. Back from fishing 1730, then collect group to go to Boston Celtics game. Back to hospital at 2300; home at 2330. Whew!

But don't ask Del if he wants to trade jobs because early mornings, late nights and weekends don't keep him from being completely thrilled with his job. "I'd probably be doing those kind of things anyway, when I could afford it," he says.

One of the biggest annual events of the LAH Special Service program in which Del takes part is the annual trip to Chester, Calif. LAH patients are flown to this northern California lake town by the U.S.

Air Force. Once the patients arrive they are invited, in twos and threes, right into the private homes of the Chester townspeople. All is free—eat, drink, lodging. And the soldier-patients can do anything they want, fishing, hunting, swimming, boating.

Another of Del's big jobs is collecting donations to LAH from San Franciscans. He says he never turns down a call which may bring pledges of everything from TV sets to magazines.

Although he has a job where fun almost seems like work, Del enjoys every minute of it. And he goes out of his way to make sure as many patients as possible can enjoy as much as possible. Often times he will go to the extra effort to take a wheel chair patient with him deep sea fishing. "They really have a ball," he reports.

Named Post S1
Lt. Col. G. W. Allison

New Officer For Presidio Staff Slot

Lieutenant Colonel Grant W. Allison was appointed Post S1 by Colonel Charles G. Rau, Post Commander, this week. Along with Colonel Allison's appointment the Post Commander announced that the S1 and Adjutant sections had been designated separate entities.

A veteran of nearly 17 years of active service, Colonel Allison completed a tour with the 7th Division Artillery, AFCE, before his Presidio assignment. He served as Field Artillery Battalion Commander and Division Artillery S3.

The colonel's overseas assignments include Alaska, the European Theater of Operations in 1945, and Austria. He holds the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster.

Smith Vice Hettrick As 46th Ordnance CO

Colonel B. D. Mooring, Sixth U. S. Army Ordnance Chief, has named Major Samuel B. Smith the Commanding Officer of the 46th Ordnance Group. Major Smith succeeds Col. Albert Hettrich, who retired last month.

A veteran of more than 19 years of active Army service, the major has served as Material Officer of the 46th since April 1956.

The new 46th CO entered the Army in November 1937 as a private. Five years later he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Ordnance Corps. Major Smith's Ordnance assignments include varied phases such as shop clerk and armament platoon leader.

The major served in Panama from July 1939 to July 1942. During World War II he was an Ordnance Supply Officer in the Philippine Islands. In October 1943 he began a 40-month tour with the Tokyo Ordnance Depot and in November 1954 received a 16-month assignment in Korea.

Before entering the Army Major Smith served with the California State Guard in Pomona for six years.

Transfers Due Three In Army PM Section

Three Sixth U. S. Army Provost Marshal Section officers are scheduled to leave the Presidio this month for new assignments.

Completing five years of service with the section is Lt. Col. John P. McKenna, Chief of the Operations, Plans and Training Division. Colonel McKenna's new assignment is in Munich, Germany.

Major Charles F. Goslee, who has been with the section since last July, came to the Presidio in 1953 and was assigned to the 505th MP Company. Major Goslee is Apprehensions Officer, Investigations and Apprehensions Division. He is scheduled to attend a 14-week course at the Provost Marshal General School before being assigned to Korea.

Major George F. Adams, who has been with the section since 1953, is also scheduled for a 14-week course at the Provost Marshal General School. His present assignment is Facilities Protection Officer, Industrial Defense Division.

Recruiting Sgt. Real Believer; Reups Forever

A Master Sergeant with a background in recruiting and re-enlistment, Harry L. Ogilbee of the 30th Engineer Group has signed up for his fifth re-enlistment.

A veteran of 19 years of service, Sergeant Ogilbee plans to continue his career to the 30-year period. He was sworn in by Lt. Wayne Fullerton, Group Assistant S1.

The sergeant, who has been Re-enlistment Sergeant with the 30th for five months, previously served as Field First Sergeant with the Sixth US Army Honor Guard.

740 AAA Missile Expert Wins Top NCO Ranking

Master Sergeant Lovell F. Furry, A Battery, 740th AAA Missile Battalion, was promoted to his present grade last week. He has been a radar mechanic with the battery's Integrated Fire Control Section since last December.

Sergeant Furry was awarded the Bronze Star Medal for meritorious service while serving with the 38th FA Battalion, 2nd Infantry Division, in Korea.

The new master sergeant was assigned to A Battery after completing an electronics course at the Antiaircraft and Guided Missile School, Fort Bliss, Texas.

On Location at Clark Air Force Base near Manila, Pfc. Hyran Spinrad looks through the finder scope of a Springfield Telescope. He is a member of the 30th Engineer Group Occultation Team which has just returned to the Presidio from a six-month tour in the Philippine Islands and Formosa.

30th Engineer Star-Gazers Return From Pacific Duty

After six months of star-gazing in the South Pacific a team of 30th Engineer Group soldiers are back at the Presidio—their mission completed.

The 14 enlisted men commanded by Lt. Marlin De Hass have completed the latest phase of a world-wide Occultation Program being conducted by the Army Map Service.

While most of their duty was in the Philippine Islands some of the men worked as far east as Formosa.

The team worked out of Clark Air Force Base, located 60 miles north of Manila. When in the field they received per diem pay and found their own lodging and meals. Many of the sites were inland and difficult to get to. On the Island of Babuyan, the site was on the side of a volcano and the observation had to be cancelled.

Weather was the biggest problem. The hot humid area made working uncomfortable and ever present cloud formations interfered with the observations.

In simple terms, surveying by occultation is a method of position determination by observing, electronically recording and timing the exact moment when a predetermined star is obscured by the moon from a predetermined site. It had the advantage of permitting measurements over great distances or impassable terrain.

Young Named To New Post; Key Liaison Will Aid Troops

Colonel Charles G. Rau, Post Commander, this week named Lt. Col. James F. Young as the first Post Assistant Executive Officer for Training.

In his new position Colonel Young will assist and supervise the training and other activities of the USA Garrison units.

Before coming to the Presidio Colonel Young was Unit Advisor with the Army Reserve stationed in Los Angeles and assigned to Fort MacArthur.

The colonel completed four years of duty in the Far East in 1952. His assignments included two with Prior to the observations the party would travel to the island where the site was located and begin surveying to locate the exact point. Then they would set up their equipment and wait for the scheduled occultation.

In their spare time the men did swimming, skin diving and studying. Furlough visits were possible to such places as Hong Kong and Tokyo.

The colonel has one son who is attending the Black-Fox Military Academy in Los Angeles. Mrs. Young will join the colonel at the Presidio.

Post Is Host To Many NG, Reserve Units

Some 500 members of the Reserve and National Guard have moved into the Presidio for their annual two-week active duty training. The units reported in last Sunday.

The group is the largest to train at the Presidio so far this summer. A second large group is scheduled to arrive in mid-August.

One of the largest units, the 6227th USAR School, is concentrating on Command and General Staff College methods and material during its training. The Reservists, divided into faculty and students, use mimeographed material from the college. They are training in Bldg. 905.

"Operation East Ditch," a CPX problem, occupied the 6212th Station Complement (Port) this week. The unit, training at Fort Cronkhite, is made up of 61 officers and duplicates the work of a Port Command.

Three companies attached to the 6212th are also in training. They are the 1000th Transportation Company (Truck); 449th Transportation Company (Floating Craft); and the 362nd Transportation Company (Floating Craft Maintenance). Some 80 men make up the combined strength of these companies.

Members of the 883rd Explosive Ordnance Demolition Control are training in their specialty with the 46th Ordnance Group.

Sixth U. S. Army G-2 is training members of the 418th Strategic Intelligence Detachment.

Sixth Army CG Will Welcome Pakistan PM

The Prime Minister of Pakistan, His Excellency Mr. Huseynb Shaheed Aurwarardy, will be accorded full military honors when he and his party arrive at the San Francisco International Airport at 1100 hours today.

An Honor Guard ceremony has been arranged by Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Sixth U.S. Army Commander, as the senior military commander in the Western United States. All four military services will provide a marching unit of 50 men with service colors and a color guard.

General Young will meet and escort the Prime Minister to the reviewing stand where he will receive a 19-gun salute. He will be accorded the customary Ruffles and Flourishes by the Sixth U.S. Army Band, after which the national anthem of Pakistan and "The Star-Spangled Banner" will be played.

The Navy's Western Sea Frontier command, the Marine Corps' Department of the Pacific and the Fourth Air Force assisted in planning the Prime Minister's visit.

6232 ARSU School Cadre Here Today

An advance party of the 6232 ARSU USAR SCHOOL from Fort Douglas, Utah, will arrive at the Presidio today to prepare for the unit's two-week training period which begins Sunday.

The unit conducts the Judge Advocate General Corps Course (USAR); the first, second and third year Associate Company Officer Course, and the first, second and fourth year Associate Advanced Courses.

Eleven officers and 17 enlisted men will represent the unit; about 113 JAGC officers in the Sixth US Army area will attend the school. The unit is commanded by Col. Victor L. Olsen, a World War II veteran.

to primary MOS requirements. In this instance foreign service is restricted to USAREUR, exclusively.

Servicemen above the grades of E-5, up to and including M/Sgts and their equivalents in the Specialist fields, have the option of choosing from a list of MOS fields covering Europe and the Far East—depending on a single factor—whether the primary MOS falls within the quota requirements listed for the specific area. They are eligible to submit applications in these quotas, for optional foreign service either in AFCE 8th US Army, Alaska, the Pacific area, USARPAC, Hawaii, or the Caribbean.

Enlisted women at the Presidio or those re-enlisting may still make application for foreign service on existing vacancy status as determined by TAGO.

It was also announced that men enlisting or re-enlisting in the Sixth US Army Area from within service and through the Recruiting Service under the provisions listed in AR-601-215, may enlist, without regard to quota, in Armor, Army Medical Service, Artillery, Engineers, Infantry, Military Police Corps, Ordnance, Quartermaster, Signal, Transportation, Airborne, CIC or Army Security Agency.

No enlistment or re-enlistment, however, is authorized for branches of service not listed above. Men re-enlisting within 20 days to fill their own vacancies may be enlisted for any of the given branch units, if they wish.

Key Program Will Support Traffic Safety

Colonel Charles G. Rau, Post Commander, announced today that an all-out education program in support of the National Safety Council's "Back the Attack on Traffic Accidents" will begin this Saturday at the Presidio.

Key aim of the program will be the indoctrination of military personnel on safe driving habits in the operation of military and non-military vehicles.

The first of three classes will start at the Post Theater at 0800 hours tomorrow and will be mandatory for military personnel. Other classes have been scheduled for 17 August and 28 September. Time and place will be the same.

Highlight of the series will be special lectures and demonstrations by members of the San Francisco Police Department's Traffic Education Section. Films and other visual aids will supplement the series.

A Spanish Pistol used in the filming of "The Gun" is presented to Sixth U.S. Army Commander Lieutenant General Robert N. Young by Producer-Director Stanley Kramer. "The Gun," which had its West Coast premiere in San Francisco yesterday, was shot on location in Spain and is based on the C. S. Forester epic "The Gun." Mr. Kramer noted that the Presidio had been founded by Spain in 1776 and was one of the most famous of the few remaining historical installations.

New Program Will Train Troops In Civil Defense

Army personnel will be trained for civil defense missions through a program being instituted throughout the Sixth Army area in compliance with a Department of Defense directive, Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Sixth U.S. Army Commander, has announced.

Selected military units will be trained for two types of civil defense missions. Type "A" is designed to support civil authorities with their responsibilities when these authorities are still capable of functioning and coping with the emergency; Type "B" is designed to assume full responsibility when civil authorities are incapable of functioning or are overwhelmed by the magnitude of the emergency.

The first type calls for the use of military specialists who are capable of operating a particular defense service, such as a medical unit operating an emergency hospital. Supplies would be provided from civil defense stockpiles, or procured by civil defense authority and supplemented from military sources.

This type requires a minimum amount of additional training since trained specialists and administrative-type units only would be needed. These would function under the normal military command but under the general direction of local civil authority.

Type "B" would mean the establishment of some form of martial rule as the military would assume full responsibility for the establishment and maintenance of law and order and protection of life and property. Both military and civil resources would be utilized under military supervision.

Additional training at the officer and non-commissioned officer level would be required under the martial law plan.

DA Award To Sixth Army As Recruiting Champion

The Sixth U.S. Army Recruiting District led all other Continental Armies in procuring manpower during Fiscal Year 1957, according to an official Department of the Army notification received this week.

The award is based on the number of Regular Army personnel enlisted during the year. Sixth U.S. Army took second place among the Continental Armies the previous fiscal year.

Colonel William M. Cohoon, Sixth U.S. Army Military Personnel Procurement Officer, made the following announcement to his headquarters and field staff:

"This is an achievement of which we are very proud as it is no easy task to dominate a branch of the Army in which every member is striving to do a top job. I know that all of our personnel worked tirelessly for the honor which is now officially

Thirty-five soldiers in this command will be promoted to master sergeant during the current quarter — July, August, September — according to information released from Sixth US Army Headquarters this week.

Other promotions for the Army area include 96 E-6's, 103 E-5's, 1027 E-4's and Pfc's after eight months.

Information on how many of the promotions will be allocated to the Presidio has not yet been released.

It is emphasized that promotion to Pfc. after eight months is not automatic, but rather is dependent on the recommendation of the unit commander. Soldiers may be promoted as they complete their eight months service in July, August or September.

3,000 See Army Display During Davis Celebration

A 30th Engineer Group display including everything from survey equipment to reproduction greeted an estimated 3,000 persons at the Annual July Fourth Picnic held at Davis, Calif. A helicopter was one of the main attractions.

The display project was supervised by Major Randal Steiner, Group S3, and CWO Nicholas Christofani, 99th Engineer Company.

During the past fiscal year all Sixth U.S. Army stations exceeded their procurement goals.

Follow Yellow Line

The Post Provost Marshal, Major W. J. Curley, announced today that a new type of marking, a luminous yellow line, down the center of Presidio's Lincoln Blvd. will aid visitors in finding their way about the installation. Since Lincoln is our only through street, it will also simplify the MP's task of giving directions from his Lombard Gate post.

Not Even Kissin' Kin - - But

Two negatives made a positive yesterday at Letterman Army Hospital when two Alexanders were called in to give emergency blood.

The Alexanders, M/Sgt. Floyd and Pfc. Dorothy, had never met before giving their rare blood. According to Major Frank H. Smiley, they are the only two on the Post with B negative blood. The major said that only four per cent of the population has B type and only 15 per cent of these have negative.

The "blood relatives" also gave blood in an emergency last February.

Not All Brickbats!

Dear General Young:

Last Friday's Star Presidian carried a small but very potent editorial "Making Them Feel at Home."

Back in the Spring of 1932, as a young "Shavetail" I experienced the "horror" of reporting to a crack RA regiment for 14 days' duty and receiving the "chill." My tour was wasted and I was bitter.

The following Spring, I reported to the same 30th Infantry, but one officer, the 2nd-in-command, made me feel welcome and saw that I was kept busy. That tour of duty generated my desire to improve myself professionally and make the military my avocation. That Infantry lieutenant (now a colonel, retired) and I recently met in Oakland and I reminded him of what he did for me. He had forgotten—I never will!

The writer of this editorial deserves credit and if this could be reprinted in all post papers in the Sixth Army area it would help other young reservists and guardsmen receive a more cordial reception and perhaps be a determining factor in their lives as it was in mine.

Cordially,
EARL W. HUNTING,
Colonel, USAR

"No More Lessons, No More Books"

Editor's Note: An excellent editorial entitled "No More Lessons, No More Books" in the June issue of "The American Rifleman," the official journal of The National Rifle Association of America, was recently brought to my attention. I read it, then put it aside with the intent of using excerpts when the occasion arose. Two stories that crossed my desk this week—"The Teenage Work Day Program" and "Junior Rifleers Awards"—caused me to reread this editorial. On second reading I felt that to print anything less than the complete text would be cheating my readers. I also found myself feeling not a little smug in the knowledge that we at the Presidio already have in successful operation one of the nation's outstanding Youth Programs.

During the month of June, 38 million young Americans are faced with the problem of readjusting a portion of their daily living. School is out, and a multitude of youngsters find themselves in our complex society for three months with the problem of proper use of leisure time. "No more lessons, no more books" is an exciting experience for the moment, but soon gives way to the question, "Where do I go and what do I do today?"

The answer to this question has significant implications for young and old alike. All of us must be vitally concerned with the manner in which the young people in our communities use their leisure time during the summer vacation. A few of the more fortunate will share the experience of outdoor living in summer camps. Some will participate in the wholesome activities of boys' clubs or other organized recreational programs. Most of them, however, will spend their time in the city streets or in equally undesirable places.

Because we have not made provision for effective education for the worthy use of leisure time, many of them will be involved in unnecessary and unfortunate incidents. There will be traffic accidents, swimming accidents, and shooting accidents. For each such incident there will be community reactions. For each accidental shooting there will be a movement against the ownership and use of firearms. Again, there will be the cry, "There ought to be a law!"

Members of the shooting fraternity have an excellent opportunity and a moral responsibility to render valuable public service. Those of us who believe that reputable citizens have the right to own and use firearms for lawful purposes must let it be known that guns are constructive tools which may be used to build healthy minds and bodies, to cement father and son relationships, and to develop self-discipline, initiative, and team spirit in order to mold better citizens and better sportsmen. At the same time, we must stress the need for proper gun handling by everyone in the field, on the range, and in the home. We who own guns must be especially careful at this time of the year to see that they do not get into the hands of uninformed children without proper supervision.

Our failure to act now to meet this situation will have harmful results. The National Rifle Association of America has established an excellent Junior program. Shooting clubs and other sportsmen's groups must increase their efforts to encourage youngsters to participate. They must expand their activities in firearms safety education, marksmanship training, and competitive shooting during the school vacation. With a little extra effort on our part, many of these young people will find a new lifetime interest and learn a valuable lesson in the proper use of leisure time.

Education Deadline

Requests for a two-year college evaluation received after 31 August will not be considered by Headquarters, Department of the Army, unless an individual has 12 semester hours earned with an accredited American college or university, according to Change 1 in AR 621-5.

According to Mrs. Kathryn Mason, Post Education Adviser, anyone lacking these hours could complete the requirements by taking USAFI end-of-course examinations and submitting the application to DA by 31 August.

Lots of Brass

The War Department distributed 4,265,000 "Victory" medals to American soldiers, sailors, nurses, and others who were engaged in the military services during World War I.

The Presidio burial ground was designated the San Francisco National Cemetery by Robert T. Lincoln, Secretary of War, in 1884. The original size of 9.5 acres was gradually increased until it contained about 28 acres in 1932. In March 1956 the cemetery was nearly doubled in size by the proposal to add 27 acres.

German WAC Finds America -- At Last!

A native of Germany and past resident of seven European and Far East countries, 24-year-old Pvt. Herta Weber last year made her eighth and final move—to the United States.

Well-versed in three languages—Danish, English and German—Herta further broadened her ability in the Army by becoming a medical laboratory specialist, her present assignment at the Post Dispensary.

Her story begins on 13 April, 1933, when she was born in Berlin, the daughter of a successful engineer. The family quietude ended five years later with the outbreak of World War II.

The non-political Webers fled to Burma where her father practiced his profession and Herta started school in 1939. Although they lived in the jungle, the company living conditions were good and all went well until the Japanese arrived in 1942.

"The other company personnel returned to their native countries; we had no place to return to so we fled to India," Herta explained.

The Webers struck out across the Burma Road, a month's trip to India. The next five years were spent in India where Herta attended school and her father continued working as an engineer.

Herta then spent 16 months at a finishing school in Switzerland followed by a year in London, where she received her high school diploma.

Graduated in 1950, 12 years after she had fled her native country,

Well Traveled
Pvt. Herta Weber

Herta decided to return to her parents' home in East Berlin. Unbeknownst to her the Russians had taken over their home; bread lines and cardboard shoes had replaced the former happy living conditions. "I was considered a 'Foreign German' because I had been gone for so long," Herta commented. "This coupled with the fact that I was a student made me very unwelcome and the Russians were glad to see me go."

From East Berlin Herta moved to her sixth country—Denmark. Here she worked days and studied languages nights at the University of Copenhagen for two years. Later she moved to Sweden and taught English for a short time.

After another short period in Denmark Herta was reunited with her family in Dusseldorf, West Germany, in 1954. She remained there until coming to the United States, working part of the time for an airline.

On 19 June, 1956, Herta, who felt like a "displaced person" in Germany, sailed for the United States. Sponsored by family friends, she made her first home in Yuba City, California.

"Since I was not a citizen I could not get a job as an interpreter, so I worked on the fruit plantations near Yuba City," Herta said.

Last November Herta enlisted in the Army in order to learn more about American people and places. She completed the 16-week course for medical laboratory technicians at Fort Sam Houston and was assigned to the Presidio.

Herta, who is now taking out citizenship papers, found it impossible to express all the advantages she has encountered in the United States.

"There are so many little things to appreciate here . . . buying what you want in a store and getting what you want by working for it," she said. "In Germany you may work toward a car, but find it financially impossible to keep one after you have it."

Herta's ambition, ability and energy have not been curbed by her past experiences and travels.

"I would need three lives to do all I still want to do," she summed up.

Port Reserve Unit Is Self-Sufficient

The 6212th Station Compliment Port, which has been undergoing summer reserve training at Fort Cronkhite during the past two weeks, is a completely self-sufficient unit, according to its commander, Colonel William A. Clayton.

Since it set the pattern for self-sufficiency three years ago it has had many reserve units attached to it for training and administration. In accordance with a "groupment" concept these units have all been undergoing their summer training at the same time in the Bay Area, enabling the various units to undertake projects as a group.

The units of the 6212th include the 1000th Transportation Company (M-truck) and the 483d Transportation Battalion (Terminal), both at Fort Cronkhite; the 449th Transportation Company (Floating Craft) and the 362d Transportation Company (Floating Craft Maintenance) at Fort Baker. Training at Oakland Army Terminal are the 355th Transportation Battalion (Terminal), the 976th Transportation Company (Terminal Service), the 861st Transportation Company (Terminal Service) and the 9206th Transportation Staging Area Company, which is located in Los Angeles.

The various units were occupied with on-the-job training in their own specialties during the first week. But this week they have been working together. The first three days they underwent the tri-annual Army Training Tests. Yesterday and today they participated in a tactical movement including a march, attack by aggressor and overnight bivouac.

46th Ordnance Group To Fete 11th Birthday

Eleven years as an active unit will be observed today by Headquarters 46th Ordnance Group through an Organization Day celebration. The Group is commanded by Major Samuel P. Smith.

A softball game and barbecue will climax the full day's activities planned by the Group.

Constituted in the Army on 20 June, 1946, the Group was activated at Luzon, Philippine Islands, in July of the same year. The 46th remained in Luzon until early 1949 when it was moved to Yokohama, Japan.

Late in 1949 the Group was deactivated under orders of Headquarters, Eighth U.S. Army, then located in Yokohama.

On 20 September, 1950, the 46th was reactivated and assigned to Fort Lewis, Wash. In January, 1953, Group Headquarters was transferred to Camp Irwin and two months later to the Presidio.

11-Year Vet Reenlists

A veteran of 11 years' Army service, M/Sgt. Oscar Levitt, reenlisted this month for six years while serving with the 29th AAA Group at Travis Air Force Base.

Sergeant Levitt has been serving as Chief Artillery Specialist in the Group since its activation last September. The oath was administered by Lt. Col. Sanford J. Butler, Group Commanding Officer.

Vallejo, according to Company Commander Charles Wright.

Today is the last day of the 362nd's training. This week they have been occupied by the tri-annual Army Training Test on Monday and Tuesday and an overnight bivouac exercise on Thursday and Friday.

Last week the men had on-the-job training at Fort Baker. The company is broken down into 13 teams under three sections—hull repair, engine repair and electrical and diving. While overhauling one of Post Transportation's M-boats, they proudly report they found a hold no one had known about.

"They have given us superb cooperation," says Captain Wright of the 561st Engineer Company with whom the 362nd has been billeted. Master Specialists Charles Holland and Henry Waskevitch of the 561st spent most of the first week training four enlisted men and two officers in the art of deep sea diving.

"Scratch My Nose, Please," says Sgt. Allen Crain, who is learning deep sea diving while on reserve summer training with the 362nd Transportation Company (Floating Craft Maintenance) at Fort Baker. His diving suit valets are Sp2 Dennis Thompson (left) and M/Sgt. Husten Halstead. The 362nd, a Vallejo reserve outfit, completes its training today.

New Reserve Unit Finds Summer Training 'Great'

A group of soldiers over at Fort Baker this week put a man in a canvas bag, weighted him down and then "assisted" him into the water where he immediately sank.

It's all right. The canvas bag had foot and hand openings and the weights included a brass diving helmet. A hose connected to the helmet brought the submerged man all the air he could breathe.

Sgt. Allen Crain of Vallejo, the man submerged, agrees that summer training with the Army gives a fellow a chance to do "a lot of crazy things." Two weeks ago he'd never been within touching distance of a deep sea diving suit. Today he's not only a diver, but an undersea welder and general handy man as well.

The diving sergeant is a member of a brand new reserve unit training at the Presidio for the first time. The job of the 362nd Transportation Company (Floating Craft Maintenance) is to repair and maintain floating craft. On active duty this unit would have men and equipment to man two complete machine shops and four carpenter shops.

The company is especially effective because most of the men are already working at their trade in the boat yards around

71 Junior Rifleshooters Win Badges At Ceremony

Seventy-one members of the Junior Rifleshooters were presented with National Rifle Association Junior Rifle Awards Wednesday evening at the Presidio Gun Club Indoor Range. Col. Charles G. Rau, Post Commander, presented the awards.

Instructors for the group are Master Sergeants John D. Vekich and Douglas B. Sheridan. Since last year 175 local youths have been trained as rifleshooters.

The awards ranged from Pro-Marksman through the nine Sharpshooter Bar stages. Four hundred and forty-nine awards were given.

The requirements for Pro-Marksman are 10 targets, each with five shots, fired from any position. Each target scoring must be 20 points or better. Marksman qualifications are similar except that each target scoring must be at least 25 points and the shooter must already hold the Pro-Marksman rating.

A Marksman First Class must hold the Marksman rating and shoot 10 targets, each with five shots, scoring at least 30 points on each target. A Sharpshooter must score a minimum of 35 points on each of 10 targets and hold the Marksman First Class rating.

After a shooter has earned the Sharpshooter rating, he progresses through a series of Sharpshooter Bar stages by working up through specified firing positions and increased score requirements, leading to the Expert Rifleman rating.

The bar stages, which must be completed in order, are based on 10 targets, each with five shots.

Firing for the First Bar is from the prone position and requires a 40-point minimum on each target. Second Bar, sitting position with a 30-point minimum on each target; Third Bar, sitting position with a 35-point minimum on each target, and Fourth Bar, sitting position with a 40-point minimum on each target.

Fifth Bar, kneeling position with a 30-point minimum on each target; Sixth Bar, kneeling position with a 35-point minimum on each target; Seventh Bar, kneeling position with a 40-point minimum on each target; Eighth Bar, standing position with a 30-point minimum on each target, and Ninth Bar, standing position with a 35-point minimum on each target.

Richard Harms was the only rifleman to be presented with all nine sharpshooter seals and bars. Willie Albores received his fifth, sixth and seventh sharpshooter bars. Max Thompson earned the first five sharpshooter bars and Matt Daley the first four.

Coral Siegfried, Ray Frost and Jack Frost received the first three sharpshooter bars; Alan Biesel, second and third bars, and Curtis Thompson and Bill Parfitt, first and second bars. Craig Saunders and Clyde Riggs received their first sharpshooter bars.

19 6A Reservists Graduated From 5-Year C & GS Course

After five years of night meetings and summer camps, 19 reserve officers tomorrow graduate from the Army's high level Command and General Staff School operated through the 6227th USAR School at California Military District Headquarters, Bldg. T-906.

During the year the students have attended reserve school in their own areas, but in the summer they all converge on the 6227th for Command and General Staff School. Other Sixth US Army area reserve instruction centers specialize in other schools during summer training.

The associate resident officer's course at the Fort Leavenworth Command and General Staff School takes 13 weeks. Reserve officers get the same instruction over a five year period during which time they study such subjects as Advance Section Staff Planning, Support of Large Amphibious Operations and Development of Communication Zones, Army in the Defense, and Army in the Attack.

The regular staff and faculty of the 6227th USAR School, who perform their summer training by teaching the C & GS School, are kept busy during the rest of the year teaching semiweekly night courses to reserve officers which range from Adjutant General Corps School to Civil and Military Government School.

In addition, the 6227th operates an MOS department which teaches reserve NCO's courses in cooking, supply, field wiring, wheeled vehicle mechanics and clerk-typing. During the past year 63 NCO's came from other reserve units to take this instruction.

The school year for the 6227th, which is commanded by Col.

John R. Martindale, runs from the first Tuesday in September to the first Tuesday in June. In the past year 215 reserve officers were students in the school. During summer training—the past two weeks—177 officers were in attendance at the Command and General Staff School. Instructors for the summer course included 50 officers and 15 NCO's. The winter faculty numbers 28 officers and 14 NCO's.

Each officer who teaches a course is a qualified instructor and a graduate of the particular school he teaches. Many of the instructors in their civilian occupation are experts in the same field they teach for the Army. For instance, the Judge Advocate instructor is a lawyer and the Military Government instructor is a professor.

The Star Presidian is indebted to Mr. Jack Gordon, Post Ordnance employee, for the material appearing in this week's Sketchbook. Mr. Gordon served on the Mexican Border with the 11th Cavalry at the age of 18.

Had you been a soldier assigned to the 11th Cavalry 35 years ago . . . on patrol duty at the Mexican Border . . . you would have had a taste of soldiering romantic in its implications . . . now as extinct as the horse which added so much to its heritage.

On a bright morning in the year 1922 . . . you would have left the Presidio of Monterey with G-Troop of your unit . . . to begin a 600-mile trek to Camp Ahearn in Southern California . . . thereby carving a fresh slice of history into a US military institution whose banners blew clear across the Nation.

History would have been enhanced that day, because your unit would have accomplished the longest peacetime Cavalry march of all time . . . matched only by that of General Allenby of the British Army, who led his regiment across Jerusalem during World War I . . . to end the pressure being brought on Israel by the Turks.

Your military headquarters in Monterey would have been your mother, your father and your brother. . . . You would have been fed and clothed there . . . sheltered and reprimanded when due . . . and you would never have become a spoiled child . . . the rod was never spared if your delinquencies caught up with you.

But the Cavalry had its brighter moments. . . . There would be early Spring mornings when you ambled down to the stables to curry, water and feed your horse . . . assigned to you alone . . . yours to be responsible for in the way you are now responsible for your rifle. . . . Take your saddle from its rack . . . fasten it over the coal-black hide which blended so perfectly with the polished brown leather . . . and away you went . . . whistling over the mesa . . . in a fragrance of desert flowers . . . sage and saddle leather and horse sweat . . . sun-warmed from exercise in the dawn air.

At siesta time that afternoon . . . you were free to make love to a Border lass beneath a bower of shade trees . . . but always with the Biblical admonition of your first sergeant fresh in your memory . . . that as a soldier, you may do as nature dictates . . . provided that in the doing . . . you disgrace neither your uniform nor yourself. . . . The first sergeant was the next best thing to your chaplain . . . his purpose was just as worthy!

At patrol's end . . . you returned to camp, stabled the animal, and sat down to a man-sized meal of boiled beef and potatoes . . . strong black coffee, and the small talk of the garrison. . . . You might hear that the pet burro . . . your unit mascot which refused to sleep anywhere but on a military cot, got run down by a driver in a Tin Lizzie. The little animal had to be shot . . . and every man in your unit had gone out with a gun in search of the hit-and-run driver.

You would live in a world of exacting military duties . . . practical jokes and a hell-for-leather attitude which taught you to yield to no man nor any situation not sympathetic to your way of life. . . . Your pay would have been $21 monthly and a "ham skin."

Always in your heart would be unlimited respect for horses and for stable or brush fires . . . the need for the one . . . the danger of the others. They became the twin motivating forces 'round which your military service was established.

Horses . . . horses . . . and mules . . . trained for battle . . . handled by Dragoons, expert in mounted or dismounted combat . . . your brothers . . . bearing your machine gun and 500 pounds of ammunition . . . with a special soldier protecting the lead animal with a rifle . . . all other soldiers carrying pistols.

The horse was your heartbeat in battle . . . trained almost to the same degree of skill as you . . . the extent of his forward thrust gauging the distance between you and death. . . .

The Cavalry horse had his own military record and troop number . . . complete with medical and surgical reports . . . and in the pack he bore, would be two spare shoes of steel. . . . To the animal, the accompanying blacksmith was the unit surgeon; the saddler his tailor. . . . The horse would be vaccinated regularly . . . under the eyelid . . . and the veterinary surgeon was his best friend.

He bore a field pack . . . for you and for himself . . . supplies and food to last both of you two days . . . ammunition and emergency rations . . . one slicker, a grain and feed bag . . . canned food, canteen, lariat, cartridge belts, bandoleers, a shelter-half, tent poles and pegs. . . . He followed whistle and hand signals as readily as the human voice. He was often more intelligent than his rider!

On Christmas Eve . . . the word once went around camp that horses are given the gift of speech on that night. . . . You believed so much in the powers of the Cavalry animal that you remained in the pasture with the tethered horses . . . until dawn . . . waiting to hear the voice that never came.

You would have seen a young officer . . . Maj. "Hap" Arnold . . . later Army Air Force chief . . . perform the first successful refueling of an airborne plane. . . . On that same day you would have seen a little old lady come to Major Arnold and ask him with tremulous concern . . . what would happen if the planes ran out of fuel. And Hap would have answered her, dead-pan . . . "Dear Lady, there are hundreds of those poor pilots wandering around up there hungry because their planes have run out of gas and they can't get down!"

From that honorable calling . . . the Cavalry of the US Army . . . you drew a fortune in memories and a philosophy to last all your days. . . . In your mind would remain two unpolished gems of truth imparted by your Military Commander . . . that there was never a man nor a weapon of value that didn't once have hell hammered out of him or it . . . that you must always use your initiative . . . but that in the doing of any deed . . . you must never disgrace your uniform nor yourself.

Craft Festival Proves Popular With Post Mothers

The most enthusiastic response to the First Annual Midsummer Craft Festival came from the Presidio mothers who were delighted with an arrangement enabling them to work at crafts while their children were instructed during the same hours.

Instruction for the youngsters, ages 5 to 12, has been scheduled for Tuesday evenings, 1900 to 2200 hours, and Thursday afternoons, 1300 to 1630 hours. However, the turnout has been so great that Craft Director Bill Zacha announced this week that starting 24 July, there will be organized craft work for the children on Wednesday evenings also.

Coloring, puppet making, ceramics and sand table art are some of the crafts that will be taught to the children.

THE FUZZY PINK NIGHTGOWN shows Jane Russell being kidnaped on the eve of the premiere of her latest film—"The Kidnaped Bride." Believing the affair to be a studio-arranged publicity stunt, she conceals her identity from the police who visit the hideout on a routine check. In a hilarious climax, the would-be kidnapers tangle with the law.

DECISION AGAINST TIME presents test pilot Jack Hawkins as he faithfully remains with his small and struggling airplane company, despite offers of a bigger and better-paying job. He is assigned to test the air-worthiness of a new cargo plane, during which the port engine takes fire. Hawkins is ordered to head for the sea and bail out with his passengers, after putting the plane on automatic pilot. The passengers and crew parachute to safety, but Hawkins, against orders, puts the craft in a steep dive to put out the flames.

BEGINNING OF THE END is the story of a small town in Illinois which is completely destroyed and its inhabitants annihilated. Baffled police call on the Defense Department for help and protection. Scientists trace the disaster to a colony of insects which have fed on irradiated food, growing to gigantic proportions.

Swarming out of the countryside, the insect horde descends upon Chicago.

JOE DAKOTA introduces Jock Mahoney as a former captain of cavalry troops coming to a small California town in the 1870's in response to an appeal from an old Indian, Joe Dakota, who has been the captain's scout.

During his first day in town, Jock discovers that the old Indian has been lynched by the townspeople, who are engaged in drilling for oil on the old man's land.

TOWN ON TRIAL. The nylon stocking murder of beautiful Magda Miller brings to a small town Scotland Yard sleuth John Mills. Although Mills runs into a wall of silence and evasion from the antagonistic townspeople, all but lovely Barbara Bates, he narrows his suspects down to four—Charles Coburn, a doctor trying to hide his past; Derek Farr, who was having an affair with the victim; Alec McCowan, a young man who was in love with her, and Elizabeth Seal, Magda's friend.

21st Undefeated In Softball Playoffs

Big Sticker Sp3 Peggy at bat and out of uniform! Out of uniform for the diamond, that is, but in perfect form for scoring home runs. Peggy has broken all home run records for Company D, U.S. Army Garrison. In 11 games, she has clobbered 12 home runs and holds a remarkable .853 batting average.

Presidio's Home Run Queen Credits Early Experience

By Pvt. Norm Niccoll
Star Presidian Sports Editor

Who says that women are inferior to men when it comes to hitting home runs?

One of our local WACs has disproved this theory by clouting homers as easy as she can bake cherry pies. Peggy Harris, cook for the WAC detachment, has hit 12 home runs in the last 11 games for the WAC softball team. She has connected for 35 hits in 41 times at bat, which gives her a rather respectable .853 batting average.

Peggy's interest in sports began early in life. As a child, she was orphaned and in order to acquire some of the security which she lacked from a normal home life, she participated in sports.

During her junior high school days in North Carolina, she played baseball with the school team—the only girl to make the grade. This was a country school, and it was quite acceptable for girls to try out for sports.

At 16, Peggy went to work in a North Carolina cotton mill. There she played with the mill softball team, which won the city league and then went on to the State tournament. The team won the championship but was disqualified on a technicality. This, according to Peggy, was very disheartening for they had played so hard to win the championship.

In 1952, at the age of 18, she enlisted in the Women's Army Corps. She was trained as a medical technician but in 1955 she decided she would prefer being a cook—so she enrolled in the Food Service School at Fort Ord. Since her graduation she has been assigned at the Presidio as a cook in the WAC Detachment.

Not satisfied with hitting home runs, Peggy has participated in other Post sports. In 1955, she took first place in the 100-meter free style swimming event at the Sixth Army finals, and then went on to take second honors in the All-Army finals. She is also a member of the WAC basketball team.

On weekends Peggy plays softball for the Pepper Team in Alameda. In the latter part of July she plans to play for the team in the State tournament.

What makes her hit those long home runs? Peggy attributes her home run streak to hitting that ball squarely, and putting a little power behind it.

Her future is undecided, but one thing is certain, watch out for this girl on the softball diamond—she'll be hitting many more over the wall!

WAFs Drop WACs From Loop Leadership

The Presidio WACs dropped an important league game to the Hamilton Air Force WAFs last week by the tune of 13-12.

Mary Willard, Rosemary Weber and Julian Kite all pitched for the locals, allowing a total of 14 hits. Kite was credited with the loss.

Peggy Harris, star hitter for the WACs, continued to swat the ball as she got 3 for 4, two singles and a triple. Mary Phillips, Sylvia Bernardini and Weber collected two hits apiece. In total, the WACs garnered 13 hits.

Last Saturday the Presidio outfit clobbered the Fort Ord WACs by the score of 18 to 5 in a non-league game.

Pirtle, Sutton Team To Down Navy Golfers

The Presidio golf team downed the Alameda Naval Air Station golfers last Tuesday by the score of 19-8.

Pfc. Allwyn Pirtle, top seeded Presidio golfer, won 2½ points from Al Harmon and then teamed up with Pfc. Alex Red Sutton to win 3 points from Harmon and A. Jones. Sutton took 3 from Jones.

Pfc. Donald Welch won 2½ points from Porky Neal, while Capt. Charles Monges collected 2 from A. Andrews. Monges teamed up with M/Sgt. Sidney Domingue to win two points in team play.

Highest score of the day was shot by Pirtle with a 71, one below par for the Richmond Country Club Course. Right behind him was Sutton with 72.

Next match for the Post team is on 19 July against Fairfield at the Presidio Golf Course. On 2 August they will host an all-star Navy team from Treasure Island here at 1300 hours, in preparation for the Sixth Army Tournament on 5-9 August.

Weber was the winning pitcher allowing only five scattered hits. Harris once again displayed her power at the plate by belting one home run and three singles. Lee Brandl also collected a home run for the locals.

Alexander Has Top Series, 600-219; 46th Top Wizards To Retain Lead

The Hq. Co. Sixth Army bowlers climbed to within striking distance of first place as they took four games from the last place Hilltoppers in the Presidio League last week.

Alexander scored the highest series and game of the week to pace the Hq. Co. attack with a 600-219. Duke for the losers was top man with 466-173.

The 46th Ordnance gained undisputed hold on first place as they took four games from the Wizards, while the Keystone Kops lost a 4-0 decision to the Hardnoses.

Dubois was tops for the 46th with 518-180, while Dickey was best for the Wizards with 502-191. Bender and Bedell led the Hardnoses to their upset victory over the Kops with 542-201 and 542-204, respectively. Beveridge was top man for the Kops with 516-205.

In the other Presidio League game, the Kingpins and 21st Engineers split their series, 2-2. Lansing, with 486-172, led the Kingpins and Thomas was best man for the Engineers with 439-168.

Rosebaum with 536-188 paced the Hq. Co. Sixth Army to a 2½-1½ win over the 99ners in the Bay League. This was the highest game and series of the week scored in the league. Signalls was high man for the 99ners with 468-171.

The faltering Triple Aces lost four more, this time to the Officers Mess. Mahon was high man for the winners with 503-181, while Culuris was best for the Aces with 475-171.

The first place Deuces won another series, downing the last place 740th AAA by the score of 3-1. Bernstein surprised his teammates by scoring the highest series and game with 498-180.

Vitan paced the losers' attack with 493-184.

The 56th MRU bowlers, only one game away from second place, tied 30th AAA 2-2. Martin was best for the MRU outfit with 499-184, while Wada was high man for the losers with 464-163.

Hq. Co. Takes Narrow Victory Over 30th

The 21st Engineers, sparked by their ace pitcher, Nick Themely, defeated the Honor Guard, 6-2, to win their second straight game in the Post Softball play-off, and reach the semifinals in the winner's bracket.

Themely pitched his usual fine game, allowing only five scattered hits and striking out 10 batters. Julian and Deveault collected two hits apiece for the winners. The Honor Guard committed several costly errors.

Hq. Co. Sixth US Army also reached the semifinals as the result of their narrow win over Hq. Co. 30th Engineers by the score of 7-6. Peak, the winning pitcher, gave up six hits and belted two singles to lead his team to the close win.

The 30th Engineers, who had previously upset D Btry, 9th AAA, the Northern League champs, by the count of 7-2, bounced back in the next round of play to squeak out a narrow win over A Btry, 9th AAA, by the score of 12-11 in a 12 inning thriller.

Sgt. Dale Mathias of the 30th Group was the winning pitcher, giving up nine hits, five walks and registering a total of 15 strikeouts. His season record now stands at 10 wins and 3 losses.

The 30th Engineers got a total of 19 hits. Parmley starred for the winners with three hits and a home run in the bottom of the seventh to tie up the game and move it into extra innings. The other big guns for the 30th were Voss, Leverenz and Mathias, all with three hits apiece.

As a result of their loss, A Btry was the second team to be eliminated from the play-off. Their first loss was at the hands of the 21st Engineers.

Last Tuesday, D Btry, 9th AAA, which had figured prominently in the tourney, was also eliminated from the play-off by dropping its second straight game to the Honor Guard by the score of 5-4.

Kirksey was credited with the win as he flung a nifty five hitter. Oiea of D Btry also pitched a fine game, but was not helped much in the field by his teammates, as they committed six errors to give the Honor Guard several unearned runs.

Four teams remain in the play-off. The undefeated 21st Engineers tangle with Hq. Co. Sixth Army this week in one of the top games to decide which team will play in the finals. Of course, the loser has another chance of coming back by defeating the winner of the other bracket. The two teams still fighting it out in the other division are the Honor Guard and Hq. Co. 30th Engineers.

The final championship game will be played Tuesday.

BULLETIN

Pfc. Gordon Peak, Hq. Co., Sixth US Army, set a Sixth Army Meet record in the three meter diving event at the Sixth Army swimming and diving finals at Fort MacArthur, last Wednesday. He also won the one-meter diving championship. Peak was the only member of the Presidio swimming team to qualify for the All-Army finals to be held at Chicago on 22-24 July.

740th Nikes Win 20th Game In Contest With AF

Behind the tireless right arm of Frank Kramer, the 740th Nikes won their twentieth baseball game of the season as they downed Hamilton Air Force Base by the score of 7-3.

Kramer, the ace pitcher for the Nike group, limited the Hamilton club to five hits, walking but one and striking out 11 batters.

Led by catcher Bud Larson's 3 for 5, a single in the first, a homer in the 5th, and a double in the 9th, the Missilemen collected a total of 11 hits, 5 of them for extra bases.

Bernardini Upsets Kite In Net Play

Toreros Rout Hamilton; Lose In Overtime Play

The Torero baseball team pounded three Hamilton Air Force Base pitchers for 18 hits and 16 runs to trample the Airmen by a 16-4 count.

Roger Collins pitched a fine four hitter to lead the Presidio nine to their second victory in three contests with Hamilton.

Pacing the Torero hitting barage were hefty John Zeleznock, who belted a grand slam home run, in addition to connecting for two singles, and catcher Dave Hennigan, who had four for four, including two doubles. Bob Jolly, Emilo Martinez and Kenny Carroll all had roundtrippers for the Toreros.

Collins had little trouble with the Hamilton batters as he struck out nine men and walked three, and probably would have had a shutout had it not been for the Toreros' lone error of the ball game.

Last Saturday, the Presidio team was eliminated from the Oakland Tribune Tournament by the Oakland Braves by an 8-5 score.

The Toreros were victims of hard luck in this wild contest which saw 23 base hits, 5 errors and 9 walks during the afternoon.

After trailing most of the way, the Braves tied the score in the eighth inning on two hits and an error and then went on to win it in the 10th by combining two hits, a hit batsman and a windblown flyball. The flyball eluded the Presidio leftfielder and allowed three runs to score, which proved the necessary margin of victory for the Braves.

Dick Shinnick was credited with the loss. The Toreros garnered a total of 10 hits with Emilo Martinez and Chuck Gritts pacing the attack with two hits apiece.

The Toreros will play Hamilton again this week and play two week end games to round out another busy week for the Post nine.

Heat Slows Distaff Competition; Teams Ready For Area Playoffs

Sylvia Bernardini captured the women's open single tennis crown by defeating favored Julian Kite in two straight sets, 9-7 and 6-4. The first set was a gruelling and hard fought match which lasted well over two hours before Bernardini was able to pull ahead by two games and win the set. Both succumbed to the heat and the second set had to be played on a later date. The two contestants will represent the Presidio in the Sixth Army Finals at Fort Ord on 4-8 August.

In preparation for the Ord finals, members of the Presidio team have been busy playing each other to determine the top seeded man.

Capt. Sample defeated fourth seeded Peter Shea thus earning a spot on the team. He plans to go right up the line and challenge each member.

The rest of the team is made up of Robert C. Bacon, presently top seeded, James L. Shanks and Ronald E. Crawford. Personnel who were assigned to the Presidio after the closing entry date, 7 June, may challenge any of the team members.

Star Performers for the Braves team which won the first half of Pony League play are (l) Pat Horrell, and (r) Eobby Clark. Both pitched outstanding games and Horrell led the league in hitting with a .647 average.

Braves Still Lead As Pony League Ends First Half

The Pony League ended its first half of play last week with the high flying Braves leading the rest of the pack by a wide margin.

Last week, the Braves blasted the Dodgers by the lopsided score of 22-0. Ace pitcher Pat Horrell pitched a no-hitter and belted a home run to lead his team to victory.

Only eight of the Brave runs were earned as the Dodgers had difficulty holding on to the ball as they committed 12 errors, five of them in the second inning when the Braves scored nine runs.

In the other game played, the Pirates overpowered the Tigers by the count of 11-4.

League play resumes on 30 July. Some of the players from the Golden Gate Little League, who have come of age, will join several of the Pony League teams during the second half of play, which should make for a more interesting season.

Peachy Performance

35 YEARS AGO this week on 17 July Tyrus Cobb hit five for five for the fourth time in a single season to set a new record. As player-manager for the Detroit Tigers he had a home run, double and three singles as his team downed the Boston nine by 16-7. He ended the year with a .401 average.

Champion Setter To Be At Letterman Dog Show

Champion Konocti Denny O'Menace, a talented Irish setter, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Norman Muir, civilian employees of Letterman Army Hospital and the Presidio, respectively, will be one of the many championship class Irish setters participating in the 12th Annual Specialty Show and Obedience Trials sponsored by the Irish Setter Club of the Pacific, to be held this Saturday at the Letterman Parade Grounds.

Denny, as he is better known around the hospital where Mr. Muir works, has won many honors. His most recent win was scored at the Santa Clara Kennel Club Show in February. He also won the Golden Gate Club Show at the Civic Auditorium during the same month.

The ch. before Denny's name stands for champion, a title bestowed on a dog after he has won 15 points in show competition. A dog is awarded so many points after each competition. Konocti is from a mountain in Northern California. According to Mr. Muir, Denny's ancestors all had famous names in honor of western mountains.

Denny is quite a versatile dog. Besides participating in shows, he finds time to water ski and motorcycle with his master and also play the role of a normal household pet—playing with kids and chasing birds.

Judging the show will be one of the nation's outstanding breeders of Irish Setters, E. Irving Eldredge of Tirvelda Farms, The Plains, Virginia.

Interested personnel are very welcome to attend the show which begins sharply at 10 a.m. There is no admission.

Sixth Army Skeet Meet Set For Presidio Range

The Sixth Army Skeet Meet will be held on 25-26 July at the Post Skeet Range between 0900 and 1400 hours.

Teams from Letterman Army Hospital, Fort Huachuca, Ft. Lawton, Fort Ord, Ft. Lewis, and the Presidio will participate in the closed All-Army NSSA registered shoot.

Judy Allen, one of the outstanding women skeet shooters in the United States and possibly in the world, will be present to act as director of the meet. She will be assisted by Dr. Clyde D. Horner, president of the National Skeet Shoot Association and by Mr. Milton Terrill, USMC, retired.

Miss Allen is the daughter of Mr. Clifford Allen, who is on the board of directors of both the National and Northern California Skeet Associations.

Among the numerous national and world records which she holds, are the two lady team 1957 record with a 390 out of 400 score, and the parent and child record of 295 x 300, set in 1956.

In 1955, Miss Allen teamed up with Jack Horner to set a 2-man world record by scoring 200 out of 200. Recently, she set a new women's world record at the National Western Open for a combination of weapons.

Some Track Team!

25 YEARS AGO this week on 16 July Babe Didrickson turned in a one-woman track and field performance that garnered her five first places and the National A.A.U. Women's Track and Field Championship. She broke her own record in the javelin, won the shotput, baseball throw, broad jump and 80-meter hurdles.

Awards will be given to the winner and runner up teams and to their individual top members. In addition, each classification winner and runner up will be awarded a trophy.

Col. C. G. Rau, Post Commander, will make the welcoming address on 25 July at the Post Service Club before the meet gets underway.

Sport Sampler Still Available At Service Clubs

The fabulous Sport Sampler, over $90.00 in admissions for only $3.75, can still be obtained from the Post Special Services, Bldg. 122, or from the Presidio, Ft. Baker and Ft. Cronkhite Service Clubs.

The bargain booklet is available to military personnel and their dependents and civilian personnel employed at the Presidio and their dependents.

Gjelsteen To Assist Sixth U. S. Army CG

Maj. Gen. Einer B. Gjelsteen, until recently Chief of the Army Audit Agency in Washington, D.C., has been named Special Assistant to Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Sixth US Army Commander.

An Honor Guard ceremony welcomed General Gjelsteen to the Post Wednesday morning. After receiving a 13-gun salute, the general inspected the Band and Honor Guard.

Graduated from the U. S. Military Academy with the class of 1923, General Gjelsteen received his commission as a second lieutenant in the Field Artillery.

During World War II, the general was artillery commander for the 86th Infantry Division, and served with that unit in Europe until the defeat of Germany. He returned to the United States in June, 1945 and accompanied the 8th Infantry Division to the Philippines as artillery commander.

Before receiving his assignment as Chief of the Army Audit Agency, General Gjelsteen was with the Seventh US Army in Germany on occupation duty. He holds the Legion of Merit and the Bronze Star Medal.

Top Acts, Band Highlight Club's Dinner-Dance

A formal dinner-dance featuring special entertainment by the Wheelers is scheduled at the Presidio Officers' Open Mess Saturday.

Dance music will be provided by Harry Mason and his orchestra with Julie Mason as vocalist. The menu includes New York Cut steak and reservations will be accepted.

Club officials also announced that Mr. George Tong, organist, will entertain four days during the week. Tuesday and Wednesday he will play from 1800 to 2000 hours; Saturday, 1800 to 2100 hours; and Sunday, 1600 to 2000 hours.

New Airplanes for the Sixth U.S. Army Flight Detachment located at the Crissy Field arrived on 3 June. The L-23D model made by Beechcraft has a top speed of 270 m.p.h. and a service altitude of 25,000 feet. The six-place airplane was flown from the Beechcraft factory to Crissy by Lt. Robert M. Jackson, who is visible in both pictures above.

Flight Unit Gets First Of Twin-Engine Planes

Sixth US Army Flight Detachment recently acquired a new airplane—bigger, better and faster—to help it in its mission of supporting this headquarters.

The L-23D is a twin engine, 6 seat airplane similar in appearance to the other Beechcrafts used here at the Presidio.

However, the 340 horsepower Lycoming engines enable the L-23D to cruise at 202 m.p.h. and reach a top speed of 270 m.p.h. The earlier model L-23's cruise at 180 m.p.h.

The new Beechcraft, which is fully equipped with instruments for all types of flying, has a service ceiling of 25,000 feet as opposed to its predecessor's 20,000 ceiling. It has a range of 1,100 miles and a maximum gross weight of 7,000 pounds.

Passengers will be especially enthusiastic over the new airplane's three-bladed propellers which mean less noise and vibration in the cockpit.

Lt. Robert M. Jackson, who picked the $87,000 airplane up at the factory in June and flew it back to the Presidio, says, "I think it's a nice aircraft—excellent for our mission."

"Dining In"

Army Tradition Back At 740th

A formal "Dining In," an old Army tradition, was reinstituted recently by 32 officers of the 740th AAA Missile Battalion when they enjoyed an evening get-together at the Presidio Officers' Open Mess.

The evening, which was planned spontaneously at various informal gatherings, featured the traditional opening toast by the junior officers.

Guests of honor were Major General E. J. McGaw, Commander of the 6th Region, U.S. Army Air Defense Command; Col. Edward B. Hempstead, Post Executive Officer; and Col. Daniel A. Ranney, 30th AAA Group Commander.

Indians Had A Word For Army Planes

Washington (ANS) — Indian terms and names dominate the recently approved popular designations for all Army aircraft, the Department of the Army has announced.

The only airplanes to retain their original names were the "Bird Dog" (L-19 Cessna); "Beaver" (L-20 DeHavilland) and "Otter" (U-1 DeHavilland).

The new names were adopted for use in lieu of type and model designations when writing about or discussing the aircraft, an Army spokesman said.

Here are the names and phonetic pronunciations of the Army aircraft listed by type, model, and manufacturer:

Type and Model	Manufacturer	New Name
H-13	Bell	"Sioux" (Soo)
H-19	Sikorsky	"Chickasaw" (Chick-a-saw)

Final Report Shows Big Increase In Absenteeism

Absenteeism due to sick leave in Post sections during last quarter was the highest of any quarter in FY 1957, according to a newly released report. The 3.2 absentee rate also exceeded the fourth quarter of FY 1956.

About half of the sections and activities reported an increase in sick leave rates during the quarter. However, the over-all sick leave average was identical during the past two fiscal years.

Sections which did not show an increase during the quarter are Comptroller, Safety Division, S3, S4, Inspector General, Finance and Accounting, Library Depot, Ordnance, 6400 Recruiting, Sixth USA Spt Elm, Surgeon, Dental, USA Med Lab, USA Vet Food Inspection Detachment, Sixth Army Regional AA Command, Regional Off No. 1, and USA MI CIC Det Augmentation.

The sick leave quarterly goals are a maximum of 2.5 for the first and fourth quarters and 3.0 for the second and third quarters.

Incentive Awards Program At Peak In Final Quarter

A total of 15 incentive awards, nearly half of the total for FY 1957, were approved during last quarter. The fourth quarter total was five times greater than both the third quarter of FY 1957 and the corresponding quarter of FY 1956.

More than half of the awards approved were in sections and activities which had no previous participation. Four times as many awards were approved in FY 1957 than in FY 1956; awards paid last fiscal year were five times greater than in '56.

Sections participating for the first time in the past two fiscal years were S1 Adjutant, Judge Advocate, Engineer, Ordnance, Oakland Industrial Section Field Office, USA Veterinary Food Inspection Detachment and Sixth USA Regional AA Defense Command.

Other sections that participated during the fourth quarter were USA MP CID Augmentation, Special Services, Finance and Accounting, Quartermaster and Signal.

Top participant during FY 1957 was the Signal Section which received 10 of the 31 awards granted.

Army musicians have accompanied Army fighting men since the Army marched to the life and drum during the Revolutionary War, but the military band was not formalized as part of the Army until 1861.

740th Hqs. Dedication Set Monday

The 740th AAA Missile Battalion will officially dedicate its new battalion headquarters at 1000 hours, Monday, at Fort Scott. Maj. Gen. Edward J. McGaw, Commander of the 6th Region, U.S. Army Air Defense Command, and Colonel Charles G. Rau, Post Commander, will participate.

Officers taking part in honor guard ceremonies — other than those in a reviewing capacity — will wear the uniform prescribed for troops.

Formal Greetings from the senior military commander in the Western United States were extended by Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Sixth U.S. Army Commander, to His Excellency Mr. Huseyb Shaheed Aurwarady, the Prime Minister of Pakistan. Marching units representing all of the services welcomed the visitor.

Suggestions Pay More, Make More For Army

Last quarter the Post suggestion program paid the most awards and brought about the highest estimated savings during the fiscal year even though both the civilian and military participation rate dropped significantly during the quarter.

Civilian participation during FY 1957 was 9.8, 6.2 per cent below the 16 per cent goal. Military participation was 2.6 to top the one per cent goal.

During the fourth quarter $725 was paid for suggestions which brought about an estimated savings of $12,964. Totals for the year were $1,955 paid and $22,102 in estimated savings. The awards paid were double the amount paid in the previous fiscal year; however the estimated savings was about half of the total recorded in FY 1956.

Military participation increased during the fiscal year, but civilian participation decreased.

Civilians topped the 16 per cent mark in the S1-Adjutant, S3, Medical, Signal, Dental and Oakland Industrial Sections.

German Pat On The Back

Praise of the 1957 Armed Forces Day Edition of the "Star Presidian" came from afar this week when a letter was received by Col. A. J. Van Oosten, Sixth U.S. Army Inspector General Section, from a distinguished friend in Germany.

The friend, Mr. Paul Bube, is managing editor of Frankfurt's leading newspaper, "Neue Presse." Although the colonel and Mr. Bube met through a mutual American friend in Germany, Mr. Bube's first American friend was the Army captain in charge of his prisoner of war camp. Mr. Bube visited this country upon the captain's invitation, spoke at the Press Club in New York and later at the U.S. Military Academy.

His recent letter to Colonel Van Oosten states:
 "Thanks for the Army magazine 'Star Presidian.' I was surprised both at how nicely edited this magazine is and at what it contains. If you can miss one again, please let me have it."

Long Trek is begun by 537th Engineer Company surveyor. Sp3 John A. Van De Wouw ventures across a snow field while working on the Yakima Project in Washington State. The recently completed project was undertaken for the Army Map Service.

Survey Team Returns From Northwest Job

An eight-man team of surveyors from the 537th Engineer Company, 30th Engineer Group, recently returned from 82 days of field work in Washington State. Results of their work will be used in preparing another sheet in the medium scale map series of the Western States being published by the Army Map Service.

The area covered a vast and varied type of terrain, including the flat, rich Yakima Valley, the heavily wooded Gifford Pinchot National Forest and the ice-covered slopes of three mountains: Rainier, Adams and St. Helens.

Instruments and other equipment were packed in on foot in many instances because the sites could not be reached by vehicle.

Thirty-foot deep drifts of snow were encountered in the Mt. Rainier area.

Lt. Jerry Keleher was the officer in charge and Sfc. Fred Stamey served as his assistant.

Two Top Colonels Attend Seminar

Two Presidio officers were among 18 leading business executives who attended a seminar conducted by the National Cash Register Company in Dayton last week. The seminar was on the latest developments in business methods.

Colonel Cecil G. Gealta, Assistant Sixth U.S. Army Comptroller, and Colonel Edward B. Hempstead, Post Executive Officer, were among those who attended.

The invitational seminars are sponsored to provide officials of banks, industrial firms, insurance companies and various governmental bodies with previews of new methods of handling record-keeping problems.

Colonels Gealta and Hempstead participated in the meeting which placed particular stress on the role of electronics and integrated data processing in modern business record-keeping.

Liberty's Legacies

Engineer Remembers First Atomic Attack

Twelve years ago the Hiroshima atomic bomb exploded thrusting mankind into the era of atomic warfare.

Sp2 Katsumi Nagaoka of the 30th Engineer Group remembers that day, 6 August 1945, better than anyone else at the Presidio. He—an American citizen born in Stockton, Calif.—was there.

He remembers the exact time of the explosion, 0815, because his clock was stopped.

He remembers the now familiar mushroom cloud rising above the devastated city, because the wall had been blown from in front of him.

He remembers the death and destruction, the agony and terror, because he—as one of the few uninjured survivors — participated fully in the rescue operation.

He is alive to remember the blast only because early that year, 1945, he was taken from downtown Hiroshima where he was attending the Sanyo Commercial School and sent to work in an airplane parts plant located about two and a half miles from point zero. As it was, the tremendous shock demolished about 60 per cent of the wooden factory building. Between 10 and 15 per cent of the workers were killed and another 60 per cent injured.

Nagaoka was born in Stockton in 1927, and his early childhood was similar to that of any other American boy. But in 1933 his father decided to take his wife and son and visit Japan in hopes of finding a better cure to an illness he had contracted. He intended to return to California as soon as he was cured.

Pearl Harbor and World War II prevented Nagaoka from leaving Japan. He attended school during the war years until he was caught in the manpower drive. He was 17 years old when the atomic bomb fell on Hiroshima.

In 1948 after 10 years of absence Nagaoka came back to the United States. Unable to get a job in aircraft manufacturing because of the post-war cut in Air Force wings, and faced with the draft under the newly passed Selective Service Act, he volunteered for the Army.

As Nagaoka was an American citizen and had good command of both the English and Japanese languages, he was of great value to the U.S. Army in Japan. He worked as an interrogator at Translators and Interpreters Service, General Headquarters in Tokyo. In this capacity he interviewed Japanese returning from Siberian prison.

During the Korean War, Nagaoka performed valuable service for his country by interrogating Korean prisoners of war.

Currently he is assigned to the 99th Engineer Company, 30th Engineer Group, where he works as a cameraman. He was married in Tokyo in 1950 and resides in San Francisco with his wife, Mariko, son and visit Japan in hopes of and their two children.

Major Lex has completed 16 years Federal service. He was awarded the ROK and Philippine Commendation Ribbons and he wears three unit citations.

He and his wife and their two sons reside in Belmont, California.

Captain GEORGE M. KILMER was appointed the 30th AAA Group S-4 Officer by Colonel Daniel A. Ranney, 30th AAA Group Commander, this week.

A veteran of nearly 15 years of active service, Captain Kilmer was assigned to the 30th AAA Group from the 546th AAA Battalion, Carswell AFB, Texas. He served there as Battalion Executive Officer and S-4 Officer.

The captain's overseas assignments include a tour in Europe from 1945 to 1947 with the 1627th Field Artillery and the 34th Field Artillery. Then in the Far East Command with the 1st Cavalry Division. In 1955 he returned from USAREUR where he was with the Advance Section, USAREUR Communications Zone, Verdun, France.

Capt. Kilmer was graduated from the Lennox, Massachusetts, schools, the Procurement School in Europe, in 1953, and the Artillery Officers' Candidate School, Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

The new 30th AAA Group S-4 Officer lives with his wife at 1613 Chestnut St., San Francisco, California.

Vital Traffic Figures Listed By Policeman

"You can't just drive your own car these days; you've got to drive everybody else's too—on the sides, the back and, the front."

This was the message Presidio troops heard from San Francisco Police Officer John Johnson of the Traffic Education Department who spoke to them at the Post Theater Saturday.

He backed up his advice with statistics that made even the sleepiest soldier sit up on the edge of his chair:

"In the 85 square miles that make up San Francisco over a third of a million cars are registered. . . . This is 6,000 vehicles per square mile. In Los Angeles there are 700 cars per square mile."

While Officer Johnson talked to the troops Saturday morning, four people died. In other words one person died in the United States every 15 minutes.

On 17 August Officer Johnson will speak to Presidio Army personnel on the causes of accidents and what they can do to prevent them.

He returns again on 28 September to sum up his points on traffic safety, show a film and answer questions on the new California procedure for obtaining a driver's license.

Traffic Education instructor, Officer John Johnson, is welcomed to the Presidio by CWO Charles R. Young (right), chief of the Motor Division, Transportation Section, and M/Sgt. George H. Huffman, motor pool truckmaster. The San Francisco police officer Saturday spoke to Presidio soldiers on traffic safety. He will return to the Presidio for two more speaking engagements as part of the National Safety Council's "Back the Attack on Traffic Accidents" program.

First FY 1958 Army Training Exercise Schedule Revealed

Washington (ANS) — The Department of the Army has announced that EXERCISE ALL-AMERICAN will kick off a series of training exercises slated for fiscal year 1958. It will be held at Fort Bragg, N. C., for 15 days in November under the over-all supervision of the U.S. Continental Army Command.

This is the first of several tests the Army will conduct in FY 58 to gear itself to the degree of armed readiness necessary to meet the high demands of national defense.

The approximately 19,000 troops that will participate in the exercise include the 82d Airborne Division, and Operations Company of the 313th U.S. Army Security Agency Battalion (both stationed at Fort Bragg), a helicopter company and other units

Post Safety Record Dips During June

Eight Army motor vehicle and five Army aircraft accidents were recorded by the Post Safety Division during June. In addition nine disabling injuries to military and civilian personnel were reported.

The May totals were nine motor vehicle, one aircraft and nine disabling injuries. All of the June aircraft accidents were charged to the 30th Engineer Group.

The disabling injury accidents recorded in June were divided closely with military suffering five and civilians four. In May seven military and two civilian persons were disabled by injuries.

The June and FY 1957 frequency rates of military and civilian injuries were lower on Post than in the overall Sixth U.S. Army area.

to be designated by the maneuver director.

EXERCISE ALL-AMERICAN's main mission will be to train elements of the 82d Airborne in offensive and defensive operations under assumed tactical conditions with atomic weapons.

Two troop tests, one checking helicopter transport patrols from Infantry regiments to their objective, and the other determining the feasibility of utilizing air-dropped observers in enemy territory to acquire information, will be included in the 15-day exercise.

Army Assists Navy Tug Stuck In Shallow Water

A Navy deep water boat drifted into a shallow water area last Thursday and got stuck.

On Friday, with the help of an Army shallow water boat, the Navy tug was pulled back out into the deep.

Actually the Navy pulled its own boat free, but as one Navy officer admitted: "Without the help of the Army, we'd never have made it."

The Army, represented by the 561st Engineer Company (Port Construction), furnished the diver who attached the tow line from the beached boat to the rescue tug.

When the rescue tug started to pull, the waves and the wind and the drag combined to pull it sideways toward the beach. For awhile it appeared that there might be two boats on the beach.

Then the 561st's M-boat came along and started pushing sideways on the rescue tug. This corrected the drift and kept the tow boat heading out to sea.

The beached tug, which had started to wiggle, found that it helped to spin its propeller every time a wave deepened the water.

So with the rescue tug pulling and the M-boat pushing and the beached tug whirling its propeller in the waves, the rescue was accomplished.

The accident occurred as the Navy was completing the laying of an 18-mile cable from a light ship off San Francisco to a communications building located on the beach by Golden Gate Park. The Navy tug was to have transferred the cable to the Army M-boat for the final leg of the project. But before this could be accomplished the cable became entangled in the tug's propeller causing the boat to lose power and drift into the beach.

New Chemical Chief
Col. Vincent F. LaPiana

New Chemical Officer Named At Sixth Army

Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Sixth US Army commander, this week named Col. Vincent F. LaPiana Chief, Sixth US Army Chemical Section, replacing Colonel P. S. Pyuen who has assumed new duties at the Army Chemical Center, Maryland.

Col. LaPiana reported here from the Army Chemical Center, where he was assigned as Deputy Commander, U.S. Army Chemical Corps Engineer Command.

The new Chemical Chief was graduated from the Illinois Institute of Technology, and from the Radiological Defense Officer School at the Chemical Center, Maryland. During the Korean War he served in Japan and Korea with the Chemical Section, GHQ. He has been on active Federal service for the past 15 years, winning his RA commission in 1929. His military awards include the Bronze Star with Commendation.

Col. and Mrs. LaPiana are parents of three children. Their son is a student at George Washington University, Washington, D. C. One daughter is about to enter Senior High School, and their youngest daughter, born in Japan, is here with them.

7th Infantry Scheduled To Reorganize

Washington (ANS) — The Army has announced that beginning immediately the U.S. 7th Infantry Division in South Korea will be reorganized and streamlined in line with the new "pentomic" concept to keep pace with the increasing demands of modern warfare.

This brings to 10 the number of Army divisions designated for reorganization into the five-element pentomic structure. A pentomic infantry division has a strength of 13,743 men and five "battle groups" while the conventional one has 17,460 soldiers and three Infantry regiments in its makeup.

The Army presently has pentomic divisions in the U.S. Hawaii, Alaska, and Europe. Unlike the other divisions, however, the revamped 7th will not be equipped with atomic-capable weapons such as the Honest John Rocket and the Corporal Guided Missile at this time.

New "Hawk" Missile Adds To Air Defense

The Hawk, a newly developed, solid-fuel propellant missile, designed to provide low level air protection, will be operated by "Missile Master," an electronic system for controlling and coordinating fire of Nike anti-aircraft batteries, the Department of the Army has announced.

Although it is only 16 feet long and 14 inches in diameter, the Hawk carries a lethal modern warhead and is capable of destroying enemy aircraft at even the lowest altitudes.

Missile Master, which will tie the Nike and Hawk missile defense systems together, will furnish the nation an all-altitude defense against aerial attack. It collects information on the location of aircraft and their identity, presents this information on electronic displays and distributes this data to the missile firing batteries.

Operators of the system observe the activities of each battery in the system and are able to direct a specific fire unit to a particular target. They can also prevent the system from firing on friendly aircraft.

The Missile Master operates in connection with the Air Defense Sage system.

First Picture of the new Hawk, a low level missile designed to complement the high altitude Nike system, has been released by the 30th Antiaircraft Artillery Group, Fort Barry. The new missile is 16 feet long, 14 inches in diameter and uses a solid fuel propellant. Its warhead can destroy enemy aircraft at the lowest levels.

441st AAA In Training For Red Canyon Test

Once each year Nike crews have a chance to fire their missile which the rest of the time they must raise and lower, load and unload—but never shoot. Next month the East Bay's 441st AAA Missile Battalion will journey to Red Canyon Missile Firing Range in New Mexico where they will put practice into action.

Right now the battalion's batteries located at San Pablo Ridge, Rocky Ridge and Lake Chabot are undergoing intensive preparatory training. This is important because when the 441st gets to Red Canyon it will be vying with every Nike battalion in the United States for top shooting honors.

An evaluation team from the 30th AAA Group, Fort Barry, will be inspecting all procedures and methods involved in firing the Nike-Ajax during the next two weeks.

The first week they will in-

Former First Lieutenant Arthur M. Hartman and Second Lieutenant Richard L. Pardo, both of the 30th Engineer Group, received promotions this week.

Lieutenant Hartman, who was promoted to Captain, is a Dental Officer with the Group. He was granted a D.D.S. degree from the University of California in 1956.

Lieutenant Pardo, who is assigned to the 549th Engineer Company, was promoted to First Lieutenant. He was graduated from the University of Washington in Seattle and the Army Engineer School at Fort Belvoir, Va.

Presidio Reserve Unit In Training At Camp Roberts

The 305th Logistics Command, headquartered at the Presidio, is undergoing its two-week summer training at the Reserve Components Training Camp, Camp Roberts. The training will be completed Sunday.

This is the sixth annual summer training camp participated in by the Command and its fourth at Camp Roberts. Headed by Lt. Col. Raymond Haas, the 305th controls 24 smaller reserve units which include some 700 persons living in four of the Sixth U.S. Army area states.

Army Teams Set To Track Satellites

Washington (ANS) — Project VANGUARD's man-made satellite, which will be placed in orbit during the International Geophysical year that began 1 July, will be tracked by six Army teams at stations extending from the United States to Chile.

The stations, built under the direction of the Army Engineers, form the principal "fence" over which the satellite is expected to orbit. They are located at Santiago, Chile; Antofagasta, Chile; Ancon, Peru; Cotopaxi, near Quito, Ecuador; Batista Field, Havana, Cuba and Fort Stewart, Georgia.

With these tracking stations, it is hoped to prove by electronic observation that the satellite is orbiting, determine the exact position from the earth's surface as the orbit passes above and between two of the stations, and to collect data on conditions existing at altitudes reached by the satellite.

Reservists Praised For Work

"These men have been doing some real work for us—constructive projects that needed doing," is the way Capt. Charles F. McCurdy, Commander of the 561st Engineer Company, describes the activities of the 971st Engineer Company (Port Construction) now training with his company at Fort Baker.

This unit, the only reserve port construction company in the Sixth U.S. Army area, has come all the Unique Supply Display Spurs Company Thrift

If a member of the 163d MP Company walks into his supply room and becomes momentarily confused—thinking he's at the Post Exchange or a downtown department store—there's a reason for it.

All the supplies in this company supply room—expendable, organizational and individual—including those specially needed by the military policeman, are exhibited in attractive glass display cases. The 163d acquired the cases on a loan basis from the Bay Area Exchange.

"We figured the men would be more cost conscious if we displayed the items in a showcase with the prices right next to them," explains Supply Sergeant Sfc. John L. Thomas. He reports that the plan has worked well to eliminate waste and statements of charges.

Sp3 Harold P. Moothart and Pfc. Robert J. Zimmermann both assist Sergeant Thomas in the 163d supply room. Supply problems in a military police unit are extensive due to the extra items carried, such as belts, brassards, holsters, policeman's clubs, first aid packets and whistles.

Super Suppliers of the 163d Military Police Company stand proudly behind their attractive and effective glass display cases. Acquired on a loan basis from the Bay Area Exchange, the cases enable the MP supply personnel to clearly display personal, organizational and expendable items and emphasize costs. Training projects for the 971st have included building one section of a cube barge, dismantling a pier at Angel Island, cleaning up pier dismantling projects at Sausalito and on the Letterman Beach and engaging in deep sea diving training.

While Arizona is conceded to be one of the drier states in the Sixth U.S. Army area, Company Commander of the 971st, Capt. J. Y. Christiansen, explains that his company can get pretty wet training on the Colorado River. The men even have plans of setting up a diving barge on Lake Havasu in Arizona.

On Monday the company was inspected by Col. Glenn C. McBride, Chief, U.S. Army Military District, Phoenix, Ariz.

Presidio Thespians Set For First Performance

A trail blazer—first in a series of theatrical productions by the Presidio Players—is being staged at the Fort Scott Theater, 29 and 30 July, at 2000 hours.

Entitled "Boy Meets Girl," the coming Monday and Tuesday evening performance is a caricature of the Hollywood movie industry. It introduces an acting cast of 11 thespians drawn from military and civilian personnel of the Presidio. The three-act comedy is directed by Lt. Col. Thomas E. Baker, with theatrical sets by Harry Helman, and sound effects by the Letterman Army Hospital radio staff.

In the cast are Edward Maxey, James P. Cooney, Jr., Lin Chiles, Donald Canty, Col. Baker, Marilyn Baker, Jacquie Potter, George Proovo, Shon Brownlee and Ed Sause.

The newly-launched play, written by Sam and Bella Spewack was first produced on Broadway by George Abbott. It later appeared in movie form and has been frequently staged by Little Theater groups and university players.

The Presidio Players represent a Little Theater group active in furthering theatrical interests at the Presidio. The players are sponsored by the Entertainment Section of the Post Special Services. Practically all have had professional or semi-professional experience in theater productions in civilian life and in the Army.

Col. Baker is Comptroller for Letterman Army Hospital. Marilyn, his daughter, plays the part of Susie, the heroine, in "Boy Meets Girl."

Ed Maxey, who takes one of the leads, is a private assigned to MRU. He holds a degree in Theater Arts from Boston University and he has appeared with many theater groups in the New England states. He is currently a player with the

Ceremonies To Highlight Chaplain Corps' Birthday

The new Presidio Religious Activities Center will hold formal open house on Sunday, 1030 to 1500 hours, in commemoration of the 182nd anniversary of the Chaplain Corps. All Presidio people of all faiths are invited. Refreshments will be served.

Post Commander Col. Charles G. Rau will present the buildings to the Post Chaplains at 1400 hours.

The building, located on Lincoln Blvd. between the Presidio and Fort Scott, has been unofficially open since the first Sunday in July. More than 200 children have been attending Protestant Sunday school there. Already 17 of the 20 classrooms are being used, and Chaplain (Capt.) Paul M. Pease expects 500 more children when the religious education program gets into full swing.

Post Catholic Chaplain (Capt.) Robert J. Plocki reports that in coordination with the sisters of the Helpers of the Holy Souls, preparations have been completed for catechetical instruction of the Catholic school children of the Presidio.

The classes are to be taught each week beginning with Saturday, 14 September, when school registration will take place. Each grade from kindergarten through the eighth grade will have an individual teacher. All have been trained with the modern methods of teaching as outlined by the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine.

The large building is equipped with full kitchen facilities which are to be used for various night meetings and dinner get-togethers. Chaplain Pease reports that already there are more than 40 persons attending the night adult class. He anticipates forming two other adult groups: Men of the Chapel and Women of the Chapel. There also are plans for starting a Senior Citizens' Group for persons who have retired.

Five pianos are located in the building as well as an electric organ. New furniture worth $2,700 has been purchased and ample used furniture has been used to complete the furnishing of the building.

A smaller building, 681, also part of the Religious Activities Center, will be used for the religious activities of the junior and senior high students. This building will house a recreation room for young people of senior high age. It is hoped that eventually the junior high children will have a recreation room in the basement of the main building.

Chaplain Pease also has plans for running a nursery at the Center on Sundays during the Protestant church service.

Big Fund-Raising Day Success For Teenagers

Close to $200 was earned by Presidio Teenage Club members in their Work Day project planned in the interest of maintaining a financial fund to support special club activities.

The net profit, amounting to $191.05, was accrued through clean-up jobs undertaken by the young people for specified sums ranging from $25 for cleaning of a family quarters accomplished through teamwork, to odd jobs at 50 cents per hour.

Some 150 local Teenagers took part in the fund-raising project.

Two Army Chaplains Granted Commissions

The first two ministers of the Assembly of God to enter the Army Chaplains' Corps from the West Coast received direct commissions in the Corps as first lieutenants (Reserve) at the Presidio recently.

The Reverend Jules Ballas received the oath of service from Chaplain (Major) Dayton D. Drake, Sixth U.S. Army Chaplain for Reserve Components, at the Post Chapel.

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Carl S. Ledbetter, Sixth US Army Acting Chief of Chaplains, administered the oath to the Reverend Richard W. Hartman.

Chaplain (Lieutenant) Ballas will attend the Army Chaplains' School at Fort Slocum, New York, before reporting to Fort Lewis for duty.

The new chaplain received his Bachelor of Arts from the San Francisco Baptist College in 1953 and his Bachelor of Divinity degree from the Baptist Divinity School of Berkeley in 1956. While attending the seminary he served as interim pastor of the Bethel Association of God in Oakland.

Chaplain Hartman was the first one in the Sixth US Army area to take advantage of the Army Staff Specialist Branch Program for seminarians. He was commissioned a Reserve second lieutenant in June, 1954.

The new chaplain was granted his BA from the Northwest Bible College in Seattle and his Bachelor of Divinity from the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary in Berkeley. He has been assigned to Fort Lewis.

21st Engineers Down Honor Guard, Take Title

Soldier Boxer Finds Army Routine Good Conditioner

Earling rising, reveille, and PT, are things usually frowned upon by most soldiers. But for Al Lind, Jr., of Hq. Co., USA Garrison, these daily routines are things for which he is most grateful.

Al is a boxer, and nothing suits a boxer more than early hours, a steady diet, and daily exercises.

Al's fighting days date back to 1940 when he won the New York City YMCA 105 pound championship. Two years later he won the NYC Park Dept. 126 pound championship.

The highlight of his career came in 1945 when he won the NYC Golden Gloves 135 pound championship. As a result of this, he became a member of the New York City Golden Gloves team which fought some of the top Golden Glovers in the East. Captain of the New York team was none other than Roland

La Starza who, as many fans will remember, gave Rocky Marciano a tough fight for the world's heavy-weight championship a few years ago.

From 1944 until 1952, Al participated in amateur boxing where he compiled a fine record of 73 wins and 16 losses. He boxed such great fighters as Johnny Saxton, Willie Troy, and Randy Sandy, who today are all top ranking professionals.

Al turned pro in 1952. Since then he has a record of 19 wins and 10 losses. Occasionally, he boxes around the Bay Area.

Al hails from New York City where he graduated from New York City's High School of Music and Art. He majored in drawing and fine arts and this accounts for his keen interest in San Francisco theatre life.

Al's not the only boxer in his family. His father is a former amateur champion who is a boxing referee in New York.

The Presidio boxer terminates his service in November. He expects to enter college in New York and, of course, hopes to continue his boxing career.

Al is thirty years old, and when he loses a fight he blames his age and credits the other fellow with that one unbeatable quality — youth.

In one of the most thrilling games played on the Ft. Scott diamond, the never-say-die 21st Engineers came from behind to defeat a stubborn Honor Guard team by the score of 2-1 to win the Post Softball Play-off Championship.

Trailing by one run in the last of the seventh, the Engineers staged a story book finish to push across the winning run. The first man up, Clarence DeVault, beat out a perfect bunt down the first base line for a hit. The next man up, Nollie Goff, struck out. Catcher Seba Helms then lined a single into center field off the pitcher's glove. The runners advanced to second and third, and then the roof caved in for the Honor Guard.

Following the axiom that you gotta hit 'em where they ain't, centerfielder Roland Ripperger belted the ball right down the third base line, only inches from the foul line, to drive in DeVault and Helms and that was the ball game.

Nick Themely and Ed Johnson both pitched outstanding games. Themely allowed the Honor Guard three hits, while Johnson gave up only four hits.

The Honor Guard tallied their lone run in the first inning on singles by Johnson and Charlie Gritts.

The runner-ups advanced to the finals as the result of their victories over Hq. Sixth U.S. Army by the score of 9-5 and over Hq. 30th Engineers by the tune of 13-2.

As a result of their fine play this season, the 21st Engineers have been selected by the San Francisco Managers Association to be one of the teams to represent the City of San Francisco in the State Softball Tournament to be held at Sacramento beginning 1 August.

This will be a double elimination tournament with the winners going to Redwood City for the Western States Regional finals.

Regional Champs will then meet at Clear Lake, Florida, for the National Championship.

The Engineers have played excellent ball this season and should provide some stiff competition for the other teams in the tournament.

Nikes Stretch Victory Streak To Twenty-Two

Frank Kramer of the 740th AAA Mis. Bn. baseball team pitched another outstanding ball game last Friday evening as he struck out 18 batters to lead his team to a 9-2 victory over the Santa Rosa Elks, at the latter's home field.

Not to be overlooked was the team's spirit and superb fielding, as they committed but one error against Santa Rosa's three.

Leading the hitting attack for the Missilemen was Wayne Engal who hit a triple with a runner on second base, in addition to two singles in five times at bat.

In a Sunday game, behind the pitching of Bob Clark, the 740th won their 22nd game by defeating the Mill Valley VFW nine, by the score of 8-4.

Dan Patterson and Gentry both clobbered home runs for the locals. Hubie Brown, Clark, and Rudy Fuffin collected two hits apiece.

Toreros Win One, Tie One; Schedule Four More Games

The Presidio Toreros hammered out one victory and played a 1-1 tie in their last two diamond outings.

Roger Collins pitched the locals to a 7-4 victory over the San Bruno Merchants, giving up only 6 hits and fanning 12.

For the second straight week, John Zeleznock and Emelio Martinez led the hitting parade for the Toreros. Zeleznock collected 3 for 3 including one double, and Martinez smacked two doubles in four trips.

The Toreros jumped on the Merchant pitcher for four runs in the first inning by combining 2 singles, 2 walks and a double.

Last Tuesday the Presidio team journeyed to Hamilton where they engaged the Airmen in what turned out to be a tight pitching duel between Dan Cook of the Toreros and Chuck Clint of Hamilton, as the game ended in 1-1 tie.

Contrary to previous games in which the Toreros were able to score a total of 51 runs against Hamilton in four outings, the locals collected only 3 hits and one run. Cook, meanwhile, was holding the Airmen to 4 hits and 1 run.

Raphael Rios doubled and came home on Bob Jolly's single in the second inning to score the Toreros' only run.

The Presidio team will continue to prepare for the coming Sixth Army tournament with four more games this week.

Tennis Finals At Huachuca

Fort Huachuca took an early commanding lead in the Sixth US Army Southern Division Tennis Tournament overpowering two doubles opponents this week to add to their already three singles triumphs.

Fort MacArthur is second in the early going with two points and USDB, Lompoc, Calif., has one point. One point is awarded for each win in the championship bracket.

The Sixth Army Finals will be held at Fort Ord on 5-9 August.

Sixth Army Skeet Meet Ends Today

Members of the Post squad are Sfc. John Queen, M/Sgt. M. L. Dineen, M/Sgt. L. Bedell, M/Sgt. D. R. Dunsmoor, and M/Sgt. Bill Rumble.

Judy Allen, nationally renowned skeet shooter, who has won many championships in addition to setting numerous national and world records, has been present to supervise the meet.

The winner and runnerup teams and their respective top men will be presented with awards. In addition, each classification winner and runnerup will be awarded a trophy.

Post Sergeant Sets New Golf Record

Displaying Championship form is Pfc. Gordon Peak of Hq. Sixth U.S. Army who set two new diving records in last week's Sixth Army Swimming and Diving Meet at Ft. MacArthur.

Peak Sets Two Diving Records At Swim Meet

Pfc. Gordon Peak, Hq. Co., Sixth U.S. Army, set two new records at the Sixth Army Swimming and Diving Meet held at Fort MacArthur last week. He was the only Presidio squad member to be selected to the All-Sixth Army team which is competing in the All-Army finals at Ft. Crowder, Mo., this week.

Peak, an outstanding diver from Fresno State College who has won many national and state honors including the Central California Association of AAU title in 1953-54-55, won the three meter and one meter diving events to set two new Sixth Army records of 427.25 points and 422.9 points, respectively.

Other Presidio members participating in the meet were Pvt. Franklin A. Flohr from the 21st Engineers who finished sixth in the 200 meter back stroke and fifth in the 100 meter back stroke; Sp3

John T. Bohl, Det. 14-6002, who placed fourth in the 800 meter free style; and Lt. Marlin Dehaas, who placed sixth in the 3 meter diving event.

In the 400 meter medley relay, which was won by Ft. MacArthur, the Presidio squad placed fifth. Other members to make the trip were Sp3 Gary L. Cain, Pvt. Austin Coker, Pvt. Patrick Byrne and Sp3 Lindbergh Low.

The meet was won by Ft. Lewis with a total of 162 points followed by Fort MacArthur with 106 points and Fort Ord with 41 points.

Post Golfers Win Two More Over Weekend

The Presidio golfers once again displayed their power by winning two matches over the weekend.

They trimmed the Letterman Army Hospital team by the count of 16½ to 1½ and then shut out the Fairfield golfers, 18-0.

Captain George J. Reuss, Officer-in-charge of the Presidio team, remarked after last week's triumphs that the matches were "a small indication of greater things to come." He added that "the team appears to be in excellent condition."

Next match for the locals will be on 2 August against an all-star Navy team from Treasure Island.

Peggy Hits Number 13

In the last league game, the Presidio WACs clobbered the Parks Air Force WAFs by the score of 11-5. The WACs were scheduled to meet the LAH WACs yesterday at the PX softball diamond.

The WACs collected a total of 14 hits, with Peggy Harris once again leading the attack as she belted another home run to bring her season total to 13.

Rosemary Weber was credited with the win, after being relieved in the last inning as the result of being hit by a ball.

Last Tuesday, the Treasure Island Lady Marines sailed over the WACs by the tune of 10-5. Quist pitched a good game for the visitors allowing only four hits.

The locals were hampered by the loss of Harris who was unable to play that afternoon.

Wyatt Shoots Twenty-One At Pitch And Putt Course

Sfc. John P. Wyatt, of the Post Quartermaster section, shot an amazing 21 at the Presidio Pitch and Putt Golf Course this week to set a new record for the nine-hole green.

The previous record was held by former soldier Dick Yost with a 23. This is the second time this year that a Presidio golf record has been shattered. Only six weeks ago, Pfc. Allwyn Pirtle set a new mark at the Presidio Golf Course with a 63.

Sgt. Wyatt's six under par record was witnessed by Pfc. Alex "Red" Sutton and Pfc. Frank Keesling, who played the nine holes with the golfer.

According to their reports, Wyatt dropped the ball within ten feet of each hole with his first stroke.

Sgt. Wyatt was on last year's Post golf team. He plays golf almost every day at the pitch and putt course.

"B" Battery Named Champs In Two 740th Tournaments

The high-flying Battery "B" of the 740th AAA Mis. Bn. triumphed in two inter-Battery tournaments over the past week, winning the double elimination softball tournament with a record of 4 wins and no losses and then capturing the volleyball tourney with a 4 and 1 record.

In the finals of the softball tournament, "B" Btry. breezed by the runner-up team, "C" Btry. by the tune of 4-0. Members of the winning team were John J. Benacquista, Douglas B. Sands, Bobby L. Bixler, Joseph Kerchelich, Hubert J. Brown, Robert E. Dehaan, Frank Irving, Ronald J. Ross, James M. Stafford and substitutes Jack Q. Gentry, Frank R. Kramer and Donald L. Petty.

In the volleyball finals, it was again a battle between "B" Btry. and "C" Btry., with the "B" team winning in two out of three games, 15-10, 13-15 and 15-10.

Members of the winning team were Bixler, Kerchelich, Darrell D. Nance, Brown, Buffin, Ross and alternates Robert W. Michaels and Juan J. Olivarez.

In the meantime, CMD was splitting their series with the fourth-place Compt-Rollers. Marks was best for the winners with 559-232. Pacing the Rollers' attack was Morgan with 588-251. This put him in third place for the highest game of the season and in second in the highest series category, right behind Col. Esh, who still holds the top score with 674.

The Mixups, led by Bevan with 523-223, shut out the hapless Missileers by the count of 4-0. Dempsey was high man for the losers with 507-172.

The front-running Deuces of the Bay League cooled off the Hq. Co. 6th U.S. Army bowlers by taking four games from them. Thraikill was tops for the leaders with 521-185, while Bakke was high for the Hq. Co. with 458-180.

Dennis of the 56th MRU got the highest series of the week as he led his teammates to a 3-1 victory over the faltering Triple Aces. Salisbury was best for the Aces with 522-199.

The last place 740th AAA surprised again by defeating the 99ers 3 to 1. Schweikhard with 487-191 led the 740th, while Siggins paced the loser's attack with 522-199.

The Hardnoses, led by Burmeister with 551-200, surprised the front-running 46th Ordnance of the Presidio League by splitting the series with them, 2-2. DuBois led the league leaders with 602-224, which was the highest series and game of the week.

Hq. Co. Sixth U.S. Army gained a whole game on the Ordnance group by taking a 3-1 decision from the last place King Pins. High man for the winners was Corbin with 586-223, while Palomares was best for the losers with 540-190.

In the 49'er League the front-running King Pins continued their winning ways by taking another series from the Hi Fives 4-0.

The Scooters moved up to second place as the result of their 4-0 victory over the Blasters. The Clinchers moved into first division by shutting out the Missileers, 4-0. The Missileers have dropped out of the league.

The Hi Lows toppled the Live-wires by the count of 3-1.

Shortest, Longest

The shortest boxing match ever recorded took place on 24 Sept., 1946, when Al Corture of Lewiston, Me., knocked Ralph Walton out in 10½ seconds. The longest fight went 110 rounds (7 hours and 19 minutes) between Andy Bowen and Jack Burke on 6 April, 1893, at New Orleans.

Greek Ruins seem to have a special interest for our "Soldier On A State Department Tour." Presidio's Pfc. Ernie Shelton, currently touring Europe with a team of crack athletes, takes time out from his arduous assignment to pose with one of the local belles. He ... say is that. ... by gosh it is! Meet Sophia Loren, reigning queen of the long-stemmed, unfettered Italian school of dramatics. Hope the State Department furnished a chaperon.

Eye Examinations for Presidio dependents is only one of many services performed at the Post Dispensary. Above, Dr. Victor Bergstrom prepares to examine the eyes of Irene Evans. More than 5,000 persons receive medical assistance from the Post Dispensaries each month, according to Post Surgeon Col. Henry M. Greenleaf.

Babies, Obesity Listed In Dispensary Services

Each month more than 5,000 military persons and their dependents receive medical attention at the Presidio Dispensaries, Post Surgeon Col. Henry M. Greenleaf revealed this week.

In order that every individual receives the attention he deserves the Post Surgeon emphasizes the following procedures:

Make an appointment by calling extensions 3929, 4359 or 3489. Persons dropping in at odd hours who insist on being treated as an "emergency" when they are not, only interfere with the service due to others.

Medical questions can be answered by a registered nurse on duty at the Dispensary desk by calling 3929, 4359 or 3489. Patients using this service can save time for themselves and the doctors.

If you must break an appointment, let the Dispensary know as soon as possible. An average of three patients a day have not kept appointments at the Post Dispensary during the past several months. Patients are especially urged to keep appointments made for Letterman Army Hospital.

Enlisted personnel seeking routine medical care will report to the nearest dispensary from 0800 to 0900 hours. A Sick Slip (DD #689) is required. Officer Sick Call is held at 1000 hours.

Military personnel — especially officers and senior NCOs — whose condition is not acute are urged to make appointments for medical service.

All persons scheduled for immunization must bring their immunization register with them. Dependents slated to go overseas should report to Post Dispensary, Bldg. 2, as soon as possible to start the required immunizations.

From 1 July the Dependent Authorization Card entitles the holder to medical care at any convenient military medical facility.

Dependent medical care — other than hospitalization, obstetrical care and treatment of certain injuries such as fractures, dislocations, lacerations and similar wounds — is no longer provided free under the "Medicare" bill.

Military personnel and dependents desiring pre-marital examinations should report to the Dispensary at least 10 days prior to the date of marriage in order to allow time for the completion of the serology test.

The Well Baby Clinic held every Wednesday afternoon enables mothers to take "preventive" care of their pre-school age children.

Army Changes Listed For Far East, Pacific

Washington (AFPS) The Army has released details of the re-organization of its major forces in the Far East and Pacific.

In the interest of economy and simplification, various command activities have been grouped under the Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Army, Pacific, within four subordinate Army headquarters at Hawaii, Japan, Korea, and Okinawa.

At the start of FY 1958, headquarters in Hawaii went under the command of Gen. I. D. White.

General White, Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Army, Pacific, assumes command of all Army forces in the Pacific including Hawaii, Korea, Japan, and the Ryukyu Islands.

The Army forces in Hawaii will be centralized under one headquarters using an augmented command group and staff of the 25th Inf. Div.

In Korea, Gen. George H. Decker became the Commander-in-Chief, United Nations Command. He is also Commander, U. S. Forces Korea and Commanding General, Eighth Army. The United Nations Command will be relocated from Tokyo to Korea, and retained as a separate major command.

General Decker, former Deputy Commander-in-Chief, relieved Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, who became Vice Chief of Staff, U. S. Army.

At Camp Zama, Japan, a separate and subordinate headquarters has been assigned to the Eighth Army and is commanded by Lt. Gen. Charles D. Palmer.

The Army's Ryukyu Islands and the IX Corps in Okinawa, formerly commanded by Lt. Gen. James E. Moore is now under the command of Gen. White. General Moore became High Commissioner of the Ryukyus.

ARMY POWER—KEY TO PEACE

How Army Will Cut 50,000

The Star Presidian

Vol. 6, No. 10

PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

Friday 2 August, 1957

Scissors Ready Major General Edward J. McGaw, Commander of the 6th Region, U.S. Army Air Defense Command, prepares to cut the ribbon and officially open the new 740th AAA Missile Battalion headquarters for business. Post Commander Col. Charles G. Rau (right) and Sixth U.S. Army Deputy Chief of Staff Col. John G. Ondrick also participate in the ceremony which took place Monday at Fort Scott.

25,000 "Slow" EMs Set For Discharge

Washington (ANS)—The Army today announced it will reduce its strength in line with the cut directed by the Secretary of Defense of 5,530 officers and 44,470 enlisted men by 31 December, 1957.

Here is the way it will work.

The number of officers called to active duty between now and 1 January, 1958, will be reduced (persons affected here will be the Reserve officers who were expected to apply for active duty) but ROTC graduates, already scheduled for two years' active duty will be called as planned.

About 1,500 officers now on active duty in the grades of colonel through captain will be given involuntary releases. They will be considered for release by a Department of the Army board upon nomination of the chiefs of service and officer assignment branches.

Officers designated for release will be notified by 15 November and afforded a maximum separation notice of 60 days plus travel time to their homes. The Army hopes to notify most persons of their separation by 15 October. Under the reduced grade structure approximately 100 colonels, 390 lieutenant colonels, 570 majors and 490 captains will be released.

Certain officers who were slated to be separated after January, 1958, because of promotion pass-over or category denial will now be released from active duty in November. Others whose categories expire in the last half of FY 58 and are not being accepted for continued active duty will also be separated by November.

In the early part of 1958 the Army plans to separate retirement qualified officers who have been retained on active duty to fill shortages in the grade structure or critical specialties.

Of the approximately 530 warrant officers now on active duty who will be released, priority for separation purposes will be placed on the least productive group. Releases will also be effected in areas where substantial overstrength in MOS's such as Personnel Management Officer, Administrative Assistant, Food Advisor, Quartermaster Supply Officer, Engineer Supply and Spare Parts Officer, Signal Supply Officer, Engineer Equipment Maintenance and Repair Officer, Ordnance Ammunition Officer, Field Medical Assistant, Medical Supply Officer, Legal Administrative Assistant, Finance Disbursing Officer and Fiscal Officer exist.

Also reemphasized by the Department of the Army is the screening of Regular officers for elimination under the statutory provisions of Title 10 U.S. Code. They will be separated if they fail to meet the same active duty standards as those being applied to the Reserve officer on active duty.

Reduced draft calls and separations of personnel who are unable to meet the complex requirements of a reduced but more competent Army will take care of the bulk of the enlisted separations by the end of this year.

The Army expects to discharge 25,000 enlisted men who lack the aptitude to absorb the more technical training by December 31, 1957. Top priority in this action will be to discharge ineffectives now in the training phase.

Key Staff Position
Col. H. W. Browning

Pointer Will Fill Army G3 Position

Colonel Harold Webb Browning has been named Assistant Chief of Staff G3 by Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Sixth U.S. Army Commander. He succeeds Colonel Franklin G. Smith, who has been temporarily reassigned as Assistant to the Chief of Staff.

A West Pointer, Class of '34, Col. Browning reported here from the National War College at Ft. McNair, Washington, D. C.

During WWII, he served with the 66th Infantry Division and later Headquarters of the United States Forces European Theater. Colonel Browning also saw action during the Korean conflict as Artillery Commander and Executive Officer of the Second Infantry Division. He completed his Far Eastern assignment with the G4 Section, Headquarters, 8th Army.

Colonel Browning has completed the Command and General Staff Course and the Armed Forces Staff College. He also spent three years in the G3 Section, Department of the Army, and later served at the Pentagon with Artillery Career Management.

He holds the Legion of Merit, Croix de Guerre and the Bronze Star Medal.

Colonel and Mrs. Browning will reside at the Presidio. Daughters Helen and Anne are currently attending college.

Justice Class

A makeup class in Military Justice Training, Course B, is being held at the Post Theater, 2 August, from 0800 to 1530 hours. Warrant officers and enlisted men who have not completed the course are required to attend.

Vaccine Shortage Past; Urge Boosters For All

The temporary shortage of polio vaccine has been overcome and shots are now available to all Post military personnel and dependents on a voluntary basis, according to Col. H. M. Greenleaf, Post Surgeon.

Two injections of the vaccine offer a high degree of immunity to polio. The third or booster shot is given seven months after the first shot.

Alert 30th Pilot Averts Fire Disaster

Because of the keen observation and the quick thinking of a 30th Engineer Group helicopter pilot, the home of a Stockton family was saved from destruction by fire.

Captain Bernard R. Cobb, of the 521st Engineer Company, was on a routine flight on the outskirts of Stockton, accompanied by Mr. Myron R. Nevin, of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, when he spotted a brush fire raging unattended, dangerously close to an adjacent house.

Captain Cobb immediately landed his H-23 helicopter beside a nearby road and flagged down a motorist, who in turn called the local fire department.

Throughout the fire fighting activities of the authorities, Captain Cobb hovered over the area and aided in the direction of the ground crews until the fire had been quelled.

Because of Captain Cobb's efforts, damage to the house was only slight and a possible disaster was averted.

parents under 40 whose children have been vaccinated and those who will be traveling in areas where polio is more prevalent than in San Francisco are especially urged to get the shots.

One-third of all polio cases occur in California; the effects of the disease are most severe among the young adult group between the ages of 20 and 30.

To get the injections, military personnel should apply at their usual medical facility of primary care. Dependents may make appointments at the Post Dispensary by calling Ext. 2285.

Night Study, Hard Work Wins Private Commission

A Rfc. with a U.S. serial number became a reserve second lieutenant in the artillery at the Presidio last week.

Pfc. Robert Campbell Pugh says it took him about three and a half months of nightly study to complete his pre-commission series of tests. "I thought it would be a way to better myself and at the same time I would be doing a more important job for the Army," are the reasons stated by Private Pugh for seeking his reserve commission.

As the commission was not accompanied by a concurrent call to active duty, Private Pugh will remain an enlisted man during the remainder of his tour.

When he returns to civilian status he will have a three-year active reserve obligation as an officer instead of a two-year active

Bradley Dies; To Be Buried Here Today

A former chief of staff at the Presidio, Major General James Lester Bradley, Ret., will be buried with full military honors at the Cenotaph here this afternoon at 1400 hours.

The 65-year-old general, who formerly commanded the 96th Infantry Division in the Pacific during World War II, died of a heart attack at the home of his daughter on Tuesday.

He was a graduate of the United States Military Academy and retired from active duty in January of 1947. General Bradley held the Distinguished Service Medal, Legion of Merit and the Bronze Star Medal.

duty requirement as an enlisted man. Following the active reserve period, he will have an indefinite obligation in the inactive reserve. If he had remained an enlisted man, his inactive reserve obligation would have lasted two years.

Private Pugh, who is interested in missile work, chose the artillery because he feels the future of this branch is all missiles. He has an AB degree in merchandising from San Jose College.

Knowledge Of First Aid Could Prevent Tragedy

Safety rules protecting swimmers and boaters appeared in the Star Presidian last week. Accidents do occur, however, and tragedy can often be avoided by following the latest adult artificial respiration rules as suggested by Col. H. M. Greenleaf, Post Surgeon.

The main idea behind artificial respiration is to drain as much liquid as possible from the respiratory system and to maintain a patent, adequate airway. The "push-pull" or "arm-lift-back pressure" method is recommended for everyone except infants and small children.

In this method the patient is placed in a prone position on his stomach and all foreign matter such as debris, mucus, froth and dentures is removed from the mouth. Pull the patient's tongue forward and kneel in front of his head placing your hands on his back just below the shoulder blades. Your thumbs should almost meet and the fingers spread.

Now apply uniform downward pressure by bending forward with your elbows straight. This movement empties the lungs. Gradually release this pressure by straightening up.

Next slide your hands up the patient's arms just below the elbows. Lift his arms upward and forward until resistance is met. This movement draws air into the lungs. Allow the arms to fall back into the initial position and repeat the entire method 10 to 12 times per minute.

Because of the alarming number of deaths due to drowning—second only to traffic accidents as major cause of nation's fatalities—Red Cross has intensified its campaign for water safety by making available to the public a manual to guide parents in teaching their children to swim.

The 36-page booklet with numerous sketches, "Teaching Johnny to Swim," emphasizes the parent's responsibility to make the child aware of water hazards and to instill in him the desire to be safe in, on, and around water. The booklet describes 18 steps in the process of learning to swim, from the first essential, one of implanting the desire to learn, through the stages, getting accustomed to the water, prone and back floats, a stroke on the front and on the back, turning over in the water, and changing positions, to diving.

It also illustrates simple safety precautions and rescue methods. Copies may be obtained at no cost at the Red Cross Office, Building 97, Presidio of San Francisco.

District Engineer Wins Another Key Appointment

Brigadier General William F. Cassidy, division engineer for the Army's South Pacific Division Corps of Engineers, yesterday was named to the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors.

In the past 30 days he has also been elected Chairman of the Pacific Southwest Inter-Agency Committee and appointed to membership on the United States Committee of the International Commission of Large Dams.

Yesterday's appointment means General Cassidy will be responsible for reviewing major rivers and harbors and flood control proposals from all parts of the nation.

In addition to being responsible for the engineering, construction, maintenance and operation work of flood control and navigation projects, General Cassidy also has charge of an active military construction program within the four-state area of California, Arizona, Nevada and Utah. Included are projects at all Air Force bases in the area; construction of the Army's Nike sites, and the major construction on Army posts such as Fort Ord and Fort Huachuca.

The general was graduated from West Point in 1931. He was assigned Division Engineer 1 June 1955.

Specialty Series

Map Maker Must Be Accurate

A map must be accurate to be of use. That Army maps are of such high quality is a credit to the skill of the men who make them. Such a man is Sp2 John H. Price of the 99th Engineer Company, 30th Engineer Group.

He is concerned with the production of the maps and his special skill is making the plates which are used in the presses to print the finished maps. He must take the many negatives and overlays which go into the finished product and combine them to make one plate for each color to be printed.

This job must be done with meticulous care. A good plate will result in a smooth printing operation and a fine result. Any small inaccuracy or smudge will show itself in the final print often resulting in considerable loss of materials.

Aluminum or zinc grained plates are used for the job. The plates is Sp2 John H. Price of the 99th Engineer Company, 30th Engineer Group. His special skill is making the plates used for printing the completed map. The job requires a high degree of accuracy and can only be performed by a man who knows his job well. Sp2 Price has spent nine of his 15 Army years in the printing and reproduction field and is pleased with the fine training he has received.

are coated with a sensitive solution, placed next to the negative in an airtight frame and exposed to carbon arc lights.

The exposed plates are coated with developing ink and then washed off with water. Exposed areas retain the ink while the balance is washed off. Accuracy is the key to this whole operation. The many negatives must be exposed in exact register with each other, and the exposure time must be exact and the lines must be perfect. Even slight changes in the humidity affect the process and must be compensated for.

Sp2 Price, who has been in the Army for 15 years, has spent the past nine years in the printing and reproduction field. In 1943 he was assigned to the Adjutant General Printing Plant at Fort Eustis, Tex., where he did all types of printing except maps. He did learn offset printing which is used in map production.

His first experience in map printing came in 1953 when he served with the 66th Engineer Topo Company in Stuttgart, Germany. From there he was assigned to the 30th Engineer Group in March of 1956.

A native of Paducah, Ky., Sp2 Price lives with his wife and son at the Presidio. He is enthusiastic about the opportunity offered by the Army to learn the printing field—skills that would take years of apprenticeship in a commercial printing plant.

Sees U.S. 'Land Of Opportunity'

Private Philip Yoh has lived under the rule of both Nationalist and Communist China, the Japanese occupation, and British Hong Kong.

Currently he is assigned as astronomer for the 30th Engineer Group occultation team. After separation from the Army he plans to return to college.

Opportunity for advancement in his opinion is the outstanding advantage of living in the United States.

Born in Shanghai, China, Philip lived under the Japanese occupation from 1941 to 1945. While many American children of his age were having trouble with reading and writing, his greatest trouble was finding enough to eat.

When the war ended in 1945 things started to return to normal. Philip entered Utopia University and studied civil engineering.

After only four years the peace was shattered with the Chinese revolution, which toppled the Nationalist government and brought the Communists to power. At the university this change was reflected in the change of instruction. Technical studies were immediately augmented by a large number of classes in politics which spread the party line. Mass meetings were held every week in an effort to turn the students into ardent Communists.

Upon graduation in 1952, Philip was ordered to work for the government which now controlled all industry. But he had reached his decision. Traveling south he made his way to the Hong Kong border. There, because he could speak the Cantonese dialect, he was allowed to cross.

Two of his brothers had left China ahead of the Communists and one was then living in Hong Kong. Philip lived with this brother for the next four years. For a year he attended the University of Hong Kong. Then he worked for a diesel engineer manufacturer and later for the government architectural office as a surveyor.

But the influx of refugees from Communist China had caused a tremendous overcrowding in the city. Philip decided to come to America following the path of his other brother and many cousins.

Arriving in July, 1956, he went immediately to New York. There he worked as a designer of hydraulic systems. After six months he decided to further his education and enrolled in the University of Illinois. Two months later he was called into the Army.

He reports he has had no trouble adjusting to the United States. In Hong Kong he was exposed to western ideas and culture. For years in China he studied English.

Alert Soldiers Aid In Million-Dollar Blaze

For Two suggestions Major General John J. Binns, Sixth Army Chief of Staff, presents a check for $125 to Herbert S. Bobbitt, supervisor of the Sixth U.S. Army Communication Center. General Binns made the presentation personally to emphasize the importance of the Army-wide Project Pay Dirt, a title given the Army's Incentive Awards program for the month of July.

Final Week Of 'Pay Dirt' As Three More Win Awards

Three civilian employees at Sixth U.S. Army Headquarters received Army incentive awards directly from Maj. Gen. John J. Binns, Sixth U.S. Army Chief of Staff, during the closing days of Project Pay Dirt, a title given the Army's Incentive Awards program for the month of July.

Top money winner was Donald A. Marcy, Sixth U.S. Army Comptroller Section. He received a certificate and check for $200 for sustained superior performance of his duties as a program analyst.

Herbert S. Bobbitt, supervisor of the Sixth U.S. Army Communication Center, received $125 for two suggestions. One of the suggestions was in the form of a message guide showing the most inexpensive way to send a communication.

Mrs. Shirley J. Smith, stenographer, Sixth U.S. Army Engineer Section, received a certificate and check for $10 for her "Suggested Method of Handling Suspense Copies of Correspondence." She is the wife of Sfc. Paul Smith, a food inspector with the Presidio Veterinary Food Inspection Detachment.

Name Clifford To Engineer Staff Slot

Colonel Carlton M. Clifford is the new Deputy Division Engineer for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (South Pacific Division). His primary position will be in supervisory capacity over all military construction in Arizona, California, Nevada and Utah.

Col. Clifford's appointment was announced by Brigadier General William F. Cassidy, Division Engineer, under whose authority the new deputy will implement Army Engineer projects in the Western areas.

Col. Clifford was graduated from the US Military Academy in 1930. He resides with his wife and their infant son, in Fairfax, Calif.

To Reorganize Staff At 30th Engineer Unit

The 30th Engineer Group has announced the following reorganization to become effective within the next week. Major Carrol H. Wood, Group Executive Officer has been chosen to attend Ohio State University, where he will do graduate work in Civil Engineering.

Major Wood, a native of Kansas, received his B.S. in CE at Colorado University in 1943, and his commission in August 1943. He has been with the 30th Engineer Group since December 1954 and served previously as Chief of the Intelligence Section, 515th Engineer Liaison Detachment in Europe.

Major Wood holds the Purple Heart and the Silver Star, both of which were received in Europe in 1944 and 1945 respectively. He now resides with his wife and three children on the Presidio. Major Wood will be replaced as Group Executive Officer by Lieutenant Colonel Vernie Slayter.

Other reorganization within the Group has sent Major Lloyd Stromgren, Commanding Officer of the 660th Engineer Battalion, to Group S-3. He will be replaced as Battalion Commander by Lieutenant Colonel Richard M. Underwood. Major Ronald Siteiner has moved over from Group S-3 to become Battalion Executive Officer.

Sp3's Phone Call Brings Quick Battery Response

An alert Army Specialist, Sp3 Merle E. Strock, Btry. C, 9th AAA Missile Battalion, helped avert a major catastrophe in the million-dollar fire in San Rafael, Monday night.

On the scene at the start of the blaze, Sp3 Strock called his battery CQ, Sfc. Charles G. Tucker, who immediately took a fire truck, driven by Pfc. Hardy L. Jamison, and ten men to the aid of local firefighters.

Later, following a hurry-up call for more help from Sgt. Donald F. Grubb, a battery fire controlman, another group of 25 men in charge of Sgt. Elliott S. Black raced to the fire. Pfc. Roy Merwerth was the driver of the second truck. Also on hand in case of emergency was the battery ambulance driven by Sp3 Leroy A. Schiro.

The soldiers helped fight the blaze until it was brought under control some two and one-half hours later.

Today, following letters of appreciation from San Rafael civic leaders, Major John Doane, Commander of the 9th AAA, forwarded a commendation to the unit:

It is a distinct pleasure for me to commend the personnel of Battery C who volunteered their services the night of 29 July 1957 to assist the City of San Rafael during the worst fire in its history. The speed and enthusiasm with which these men responded is indicative of the sincere regard we hold for the communities we are here to protect. The efficiency displayed in employing fire fighting equipment is further evidence of the flexibility of the American Soldier, and reflects a high state of preparedness in Battery C.

I extend my appreciation to the men concerned for furthering the good reputation of this battalion and for strengthening the ties between this battalion and the people of San Rafael.

The unit commander, Capt. Herman W. Groller, also congratulated his troops for their fine performance in an official letter:

It is with a great deal of pleasure and a sense of pride that I congratulate personnel of this battery who voluntarily offered their services during the recent fire in downtown San Rafael. Reacting to the emergency in the willing way you did, not only strengthened our ties with the local community, but reflected great credit on the military establishment.

Our relations with the civilian populace, as you know, are of great importance to all of us. Incidents which improve these relations, such as the one in which you recently participated, go a long way to raise our prestige as soldiers.

Once again may I commend personnel of this battery who unselfishly gave their time and effort in the hour of need.

Four Judges are among the 117 judge advocate reserve officers who have been attending summer training at the Presidio during the past two weeks. From the left the judges are Col. John P. Oliver, commissioner, superior court, Los Angeles;

Col. Eugene A. Wright, and Col. Donald L. Gaines, both judges of the Superior Court, Seattle, and Lt. Col. John F. Aiso, judge of the Municipal Court, Los Angeles Judicial District.

Set Mock Trial On Moot Point

More than 100 lawyers—including judges and professors—from the eight western states have been taking the Judge Advocate General Corps Course (USAR), at the Presidio during the past two weeks.

The 6232nd ARSU USAR School, Fort Douglas, Utah, commanded by Colonel Victor L. Olsen, is conducting the course for the second summer in a row here at the Presidio.

Besides military justice the lawyer reservists have received training in many other fields of military affairs including procurement law, international law problems and training and operations of the judge advocate officer, according to Maj. Byron Mock, JAG Branch Director of the school.

The practical side of the training has included a turn on the pistol range for all the trainees. They also participated in a mock accident scene that was so real the Post Military Police stopped to investigate.

Today the lawyers are going to witness a moot court murder case. Some of the background for this type of case was discussed earlier in the week by Capt. Jean Wolfe of the Sixth Army Judge Advocate Section. He spoke on some of the recent court decisions such as the Girard case.

The Judge Advocate General Corps Course takes nine years to complete through the USAR program. Those participating attend 24 meetings at a branch school and two weeks of summer training each year. Branch schools which have sent reservists to the Presidio are located at Spokane, Seattle, Portland, Boise, Santa Monica, Fort MacArthur, San Francisco and Fort Douglas.

This year's summer school has included 103 students, 14 faculty members and 11 staff administrators. The two-week school comes to a close at 1130 tomorrow.

Many of the lawyers have brought their wives with them to San Francisco during their training period. As Major Mock explains: "Many of these men—for whom law is a year around occupation—don't have time to take two vacations so they bring their wives along to vacation while they train."

Maj. H. G. Miller has been a staff visitor from the JAG School at Charlotte, Va. Lt. Col. William E. Welch is project officer representing the Sixth Army Judge Advocate Section.

Maintenance Meet Underway At Stillwell Hall

A three-day conference of Command Maintenance Inspection teams in the Sixth US Army area convened this week at Stillwell Hall to cover all command missions in Reserve Component.

Four teams representing the Presidio, Fort Lewis and Fort MacArthur, officiated at the Maintenance Inspection meeting. Among local officers representing the Presidio at the conference were Col. Bruce D. Mooring, Sixth Army Ordnance chief; Col. David A. Watt, jr., Sixth Army IG; Col. Laurance H. Brownlee, Sixth Army G-4, and Capt. John H. Whitman, Sixth Army Ordnance Section.

Corcoran Named Executive Officer At 46th Ordnance

Finance's New Shop Offers Easier Access, Higher Morale

Pay day has given many Post personnel the opportunity to see the new temporary quarters of Post Finance and Accounting Section now located on the Presidio's Montgomery Street facing the main parade ground, Bldg. 102.

"Before, we were so crowded that it was pretty confusing to John Q. Public," says Post Finance Officer Lt. Col. Louis C. Mulvaney, who explains, "Now, the personnel we service are able to walk in, go directly to their place of business and depart."

The section now has access to 20,000 square feet of floor space; before it had only 9,000 square feet. Now the entire section is located on three floors of one building; before the activities were spread out in four different buildings, 227, 223, 200 and M-39.

The location of activities is designed so that personnel having claims — pay, travel, and allowances—can step into one door and be serviced immediately by the Examination Division. From there they step into the adjoining room where they are paid by the Disbursing Division. A second door takes the flow of traffic outside and eliminates backtracking.

The Machine Service Division, a new unit of the Finance and Accounting Section, is located in a large basement room. The electronic business machines of this section will be given a variety of tasks. Already civilian personnel checks are run off on an electronic tabulator with bill feed. These machines are expected to be used for financial inventories of the installation's technical services, cost and performance reports and billing.

Blown fuses and short circuits which plagued the machine operation in its old location are no longer a problem. The new facilities include a transformer station to handle the electrical load. In addition the modern electrical circuit installed in the building makes it possible to move machinery and rearrange office layouts with a minimum of effort. An overhead electrical trolley system makes it possible to plug machines in anywhere.

Smooth Flow of business is now possible at the new temporary quarters of the Post Finance and Accounting Section. Above, newcomer to the Presidio Capt. Vernon R. Prichard has his papers inspected by Sgt. Leona Brandt of the Examination Division. From there he will walk only a few steps to the cashier window in the Disbursing Section for payment. Another door will take him outdoors again. Sp3 Maxine Silva, also of the Examination Division, is working the adding machine.

Modern fluorescent lighting and a light green interior combine to form a light and airy working atmosphere for the 102 civilians, 28 enlisted personnel and three officers who work for Finance and Accounting.

Workers started preparing Bldg. 102 for occupancy during May. The actual moving took place over the weekend of 13, 14 July. The preparation for the move was especially difficult as it came right at the end of the fiscal year when the section had a great many extra duties.

"Both military and civilian personnel put in long, arduous hours preparing for the move," reports Colonel Mulvaney. "Each and every individual took a personal interest in the move to our new quarters."

The Finance Chief states that the new location for the section has meant "a 100 per cent lift in morale for the personnel of the section." "This should mean an increase in productivity and efficiency," he adds.

There is even a lounge for the civilian employees during their coffee breaks. Formerly it was a soldier day room.

Two-Time Mess Winner

For the second time in 15 months the 30th AAA Group's Best Mess Award has gone to A Battery, 740th AAA Missile Battalion. Col. Daniel A. Ranney, 30th Group Commander, presented the plaque at the Nike site to Sfc. Donald P. Roach, unit mess steward for the past 23 months.

Three Win Cash At Cal Military For "Pay Dirt"

Three civilian employees of the California Military District received cash awards totaling $215 for sustained superior performance and a suggestion to improve efficiency in handling correspondence recently.

Colonel Frank R. Maerdian, Deputy Chief, presented two of the awards in a brief ceremony at the district headquarters. Mr. Francesco Mondero, mail clerk, received an award of $100 for assuming responsibility beyond the normal requirements of his job. An award of $15 went to Mr. Robert Robinson, Administrative Services Division, for his suggestion to more efficiently assemble outgoing correspondence for the district.

Miss Ellen A. Cole, clerk-typist in the Office of the Professor of Military Science and Tactics at the University of California at Berkeley, received an award of $100 for her high caliber of performance and production, and for her willingness to accept responsibility.

Watch That Stripe, Soldier!

It is no longer authorized to wear a stripe indicating a basic branch on the Army Blue and Blue Mess uniforms according to Headquarters Sixth US Army circular Number 8.4-5.

Other information contained in the circular included information that the specifications of the proposed new artillery insignia have not yet been approved by the Department of the Army.

Personnel are advised that a commercial organization is presently selling the insignia to members in the field. All individuals are advised that wearing of this insignia is not presently authorized. When approved, this item is to replace the present insignia beginning in 1958.

A regulation change now authorizes commanding officers to prescribe the wearing of the shoulder sleeve insignia on the herringbone twill and/or fatigue jacket.

Did you know . . . that there is one small white headstone in the Presidio National Cemetery which marks the grave of a woman soldier who once served as aide de camp to an officer in the Confederate Army? . . . There is . . . and on the stone is a name that carries what must surely be one of the most permanent typographical errors in existence. . . .

The stone's inscription reads "Pauline C. Tyer, Union Spy." . . . Pauline was a spy all right . . . a spy for the Union Army. . . . But the stonecutter's chisel slipped in the carving of Pauline's monument. . . . At the time of her death in San Francisco she was the wife of Jerry Fryer . . . an Arizona sheriff!

Pauline was really an aide de camp only in the cause of espionage. . . . She was born in New Orleans . . . daughter of a Frenchwoman and a Madrid import merchant. As a beautiful, stagestruck brunette she hit the road to fame in New York . . . as Pauline Cushman . . . When the Civil War broke out she was acting in a road show in Louisville, Ky. . . . where she took a dare and a bribe from a captive Confederate officer, quartered there with other prisoners, to stand on stage during her performance and drink a champagne toast to Jefferson and the Confederacy. She was applauded and fired on the same evening.

(Earlier that same night Pauline had gone to the Union provost marshal at Louisville, and pledged herself as a spy . . . to die if necessary for the Union cause.)

As a secret service agent the young actress drew up lists of the North's enemies and gathered information on shipments of supplies and operations of guerrilla bands. She learned about Southern spies and how they worked. Discovered how Confederate sympathizers sent letters across the lines by folding them and sticking them in the craw of a chicken carried by a farm girl . . . other Southern dispatches were pushed inside the handles of butter knives.

Confederate soldiers excused themselves for their admiration of her by asking, "Who could help admiring such a magnificent specimen of womanhood . . . rebel or not?"

Pauline was instructed by her Secret Service agency to encourage soldiers socially . . . to ride through the fortifications with them . . . never to ask direct questions . . . but to observe everything . . . and to be often at the bedside of the wounded, where she would inquire innocently whether they were getting enough medicines . . . and where the medical supplies were coming from. She must remember everything without taking a single note!

Her story after that reads like an Arabian Night's tale . . . of travel and intrigue . . . of love-making for the cause of patriotism . . . of an imagined "lost brother" for whom she "searched" behind the Confederate lines in Mississippi . . . of letters of safe convoy from military officers whose favor she won . . . of an officer in the Confederate bastion in Vicksburg who had a grey uniform tailored for her so that she could travel as his aide . . . and for him . . . the war took on an unaccustomed luster!

But Pauline began to feel over-confident . . . and perhaps a little tired! She now took written notes on what she saw and heard . . . vital information on enemy fortifications . . . given over dinner tables as though she were her confidants' ally . . . she probably heard too much to memorize it all, so she began to hide the written information between the double cork soles of her tiny Army brogans.

Pauline rode on horseback . . . flirted outrageously . . . was captured and escaped . . . one day the Union's darling and most daring spy . . . the next . . . a dedicated ally of the Confederates.

Finally Pauline was captured by the Confederates . . . their biggest war prize . . . complete with the written notes which betrayed her . . . taken when she had stolen a horse and already given the pass word to six pickets enroute. "Damn her," said one officer, "she could be as beautiful as Venus, but I'll still hang her from the highest tree!"

She was courtmartialed and sentenced to be hanged as a spy . . . but she beat the Confederates again by feigning serious illness. This ruse held up her trial until the first victorious Union soldiers took over Shelbyville. She turned over the last of her information to them and ended her military career.

On a rainy June day in 1863, two Generals carried Pauline from her hospital room in a chair, while a Major held an umbrella over her head.

In the late eighties, she came to San Francisco to play in the "Gypsy Queen" at the Metropolitan Theater. And in 1893 . . . the famous woman Spy of the Cumberland died alone in a third-floor room on Market Street.

The Grand Army of the Republic buried her with full military honors . . . in Golden Gate Cemetery. Her body was later brought to the Presidio National Cemetery for re-burial here . . . 30 paces east of the flagpole.

Enlistment Note . . .

Dear Army: 'You're Wonderful'

"Dear Army," said the letter from 11-year-old Barry Bates. "I want to be a career man in the Army . . . they are so neat in doing everything. . . ." And in the meantime could he have a tour of any Army post in the area.

He could! Colonel Thomas R. W. Skinner, commander of the Bay Area Army Transportation Terminal Center at Fort Mason—and final recipient of the letter—not only invited young Barry but told him to bring along some boy friends, too.

And then the tour began. At Fort Mason the boys saw hand weapons, bowling alley, craft shop, service club, day room and they noisily tested some loose instruments in the band's rehearsal room.

To these young men of growing age the noontime "Army chow" was the real high point. Above, drooling with anticipation are, from the left, Barry, Werner Ehrlich and Gregor Hicks, both eleven, and nine-year-old Joe Brusco. "Wow," said the boys when they saw the three kinds of dessert. "Is the food always this good?" "Right!" said Sp2 Howell.

The boys visited the Presidio during the afternoon where they saw old Fort Point, Army airplanes at Crissy Field and the Nike lineup at Fort Funston. The afternoon retreat parade topped off the day.

"I just thought I never enjoyed anything as much in my life," Barry summed up in a thank you note.

Ed Level Going Up At 740th AAA Battalion

Members of B Battery, 740th AAA Missile Battalion, have been hard at work raising their educational level under the direction of TI&E NCO Sgt. Thomas J. Boe.

To arrange a program whereby a maximum number of men could take their high school GED tests, he contacted M/Sgt. Cecil C. Bartholomew, who agreed to administer the tests right at the battery three days a week.

To date, 29 men have completed the high school tests, one man has completed the one-year college GED test and five men have completed the grammar school aptitude achievement tests.

The Presidio dance will have music by The Paul Frey quintet, while Fort Cronkhite NCO Open Mess boasts dance music by The Hi-Fi's five-piece band.

Dinner is available at the Presidio Non-Com Open Mess, before the dance; Fort Cronkhite will serve a free hot dog feast.

56 Pints of blood flowed into the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank, recently, when members of Btry. D, 740th AAA, sited at Newark, donated for the benefit of Letterman Army Hospital and their city. Here Sp3 Seiger Harrison does his share with an able assist from Nurse Helen Goldsteine.

The play, boasting a cast of 11 military and civilian actors and actresses, introduced a caricature of the Hollywood movie industry, introduced by professional and semi-professional stage and TV entertainers currently attached to the military service.

"Boy Meets Girl" was first in a series of similar productions to be produced by the new group comprising The Presidio Players, under direction of Post Special Services.

The 30th AAA Group will hold a double elimination softball tournament at Fort Baker on 14-17 August. Teams from the 9th, 436th (Travis Air Force Base), 441st and the 740th AAA Missile Battalions will compete.

Battalion teams will be made up of "all stars" from battery level clubs which have been competing with each other for the past several months.

The winner of this Tournament will travel to Fort MacArthur to play in the 6th Region, U.S. Army Air Defense Command tournament to be held from 5 to 12 September. There they will compete with champions from the Seattle, Hanford and Los Angeles areas.

The winner of the 6th Region tourney will play in the All-U.S. Army Air Defense Command finals which will be held at Ft. Baker on 19-26 Sept.

Tuna is one of the widest ranging species in the Pacific Ocean. A yellowfin tagged March 8, 1957, off El Salvador, was caught two months later off Manzanillo, Mexico, a movement of 900 miles.

Harris Belts Three More As Presidio Swamps LAH

Lucy Aliano, chief scorekeeper for the Presidio WACs, had a job on her hands last Friday as the WACs smothered the hapless LAH femmes by the score of 27-0.

The locals bombarded the LAH pitcher for 20 hits, including eight home runs. Peggy Harris had a perfect day at bat getting four for four, including three roundtrippers which upped her season total to 16.

Peak Second In All-Army Swim Meet

Pfc. Gordon Peak of Hq. Co., Sixth U.S. Army, who set two new Sixth Army records at the Ft. MacArthur meet two weeks ago, faced stiffer competition at the All-Army Finals at Ft. Crowder last week as he took runner-up honors against Gary Tobian of Scofield Barracks, Hawaii, in the one-meter and three-meter diving events.

Tobian, who is the National Platform champion and who was runner-up in the 1956 Olympic games at Melbourne, Australia, beat his opponent by 40 points.

Mary Phillips belted two homers and Dorothy Alexander, Lee Brandl and Beatrice Van Houten all collected one home run apiece for the WACs.

Rosemary Weber and Mary Willard both pitched for the locals, allowing a total of three hits.

Pirates Win First Game In Final Go

The Pirates got off to a flying start this week as they trimmed the Dodgers 7-4 in the opening game of the second half of Pony League play.

Tommy Mlakar hurled a four hitter to take credit for the Pirate win. Butch Riggs of the Dodgers also pitched a good game, allowing only five hits.

Dennis Youngdahl of the Dodgers hit what would have been a home run but fell while rounding third base and consequently was thrown out at the plate.

A doubleheader will be played this Saturday beginning at 1300 hours at the Youth Baseball Field. The Pirates will play the Tigers, while the front-running Braves tangle with the Dodgers in the nightcap.

The teams appear to be better balanced for the second half of play due to several new players joining several of the teams.

Presidio Quint In League Tie For Drake Title

The Presidio basketball team, runner-up in last season's All-Army Tournament, is getting in some good practice for the coming season by competing in the Eastern Division of the Drake Summer Basketball League.

The team right now is tied for first place with St. Agnes who boasts some top collegiate talent, including Larry Friend, member of last year's champion University of California quintet. Both teams have a record of four wins and one loss.

Top Area Teams Vie Over Presidio Course

The Presidio Golf Course will be the scene of the Sixth Army Golf Tournament beginning this Tuesday and winding up Friday night with the traditional banquet and presentation of trophies.

The Post team, which plays an All-Star Navy team from Treasure Island today at 1400 hours on the local course, holds a slight pre-tourney edge. The locals boast one of the best name crews in recent years.

Heading the field is Allwyn Pirtle, winner of the Post Golf Tournament. Right behind him is the old pro, Alex "Red" Sutton, followed by C. H. Shaw, Sydney Domingue, Donald R. Welch and Charles Monges.

Other teams competing in the tournament include Fort Ord, Lompoc Disciplinary Barracks, Ft. Mason, Ft. Huachuca, Oakland Army Terminal, Ft. Lewis, and Letterman Army Hospital. Fort Huachuca qualified for the meet by winning the Southern Division Sixth U.S. Army Golf Tournament last week.

The Tourney should feature some exciting play. All personnel are welcome to attend. The winning team will represent the Sixth Army in the All-Army Tournament to be held at Ft. Ord the following week.

Fencers To Compete In Local Meet

The combined Letterman Army Hospital-Presidio fencers competed in the Halberstadt Sabre Championships over the past week.

Members of the team were Laurence H. Brownlee, Jose Tafoya, Bill Coleman, Leo Thompson and Siviros Pasol.

The locals made a good showing in lieu of the tough competition. Brownlee reached the semi-finals but was edged out in his attempt for the championship by one point. There was only one touch difference between him and the other semi-finalists. Coleman also missed the finals by one bout.

The meet was finally won by M. Magay, U.S. Sabre champion and member of the World Championship Hungarian Olympic team. The meet had a total of 32 participants.

Tomorrow night a mixed team of two women fencers and three men will represent the LAH-PSF team in a try for the Minerva Trophy championship. The locals won this trophy two years ago.

Brownlee, Tafoya, Larry Kaufmann, Shirley Canter and Shaun Brownlee will comprise the local squad.

High Gun Trophy is presented to Sfc. Robert C. Quellman of Ft. Ord by Colonel Arthur W. Gustafson, Chief Sixth Army Special Services, for scoring the best mark in the Sixth Army Skeet Meet held here last week.

Skeet Shooters Take Second

The Presidio Skeet team, led by M/Sgt. Matrice L. Dineen with a total of 95 hits out of 100, took second place honors at the Sixth Army Meet which was held at the Presidio range last Thursday and Friday. The team total was 446 out of 500.

The Ft. Ord skeet shooters won the tournament with a total of 459. High gun for the meet was Sfc Robert C. Quellman of the Ord team with 97 hits out of 100.

M/Sgt. William A. Rumble of the Presidio squad won the Class C division by hitting 93 out of 100 targets, and M/Sgt. David R. Dunsmoor was runner-up in the Class A division with 93 x 100.

Behind Ft. Ord and the Presidio were Ft. Huachuca with 428 points, followed by Ft. Lewis with 427 and in last place was Letterman Army Hospital with 425.

Tennis Team To Try Area Competition

Nikes Drop Close Try To Napa

The 740th AAA Ms. Bn. baseballers dropped a thrilling 11-inning game to Napa last week by the score of 9-8, thus halting their four-game winning streak.

With the score all tied up 8 to 8 going into the last inning, Hubie Brown, the Nike pitcher, was tabbed with a hit which brought in the winning run.

The 740th outthit the Napa men, 15-11. Big gun for the Missileers was Rudolph Buffin of Brave Battery with three for six, a single in the first inning, a triple in the seventh which scored the tying run, and a single in the ninth. He had a total of three runs batted in.

Also to be credited was Wayne Engal's triple with two men on and Larson's single in the top of the sixth which narrowed the score by two runs.

The Nikes so far have had a very successful season, winning a total of 22 games.

21st Wins Opener

The 21st Engineer softball team defeated the Globe of California nine by the score of 4-3, to win the opening game in the second round of City Class A softball.

Ace pitcher Nick Themely registered another win for the locals. With the bases loaded in the last inning, the Globe pitcher walked in the winning run.

21st Will Carry Presidio Colors In Two Tourneys

The 21st Engineers, Post Softball Champions, are competing in the State Softball Tournament at Sacramento this week.

Because of their excellent play this season in the City League and in Post competition, the Engineers were also picked to represent the Presidio in the Sixth Army Tournament which begins on 26 August at Madigan Army Hospital, Washington.

Success Comes Early To Girl Skeet Star

By Pvt. Worm Niccoll
Star Presidian Sports Editor

Are champions born, or made? Any postulate would furnish grist for a nonstop hassle, but:

Three years ago, because her father didn't want to go duck hunting alone, 19-year-old Judy Allen got her first feel of a gun.

Today, only a short time afterward, Judy holds numerous state, national, and world skeet shooting records and is recognized as one of the world's best women skeet shooters.

After that memorable duck hunt, Judy didn't shoot any more until several months later when she met Lee Braun at a Marin County Skeet Shoot. Lee had a perfect day, hitting 100 out of 100 targets. Judy was so impressed by his performance that she asked her father if Lee could teach her how to shoot.

Jokingly, Lee said he would. In her first attempt, Judy hit 14 out of 25, and that day marked the beginning of her rise to national prominence.

Only two years later in 1956, she set a world record in the 12-gauge event, hitting 149 out of 150, 100 out of 100, 198 out of 200 and 98 out of 100.

Since then she has won many honors. In 1956 she teamed up with Jack Horner to win the National All Gauge two man team championship with a score of 496x500. That same year she won the California Ladies all-around Championship.

Recently, in the National Western Open Skeet Meet, Judy set a world record for a combination of weapons.

Judy was brought up in Oakland and attended Anna Head Private School in Berkeley. Today, she is attending the California College of Arts and Crafts studying interior design.

In August, she plans to enter the National Skeet Shoot and also hopes to be a member of the U.S. Olympic Team.

Her father, Clyde Allen, is on the board of trustees of the National and California Skeet Shooting Associations.

If you are trying to figure out what makes this girl such a crack shooter, maybe this will help you: She shoots with one eye closed!

Toreros Win Over Hamilton Then Lose One

The Torero baseballers routed Hamilton Air Force Base last week by the tune of 6-3, to register their third victory of the season over the Airmen against one loss.

Roger Collins gave up a total of six hits to get credit for the win. Big gun for the Presidio team was John Zeleznock, who hit a touring home run to drive in two runs.

In the Sunday game, the Toreros dropped a close one in ten innings to the Benicia semi-pro club.

On a couple of Torero errors in the last of the tenth, the Benicia team pushed across the winning run.

Dick Shinnick pitched a fine game, allowing but five hits and striking out 17 men. However, at times his control was shaky as he walked a total of six men.

Zeleznock once again proved that he can clout the ball by collecting another home run. Ken Carroll collected two hits for the locals.

The Toreros play a couple of week-end games.

"Males Only"—Out!

Requests for recruitment of civilian employees are not to specify "male applicants only" unless the requesting agency can justify why a female employee cannot be used on the position, according to a Post regulation released this week.

The order is based on "what appears to be unnecessary restriction of female employees in the civilian in-service placement and promotion program."

Tarrant Given Key Command At First Army Air Defense

Brig. Gen. Legare K. Tarrant, former Sixth US Army Deputy Commanding General, leaves tomorrow to assume command of the First Region, US Army Air Defense Command at Fort Totten, New York. A farewell Honor Guard ceremony was held Tuesday.

A former commander of the Sixth Region, U.S. Army Air Defense Command at Fort Baker, General Tarrant became Deputy Commander to Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young last February.

During the Honor Guard ceremony General Tarrant received an 11-gun salute. He shared the reviewing stand with General Young. One of the troop units participating in the ceremony was composed of members of General Tarrant's former command at Fort Baker.

Graduated from the U.S. Military Academy, General Tarrant served in the China-Burma-India Theater during World War II as Antiaircraft Artillery Officer for the First Fighter Command. Following the war he held important assignments with the Army General Staff and Joint Chiefs of Staff in Washington, D. C.

The general holds the Bronze Star Medal and Army Commendation Ribbon with Metal Pendant.

New Items, Higher Prices Okayed For Exchanges

Several changes in the form of new items and higher price ceilings have been approved for military exchanges by the Armed Services committee. The major inventory additions are auto batteries, more children's clothing and some baby furniture.

According to Mr. George C. Elliott, general manager of the local Post exchange, the approved changes can not be instituted until the official regulation change is received by Army Commanders.

The committee did not authorize an additional credit plan. The deferred payment plan on uniforms, which is now in effect, will continue to be the only type of credit available to exchange patrons.

The baby furniture items and the top wholesale prices the exchanges can pay for them are as follows: car seats, $5; safety gates,

$6; bassinets and car beds, $12; high chairs, mattresses and play pens, $15; strollers, baby bath and cribs, $20; and baby buggies and juvenile chest of drawers, $25. Retail prices will be scaled a little higher.

Additional children's clothing for the six to twelve age group includes dresses, skirts and blouses, gloves, shoes and boys' sport coats for school wear.

Portable typewriters, maternity dresses and electric blankets also have been added to the exchange inventories. A $70 limit has been placed on the typewriters.

Former Sixth Army General Named Chief Of Information

Maj. Gen. Harry P. Storke, commander of the Desert Rock atomic tests in 1952, has been named Chief of Public Information, Office of the Secretary of the Army, and Chief of Information, Office of the Army Chief of Staff, according to an announcement made by Acting Secretary of the Army Charles C. Finucane.

General Storke succeeds Maj. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Jr., who has been named Deputy Army Commander of the Fourth U. S. Army. The new assignment becomes effective 1 October.

Since 15 June, 1956, General Storke has commanded the 9th Infantry Division. In addition he has served as Commanding General of Fort Carson, Colorado, since last November.

General Storke was named commander of the III Corps Artillery at Fort Lewis in October, 1951. During the atomic exercises in November and December of that year, he was chief of staff for Camp Desert Rock. The following year he served as Commanding General of Camp Desert Rock.

The entire staff at the Livermore Veterans Administration Hospital has volunteered to undergo a series of tests in connection with the study of Asiatic influenza now being made at the VA hospital.

More than 500 persons will participate in the tests which are expected to determine how the disease is transmitted, particularly whether it is airborne or transmitted by direct contact.

Test Consolidation Plan For Military Districts

A consolidation test that may affect all Continental Army areas was announced today by the Department of the Army.

Authorization was granted to CONARC to consolidate eight existing Military Districts within the Second U.S. Army area into two new Corps Headquarters (Reserve).

Units to be activated are the XX and XXI U.S. Army Corps Headquarters (Reserve), located at Fort Hayes, Ohio, and Indian-town Gap Military Reservation, Penn., respectively.

The Second U.S. Army consolidation will serve as a test for other Army areas. Success of the program there will determine whether it will be extended nationwide.

Improvement of USAR training by assigning responsibility to an Active Army organization created specifically for that purpose is the primary goal of the consolidation, according to DA. Non-reserve operations ordinarily will not be delegated to the new Corps Headquarters (Reserve), or its elements.

The consolidation plan has the advantage of reducing the number of major headquarters and providing greater simplicity of operation and control. Two Corps Headquarters (Reserve) will replace eight Military Districts in the Second Army area. There are 49 Military Districts in all six Army areas.

In announcing the plan, the Army said facilities and locations for Corps Headquarters (Reserve) will be established at existing military installations to the greatest possible extent.

New Fatigue Crest Tested At 9th AAA

A new battalion crest for wear on fatigue jacket pockets was adopted on a trial basis by the 9th AAA Missile Battalion this week. The crest is expected to improve the morale and esprit de corps of battalion members.

The crest will be worn on fatigues during on-site visits by the public and military and civilian dignitaries. If found satisfactory by 1 October, the crest may be adopted by all missile battalions in the area.

Featuring a brown and white replica of the "Mayflower" on a red background, the battalion crest is original on the West Coast. The "Mayflower" dates back to the 9th's origination in Boston.

Revised Pay Structure Urged By Governors

Washington (AFPS) The nation's governors urged Congress to revise the pay structure of the Armed Forces along the lines proposed by the Cordiner Committee.

At the close of their 49th annual conference, recently held at Williamsburg, Va., the state leaders unanimously adopted a resolution stating:

"WHEREAS the military establishment is desperately in need of means for attracting and retaining persons with scientific, professional and combat leadership and management skills necessary to maintain a deterrent power;

"AND WHEREAS the Armed Forces do not presently have the means to compete for highly trained personnel urgently needed for the defense of our country and a significant factor in their ability to do so is the inadequacy of the present compensation practices now in use;

"AND WHEREAS the proposed changes of the military pay structure are based on merit rather than longevity, will bring military pay more in line with the pay standards of industry, and will offer greater enlistment incentive for highly trained personnel;

"NOW THEREFORE be it resolved that the . . . Governors' Conference urge the Congress of the United States to take favorable action to revise the pay structure now in use in the Armed Forces along the lines proposed by the Cordiner Committee."

The resolution was introduced by Gov. Joe J. Foss (R—S. D.). Medal of Honor winner and WWII Marine Ace.

The Cordiner Committee has estimated that adoption of its recommendations would bring a 15 per cent improvement in combat capability, savings and gains in the cost of national defense up to $5 billion by 1962 or sooner, and a reduction in training accidents and the number of military personnel needed to produce a given level of national security.

The Defense Department has initiated action to establish a system of "proficiency pay" for enlisted personnel of critical importance and to authorize legislation for lump sum "term retention pay" for Reserve officers on active duty.

The Defense Department is currently studying the Cordiner report on a basis for future action.

Army Wins High Praise For Aid During Disaster

Washington (ANS)—The Army has been lauded by the Louisiana congressional delegation for its fast and effective emergency action following Hurricane Audrey's devastation in the State's disaster area.

According to recent estimates, more than 1,000 persons were rescued by the Army, principally by helicopter. In addition, Army planes and helicopters spotted scores of bodies of hurricane victims and notified emergency collecting teams of their locations.

Senator Russell B. Long expressed his thanks to Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker while Representative T. Ashton Thompson, whose district includes the hard-hit Cameron and Calcasieu counties, forwarded his appreciation to the Army from his field office in the disaster area.

Congressman Overton Brooks, Shreveport, La. (D-4th District) said:

"I wish to commend the Army officials who moved swiftly to give help. The men and facilities of the Army were made available without hesitation and these soldiers worked tirelessly, without thoughts of themselves, day and night, joining with the local people and other organizations to save our people and relieve the suffering. As a member of the House Armed Services Committee, I wish to express the deep feeling of gratitude and appreciation of the people of Louisiana for this help from the Department of the Army."

About 500 Army officers and men have been in the disaster area at various times with all types of emergency equipment to augment the efforts of civil authorities and National Guardsmen. Army troops from Fort Polk are still in the area lending assistance with equipment ranging from short wave radios to bulldozers.

A partial list of the Army equipment rushed to the stricken areas included: 8,900 blankets, 5,850 cots, nine helicopters, 64 trucks, 11 ambulances and medical supplies, engineer construction items, water points, and radios.

Three years ago Chief Geller received two awards totaling $65 for devising a fire-warning sign to be placed on fire extinguishers. The sign, which called attention to the number to be called in case of fire, was adopted by the First and Fifth Armies in addition to the Presidio.

In 1920 Chief Geller entered the New York City Fire Department and within 18 years, he rose through competitive civil service examination to lieutenant, captain, battalion chief and finally deputy chief of the entire New York City Fire Department.

Improved Army Drone Will Make Debut Shortly

A contract for the design and production of a new combat surveillance drone has been awarded to the Aircraft Division of the Rheem Manufacturing Company at Downey, California, it was announced by the U.S. Army Signal Corps and the Rheem Company.

It will be one of the first of its specific type to be designed for this surveillance mission, the performance of which will exceed current drones adapted to the mission.

According to a Rheem official, the drone design will achieve the target of low initial and maintenance cost and reliability by emphasizing the use of already developed and proven components.

He added that the design will incorporate features to permit ease of operation and maintenance under combat conditions using relatively inexperienced personnel, and will attain compatibility with current US Army logistic support.

Flight tests of developmental models have been scheduled, and production of this drone, which is the recoverable type, follows completion of the test phase of this US Army Signal Corps program.

The cognizant Army Signal Corps Agency is the US Army Electronic Proving Ground at Fort Huachuca, Arizona.

New Army Flag Presented To Commander-In-Chief

Washington (ANS) — Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker presented one of the new U.S. Army Flags to President Dwight D. Eisenhower during an informal ceremony in the White House Rose Garden here recently.

The new flag was first displayed on Flag Day last year at Independence Hall in Philadelphia.

The flag is made of white silk, upon which is embroidered in blue a replica of the official seal of the War Office. Beneath a scroll bearing the inscription "United States Army" in white letters, is the date "1775" in blue arabic numerals.

The new Army Flag was designed by the Heraldic Branch, Office of Research and Development, Office of the Quartermaster General. Research on the background material for the make-up of the Army Flag was begun in July 1955.

Since the beginning of the Army, which was formed by the Continental Congress in 1775, Army units have had their own individual flags and colors. But there had never been a single flag that represented the United States Army as a whole. The new U.S. Army Flag is designed to meet this need, and will represent the entire Army on appropriate occasions.

GI Loans Tightened In New Rule

No GI loan entitlement can be restored unless the Veterans Administration is relieved of liability on the original loan, the VA warned today.

Formerly restoration of GI loan eligibility was made only if a veteran sold his GI purchased home because of a job change or transfer to another city was involuntary or beyond the veteran's control.

Under a new ruling, however, a veteran moving to a different city because of a new and better job may be entitled to new GI loan eligibility, even though the job change was voluntary.

"Better job" was defined by the VA as being one that would increase the veteran's income or provide him with greater opportunity for advancement. The new ruling also applied to veterans moving to a different city following retirement.

However, before the entitlement can be restored, the original loan must be paid in full, either by the veteran or the new purchaser.

Other circumstances under which a veteran may be entitled to a new GI loan eligibility are when the property (1) Was taken by a governmental agency for public use; (2) Was destroyed by natural hazard; or (3) Was disposed of for compelling reasons of health, or other specified reasons beyond control of the veteran.

The first Conscription Act was passed by Congress in 1865. It applied to all male citizens and foreign-born 25 to 45 years of age. Those who could pay $300 for a substitute were exempted.

Drexel Grad Named Chief Machine Records Division

Lt. Col. Harry McWilliams, newly assigned Chief of the Machine Records Division, Sixth US Army Adjutant General Section, reports that this Presidio assignment is his first tour of duty west of the Mississippi.

Before his school assignment Colonel McWilliams served as Chief of the Machine Records Division at Third U.S. Army Headquarters, Fort McPherson, Ga.

From 1952 to 1955 he was stationed in Heidelberg, Germany, as Chief of Machine Records for the U.S. Army Europe. This was his second assignment in this German university town. He entered Heidelberg with the occupation forces in the closing months of World War II.

During World War II he served as commander of the 65th MRU in Europe. From 1949 to 1952 he was in the Office of the Comptroller of the Army in Washington, D.C.

Colonel McWilliams graduated from the Drexel Institute in Philadelphia in 1938 with a degree in industrial engineering. Until 1941 when he was called to active duty as a reserve lieutenant, he was auditor for the Skytop Lodge, a resort hotel in the Poconos Mountains of Pennsylvania.

Top Leaders View Military Government Training Units

Maj. Gen. Charles K. Gailey, Chief, Civil Affairs and Military Government, Department of the Army, and two Sixth US Army Provost Marshal officers are observing the summer training of military government units at Camp Roberts and Fort Lewis this week.

Col. Harold A. Davenport, Sixth U.S. Army Provost Marshal, and Col. Robert M. Allgeier, Chief of the Section's Operations, Plans and Training Division, are accompanying the general.

The general's itinerary started at Camp Roberts, included a visit to the USAR-CAMG School at Harmon Armory yesterday, and concludes today at Fort Lewis.

General Gailey served as Chief of Staff for General Lucius Clay when the latter was Military Governor for Germany after World War II.

McGaw Says 'Quality' Key Factor

A seven-part program to encourage men with special skills to remain in the Army has been outlined for unit commanders by Maj. Gen. E. J. McGaw, Commanding General of the 6th Region, U.S. Army Air Defense Command at Fort Baker.

General McGaw reminded commanding officers of Army air defense units that "the quality of our people" is the "single most important factor which influences our capability to perform our mission."

The 6th Region, which is made up of Nike guided missile and anti-aircraft gun units, has the mission of providing defense against hostile aircraft to the major cities, industrial areas and Air Force Bases on the West Coast.

In a letter explaining the program to the officers within the command, General McGaw urged that commanders "act to improve the individual soldier's personal relations with the Army, to increase his satisfaction with his present service, and to demonstrate that opportunities for advancement are open to those who are worthy."

He pointed out that many of the factors which Army personnel give as reasons for not reenlisting — low pay, lack of fringe benefits, etc. — are correctable only at the highest levels of government.

But at the same time, he said, there are methods which any commander may use to improve the lot of his men:

Following up on promises to provide school training, leaves, changes in assignments, etc.

Treating members of units with "dignity, consideration and courtesy," and requiring subordinates to do the same.

Requiring a high standard of performance in duties. "Make it your business to find who has done well," General McGaw told officers, "be sure he knows it, and reward him accordingly."

Reducing the traditional "harassments too frequently found in some units." This should include elimination of unnecessary formations and standing in line, and commanders should make changes in such things as barracks arrangements, duty hours and laundry collections "where they will increase comfort or convenience."

Careful planning of jobs to conclusion, to eliminate changes. "If new circumstances force a change in plans," General McGaw cautioned, "be sure that all concerned know why." He further urged that "positive and immediate corrective steps" be taken when plans fail to develop as anticipated and effort is wasted.

Insuring that school-trained personnel are used in such a way "that they may devote their undivided efforts to the accomplishment of the job for which they have been trained." The complexities of the anti-aircraft defenses, particularly those of the Nike system, give the units of the 6th Region a high percentage of personnel trained in technical schools.

Regarding the reenlistment program as a continuing process, with the idea of producing "a strong urge in each man to serve his country," General McGaw warned that "Other material inducements to serve will have little effect unless a soldier feels he is a valued member of the team."

Together Again at Letterman Army Hospital are Maj. Maynard J. Snell, Medical Service Corps, and Lt. Iris Snell, Army Nurse Corps. The couple were married at the Presidio, but completed their last assignments "alone."

Another Army Romance Ends — In Marriage

Contrary to popular misconception, the United States Army is one of the Nation's greatest marital matchmakers! One has only to take a reading among married couples at the Presidio, to find that nine times out of ten—and despite the fact that all good marriages are made in heaven—the Army provides much of the ingredients.

Among military husbands and wives here who readily agree that the Army brings lovers together more frequently than it separates them are Major Maynard J. Snell, MSC, newly-assigned to the Sixth U.S. Army Medical Section; and Lieutenant Iris Snell, a nurse assigned to Letterman Army Hospital.

This delightful married couple met under the spell of a military Cupid's bow and arrow at Fort Sam Houston when Iris was a student there, and Major Snell on temporary duty in the Fourth US Army Surgeon's office.

The two were reunited at the Presidio slightly over a year ago at which time they were married in the Post Chapel in mid-June the Commanding General's aide officiating as best man.

Twenty-two days together as man and wife, when the Army advised them in its least jocular manner that the honeymoon was over!

Major Snell was sent to Vietnam

—not for banishment—but to become Medical Advisor for MAAG—to the Vietnamese Government. His wife remained on duty at Letterman, and recently the couple was reunited when Major Snell returned here for duty from Saigon.

Major Snell is a veteran of 15 years' military service, with wartime duty in Alaska, the Aleutians, the Pacific and Korea. He was awarded the Silver Star with Oak Cluster, the Bronze Star with V Device, the Purple Heart with two Oak Clusters, the Medical Badge, the Korean Presidential Unit Citation and other decorations. He claims, however, that his most cherished award is his wife, Iris!

Mrs. Snell is assigned to duty in Letterman Contagion Ward. She is a carrier—of the world's most contagious smile!

Lt. Snell took her nursing degree at Arkansas Baptist School of Nursing. She did post-graduate study at Baylor University, Waco, Texas.

The Military Medical man and wife team of Snell now make their home in Mill Valley, California.

Top Variety In Summer Reading

New books at the Post Library offer a variety of topics and tones for summer vacation reading.

Among the popular historical novels just arrived is ALABAMA EMPIRE by Welbourn Kelley which takes the reader back to 1789 to an era of audacity and ambition, with plots and counterplots involving the Spanish and the English. Of a more gentle nature is Conrad Richter's THE LADY, set in New Mexico of the 1850s. Thad Baxter represents the Western hero of that era in THE ODYSSEY OF THADDEUS BAXTER by Robert Lund. Everybody gets into the act in CHEROKEE, especially the Indians, as author

Don Tracy mixes fiction with fact to relate a little known incident in American history.

On the East Coast Nicholas Wyckoff considers what might have happened if the British had used THE BRAINTREE MISSION instead of the "tea-tax." Evelyn Anthony tells the story of ANNE BOLEYN, the troublemaker who started so much and lived to see so little of it. In direct contrast is Alan Burgess' THE SMALL WOMAN, a true story of the extraordinary Gladys Aylward whose missionary work in war-ravaged China made her a living legend. LINCOLN'S COMMANDO, by Ralph Roske and Charles Van Doren is the biography of William Barker Cushing, USN, who at 21 sunk the Confederacy's ironclad, Albemarle.

THAT KELLY FAMILY by John McCallum concerns the Philadelphia Kellys—one is named Grace. GYPSY, a memoir by Gypsy Rose Lee, is the story of that entertainer's exciting life. The story behind one of the world's toughest prisons comes out in Gladys Erickson's WARDEN RAGEN OF JOLIET.

Other new books of interest are MY FAMILY AND OTHER ANIMALS by Gerald Durrell, William Faulkner's THE TOWN, Iola Fuller's THE GILDED TORCH, John Masters' FAR, FAR THE MOUNTAIN PEAK, Laszlo Beke's A STUDENT'S DIARY and Corydon Bell's THE WONDERS OF SNOW.

In deference to the Star Presidian readers who were so pleased with last week's woman spy story in The Sketchbook, the column this week introduces a pair of sister spies in the Civil War . . . not buried in the Presidio National Cemetery as is last week's heroine . . . but enshrined no less in the Nation's heart:

The sisters . . . Ginny and Lottie Moon . . . small, dark, high-strung and charming . . . were born in Ohio and spent their girlhood days along the Western areas. . . . They were two of Dixie's most ardent agents!

Ginny was a chain smoker. . . . She used to stagger her nephew, a Presbyterian minister, full of the righteousness and propriety of the 1880's . . . by puffing in the gallery of his church while the parishioners developed mild stages of apoplexy from shock.

Miss Ginny also toted a gun! Both practiced a wholesome disdain for custom. . . . Miss Lottie could dislocate her own jaw by manipulating her face at odd moments . . . to the consternation of her ardent admirers. They had another lovely sister, Mary, who stayed home and minded her manners . . . consequently she was rarely heard of.

After they entered Secret Service, Ginny helped the South's morale by becoming engaged to 16 soldiers at the same time. . . . Her logic here was that if they died in battle "they'd have died happily, wouldn't they? . . . And if they lived . . . I didn't give a damn!"

Lottie got as far as the altar with a man who later became a Union General . . . but when the minister asked "will you take this man for your husband," Lottie paused momentarily, then announced vehemently "No-siree-bob!" . . . and swirling her petticoats, Miss Lottie sailed out of the church.

The man left standing at the altar later had a chance to get even with Lottie, when as a commanding general, he had sworn to make an example of any Southern agent caught within his lines . . . yet when Lottie and Ginny were captured and brought before him he softened and let them go.

The girl spies came naturally by their love of the South . . . their father was a Virginian . . . and anyone rash enough to call them Yankees, even in jest . . . had better stay beyond arm's length.

The General proposed to Lottie again at a later date. . . . She had married a young attorney just a week previously! Even on the day she was married, Lottie was conducting an extra-curricular affair. . . . There were two admirers and Lottie promised to marry the one who got to the church first. . . .

Lottie and Ginny had two brothers who enlisted in the Confederate Army. . . . When she was only 16, Ginny one day took out her little pistol and shot every single star from the American flag that flew over the school grounds.

Her first crack at spy service came in 1862, when Walter Taylor of the Zachary Taylor family came over the Kentucky line and told her he had secret information for General Kirby-Smith from General Sterling Price. He was too well known in Kentucky and he wanted somebody else to deliver it.

"I will," said Lottie. . . . And forthwith she dressed as an old woman muffled in a tattered shawl. . . . She crossed the Ohio by ferry where she got on a transport leaving for Lexington. . . . "I'm but a poor Irishwoman," she said, . . . "in search of me husband, sick in the hospital, an' him waiting to see me, his little old colleen!"

At Lexington, the "Irish woman" said a grateful thanks to her hosts on the transport. She walked to the outskirts of town, where she met Colonel Thomas Scott, a Southerner whom she had once met. . . . She hailed him and gave him the General's messages. . . . On the way back she got into the good graces of General Leslie Coombs by resuming her Irish act. . . . The general got her on the train to Covington, rode with her and helped her off at the last station . . . from where she walked home, arriving in time for breakfast next morning.

Ginnie Moon worked for the Army in Memphis. . . . The sisters met frequently, and between them, they outwitted Generals and Captains on secret assignments from Confederate Canada to the Northern border and beyond.

"They need no pass to get through the Union lines," said the editor of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, "their eyes and their charm are their passwords!"

On a steamer to Memphis from Cincinnati, a Yankee officer caught up with Ginny. . . . He was Captain Harris Rose and he had orders to search her. . . . From a slit in her petticoat she drew a Colt revolver, leveled it and warned him, "If you make a move to touch me, I'll kill you, so help me God!" After some further trickery, Ginny got the officer out of the stateroom while she swallowed the dispatches she was carrying to Memphis.

The Moon sisters smuggled opium, quinine and morphine to the Confederate Army hospitals in the South.

In spite of their help, the South lost the war. . . . Both sisters were arrested and served time on bread and water.

After their release, Lottie became a novelist and pioneer newspaper-woman. . . . Ginny took in boarders in Memphis . . . men boarders only. . . . She became a heroine in the yellow fever epidemic of 1870. . . .

Riding on Riverside Drive with friends once, she came on Grant's tomb. "Damn you," she said, as she spat on the marble.

30th Sgt. Earns 'Master of Multiplex'

With eight years in the Army, all spent in the Multiplex field, Sfc. John Dillingham has become one of the 30th Engineer Group's many skilled and valued personnel. He is in charge of the Multiplex section of the 21st Engineer Company.

Of the many processes that go into making maps, the Multiplex operation is one of the key ones. Greatly simplified, the Multiplex converts aerial photographs of an area coupled with the surveyor's control points, into a detailed, scaled drawing of the area, which is the real base or foundation for forming the size and shape of the finished map.

The Multiplex is a stereoscopic plotting instrument which projects images of the aerial photography on a viewing surface. Observation of this spacial model through spectacles of complementary colors similar to those used in the projector will form a three dimensional model. From this model the final drawing must be carefully drawn by the operator. This is a highly exacting operation requiring intense concentration and coordination by the operator.

Dillingham spent the first six years of his Army career with the 29th Engineer Battalion in Tokyo, where he learned Multiplex operation and worked himself up from an operator to a supervisory position where he was in charge of as many as 56 projection booths at one time

New Transportation Chief For Presidio

Col. Charles G. Rau, Post Commander, this week announced the appointment of Col. Harold M. Brown as Chief of the Post Transportation Section.

Maj. E. J. Salyer, who has been acting Transportation Officer, is scheduled to attend a five month course at Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kans. He will become Assistant Transportation Officer upon his return to the Presidio.

Colonel Brown comes to the Presidio from 15 months of duty in the Arctic where he served as Army commander of the Fox segment of Project 572 East.

The Colonel's wife, Betty, who has accompanied her husband to his Presidio assignment, is the daughter of Harry W. Maas, a retired cavalry and transportation officer who is well known in Army circles. The Browns have established a home at 481 Oak Manor, Fairfax, California.

From May 1954 to January 1956 Colonel Brown was Commander of the 10th Transportation Battalion (Terminal) at Fort Huston, Va. For the two years prior to this assignment he served as Transportation Officer and Deputy Chief of Staff and Comptroller for the XVIII Airborne, Fort Bragg, Ky.

He was Chief of Plans and Operations Division, Transportation Section, GHQ, SCAP and FEC in Tokyo. One of his activities during this period was to assist in the planning of the Inchon invasion during the Korean conflict.

The Tokyo assignment came after a year's schooling at Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kans. Prior to that he had assignments in Washington, D.C., New York City and Seattle, Wash.

Colonel Brown attended Xavier University and the University of Transportation Chief

Liberty's Legacies

'Freedom From Fear Very Important!'

Thomas Petcov was six months old when his father sailed for America. He and his mother stayed behind in the tiny Greek village of Proti waiting for the call that would take them, too, across the sea.

But before the elder Petcov could establish his citizenship and send for his family, the Second World War broke out in Europe. The Germans occupied Greece. Thomas and his mother could only wait . . . and hope.

The ending of the World War did not bring peace to Greece. A civil war between the rightist forces and the Communists turned much of northern Greece into armed camps.

At the Macedonian village of Proti in northwestern Greece, a few miles from Yugoslavia, the peasants worked with their rifles by their sides. Every evening the people withdrew to the village and posted guards. Here Thomas and his mother farmed and waited.

The most shocking and tragic aspect of this civil war was the kidnapping of children. During the war years, 1946 to 1949, it is reported that the Communists carried off more than 25,000 children to the iron curtain countries of Bulgaria, Albania and Yugoslavia. There they would be schooled, indoctrinated with the Communist party line, and put to work.

Finds Freedom
Pfc. Thomas Petcov

Two Proti boys out chopping wood in the hills were captured by the Communists and carried off. Finally they were allowed to write from Hungary where they were going to school. They could not return.

But the people of Proti were lucky for never during the war did the Communists actually invade their village. Thomas remembers one time when the nearby city of Florina was attacked by the Communists. At the same time they tried to take Proti but both towns defended themselves successfully.

More than 10 years of wars and fears and not enough to eat finally ended for Thomas and his mother. The father called his family to America. They left Greece in November of 1951 for a reunion in Detroit, Mich. They had been apart 18 years.

Thomas went to work in a super market. A super market filled with all the wonderful American consumer products displayed to dazzle the eyes of shoppers. What a contrast to the village market in Proti!

Thomas is absolutely sold on his new country. To the question: "What do you like about the United States?" he answers:

"Everything — food, clothing, freedom. You don't have to be afraid of anything like you did in Europe."

After the Army, Thomas will rejoin his mother and father in Detroit. The future is bright. The family has a business now, baking European hard crust breads and cakes.

Col. Frank H. Stone, Deputy Adjutant General, will represent Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Sixth US Army Commander, at the ceremony.

Sgt. Robert N. Alexander, also of the AG section, will be installed as adjutant.

Many Famed Generals Interred on Presidio

The San Francisco National Cemetery, located between the Presidio and Fort Scott, has been in use for more than 100 years. Interred in this ground are many officers whose names are closely identified with U.S. history. Some of the more familiar names are those of Generals Hunter Liggett, Irwin McDowell, William R. Shafter, Frederick Funston and Arthur MacArthur. Of some unusual interest is the name of Major Pauline C. Tyler. During the Civil War she was a talented and beautiful actress who appeared under the name of Pauline Cushman. It was in this guise that she became a Union spy and was made a brevet Major after the war had ended.

Retirement Benefits

Service in the Army Reserve can give the reservist a retirement income equal to an investment of $20,000 if he follows the terms of Title III of Public Law 810, passed by the 80th Congress. Under this law, when he reaches the age of 60 and if he has completed 20 years of satisfactory Federal service, either Reserve or Regular, as long as the last eight years of the 20 years service is in the Army Reserve he may retire.

Emotional Welcome awaited Brig. Gen. Paul S. Fancher, Letterman Army Hospital Commander, when he visited Mrs. Clementine Kip Edie, widow of a former hospital commander, this week. The late Col. Grey Edie commanded the hospital nearly 40 years ago.

Wife Of Former Letterman Chief Visited By Fancher

The widow of a former Letterman Army Hospital Commander was eased back into her past military life this week when she was paid a courtesy visit by Brig. Gen. Paul S. Fancher, present LAH Commander.

Mrs. Clementine Kip Edie, widow of Col. Grey Edie, was visited by General Fancher at the Episcopal home where she now resides just outside Presidio's Lombard Gate. The general also presented her with a new dependents' card.

Colonel Edie, Letterman's seventh commander, headed the hospital during its greatest era of expansion from 1914 to 1918. The Edies were married in 1899, one year after Letterman was established.

Mrs. Edie, who until recently participated in Bay Area social activities, lives in the Episcopal home built by her grandfather, Rev. William Ingraham Kip, the first Episcopal bishop of California.

Mexican Magazine Now 110 Years Old

The stone walls are ten feet thick with an air space in the middle to insure dryness. Two narrow slots for ventilation pierce the east wall near the door.

The armed forces boasted 117,000 men in the Mexican War. The last veteran died in 1929 at 98.

Col. Kvam New Dental Surgeon For Presidio

Post Commander Colonel Charles G. Rau has announced the appointment of Colonel Conrad T. Kvam as Post Dental Surgeon to replace Colonel Clare T. Budge, who left in June for an assignment in Heidelberg, Germany.

Colonel Kvam, still tan from his recent Puerto Rico assignment, arrived at the Presidio on 26 July after a three year tour in the Caribbean as Antilles Dental Surgeon. He was stationed at Fort Brooke, Puerto Rico.

Speaking for himself, his wife and five children—including boy and girl twins age four—the new Dental Surgeon said this week: "We're very glad to be back in the States and especially pleased with our assignment here at the Presidio. We have heard nothing but fine reports about this station."

Prior to his Caribbean assignment Colonel Kvam served four years as Post Dental Surgeon, Fort Sill, Okla. The wide open spaces and the outdoor living there made it the Kvam family's favorite duty assignment to date, the Colonel reports.

From 1947 to 1950 Colonel Kvam had the dental responsibilities at the Pentagon as Chief of Dental Service, General Dispensary, Military District, Washington. The job of providing dental service to so many general officers and high ranking civilians, as well as all other military personnel, had its share of headaches, according to the new Dental Surgeon.

The Colonel especially remembers one time when the Army Chief of Staff called to say he wished his teeth cleaned. An inexperienced girl receptionist informed the Chief of Staff that he would have to wait three months for an appointment. "I knew the General's aide, and straightened things out," reports Colonel Kvam, adding a happy ending to the story.

During World War II he was with the 202nd General Hospital which moved from England to France and finally set up just outside Paris. He stayed in Europe from 1945 to 1947 as Chief of Dental Service for the station hospital at Bremerhaven, Germany.

Colonel Kvam entered the Army in 1934, a year after graduating from the University of Michigan Dental School. His first assignment was at Fort Jay on Governor's Island, New York. After four years there he went overseas to Hawaii for a two-year tour.

The new Presidio Dental Surgeon is a graduate of the Army Dental School's advance graduate school at the Army Medical Center, Walter Reed General Hospital. He also attended the Army's Graduate Medical Field Service School.

He is a member of the American Dental Academy and Kappa Sigma Epsilon, honorary professional fraternity.

The Kvams have purchased a home at 660 Las Colindas, Terra Linda.

Annual Photo Contest To Start Next Month

The call has gone out to all photo enthusiasts to start picking out their favorite black and white prints and color slides for entry in the All-Army Photography Contest this year.

The Post picture selection will take place at the Presidio Arts and Crafts Shop from 2 to 6 September, Craft Director Bill Zacha has announced.

The Presidio will host the Sixth U.S. Army Photography Contest from 23 to 27 September, and winners selected there will be sent on for the All-Army Photography Contest. Final eliminations and judging will be held at the Pentagon in November 1957.

Those on Army active duty for more than 90 days may submit entries in three classifications: Black and white single photos, 8 x 10 to 16 x 20 inches; black and white picture story 8 x 10 inches series of three to seven photos, or 35 millimeter color transparencies.

All photographs must have been taken on or after 1 January, 1956.

An innovation in this year's contest divides competition into professional and amateur competition. Military photographers and winners in previous contests will be grouped in the professional class. Amateurs are those whose photographic activities have been purely recreational.

Prizes will be awarded in both classes with three winners in each of the three categories.

Top Army winners will compete with those from the Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps in the Seventh Interservice Photography Contest to be held in December 1957.

All Army Talent Will Show Sunday On Sullivan Show

The top Army talent selected in the recent all-Army Entertainment Contest will be featured this Sunday on the Ed Sullivan television show. The show will be aired locally at 2000 hours on Channel 5, KPIX.

The three service clubs have scheduled all-Army Entertainment Night Sunday so that local personnel and their families can see the show. The Presidio and Fort Cronkhite Service Clubs will serve refreshments beginning at 2000 hours.

A spaghetti dinner planned at 1900 hours will precede the show at the Fort Baker Service Club.

Fiedler Due Here

Arthur Fiedler, noted conductor, will direct the Sixth US Army Band in several selections at the Presidio Service Club on 18 August. The concert is scheduled at 1430 hours.

Famous Names Highlight Current Reserve Films

Four new films telling the story of The Army Reserve have been released. They are: "Man In Two Places", narrated by John Cameron Swayze; "One If By Land", narrated by Walter Cronkite; "Do It Yourself Peace", narrated by John Daly; and "Firepower", narrated by Edward R. Murrow.

These four powerful motivating films are timed for TV and are also suitable for showing to public groups. They are available in both 16MM and 35MM, the latter being distributed by Army PIOs, and the former by District Hqs.

They bring to six the number of films in this series, the other two being "The Whites of Their Eyes", and "A Tale of 2,000 Cities", both narrated by Edward R. Murrow. All narrators have donated their services to assist in the Army's effort to publicize the need for a strong Army Reserve.

Small Weapons Collector Enjoys Ordnance Course

Pfc. James E. Smith, of Pepkin, Wis., a six months enlistee whose hobby is small arms, is living in a gun collector's dream world. He is now a student in the small arms course at the Ordnance School, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md.

A 1955 graduate of the Pepkin (Wis.) High School, Smith acquired his rank by becoming a member of his local Army Reserve unit in August, 1954, while still in school. A gun-collector from early boyhood, he easily qualified for assignment to an Ordnance Corps military specialty in both his Reserve unit and on active duty.

Smith "couldn't be more pleased" with his assignment to such courses as functioning, malfunction diagnosing, preservation and refinishing of such Army small arms as pistols, carbines, rifles, submachine guns, recoilless rifles, mortars and machine guns.

Upon completion of the small arms repair course, Smith began studies in the Light Artillery repair course. He will complete his Ordnance Corps training and his six months of active duty simultaneously and then return to his own home town and reserve unit.

"I am a barber by profession," he said, "but I elected the Reserve Forces Act Training Program so that I could get a short-cut to advance in my reserve unit. I'll have seven-and-a-half years to serve anyway; I might as well earn a promotion."

Band Show Set

The Sixth US Army Band radio show scheduled at 1815 hours, Sunday on KGO, will feature The Legion of Honor, Ritual Fire Dance, Winter Sunshine and the American Red Cross March.

Three Big Nights Top Officers Club Sked This Week

Three big nights of entertainment have been scheduled at the Presidio Officers' Open Mess this week.

Saturday evening an informal dinner-dance will feature the music of Jimmy Blass and his orchestra. Sunday, smorgasbord will be served from 1600 to 2100 hours. Dance music will be provided by the Joe Brigandi orchestra.

A Chuckwagon dinner featuring veal scallopini with ravioli and chicken cacciatore will be served from 1900 to 2200 hours 14 August. Dancing will begin at 2000 hours to the music of Michele Corino and his orchestra. Kay Shipley, Presidio employee, will be the vocalist.

Threat To Peace Shown In Films

A documentary film, showing the techniques used by Hitler, Mussolini, Tojo and Stalin in their efforts to achieve their goal of world domination, is presently available to reservists. Called "The Hoaxters", and running for 38 minutes, the film can be borrowed by contacting Military District headquarters and citing the identifying number, AF-1F-46. Although produced in 1953, it is nevertheless timely in its presentation of the threats to the peace of the world by the communists, and it is believed that the film will be of interest to local service clubs, veterans' organizations, and Reserve meetings.

Presidio Will Host Unique New 'Army'

A brand new major general and his whole army will be guests of the Presidio on Monday.

In an exclusive interview with The Star Presidian, Major General Robert Delantoni explained the inside workings of his unique group.

"Well, first I was just a private in another army. Then they broke up." Asked if current economy measures had anything to do with the breakup, the General ignored the question.

"U-m-mmm, well, anyway I tried to organize a marine corps, that didn't go so hot. Then on 7 August I started my new Army. I told my friend Rich Farella he could be captain, and then I made a little deal with two other guys—if they joined right away, they could be sergeants."

General Delantoni explained that in his army insignias are made from press-on pants patch material.

"It works pretty good if I have to demote someone. I just yank the rank off one guy's coat and press it on someone else's."

The General said that his army is growing by leaps and bounds and now boasts four privates. "I have a Pfc. stripe so I can promote one of them, but I'm waiting to see who is the best soldier."

Asked about his reason for visiting the Presidio, the 11-year-old Burlingame General was articulate.

"Well, sometimes I sit down at the map and figure out where we should hike to. Once we hiked to Crystal Springs Golf Course. Then too, I read about another boy who is going to be a career man; he visited Fort Mason. I don't know yet if I'll make the Army a career, but I know I want to stay in more than two years, probably four."

Robbie wrote to the Presidio and his letter found its way into the Office of Information Activities, Hq. Sixth U.S. Army. It asked for permission to visit the Presidio and was signed by six young men of the following ranks: General, Captain, Master Sergeant, Private and Private.

Oh, yes, for official purposes, this new key defense group is entitled The Burlingame Junior Army Corps, and if any experienced military men are looking for a new job, General Delantoni says previous duty with other services won't be held against them. Of course the pay is small—really nothing.

Roving Historian for the U.S. Army, Charles Dornbusch, of the New York Public Library, goes over the merits of a Japanese-printed history of the Seventh Infantry Division in Korea, with George Goldfine, Sixth U.S. Army librarian. Mr. Dornbusch visited the Reference library enroute from Canberra, Australia.

New Tech Plan Okayed; Will Be Reserve Boon

The Air Reserve Technician Plan, in which more than 10,000 full-time civilian jobs would be set up in units of the 24 Air Reserve flying wings throughout the country, has been approved by the Civil Service Commission.

The plan was proposed by the Department of the Air Force as a means of increasing the mobilization readiness of Air Reserve Forces.

About 10,500 civilian jobs designated as Air Reserve technician positions would be established. The individuals selected must be eligible for, and willing to accept, active membership in the Air Reserve unit as well as be selected through regular civil service procedures.

Employees now serving in affected jobs can join the Air Reserve if they are qualified. If they do not accept Reserve membership or do not qualify, they will be kept in their jobs until they can be transferred to other jobs at the same or higher salary in the same geographic location.

Here's How

Air Guard Views Ajax Launching

The launching operations necessary in readying the Nike Ajax Guided Missile for firing were displayed by members of the 436th AAA Missile Battalion recently at the California Air National Guard Annual Open House. The 436th is stationed at Travis Air Force Base.

Presenting the display were five launcher crewmen of B Battery under the command of Lt. Richard W. Williamson, the battery's executive officer. Sfc. James Rasberry, missile electrical assembler, answered questions and described Nike launching operations to the thousands attending the show.

No Small Business!

During the past year 86 per cent of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency's procurements, amounting to more than $80 million, were with private industry. An estimated 600 subcontracting firms are involved, giving small business a more important part to play in this program than is generally realized.

New Homes for Army dependents at isolated Nike sites are under construction in the East Bay Area for 441st AAA Missile Battalion personnel. Forty-eight single and duplex units are planned at two of the 441st sites.

Nike Site Housing Will Start Shortly

Construction and grading is under way on the first housing to be built from Military Construction Army (MCA) funds for Army dependents at isolated Nike sites in the Bay Area. Forty-eight single and duplex housing units will be built for personnel of the 441st AAA Missile Battalion at two sites in the East Bay Area.

The new quarters will provide key officers and non-commissioned officers with housing within the prescribed 10 minutes driving time from the Nike sites and relieve the cost of living and housing shortage near the sites.

Headquarters and "C" Battery at San Pablo Ridge near Richmond are scheduled for 36 units at an estimated cost of $850,000. Twelve units will be built at "B" Battery. Rocky Ridge, near San Leandro.

Silver-Wing Aviation Award Created

Four Aviation Medical officers in the Sixth U.S. Army Area meet the educational prerequisites covering the first award of silver Army aviation wings to 50 AMC officers as announced by the Office of The Surgeon General, DA, recently.

The local medical officers include one assigned to the 30th Engineer Group stationed at Stockton, Annex; one at Fort Ord, one at Fort Lewis and one at Fort Huachuca.

Other AMC officers eligible to be awarded the new silver military aviation wings are stationed in Infantry, Armored and Airborne divisions, Station Medical Complements covering the care of Army aviators and with a variety of special Army Aviation activities.

Some are in Germany, in Japan, Korea, Hawaii and the Canal Zone as well as those serving across the United States from Fort Lewis, Washington, to Fort Benning, Georgia, and from the Army Medical Research Laboratory, Fort Knox, Ky., to the Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Washington.

Distribution of the new badge is expected to be made by the latter part of 1957. It shows the caduceus superimposed on the shield of the Seal of the United States centering the wings.

Officers designated to wear the new wings have received their aviation medical training at the Air Force School of Medicine, Randolph Air Force Base, Texas, or at the Navy School of Aviation Medicine, Pensacola, Florida, and the Army Aviation School, Fort Rucker, Alabama (for applicatory training).

Noted Army Historian On Flying Visit Here

Mr. Charles E. Dornbusch, a volunteer historian for the United States Army and the armies of New Zealand and Australia, paid a flying visit to the Presidio this week.

Currently a member of the staff of the New York Public Library, Mr. Dornbusch, an ex-serviceman, has in his free time compiled a book published by the Department of the Army, considered one of the most perfect bibliographical guides of its kind. Entitled Histories of American Army Units—World Wars I and II, and the Korean Conflict, the book is currently available for reference at the Sixth US Army Library Depot.

It carries 2,300 titles of military units from the years 1865 to 1957—2,100 of which have been catalogued alphabetically as completed ready-reference guide to Army or civilian historians throughout the nation. It also bears the names of men killed in regimental action, of Medal of Honor winners, maps, and the Routes of March.

During his combat service with the 103d Division's 409th Regiment, Dornbusch acquired a tremendous interest in the historical limitations placed on potential writers through lack of correct and adequate reference material. Even though the unit histories were frequently written on the spot by the military historian and his staff, they became souvenir items to thousands of soldiers attached to the given unit, hence they were never available in sufficient numbers for widespread use.

After completing his military service, Dornbusch became Assistant for Exchanges at the New York Public Library where again his interest was fired by the continuing demands of newly minted writers who had experienced the first-hand implications of war. They wanted to write of it but the library bibliographies were incomplete.

This was the springboard which led Mr. Dornbusch on a paper chase to all corners of the nation. His trip to the Sixth US Army Reference Library was accomplished enroute from Canberra, Sydney, Melbourne, Australia, and New Zealand, where he was engaged in securing source material for historical reference books on the Commonwealth's countries' two Armies.

Microfilms of information assembled by Dornbusch are available to military and civilian historians on request and at nominal cost. He prepares a monthly listing of newly prepared unit histories for the same purpose.

Problems cited by Mr. Dornbusch in his volunteer services to the Department of the Army include those occurring in cases where Histories of the Armies were published by Japanese and German printers during the war and post-war years. The work in these publications was flawless in content and make-up.

The foreign printing project was undertaken as a means of restoring to their owners, printing concerns shut down in conflict. It filled its purpose, but the printers' names were omitted. There began another search with an interesting sidelight on commercial enterprise.

For instance, strange bargains were driven by Mr. Dornbusch and the New York Public Library in the furtherance of their objective. In many instances it transpired that both the Japanese and the German publishers of the Histories of the US Armies would consent to supply the books and the dealer's names and addresses, only if the Public Library would engage in barter, through sending CARE packages to needy groups in either country. The Library did!

Wins Award

Former 30th AAA Major Decorated

Major Kenneth B. Nicholson, former 30th AAA Group Adjutant, was presented the Commendation Ribbon with Metal Pendant this week. The presentation was made by Col. Daniel A. Ranney, 30th AAA Group Commander.

The award was based on exceptionally meritorious service as Group S1 (Adjutant), and Commanding Officer of the 518th AA Operations Detachment for the period from 23 June, 1955, to 19 March, 1957.

Major Nicholson has been re-assigned to the 8th AAA Group, Wiesbaden, Germany. He recently completed the Associate Advance Officer Artillery Course at the Antiaircraft and Guided Missile School.

The Presidio became headquarters for the Ninth Corps Area on 1 September 1920. Major General Hunter Liggett was the Corps' first commanding general.

Release New Post Regs On Reenlistment Plans

Units stationed at the Presidio which maintain their own personnel records may re-enlist people to fill their own vacancies only, according to the intra-Army reenlistment regulations released this week by Post Headquarters.

The units affected include those stationed at Forts Barry, Baker and Cronkhite. Letterman Army Hospital, Sixth Region US Army Air Defense Command and their subordinate units are excepted from the regulations.

Post will handle the reenlistments of those persons whose records are kept at the Headquarters Military Personnel Division and those who are reenlisting for other than their own vacancies.

Enlistment or reenlistment is authorized for initial assignment to overseas commands on the day after discharge per expiration term of service or normal release from active duty only, in accordance with the monthly quotas furnished by Headquarters, Sixth Army.

Enlisted personnel with less than 16 months remaining on current enlistment per expiration term of service or prior expiration term of service discharge are authorized for initial assignment to USARJ/UNCEA upon enlistment or reenlistment without regard to monthly quotas.

Requests submitted to the Adjutant General for waiver of time lost for AWOL or confinement should be forwarded through channels and be at Post Headquarters between 35 and 60 days before the adjusted date of separation, if the time lost is more than 60 days.

Applications for extensions of enlistment for less than one year and resignation from indefinite period of enlistments are to be forwarded to the Headquarters.

Old Technique Has Revived Application

An artificial respiration technique used in Biblical days has been revived and modernized by the local Red Cross chapter in administering aid to infants and small children and adults who have suffered chest injuries.

The technique, known as mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, allows the rescuer to judge the effectiveness of the operation at any stage of the rescue.

In applying the mouth-to-mouth method, the rescuer first clears the patient's mouth of any foreign matter with the middle finger of one hand, while holding the tongue forward with the same finger.

Next place the patient in a face-down, head down position and pat him firmly on the back with the free hand. This helps dislodge any foreign object in the air passage.

The third step is to place the patient on his back and use the middle fingers of both hands to lift the lower jaw from beneath and behind so that it "juts out." Holding the jaw in this position with one hand, place your mouth over the patient's mouth and nose and breathe into the patient with a smooth, steady action until his chest rises.

As you start this action, move the free hand to the patient's abdomen, between the navel and ribs, and apply continuous moderate pressure to prevent the stomach from becoming filled with air.

When the lungs have been inflated remove your lips from the patient's mouth and nose and allow the lungs to empty. Continue the operation at a rate of 20 cycles per minute; the rescuer should rest long enough to take a deep breath after every 20 cycles.

If the mouth-to-mouth technique is used on adults instead of the recently explained "push-pull" technique, the rate should be slowed to 12 cycles per minute.

Radar Bounces Off Moon

Signals transmitted by powerful radar equipment of the Army Signal Corps at Fort Monmouth, N. J., and reflected by the surface of the moon have been received by one of the earth satellite tracking stations, the Army and Navy have disclosed.

Using the giant radar transmitter Diana, Army Signal Corps engineers have been bouncing signals off the moon for several years. At Blossom Point, Maryland, the Navy's Minitrack Facility has received these signals during several test "pick-ups."

Purpose of the tests is to perfect a technique by which all of the Western Hemisphere satellite tracking stations can be tested as soon as they have been completed and placed in operation. The technique also can be used to calibrate satellite tracking stations set up by amateurs in various parts of the Western Hemisphere, Africa, Europe and the islands of the Pacific.

The receiving equipment, the Mark II Minitrack, was designed by the Naval Research Laboratory for use by volunteer radio tracking stations throughout the world. The equipment was modified for the earth satellite program.

Real Killer

Perhaps the most remarkable sport in the civilized world is archery, chiefly because this form of modern diversion was used as the means to kill more persons in warfare than ever have died as the result of explosive weapons.

Pistol Pete Rademacher will inaugurate a number of firsts when he tangles with Floyd Patterson on 22 August in Seattle. Not only will Pete be the first simon pure to vie for the heavyweight title in his first pro go, he will be the first all-Army champ to ever compete for the title and the oldest non-pro. He will also be the first ex-officer to ever fight for a title, and his first pay day may set an all-time record for a first pro fight. Although the former Infantry officer is given little chance by the experts against more experienced and versatile Patterson, this corner thinks the hard-punching amateur has a good outside chance. He'll have to hit Patterson to win, but if he takes charge of the fight early and crowds the champion, anything can happen. The above picture was taken when Rademacher fought in the Olympic eliminations at the Cow Palace last year.

Presidio Will Host Regional Little League

The Golden Gate Little League will host the Western Regional Little League play-offs here at the Presidio on 16-17 August at Pop Hicks Field.

The Golden Gate Little League All-Star Team, which was made up of young boys whose parents are stationed at the Presidio and LAH, was eliminated from the tournament at the District Playoffs a week ago.

The winner of the Regional playoffs will journey to Williamsport, Pennsylvania, on 23 August to participate in the Little League World Series.

The Little League was honored last night on the television program, "Success Story," which appeared on Channel 7 at 1900 hours.

Captain Ronald Ellis, President of the Golden Gate Little League, appeared on the program. There were also several shots of the Post Little League ball park.

Rose Bowl King

The University of Michigan has a very impressive Rose Bowl record. In its three appearances in the big bowl, it defeated Stanford and the University of Southern California by identical scores—49-0, and then went on to edge California 14-6.

21st Nine Drops First Game In State Tourney

In a tight and well played game, the 21st Engineers lost to the Sebros team from San Jose by the score of 3-2 in the first round of play in the State Softball Tournament being held at Sacramento.

In the fifth inning, the Engineers went ahead, 2-0, on Bill Julian's double and Jerry Helm's home run.

The 21st led until the last half of the seventh when Sebros combined two walks, a sacrifice, a double, and a long fly ball, to score three runs and win the game, 3-2.

Nick Themely pitched a fine game, allowing only four hits. His teammates collected a total of six hits.

In the second round of play, the Engineers play the loser of the Napa-Petaluma game this Sunday. This is a double elimination tournament.

The 21st Engineers will represent the Presidio in the Central California Sixth Army Regional Tournament which will be held at Fort Ord on 13-17 August.

740th Wins Tough Pair To End Top Season Play

The 740th AAA Missile Battalion team ended its very successful season this week with a 9-6 victory over the Petaluma Leghorns.

The Nikes, who trailed by four runs up until the sixth inning, exploded for five runs in their half of the seventh to take the lead, 7-6, and were never headed again.

Big gun for the Missilemen was Bud Larson who collected four hits in 5 times at bat. Other hitting stars for the 740th were Rudy Buffin, who recently joined the Torero baseball team, with a home run in the 7th and two singles to drive in two runs. Jack Jentry also collected three hits for the locals.

Last week, the Nikes added another victory by edging Parks Air Force Base, 4-3.

Daniel Cook was credited with the win as he allowed the airmen six scattered hits. Hubie Brown starred for the 740th as he blasted a home run over the left field wall with one man aboard in the first inning.

With the game tied 3-3 in the fourth inning, Larson belted a single and moved to second on Mendez's all hands safe sacrifice bunt. In an attempt to get Larson out at second, the Parks' pitcher overthrew the ball and Larson came dashing home for the winning run.

In another game, Hamilton Air Force Base edged the Nikes by the score of 9-8.

The 740th ended its season with a record of 24 wins and 14 losses. Buffin led the league in batting with a .353 average. Right behind him was Brown with .327.

The Wizards in fourth place and only one game away from third spot, took three games from the faltering 21st Engineers to their one. Woods with a 504-187 topped the Wizards, while MacDonald was best for the Engineers with 471-195.

The Hardnoses defeated the last place Hilltoppers by the count of 4-0. Burmeister once again led the Hardnoses with 533-199, while Levinson was best for the losers with 476-188.

In the Pacific League the race is tightening up a bit as the Spoilers, who lived up to their name, took three games from the league leading CMD keglers.

High man for the Spoilers was Corbin with 543-187, while Marks topped CMD with 574-230, the highest game and series of the week.

The second place Signaleers gained two full games on the league leaders by taking a 3-1 decision from the hapless Missileers. Esh once again was high man for the winners with 529-194. Stevens was best for losers with 504-204.

The Deuces led by K. Schell with 460-167 defeated the Presidio Cops by the count of 3-1. Beveridge was high man for the Cops with 558-205.

The Compt-Rollers replaced the Cops for third place as they took three from the Phills. Morgan paced the Rollers' attack with 529-190, while Wysk was tops for the losers with 491-210.

In an interesting make-up match tonight, the league leading CMD bowlers tangle with the second place Signaleers.

Presidio's Peak Named Top Bay Area Athlete

A Presidio soldier was awarded the Doten Sports Institute Merit Award this week for "sportsmanship, unselfish devotion to his teammates and outstanding athletic endeavors."

Pfc. Gordon L. Peak of Hq. Co. Sixth U.S. Army, an outstanding diver from Fresno State College who recently set two new records in the Sixth Army Swimming and Diving Meet in the 3 meter and 1 meter diving events, was presented with the award over station KLX on the weekly Doten Sports Institute program.

Last week, Peak won the men's low board 1 meter title in the Sleepy Hollow Open Swimming and Diving Meet held at Orinda, California, and it was on the merit of this performance that he was presented with the award.

The Merit Award which carries the theme "recognizing today's athletes America's future," is presented weekly to the outstanding athlete in the Northern California area.

On the committee which selects the athlete are some well known figures in the world of sports. Included are Brutus Hamilton, former Olympic Track Coach, Payton Jordan, Stanford University Track Coach, George Wolfman, coach of the University of California baseball team which won the National Collegiate World Basketball title last season, and Phil Woolpert, coach of the University of San Francisco basketball team.

The weekly radio program is sponsored by the Doten Sports Institute and is run by two well known sports figures, Frank So-brero, former All-American football star with the University of Santa Clara and originator of the famous Pogo pass, and Dick Peter, who held the world record for the two-mile relay up until recently.

Bacon, Shanks Out; Sample Still Hangs Tough

Taut Mound Duel Ends In 4-3 Victory For Revamped Pirates

The rejuvenated Pirates of the Pony League won their third straight game this week to lead the league going into the third week of second half play.

Behind the fine one hit pitching of Tommy Mlakar, the Pirates upset the Braves, who ran away with the league title in the first half of play, by the score of 4-3.

Pat Horrell of the Braves also pitched a good game allowing but one hit. The game was marked by walks and errors and this accounted for the runs, otherwise, it was a tight pitchers' battle right down to the last inning.

Don Harlor of the Pirates and Bob Clark of the Braves collected the only hit for each team.

This was Mlakar's third straight victory. Last week, he pitched the Pirates to a close 12-11 victory over the Tigers.

Mlakar allowed only six hits in that game, while his teammates were collecting a total of 13 hits.

The unlucky Tigers, who played a very fine game, had the tying run on third base when the game ended.

The Dodgers held on to second place by upsetting the Braves, 13-10. Dennis Youngdahl of the Dodgers got credit for the win.

Bob Clark started for the Braves but was relieved in the second inning by Dale Ruffin as he walked the first five men. Ruffin was knocked out of the batter's box in two innings and then Doug Campbell came in to go the rest of the way.

Campbell and Clark both clobbered one home run apiece for the Braves.

Last week, the Braves beat the Tigers by the count of 7-1 to register their only win of the second half of play. In that game Campbell pitched his first game in great fashion. He allowed only one hit and struck out 17 batters.

This Saturday, the schedule pits the league leading Pirates against the Dodgers, and the Braves against the Tigers in the nightcap. The first game gets underway at 1300 hours and all personnel and friends are welcome to attend.

Crown New Ping Pong Champ Here

Sp3 William P. Czarny of "D" Battery, 740th AAA Missile Battalion, copped the Singles Ping Pong Championship from a field of 23 contestants in the inter-battery tournament held 2 August at the Presidio Service Club.

Displaying a wide variety of strokes specializing in his wrist actioned backhand drive, Czarny topped his opponents in convincing fashion.

In the final match with M/Sgt. Eugene Tolliver, "C" Btry. champion and pre-tourney favorite, Czarny was able to cope with Tolliver's accurate serves and smashing forehand drives to defeat him in a thrilling match by scores of 19-21, 21-16, 21-17, and 21-31.

Czarny also won the doubles championship along with teammate Pfc. Joseph C. Roback by beating the "C" Btry. doubles team of Sp.3 Ramon Villareal and Pvt. Allen T. Kincaid.

Meet "Nimble Nick"—A Perfect Pitcher!

By Pfc. Norm Niccoli
Star Presidian Sports Editor

Practice makes perfect, so the old saying goes. For Nicholas Themely of the 21st Engineers this is more than true.

Not athletic by nature or appearance, Nick played softball whenever he had a chance to, and today he can stand up to any pitcher around and give them a good fight.

Nick hails from Detroit, Michigan, where according to him, people are crazy about softball. When only thirteen years old, he pitched for a city league team which was made up mostly of adults.

Years later, when attending Michigan State University, he played intramural softball for a team which won the school championship three years in a row. He pitched 33 games in three years, registering a total of twenty wins. A near record!

While attending University, he also played for various city league teams. One of them, the Van Camp Chevrolet team of Brighton, Mich., reached the semi-finals in the State Tournament, which was quite a feat back there because of the torrid competition.

Distaff Team Defeated; Doubles Chances Close

Two Presidio men reached the semi-finals in the Sixth US Army Tennis Tournament at Fort Ord this week after three rounds of play.

Frank Sample of the Presidio team took Fred Chen of Fort Ord in two hard fought sets, 6-4 and 7-5, to reach the semi-final bracket. Previously, he had won easily over Leon Bowser of Fort Huachuca in two straight sets, 6-1 and 6-1.

In the doubles division, top seeded Robert C. Bacon and Sample made a formidable team as they defeated Scna and Bowser of Fort Huachuca, 6-4 and 6-4, to reach the semi-finals.

Bacon and James Shanks were eliminated from the championship singles bracket as a result of losses to Geral Boas of Fort Ord, 3-6, 6-1, and 6-2, and to Phillip Hardie of Letterman Army Hospital, 6-1 and 6-4, respectively.

Burly John Zeleznock of the Torero baseball team demonstrates how to hit the ball. In the last five games he has connected for 10 hits, including three round-trippers, to lead the Torero hitting parade.

The other Presidio doubles team of Shanks and Crawford dropped out of the winner's bracket by losing to Zeigler and Jones of Fort Lewis in two close sets, 8-6 and 6-4.

In the women's division, both Presidio entries were beaten. Julian Kite lost in two sets to Theresa Weisler of Fort Lawton, 6-2 and 6-3, and Sylvia Bernardini dropped a tight match to Virginia Frost of Madigan Army Hospital, 7-5 and 6-4.

Most Popular, Too!

Wrestling is probably one of the oldest known sports. As far back as 5,000 years ago, the Sumerians, an ancient tribe, were known to hold wrestling matches.

AAA Stars Strengthen Post Nine

The Torero baseball team began rugged workouts this week for the coming Sixth Army tournament which will be held from 3 to 7 September.

The Presidio team has been considerably strengthened recently by the addition of four members from the 740th AAA Mis. Bn. baseball team which finished a very successful season this week.

The four men are Hubie Brown, Rudy Ruffin, Bud Larson and Ronald Ross.

The team travels to Reno this weekend for a game with the Reno All-Stars and then wind up their tour with a game at Oroville, Calif.

The tentative starting line up for the tournament, which will be tested this weekend in Reno, are: John Zeleznock 1b, Amelio Martinez 2b, Dave Hennigen ss, Hubie Brown 3b, Chuck Gritts lf, Roger Collins cf, and Rudy Ruffin rf, with Bud Larson doing the catching. The pitching staff will consist of Dan Cook, Dick Shinnick, Fred Crissey, Roger Collins and Bob Clark.

Post Team Cops Summer League Try

The Presidio basketball team, in a warmup for the coming season, walloped the Quality Store five, 58-49, in a Drake Summer Basketball League game.

Tor Hansen and Carroll Williams led the Torero attack with 14 points each.

St. Agnes, however, clinched the round robin championship by defeating Marin, 60-39.

Almost a Miracle: Larry Loses Valiant Fight AAA Troops Aid Stricken Blood Victim

By Sp3 Richard A. Lewis
Star Presidian Associate Editor

Little Larry Quale — who was almost a miracle — died Thursday.

The seven-year-old son of Sgt. and Gloria Quale, 163d MP Company, passed quietly away at Letterman Army Hospital, victim of incurable leukemia.

It was more than two years ago that Larry came home from the hospital after the first attack of the disease. At that time doctors gave the parents little hope that their son would live beyond three months.

But Larry, who his mother says "was always so good, and happy, and so terribly patient," surprised everyone. He lived to see Christmas . . . to have his sixth birthday in May . . . to enter the first grade in September . . . and to see Christmas again.

He celebrated his seventh birthday, too. But the party for him and his twin sister, Linda, took place in the children's ward at Letterman Hospital.

During the last two months he came home from the hospital for just one week. His was a wonderful home, perched on the hill behind Fort Point where Larry could sit and watch the ships under Golden Gate Bridge . . . and the fishermen down on the point below.

Happier Days shows twins Larry and Linda Quale with their dog, Lady, posed in the yard of their home by Fort Point. Last week Larry died from leukemia. He had amazed doctors by living with the disease for more than two years. He is survived by his parents, Sgt. and Mrs. Edwin Quale, 163d MP Company; two sisters and three brothers.

"Although he suffered terribly during the last weeks, he didn't complain," says his mother. "Even the doctors said how good he was."

The end was quick—a week from yesterday. Larry died quietly, a smile on his lips, Teddy Bear by his side.

The mother and the father will never forget the help and friendship their son received from all who came in contact with him. There were the soldier volunteer donors who responded those many times when Larry needed blood. And all the people at Letterman where he received "the most wonderful, kindest, understanding treatment . . . not only from the doctors and nurses, but from others who hardly knew him—the lab technicians, and mess personnel, and even the people in the information section."

"Letterman is a wonderful place to have a sick person. We knew time would take our son. But always he came home looking so well. It was the wonderful care he received."

The funeral took place Friday. More than 70 persons were present as Father Baumgart delivered the Message of Angels and Father Plocki gave the sermon.

Larry was interred at the Presidio National Cemetery. The location is high on a hill overlooking San Francisco Bay—the view Larry knew so well.

Pall bearers were Pete Kehoe, Al Cole, Frank Puzzo and Robert Trent, all of the 163d MP Company. "They were old friends," says Mrs. Quale. "Larry loved those boys more than anything."

The floral wreath that accompanied the casket had this message from Larry's parents:

To our beloved son, Larry Quale,
Brave men are few and brave children are seldom,
Your resting place is with brave men as it should be,
Courage is the true quality of a soldier,
And your battle is won for you are with God.

Mom and Dad

A call for blood donors to aid 10-year-old Ralph Giner, a San Francisco hemophilia victim, was answered this week by 10 men from Battery B, 740th AAA Missile Battalion. The boy received 34 blood transfusions after a recent tooth extraction.

The Army donors were Lt. John J. Benequista, Sfc. Calvin M. Foote, Sfc. William D. Lockwood, Sfc. Jasper Bishop, Jr., Sgt. Elmer Youngblood, Sp2 Andrew B. Porter, Sp3 Richard S. Kerr, Pfc. Stanley R. Crittenden, Pfc. Carmello Arce and Pfc. John C. Stevens.

A total of 40 persons donated blood this week; however Irwin Memorial Blood Bank officials say he will need more blood credited to him in case of future hemorrhages.

Grass Fire Controlled

A grass fire which broke out near the Control Area of "A" Battery, 740th AAA Missile Battalion; this week was brought under control by the Daly City and San Mateo County Fire Departments assisted by 15 men from the battery.

The fire, which burned for about two hours, destroyed about 600 acres of grass. High winds helped to divert the fire away from the radar equipment, according to Lt. Richard E. Jewett, Officer in Charge of the Control Area.

'Flying Jeep' Contracts Let; Total $1,702,000

Plans for the possible future development of an "aerial jeep" were revealed this week by the Department of the Army when it announced the awarding of three contracts totalling $1,702,000 for the design, construction and testing of flying research vehicles.

One of the contracts was awarded to Aerophysics Development Corporation in Santa Barbara. The Chrysler Corporation, Detroit, and the Piasecki Helicopter Corporation, Philadelphia, also received contracts.

Recent developments in direct lift devices utilizing the ducted propeller, improved power plant designs and advances in vertical take-off research, prompted the Army to undertake the development of an "aerial jeep."

The "aerial jeep" would provide the Army with a compact vehicle which would have the versatility of a conventional jeep but also be capable of hovering and propelling itself above the ground. This would eliminate road or terrain restrictions associated with ground vehicles without requiring clearings or landing strips for airplanes.

Ultimately the Army hopes to have an "aerial truck" which can travel up to 50 miles per hour, stay in the air for several hours and carry up to 1,000 pounds of weapons or equipment.

Wins Bronze Star

Major General E. J. McGaw, commanding general of the 6th Region, U.S. Army Air Defense Command, recently presented the Bronze Star Medal to M/Sgt. Weston F. Rimington, operations sergeant in the G3 section of the command headquarters. The medal was awarded for meritorious service with the 3rd Infantry Division in Europe during World War II.

Will Attend Course

Capt. Richard M. Andersen, Chief of the Collection, Production and Dissemination Branch, Intelligence Division, G-2, left this week to attend a five-week course at Sandia Base, New Mexico. The class is the Special Weapons Employment Course.

Captain Andersen has been assigned to G2 since January 1956.

AF Sergeant's Wife Chosen As Best WAC

"A real help in the clinic and one of the best workers we've had," is the way August's Wac of the Month is described by her NCOIC, Sgt. Val Cherechukin of the Post Dispensary's Immunization and Physical Therapy Section.

Pfc. Nancy Secrest's job is giving people shots. And she has "no trouble at all with her patients." "Of course," she admits, "some of the children get a little scared."

The August Wac of the Month has been in the Woman's Army Corps for 11 months and at the Presidio since December.

"This is a nice duty station," she says, "but I want to go to Europe."

Her very good reason for wanting to go to Europe relates directly to the fact that her husband is stationed there. Her husband, a staff sergeant in the Air Force, was stationed at Fort Mason when they met.

They were married in April just one week before he left for his new assignment in Chateauroux, France. So Nancy is extremely interested in getting her own assignment in Europe.

She joined the Wacs for education and travel and was directly assigned to the Presidio. She attributes her direct assignment to nurses aid experience in her home town of Bay City, Michigan.

Signal Civilians Win Top Incentive Award

Washington (ANS) — Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker recently presented exceptional Civilian Service and cash awards to six Department of the Army civilian employees at a ceremony highlighting "Project Paydirt" in the inner court of the Pentagon.

Another cash award of $1,275 was presented to an Army Ordnance Corps employee, Theodore E. Jasin from Ravenna Arsenal, Apco, Ohio, for a suggestion concerning a change in freight classification which resulted in a saving of $1,055,000 to the government.

Chief Stresses Caution On Non-Military Projects

Major General John J. Binns, Sixth U.S. Army Chief of Staff, discouraged the use of troop labor and military equipment for civilian activities in Circular 8-11 released this week.

The general stated that "while these projects are generally of a worthwhile nature, the use of military resources for such purposes is questionable."

The objections listed were conflict with the interest of civilian labor and other civilian enterprise; possibility of claims against the government or individual military personnel which may arise from such activities; the procedure of diverting appropriated funds or the resources purchased with such funds to purposes for which they were not intended; and further dispersion of progressively restricted means.

The general added that deserving cases, which cannot be readily identified under policy guidance, should be determined on their own merits. He said the policy should not be construed to affect adversely military assistance in case of domestic emergencies or any other specific cases which are covered by law, regulation or other directive of higher authority.

New Boss of all Army Information is Major General Harry P. Storke. General Storke succeeds Major General Guy S. Meloy, who has been reassigned Deputy Commanding General of the Fourth Army at Ft. Sam Houston, Texas. The new Chief of Public Information, Office of the Secretary of the Army and Chief of Information, Office of the Army Chief of Staff, will take over his new duties on 1 October.

'TV Hometown' Newest Army PR Experiment

The Army is presently shipping sound-motion picture cameras to the major commands worldwide to record soldier interviews for home-town airings in preparation for its latest television venture, "The TV Hometown."

The show will give families and friends an inside look at what "their" soldier is doing. It will let him comment on his Army job and give the television audience a chance to see his equipment, surroundings and living conditions.

DA Grants Extra Month On Uniforms

In 1915 the Secretary of the Army enlisted in the Michigan National Guard and served on the Mexican Border with the 33rd Infantry, Michigan National Guard, during the next two years. During World War I he was commissioned a second lieutenant of infantry and served with the 166th Infantry, 42nd (Rainbow) Division in France. He was awarded the Silver Star for bravery under fire.

Mrs. Brucker and a party of eight will accompany Mr. Brucker to the area.

Liberty's Legacies

German Family Stayed Together

Private Harald G. Scherwinski, Hq. Co., Sixth US Army, is only one member of a whole family of Liberty's Legacies. He arrived in the United States from Germany in July, 1953 in the company of his father, mother, five sisters and two brothers.

Harald takes rather for granted the remarkable fact that his West Prussian family of eight was not only able to survive intact the Second World War, the Russian invasion and the Polish occupation, but was able to escape to West Germany and finally to emigrate to the United States.

Fellow members of the Church of the Latter Day Saints gave the family a variety of assistance, he explains. "But most important," says Harald, "our church believes in people helping themselves."

His father, who lost a leg during the First World War, is a genealogist—a person who traces the descent of families. Harald's family is now located in Salt Lake City, Utah, where Mr. Scherwinski continues his profession working for members of his religion.

The family believes it was Divine guidance that prompted it in 1944 to move from their home in Elbing, West Prussia, to the village of Wobesde in Pommern, Germany, near the Adriatic Sea. Harald's aunt and grandmother moved into the Elbing house vacated by the Scherwinski family. Three weeks later the Russians invaded and the two women were killed.

In the village of Wobesde the family faced first the Russians

Trusted In God

Pvt. Harald G. Scherwinski

and then the Poles. Looters threatened to shoot members of the family if they did not hand over all valuables. Twice the family was driven from their home, but each time managed, in the confusion, to return.

The living situation became intolerable. Poland had annexed the area, and the Germans were faced with the choice of becoming Polish citizens or getting out. The Scherwinski family moved to a refugee center in East Germany. Then, because a fellow Latter Day Saint promised Mr. Scherwinski employment in West Germany, the family received permission to leave their Iron Curtain residence and move to a town near Frankfurt in the American zone of Germany.

For the next three and a half years Harald worked as an apprentice tool and die maker.

Then in 1953, Mr. Scherwinski was able to make the move he had been planning since 1933. He and his family left Germany for the United States to settle in Salt Lake City, Utah.

What did the family expect from the United States? "We knew there was great prosperity. Friends from the U.S. had written — 'We are owning a car.' In Germany, very few persons have automobiles."

The family, however, found "you have to work hard to own things." Nevertheless, one year after he had arrived in the United States, Harald had purchased a car of his own.

When he worked at his trade in Germany, he was paid 200 marks a month, which is approximately $50. In Salt Lake City for the same type of work he earned $500 a month. Material goods in the two countries cost about the same despite the difference in wages, he reports.

As for the future, Harald isn't quite sure. He would like to go to college and study mechanical engineering, but he lacks formal education (he did, however, pass the Army's high school GED tests). But college or not, his future is bright, for his tool and die trade is much in demand in America.

Army Missile Display Today In Fairfield

"A Caravan of Missiles," the U.S. Army Missile Exhibit, is scheduled to make a special stop at Fairfield, Calif., today. The display will be open from 1000 to 2200 hours at the Fireman's Hall.

Purpose of the display is to acquaint the public with the Army's intense interest and participation in the guided missile field and to further explain the role of the Nike in the defense of the United States.

The missile exhibit points up Army progress in developing operational missiles for the nation's atomic-age arsenal. It traces the history of rocketry from 1232 A.D. to the present era by means of colorful paintings, huge photo-murals, an unusual three-dimensional color slide theater and a color motion picture theater.

Also included in the exhibit are scale models of the Nike family of guided missiles and other modern weapons.

VA Says Builders Must Pay New Home Discounts

Permissible discounts on GI home loans, effective immediately, were announced today by the Veterans Administration.

In California the maximum discount has been set at 5½ points where the down payment on a home is less than 10 per cent, and 5 points where the down payment is 10 per cent or more.

VA control of discount rates on GI-guaranteed home loans is directed in the recently enacted Housing Act of 1957.

VA said discounts cannot be charged to a veteran buying a home under VA guaranty, but must be absorbed by the builder under the GI Bill. No allowance for the discount rate paid by the builder will be made by VA in appraising GI homes, the agency said.

However, in accordance with the new law, VA said it will limit the fees and other charges payable by the builder in obtaining construction financing.

Both builders and lenders will be required to certify they have not and will not impose any charges, fees, or discounts in excess of those permitted by the agency, VA said.

Two allowable discount scales have been set up by VA, depending on the veteran's down payment. Loans with a down payment of less than 10 per cent call for higher discount rates. Minimum down payment permitted by VA is 2 per cent and the maximum interest rate is 4½ per cent.

Discount rates for individual states, territories, possessions, and the District of Columbia, may be changed from time to time, VA said.

The new controls will apply to all GI homes for which appraisal requests are received by VA on and after August 5, 1957.

Other highlights of VA's discount control regulations are:

1. To get interim conventional construction financing, builders may pay 6 per cent interest, a service charge of 2½ per cent, and certain technical and miscellaneous expenses.
2. Builders may pay a commitment fee of 1 per cent of the GI loan fee to the lender making a loan to the veteran, or to the investor who agrees to buy the loan from the originating lender.
3. VA will not authorize builders to pay service fees or charges for "standby" or "warehousing" agreements in excess of the allowable discounts.
4. The seller of a used home may pay the allowable discount and commitment fee.

First Year Results Prove Successful

"Operation Do It Yourself" was launched at the Presidio a year ago this month with the announced intention of getting more work done for less money by taking advantage of the individual soldier's inherent ability to help himself.

With the blessing of Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker the program was aimed specifically at improving the condition and appearance of soldier quarters—barracks, BOQs and family housing.

A 1957 fiscal year report on the program released from the Post Engineer's office shows the program to be a success and recommends its continuation in the current fiscal year.

"The 'Do It Yourself' Program, however, is not the answer to shortage of personnel and funds . . ." states the report. "Naturally," says a Post Engineer spokesman, "when we are expending more supplies and getting more work done, it is going to cost money. Under this program we get jobs done now that we could not otherwise handle due to shortage of funds and personnel."

But let's look at the results. Here are some of the projects that Presidio soldiers did themselves to make living and working conditions more pleasant:

- Extensive rebuilding of the dispatcher's office at the Post Motor Pool by Post Transportation Section enlisted personnel.

- Construction of a playground on Portola Drive by members of 30th Engineer Group (Base Topo).

- Portable irrigation system installed at the children's playground near the 25th Avenue gate by personnel of the 561st Engineer Company (Port Construction).

- Construction of a memorial at B Battery, 740th AAA, by battery members.

- Wall and ceiling constructed in Bldg. 935 by members of Post Ordnance Section.

- Acoustic tile installed in the ceiling of Bldg. 650, room 111, U.S. Army Military District, California, by enlisted personnel.

In addition almost every barracks on Post underwent a series of self-help projects that ranged from completely re-doing day rooms to painting foot lockers. The "Do It Yourself" boys at company level planted grass, replaced glass, installed shades, laid linoleum, painted mess halls and repaired plumbing.

Guiding light through the first year of "Do It Yourself" was the Post Engineer Section, which issued tools and supplies, provided instruction and even offered suggestions as to which projects might best be carried out under the program.

Certain restrictions had to be enforced to keep enthusiastic personnel from going overboard. Areas couldn't be repainted more frequently than every four years. Wood would be issued for repair of old structures, but not for construction of new buildings.

A series of classes was conducted by the Post Engineer Section to train personnel in the art of doing it themselves. The 30-day instruction period covered painting, carpentry, plumbing and other handy-man talents.

The Post Surgeon and the Post Engineer jointly conducted a training program for personnel in Vector Control—disease carrying insects and rodents—including sanitation, elimination and control. Some 80 men attended the 17½-hour course.

In addition the Engineer's Field Maintenance Branch conducted a series of four courses on Nike equipment which has resulted in a 70 per cent reduction in overtime expended by the Field Maintenance Shop on Nike emergency calls.

A summary of costs for the program for the period 1 July 1956 to 1 June 1957 indicates the grand scale with which Post personnel took advantage of the "Do It Yourself" program. Total fiscal year expenditures for self-help supplies are as follows: Paint, $21,930; woodworking, $15,860; roads and pavement, $787; and grounds, $74,410.

Could Have Been You!

One hundred and ten persons died each day last year as the result of motor vehicle accidents.

Some 20,200 persons died from falls in 1956!

Army Musical Diplomats Return

The Army's most noted traveling musical ambassadors, the U.S. Army Field Band, have arrived home after a whirlwind concert tour of Europe where they presented 43 concerts in a dozen countries within 60 days.

This organization was seen or heard by more than a million persons during the trip, its second to Europe since 1952 and by far its most extensive. Some 350,000 persons turned out at the various concerts; the rest watched or heard the band on television and radio.

The band traveled more than 12,000 miles into virtually every corner of The Continent and Scandinavia, mainly by bus or train.

Volunteers + Blood = Happy Ending!

A happy ending was added to a long story this week when Captain Charles F. McCurdy, Commander of the 561st Engineers, learned that 16 pints of blood given by his men a few months ago are now circulating in the veins of a healthy boy.

The story began with a phone call to Captain McCurdy from a friend of Stanley C. Kelly, a Sausalito police sergeant. The boy for whom Sergeant Kelly is guardian needed a rare heart operation and 16 pints of blood immediately.

Captain McCurdy's men offered to donate the blood. Results of the operation were not revealed.

This week the captain received a letter from Sergeant Kelly stating that the boy, Richard Frandsen, will enter college in the fall . . . and is now taking swimming lessons.

'Legacies' Soldier Named Engineer's Best In August

Private First Class Friedhelm E. Marunde, 99th Engineer Company, was named the 30th Engineer Group Soldier of the Month this week. Pfc. Marunde competed against all 30th personnel in grades E1 to E4 stationed at the Presidio and Sharpe General Depot.

Pfc. Marunde will receive a Certificate of Achievement from Col. Lawrence R. St. John, Group Commander; will be omitted from all duty rosters for the month; and will receive a three-day pass

A native of Jastrow, Pomerania, Pfc. Marunde has been in the United States since 1952.

Lincoln Cops Third In Free Style Pistol

Six top Presidio rifle and pistol shooters are competing in the 1957 National Matches which opened at Camp Perry, Ohio, this week. More than 3500 shooters are scheduled to participate in the nation-wide 30-day competition.

In the opening day of pistol competition Sfc. Nelson H. Lincoln, Letterman Army Hospital, took third place in the International .22 caliber free pistol match. He scored 523 out of a possible 600 points to win the third spot.

Sergeant Lincoln along with M/Sgt. James L. Wade, Headquarters Company, Sixth U.S. Army, are competing on the 59-member all-Army pistol team. Sergeant Wade holds the Distinguished Pistol Shot's Badge.

In the Sixth U.S. Army matches held in April, Sergeant Lincoln won the second leg on his Distinguished Pistol Shot's Badge. At that time he became the 23rd shooter in outdoor pistol course history to reach the 2600-93x grand aggregate out of a possible 2700.

Competing for the Sixth U.S. Army pistol team are Maj. Richard Hirsch, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 30th Engineer Group, and 1st Lt. Walter F. Norvell, USA Veterinary Food Inspection Detachment. Major Hirsch is Officer in Charge of the Sixth U.S. Army team.

The pistol competition got underway Monday and is expected to run until tomorrow. More than 1300 pistolshooters are entered. M/Sgt. H. L. "Joe" Benner, all-Army team, took the lead Tuesday in the .22 caliber firing when he posted an aggregate of 886-50 out of a possible 900. Sergeant Benner, defending champion, bested last year's record of 200-11 in the .22 caliber rapid fire match by scoring 200-14.

Army teams are entered from all of the Army areas, the U.S. Military District, Washington, D.C., and the overseas commands, in addition to the all-Army teams. The Navy, Air Force, Marines, Reserves, National Guard, ROTC, Coast Guard, Border Patrol, Postal Service and various police agencies also have entered teams.

The national pistol championship is based on the aggregate score fired during three days of competition with three guns—.22, .38 and .45 caliber pistols, with one day of shooting allotted to each gun. Ninety shots are fired each day for a possible aggregate of 900 points for a three-day total of 2700.

High power rifle, small bore rifle and muzzle loader competition will round out the "World Series" of marksmanship.

High Cost of Dying!

The total estimated cost of 1956 motor-vehicle accidents was $5,000,000,000. The total includes $3,200,000,000 estimated cost of injuries and insurance; the balance is attributed to property damage.

Your Hour Next?

Two persons were killed each hour in work accidents during 1956.

VA Moves Early To Combat Threatening Asiatic Flu

With the coming of cold weather medical experts expect an epidemic of Asiatic influenza to break out in San Francisco and other parts of the United States.

In preparation for the expected epidemic the Livermore Veterans Administration Hospital has installed more than 100 additional ultra-violet lights for the purpose of determining the effect of ultra-violet irradiation on the virus.

The VA is also interested in determining whether the virus is airborne or transmitted by direct contact.

By the time the epidemic strikes this fall or early winter one building will be completely protected by ultra-violet irradiation. The research staff hopes to learn the protective value of air disinfection on influenza.

Plans are being made so that the patients will not have to leave the protection of the irradiated area at any time. A temporary chapel is being set up in the protected area, and a barber shop has been placed within the protected area for use by patients. Library and canteen service will be provided by carts to the patients' rooms.

More than 150 patients are in the section of the hospital equipped with the ultra-violet irradiation.

Name Chemical Officer For Post Assignment

Post Commander Col. Charles G. Rau has announced the appointment of Captain James T. Pooler as Post Chemical Officer to replace Capt. Norman D. Colburn.

Capt. Pooler moves up to his new assignment after serving for the past year and a half as Post Chemical Section property officer.

Before coming to the Presidio Captain Pooler had tours of duty in Korea and Japan. During 1954 he commanded the only smoke generator battalion in northern Korea. He went from there to Camp Zama, Japan, in 1955 to take charge of a chemical technical intelligence detachment.

In 1954 the new Post Chemical Officer had the interesting and challenging assignment as company commander for 400 degree-holding enlisted men at the Army Chemical Center in Maryland. "They were a good bunch of kids," says Captain Pooler of the scientific and professional men in his company.

After attending Officer Candidate School at Fort Riley, Kans., in 1952, Captain Pooler went on for a year's schooling at the Chemical Corps School at Fort McClellan, Ala.

The Captain, who has put in 16 years of Army service, first joined the Reserve in 1938, but didn't go on active duty until 1940. He served with the 45th Infantry Division during World War II and saw action in Africa, Sicily and Italy. He wears the Purple Heart that dates to the Anzio beachhead.

Captain Pooler lives on the Presidio with his wife and two girls, ages 5 and 8. Of his Presidio assignment he says: "This is a wonderful place. You don't often have duty stations as fine as this one."

Meet John Ashley: A Real Teenager's Romance!

By Sp3 Richard A. Lewis
Star Presidian Associate Editor.

A young soldier left the Presidio Saturday for Southern California where for two weeks he will lead a gang of motorcycle toughs on a venture of terror and villainy.

Pvt. John Atchley, E Company, USA Garrison, went on leave, not AWOL. For he is a bright young movie star, not a demented, leather jacketed hoodlum.

Labeled by press agents as a cross between James Dean and Elvis Presley, John Ashley (stage name) is already one of the hottest newcomers in Hollywood—although he has only been out of college since June.

Before he was called into the Army for his six month active duty tour, John had turned out several TV productions as well as the full length movie, "Drag Strip Girl."

It is ironic that this young soldier got his first Hollywood break as a clean-cut Navy plebe in the TV series "Men of Annapolis." He starred in three shows of this series. The last production was built around John and featured his wrestling and tumbling skills. He was a regional champ in high school.

"Because of my lucky break—getting a lead in my first TV show—I have never had to take less than star billing," says John. Following this short period of acting respectability, John switched to villain roles and played such characters as an Army deserter, a rock and roll delinquent and now he is the leader of a motorcycle gang.

He says he always chooses the "bad guy" roles when he has a chance, explaining his preference this way:

"The stock nice guy almost always has weak lines and a relatively unimportant part. Today, if you want to be in there, you wear a dirty T-shirt, spit on the floor and slap up two or three chicks. Then the audience walks out of the theater saying—'What a rat he was, that John Ashley.' But they remember your name!"

John plays his teenage, rock and roll parts with relish and expects to continue in this character for some time to come. "Let's face it, teenagers are the hottest audience in America today . . . as long as they want this stuff, I'll give it to them."

Questioned about the influence his delinquent parts might have on the teenage audience, John replies: "I feel that the young people who see my movies have enough intelligence to realize it is just entertainment. Besides, I always get my just deserts."

John is a triple threat in show business. Besides acting he also sings and dances. He explains the importance of having a variety of talents this way:

"What can Brando do on the Ed Sullivan show besides just stand there?"

His latest platter for Intro Records is "Let Yourself Go," a rock and roll number. On the other side is "Bermuda," which is done in calypso style.

"The Motorcycle Gang" is the film John is working on during his leave. It is the first film on this subject since the popular "Wild One," with Marlon Brando. Anne Neyland co-stars with John. She recently completed "Jailhouse Rock," with Elvis Presley.

John says he has been enjoying his Army tour very much. "The Army for an actor is a good thing—six months of character study. You meet every type of person—the good ones and the bad ones." He even liked basic training; says it put him in good shape.

He has expressed hope that he will be able to act in a Special Services play at the Presidio when he returns from leave. "The last one they did here was a comedy, so maybe we can do something serious this time," he said.

The 22-year-old actor graduated from Oklahoma A & M in June with a degree in business and dramatics. Although he's wanted to be an actor for a long time, he got the business degree to please his father, who is a surgeon. John is 5 feet 11 inches and weighs 165 pounds.

In the last eleven years, Welch has racked up a total of eight championships. While attending high school in Montana, he won the state Interscholastic championship for three straight years, 1949-51. In 1950 and '51, he held the Montana Jr. Chamber of Commerce Champion title.

In 1953, while attending the University of Montana, where he obtained a Bachelor's degree in Physical Education, he won the State Amateur Championship. In 1953 and '55 he placed first in the Sheridan, Wyoming, Tournament of Champions. He also captained the university golf team, which placed second in 1954 and '55 in the Skyline Conference Tournament.

Welch entered the Army on 8 June 1956. He qualified for the Presidio team by placing fifth in the Post Golf Tournament held in mid-June.

The Doten Merit Award is given weekly to the outstanding athlete in Northern California. Last week, Pfc. Gordon Peak, also of Hq. Co. Sixth U.S. Army, won the award for his excellent diving performance in a local swim meet.

Tom Stewart was the winning pitcher, while Dennis Youngdahl got credit for the loss.

In the nightcap, the once unbeatable Braves toppled the Tigers by the tune of 9-6. Dale Ruffin got credit for the win, and also led his team at bat-along with Ken Higdon, with 2 hits apiece.

The annual event for semi-professional baseball teams is not sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic Union and jeopardizes the amateur standing of the participants. Admission is charged for the games and prize money awarded to the winners.

In refusing to authorize the event for service teams, DA stated it was against its policy governing participation in public events and other activities in the civilian domain.

Pfc. Donald R. Welch shot a 7 over par 295 to win the open division championship at the Sixth Army Golf Tournament held at the Presidio Course.

Despite losing to Fort Lewis in team points, the Presidio placed three men on the All-Sixth Army team which is competing this week in the Army Finals at Fort Ord, Calif.

Pfc. Allwyn Pirtle, winner of the post tournament in mid-June, and the old pro, Pfc. Alex Sutton, were tied for second place with 299 apiece. In a play-off match, however, Pirtle edged out Sutton to take undisputed possession of second spot.

The other member to qualify for the Sixth Army open team was Sgt. Joaquin C. Sanchez of Letterman Army Hospital, who shot a 301.

Welch played a steady game throughout the tourney, shooting a three under par 69 on his second round over the rough Presidio course.

In the senior division, Lt. Col. Thomas Ward, retired Presidio officer, topped his class with 324, but was declared ineligible to participate in the All-Army finals because of his retired status.

Harris Stays Red Hot As WACs Blast Parks

The Presidio WACs went on another hitting barrage this week, pounding the opposing pitcher for twenty hits, including three home runs, to rout the visiting Parks Air Force Base WAFs by the lopsided score of 19-5.

Rosemary Weber pitched a beautiful game for the WACs, allowing only three hits.

Peggy Harris continued her phenomenal hitting streak as she collected four for five, a home run, a triple, a double, and a single.

Weber didn't do too bad either, getting four for five, including a touring home run which almost hit the PX building.

Other top hitters for the WACs were Lee Brandl, who had a perfect day at bat, collecting four for four. Two of her hits were perfect bunts down the third base lane. Van Houten clobbered the other home run for the locals.

This Tuesday the WACs will play the only female softball team in San Francisco. On Thursday the locals will journey to Hamilton Air Force Base, where they will tangle with the WAFs in a very important league game, which will decide the winner of the Northern California Army-Air Force Female Softball League.

If the Presidio femmes can defeat Hamilton, and according to Julian Kite, NCOIC of Sports Office, they will, a playoff game will be necessary to decide the championship.

21st Wins, Then Drops From State Tournament Play

The 21st Engineers defeated Petaluma, 5-2, in the second round of the State Softball Tournament being held at Sacramento.

The Engineers, however, were forced to withdraw from the tournament because they are representing the Presidio in the Central California Sixth Army Regional Tournament which is taking place at Fort Ord this week.

Ed Johnson, newly acquired pitcher, threw a nifty 3 hitter to collect his first win for the Engineers.

Ed Kornaga, Bill Julian, and Nelli Joff led the hitting parade for the 21st, with 2 hits apiece.

The Engineers took a 4-1 lead in the third inning and then coasted the rest of the way to add another victory to their very successful season.

Comes From Behind To Defeat Ord's Boas

Captain Frank Sample, a newcomer to the Presidio, took top honors at the Sixth U.S. Army Tennis Tournament by defeating Jerry Boas of Ft. Ord, 6-3, 13-11, 5-7, and 6-4, in the singles finals.

Displaying great determination, Sample came from behind several times to score deciding points. In the second set, Boas took the game advantage but Sample kept deucing and forcing his opponent. A deuce at game 11 proved to be the telling blow. From here Sample won and then took the last game to win his second straight set.

Jim Shanks won the consolation event by trimming Leon Bowser of Fort Huachuca in three sets, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4.

The doubles team of Sample and Robert Bacon was trimmed in the semi-finals by Boas and Bill Medin of Fort Ord by scores of 6-4, 6-2 and 6-2.

In the women's doubles finals, Julian Kite and Sylvia Bernardini lost to Virginia Barr and Virginia Frost of Madigan Army Hospital, 6-3, 6-3.

In team points, Ft. Ord ran away with top honors, scoring 27 points to second place Presidio's 9. Ft. Lewis was third with 8, followed by LAH with 5, Ft. Mason with 5, and in last place was Ft. Huachuca with 3 points.

This week, Sample is competing in the All Army finals which are also being held at Ft. Ord.

Toreros Split Twin Bill With Reno All-Stars

The Torero baseball team returned home after a weekend trip to Reno where they won one game and dropped one.

They trimmed the Reno All-Stars in the first game by the tune of 9-5. Fred Crissey was the winning pitcher.

John Zeleznock continued his hitting streak by collecting 3 for 3. Dick Shinnick also collected three singles for the locals.

In the second game, the Toreros dropped a heartbreaking game to the same team in 10 innings 11-10. After trailing by eight runs, the Presidio men staged a terrific comeback to tie the game. In the tenth inning, Reno scored the winning run on two errors.

Roger Collins started for the Toreros but was relieved in the second inning by Dick Shinnick who got credit for the loss despite pitching a very fine game, striking out 15 men.

Ken Carroll led the hitting parade with 2 hits, reaching first base 6 out of 7 times.

The Toreros are now undergoing vigorous practice for the coming Sixth Army Tournament, which will be held in the early part of September at a yet undetermined place.

In make-up games, CMD increased their lead by two full games by handing the Signaleers a 3-1 defeat. High for the league leaders was McInturff with 527-221. Powell was tops for the losers with 537-202.

In the other make-up match, the Spoilers jumped from fifth to third place in the standings by shutting out the Missileers, 4-0. Bauman once again led the Spoilers with 538-203, while Schwind paced the loser's attack with 527-221.

In the Presidio League, Hq. Co. Sixth U.S. Army took a stunning 3-1 decision from the front running 46th Ordnance keglers to climb within one game of first place.

Corbin paced the winners with 594-214, while Dubois rolled a 538-182 to be top man for the 46th.

The third place Keystone Kops, only one game from second place in the tight Presidio League race, blanked the slipping 21st Engineers, 4-0.

McInturff led the Kops with the high series of the week, 595-215. Topping the Engineers was MacDonald with 463-171.

The Kingpins, trying hard to climb out of the second division, toppled the Hardnoses by the count of 3-1. Lansing was high man for the winners with 507-202, while Bolton led the Hardnoses with a respectable 551-190.

The Wizards, led by Purves with 569-211, split their series with the Hilltoppers, 2-2. Lazarony paced the Hilltoppers' attack with 455-182.

The hot 99ers of the Bay League, paced by Levin with 516-203, handed the front-running Deuces a 4-0 defeat to cut their league lead by three full games. Kiersztian was high for the losers with 532-195.

The second place Hq. Co. Sixth U.S. Army, still seven games from first place, took a 3-1 decision from the hapless Officers' Mess. Bauman was tops for the winners with 494-217, while Mahon once again topped his teammates with 480-181.

The Triple Aces regained some of their old winning punch as they blanked the 30th AAA, 4-0. Salisbury was best for the Aces with 488-192, while Moskal headed the AAA group with 459-186. As a result of their win, the Aces climbed back into the first division.

The 56th MRU keglers defeated the 740th AAA by the tune of 3-1. Frankenberg of the MRU rolled the league high with 518-184, while Vital paced the 740th attack with 447-167.

Little League Playoffs Here Today

Soldiers Will Taste Test Atomic Cured Foodstuffs

The Army will ask soldier volunteers at Fort Lee, Va., this winter to "taste test" irradiated food prepared and served as part of regular mess hall meals, the Department of the Army announced this week.

Irradiation of food is a method of utilizing nuclear emanations—gamma rays and electrons—instead of heat, to kill or inactivate micro-organisms which are responsible for food spoilage.

The ultimate military and civilian advantages of the process include a reduction in refrigeration requirements, reduced food losses, improved control of certain food-borne diseases and a wider availability of fresh foods under field conditions.

Already Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker has served a complete luncheon of irradiated food at the Pentagon to members of Congress and the press.

Research in the field of irradiation of food has been conducted over the past several years under the direction of Army Quartermaster Corps in cooperation with the other agencies of the Department of Defense, the Department of Agriculture, the Atomic Energy Commission and more than 70 industrial and educational institutions.

Plans are now being developed for the Army Ionizing Radiation Center which will be built at the Sharpe General Depot, Lathrop, Calif. It will be capable of processing up to 1,000 tons of irradiated food per month.

At Fort Lee this winter some 300 soldier volunteers will try out the irradiated food under controlled testing procedures. Only one of several dozen irradiated food items, including meat, vegetables and fruits, will be served to the soldiers.

They will be served the selected irradiated food item at their regular meals several times during a 30 day testing period. The same dish, but not irradiated, also will be served during the testing period.

Draft Call Down To 8,000; Only Army In Need

Washington (AFPS) — The Selective Service System has been asked to draft 8,000 men for the Army in September, a drop of 3,000 from the previous month's call.

This was the lowest request since April 1956, when only 6,000 young men received their notices. The September 1956 call was for 14,000.

The lower number reflects a decision to reduce the number of personnel in the Armed Forces announced July 16 by Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson.

Draft calls for the Army will not be eliminated in the near future because of the reduced strength, the Department of Defense said.

Some of the Army's 50,000 manpower cuts will be attained through stricter screening of personnel, particularly those desiring to re-enlist.

The other branches are not placing calls with the Selective Service for September, the DOD said.

New Commander
Brig. Gen. W. T. Guest

Name Guest To Command Sac Depot

Brigadier General Wesley T. Guest, former Signal Officer for the U.S. Army, Europe, assumed command of the Sacramento Signal Depot this week. He succeeds Col. Stuart M. Welsh, who will retire from the Army next week.

Appointed a second lieutenant in the Signal Corps in August, 1921, General Guest directed the Communications Division of the Communications Zone headquarters in the European Theater during World War II.

In April, 1945, he was appointed director of the Plans and Operations Division in the Office of the Chief Signal Officer for the Southwest Pacific Theater.

In 1951 General Guest became Signal Officer of the Eighth Army in Korea. Two years later he was appointed commandant of the Signal School at Fort Monmouth, N.J.

The general has been awarded the Legion of Merit with one Oak Leaf Cluster, the Bronze Star Medal, the Air Medal and the Distinguished Service Medal.

General Guest holds a B.S. in electrical engineering from Cornell University and an M.S. in communications engineering from Yale University. He also was graduated from the Signal School and the National War College.

Army To Guide First Private Missile Plant

Washington (ANS)—A new guided missile and small weapons systems facility now being built by the Martin Company near Orlando, Fla., is the first privately-owned and financed major aircraft industry plant to be put under Army supervision and mobilization cognizance.

Scheduled for completion this fall, the plant's technicians are already making LACROSSE field artillery guided missiles for the Army in temporarily rented buildings at Orlando.

The 6,700 acre Florida facility was selected in accordance with the government's desire to disperse defense industries as widely as possible and for rapid, economical expansion in case of a national emergency.

The term mobilization cognizance, the Army says, is used to describe a situation where one service is responsible for scheduling all mobilization defense production in a specific plant.

Missile Display Due At Hamilton Base Tomorrow

Battery C, 9th AAA Battalion, will put a Nike Missile on display at an open house to be held at Hamilton Air Force Base between the hours of 1000 and 1400 tomorrow.

The open house, which is scheduled to close with a "sonic boom," will have on display all 14 types of aircraft based at Hamilton. Three jets will be on display—F-86, F-89 and T-33.

Inside the hangar area all types of air rescue and flying equipment will be displayed. There will also be a cutaway of a jet engine. A mock-up of an ejection seat will provide rides for the kids (and their parents?).

The 573rd Air Force Band will play concerts at 1100 and 1300 hours, and the base picnic grounds will be open to the public.

Tight Squeeze!

The technical problems associated with equipping missiles with the smaller, versatile atomic warheads being developed are infinitely simpler than those confronting the Army when it tries to squeeze these warheads through a conventional gun barrel.

The winner of the Western Region will compete in the Little League World Series Aug. 23 at Williamsport, Pa., birthplace of the Little League.

The host Golden Gate Little League All-Stars, whose parents are stationed at the Presidio and Letterman Army Hospital, were eliminated in the first round of the District play-offs by the Novato-Hamilton Air Force Base team, which went on to win the Sectional title.

Saturday afternoon at 1400 hours the losing teams will meet for consolation prize, while the two winners will play for the Regional title immediately following the first game. All games will be televised locally by Station KPIX.

Newly Commissioned in the WAC Reserve, Lt. Elizabeth M. Kelly receives the oath of service from Capt. Clyde W. Jones, Acting Post Adjutant. The new lieutenant has been assigned to the Post AG Section as an administrative specialist since February 1956.

Kelly Joins Officer Ranks

Specialist Second Class Elizabeth M. Kelly, administrative specialist with the Post AG Section, received a direct commission in the WAC Reserve last week. The new lieutenant was sworn in by Capt. Clyde W. Jones, Acting Post Adjutant.

A member of the WAC since 1950, Lieutenant Kelly served with the U.S. Army in Heidelberg, Germany, for two years before coming to the Presidio in February 1956.

Lieutenant Kelly is scheduled to attend the Officers' Orientation Course at the WAC Center, Ft. McClellan, Ala., this month. She will be called to active duty in the near future.

40th Armored Division Now Training At Roberts

The 40th Armored Division, Southern California's largest reserve-type military unit, is undergoing its annual 15-day summer training encampment at two widely separated Army posts. The training is scheduled until 25 August.

The bulk of the division, some 5500 tankers, artillerymen, armored infantrymen and supporting troops are training at Camp Roberts and Hunter Liggett Military Reservation for the fourth consecutive year.

Slightly more than 1000 men and officers, chiefly tankers and anti-aircraft artillerymen, are the first National Guardsmen to undergo the rigid course at the U.S. Army's Armored Combat Training Center, Camp Irwin.

Training emphasis this year will be placed on more efficient use and maintenance of the armored division's wide assortment of weapons and vehicles, according to Maj. Gen. Homer O. Eaton, Jr., division commander. The general also pointed that economy as well as military efficiency is an important factor.

General Eaton also reassured relatives of the Guardsmen against fear of the so-called Asiatic flu. He said that there had never been a case of the disease recorded at Camp Roberts and that no cases existed this week.

ARMY POWER—KEY TO PEACE

Secretary Scores Push-Button Complacency

New Flag for the Army was officially presented Wednesday by Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker (left) to Sixth U.S. Army Commander Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young (right). This first official Army flag was presented to Mr. Brucker last year by Vice President of the United States Richard Nixon. Sp3 Paul R. Jones of the Sixth U.S. Army Honor Guard, who is holding the flag, became the first enlisted man to carry the new flag.

Says Army Must Remain Strong For Limited Wars

Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker scored the complacency of push-button theorists who sit back and fold their hands in the narrow belief that future wars will be over in a matter of hours.

Speaking to members of the West Coast Manufacturers Association at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco, he cited the "nibbling" policy of Soviet aggression and singled out Syria and Egypt as examples of limited and internal aggression that forces small nations into the orbit of Communist influence and ends in Communist domination.

"Anyone who fails to see the leapfrog and limited aggression tactics now being practiced by the Communists, just isn't up on the hard facts of life."

"The best estimate now is that limited wars and outbreaks, such as occurred in Korea and Viet Nam, must be prime considerations in any American defense policy."

"The Army must stay strong to meet these threats, either singularly or collectively. We are strong."

The Secretary went on to cite the tremendous strides made by the Army in the past two years. He praised the electronics industry for their role in making this progress possible and he called on them to keep working on ideas that

Armed Helicopters Afford New Concept For Combat

Washington (ANS)—In recent tests, the Army demonstrated that helicopters armed with rockets and machine guns can provide suppressive fire in support of helicopter-borne troops being deployed under combat conditions.

At the U.S. Army Aviation School, Fort Rucker, Ala., tests are currently being continued to further evaluate armament composition and techniques for tactical employment of armed helicopters. Weapons ranging from .30 caliber machine guns to 80mm Oerlikon rockets have been mounted on three types of Army helicopters, the Sioux (H-13 Reconnaissance-type), Chickasaw (H-19 Utility-type) and the Shawnee (H-21 Light Cargo-type).

Helicopter pilots take advantage of the terrain and offer an elusive target for the enemy. Adopting infantry-type tactics, they slither through the air to stalk a target, pop up, strike with either a rocket or machine gun burst, take cover afforded by the terrain and repeat the process over and over again from different directions.

Successful tests with armed helicopters have also been made against simulated enemy troop movements on a battlefield, bunkers, gun emplacements, dug-in positions and road blocks.

According to an Army spokesman, the firepower of one Sioux helicopter is equivalent to that of a reinforced infantry squad.

Top Movie, TV Engineers At Presidio Meet

Twenty-two members of the Society of Motion Picture and TV Engineers met at the Presidio this week. Dinner was held at the Presidio Officers' Open Mess followed by a meeting in the theater of Bldg. 603.

Local members attending were Lt. Col. Charles J. Schauers and Maj. John E. Fenner, both of the Sixth U.S. Army Signal Section.

Society members toured the Central Photographic and Film and Equipment Exchange Facilities and discussed the Army Pictorial Center, the relationship of the Sixth Army Signal Section to CED and closed circuit television engineering applicable to the Army Language school, and the structure of the pictorial branch and its responsibilities within the Army area.

Gyroscoping 3rd Infantry Has Several Vacancies

Military personnel desiring to Gyroscope to Germany in March with the 3d Infantry "Marne" Division may take advantage of a 30 day extension of the cutoff date for submission of applications, it has been announced. Deadline is now 10 September.

More than 3,000 applications have already been received, according to a report from 3d Division Headquarters. Officials have announced that they are seeking an all-volunteer Gyroscope cadre, possibly the first in the history of the Army.

Limited vacancies still exist for combat leaders in all branches, signal technicians, cooks, stenographers, typists, bandmen and many other fields. Specific information on desired MOS's and applications can be obtained by calling Post Personnel Division, extension 3311.

Lt. Col. Thomas S. Capter, Division Adjutant General, said that while many key assignments are already filled by early volunteers, many choice assignments would still remain open to volunteers submitting their applications in the immediate future.

He also stated that considerable dependent housing authorized the division in Germany was still available because of the acceptance of many unmarried Gyro volunteers. He indicated that married NCO's of the top two and in some cases top three grades accepted for the movement have an excellent chance of receiving concurrent travel authorization for their families.

Personnel planning to apply for assignment to the 3d Infantry Division during the 30 day extension period are cautioned not to delay in submitting the necessary paperwork, because neither assignment vacancies nor concurrent travel opportunities are expected to remain open indefinitely.

The division is scheduled to Gyroscope to Germany in the spring where it will exchange stations with the 10th Infantry Division which will be stationed at Fort Benning, Ga.

Signal Corps Civilians Win Study Awards

Fellowships in the Secretary of the Army's Research and Study Program have been awarded to two top civilian employees of the U.S. Army Signal Engineering Laboratories, the Department of the Army has announced.

Recipients are Dr. John N. Mrgudich, Director of Human Resources, and Joseph Weinstein, mathematics consultant at Evans Signal Laboratory.

Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker has emphasized the program as a means of furthering the careers of civilian scientific and professional employees, as well as obtaining immediate and long-range benefits for the Department of the Army.

The awards will give both laboratory men 12 months to pursue their chief research and development projects while officially relieved of all other duties.

By KEN FOX

Washington (ANS) — It's a bit saddening to see the proud United States Army so much on the defensive.

Leaders of the ground forces have acquired a complex. They feel that in an age of air power their service is being downgraded to relative unimportance. Understandably they are distressed.

At times they feel compelled to speak up defiantly. That was the case with Lt. Gen. Thomas W. Herren when he retired as commander of the First Army the other day after 40 years of service. In his valedictory to his troops, General Herren thought it necessary to say that "the Army is not outmoded and never will be."

He's right, of course. Strategies and tactics change with the march of weapons. So do the organizations and roles of the individual services. The Army itself has recognized this fact by its so far unsuccessful rivalry with the Air Force for control of the medium-range—1,500-mile—guided missile.

What concerns the Army's leadership is its bottom position on the budget totem pole. The Air Force is getting more than twice as much money and the Navy about one-third more. Yet the Navy feels obliged to insist at times that its big carrier task forces haven't been made obsolete by the threat of H-bombs and A-bombs.

There is a danger to our security in excessive accent on jet bombers and nuclear missiles. No one really knows what form a future war might take. It might be a short-lived holocaust. Or it could be another prolonged struggle on land such as the Korean fighting. The military prophets can only guess.

What is known is that the Army has had a decisive part in every war fought by the United States. The Army may have its peacetime periods of neglect but always the force of events restores it to prominence.

So, for what it might be worth, we would counsel the leaders of the ground arm to cling fast to their pride, traditions and belief in their own future. There'll always be a U. S. Army.

Liberty's Legacies

Geophysicist Finds New Life

Did you know that tulip bulbs are edible? Sp3 John Van De Wouw of the 30th Engineer Group, who endured the World War II German occupation of his native Holland, has seen tulip bulbs bring high prices as food.

The Germans marched into Holland in 1940. One of their first acts was to close the school John was attending. All text books were collected and censored for information about the Queen. Chapters setting forth democratic principles were torn out of the books and burned.

John recalls that many of the boys would edit their own books and hide the forbidden chapters for their own use.

At the beginning of the occupation the Van De Wouw family lived just south of the Hague, Holland. But when the Germans started construction of their Atlantic wall defenses, they routed everyone from a coastal strip four miles wide. John's family was forced to move inland.

The elder Van De Wouw was city manager of a local newspaper at the outset of the war. While the Germans regulated every bit of news that was printed, John's father was able to keep a radio hidden away in the newspaper plant. With this contraband information he printed an underground newspaper which told the truth to the people of Holland.

"A Happier Life"
Sp3 John Van De Wouw

When the Allies invaded Europe and pushed on towards Germany, they bypassed all of western Holland. The German occupation troops there were cut off from their supply depots and were forced to the land for all their food. This created a terrible shortage among the people of Holland. Their only source of food was from the neighboring farms which grew only sugar beets and tulip bulbs. These items commanded a very high price as food.

The post war return to normalcy was an uphill battle all the way, John reports. Europe's economy had been wrecked and the job of reconstruction was extremely difficult.

The Van De Wouw family received food packages from an uncle in California. Eventually he persuaded them to come and live in America. In 1947 the family boarded a boat that took them across the Atlantic and through the Panama Canal to their present home in California.

Three days after his arrival in California, John started school and began to learn English. He graduated from UCLA two years ago and received a B.A. degree in geophysics. For the last 22 months he has been on active duty with the Army and is currently stationed with the 537th Engineer Company as a survey computer.

"We have found a happier life here," says John. "The people in America are content and carefree. They do what they want while in Europe they follow a life set down by their ancestors. Here there exists a freedom of progress."

Private Meets Sergeant — Coming, Or Going!

About six months ago a young man, now Pvt. Darryl Hollis, walked into a recruiting office to inquire about a "Choice of Branch" poster from M/Sgt. Alpha R. Hammond.

The then Recruiting NCO explained the program, following which Private Hollis enlisted in order to get a pre-education in electronics and also to complete his military service obligation.

"... meeting you here!"
Hammond & Hollis

After Private Hollis completed his basic training at Fort Ord he was assigned to Battery A, 740th AAA Missile Battalion. To his surprise he was greeted by Sergeant Hammond, now the battery's mechanical material chief. Private Hollis is a fire control radar operator.

Private Hollis is scheduled to attend a 42-week course in the electronics of the fire control area during the second quarter of this fiscal year. Meanwhile, Sergeant Hammond plans to take a 28-week electronics course in electrical material maintenance. Both courses qualify the men to apply for warrant officer appointments and both plan to utilize the opportunity.

Off-Post College Students Should Register Now

Registration dates for off-post night classes have been announced by three colleges in the area. Interested individuals should contact the Post Army Education Center as soon as possible if financial assistance is desired.

City College of San Francisco has scheduled registration from 1900 to 2100 hours, 5 September in the school library, Cloud Hall. Classes are free and local education advisers suggest that prospective students report to the school early.

Students are requested to contact the Post Army Education Center before registering.

The University of San Francisco will register night school students from 1900 to 2100 hours on 11, 12 and 13 September. Students who plan to attend the University of California Extension School are advised to contact the Post Army Education Center during the first part of September.

Electronics Mag Will Carry Schauers' Story

This month's issue of Military Electronics magazine features an article by Lt. Col. Charles J. Schauers, Chief of the Communications Engineering Division, Sixth U.S. Army Signal Section. The article is entitled "Military CE Engineering Management."

Lt. Col. C. J. Schauers

The former Aviation Radio Editor for Radio-Television News magazine, Colonel Schauers currently has an article on the design and construction of a mobile transmitter appearing in the ARRL Mobile Handbook. His work will soon be published in Popular Electronics and CQ magazines.

In his home electronics laboratory Colonel Schauers designs and constructs various items of electronic equipment which he uses in pursuit of his amateur radio hobby. His car contains a two-way radio station as well as other electronic gadgets and he is now working on a radar speed trap detector.

The colonel is a member of the Institute of Radio Engineers, American Radio Relay League, American Mathematical Society and AFCEA.

Chapel Dedication Service Set For Religious Center

A chapel dedicatory service at the Presidio's new Religious Activities Center was conducted here this morning at 0730 hours, preliminary to a Sabbath supper which takes place at the center this evening at 2115 hours.

Chaplain (Maj.) William Z. Dalin, USAR, Western Area Director, Commission on Jewish

Chaplaincy, presided at the morning service. He will also be on hand this evening to welcome all members of the Armed Forces and their dependents in this area. The event is hosted by the San Francisco JWB Armed Services Committee under direction of Esmond Schapiro, Chairman.

The Religious Activities Center Building is located on Lincoln Road at the corner of McDowell Avenue, on the Presidio.

The Sisterhood of Beth Israel, under chairmanship of Mrs. Roy Sankey, will serve as hostesses for the Sabbath supper.

Arrangements for the program are under direction of Harry Altschule, USO JWB director, Northern California Area.

Off-Duty Death Rate!

Workers suffer more accidental deaths and injuries off the job than they do on the job. In 1956 nearly seven out of ten deaths and more than half of the injuries occurred off the job.

Home Accidents High!

In 1956, 437 persons died in accidental deaths in San Francisco as compared to 428 in 1955. Most of the accidents occurred in the home where 216 persons lost their lives.

Women Civic Leaders See Missile Flights

Another female barrier was crashed this week as the first women accompanied an Army group to Red Canyon, New Mexico, to witness the firing of a Nike guided missile.

Mrs. Gerald Whitaker, Chairman of the National Defense Division, General Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs.

Richard Baender, State Chairman of National Defense, California Federation of Women's Clubs, were the history makers. They are from Berkeley and Fresno, respectively.

The ladies were among a group of 12 East Bay civic leaders who made the two-day trip. Highlight of the jaunt was observing an annual 441st AAA Missile Battalion service practice. The 441st is located at San Pablo Ridge near Berkeley.

Col. Daniel A. Ranney, Commanding Officer of the San Francisco Bay Area Army Air Defense Command, hosted the tour on Tuesday. Maj. Gen. Samuel Russell, Commanding General of the Antiaircraft Artillery and Guided Missile Center, entertained the visitors that evening.

Newly Assigned

Col. JOHN E. ROGERS has reported to his new assignment in the Sixth US Army IG Section. He came to the Presidio from a duty tour as Professor of Military Science and Tactics at San Jose State College.

Colonel Rogers has completed nearly 30 years' Federal service. In wartime he served with the US Army of the Pacific, Provost Marshal Section, in Hawaii, ultimately as commanding officer of the Hawaiian Armed Services Police. Other Provost Marshal assignments took him to Japan with the 530th Military Police Battalion.

A native New Englander, Colonel Rogers was born in Lowell, Mass. He grew up in Everett, Mass., and he was graduated from the University of New Hampshire where he majored in Business and Economics.

His eldest daughter has served as a lieutenant in the MSC (Dietetics). A younger daughter is a United Air Lines hostess.

Colonel and Mrs. Rogers make their permanent home in San Jose.

Collective Protector for hospitalized patients who are unable to wear regular protective masks is one of many items of defensive gear which will be displayed during U.S. Army Chemical Corps Exhibit scheduled for display at the Presidio 24 to 29

October. Protector is intended for use where gas-proof hospital installations are not available. It is used to remove chemical and bacteriological agents from the air and to supply this purified air to seven, or fewer, bedridden hospital patients.

First Hand Report!

Iran; A Land Of Strange Contrast

A bird's-eye view of Iran was brought back to the Presidio this week by 1st Lt. Gary G. Engels, who served as engineer survey platoon leader with the 30th Engineer Group in that country.

The Group's two-fold Iranian mission is to survey a triangulation net from Turkey to Pakistan through Iran, which will lead to new maps of Iran; and to teach the Iranian Army officers how to survey and map their own country.

In his assignment, Lieutenant Engels spent most of his time in the field and had about 30 Iranian Army personnel working for him. According to the lieutenant, Iranian enlisted men are conscripted at rifle point. After serving two years the man is given a discharge card and must show this when the guards come to his town for another group of Army personnel.

Teheran, with a population of two million people, is Iran's only modern city. The rest of the country is a conglomeration of desert in the south and mountains in the north. Temperatures in the desert regions reach about 120 degrees and in the north drop below zero.

Iran lacks vegetation except near the water's edge and where irrigation has been installed. Irrigation projects are few, however, because water is at a premium. The wasteland is inhabited by nomadic tribes, a mixture of Turkish, Pakistani and Arabian cultures. The poverty-stricken people are unruly and illiterate.

Out of a total population of 20 million people, Iran's wealth is held by about 200 families. The country's chief products are rice and citrus fruits, augmented by the recent discovery and exploitation of oil resources.

The 30th Engineer personnel stationed in Iran are deriving an unforgettable experience from living in a civilization so different from their own, Lieutenant Engels commented.

Six-Size Engine Family Will Replace 78 Others

Washington (ANS)—A new family of air-cooled gasoline engines is being purchased by the Corps of Engineers to replace the 78 different sizes and types the Army is now using or used during World War II.

Developed by the Army Engineers as part of the Department of Defense Standardization Program, the new engine comes in six sizes. They are 1/2, 1 1/2, 3, 6, 10 and 20 horsepower.

For the present, the Army is buying engines in the first three sizes only. They can be used for a number of things such as running generators, air compressors, tent heaters, conveyors, refrigeration units, water and gasoline pumps, shower bath units, bakery mixers and scores of other purposes.

This new industrial-type standard engine family will have a longer operation life with a maximum of 100 to 200 parts or assemblies required for stockage as compared to the 23,000 that had to be stocked for gasoline engines of this size in WWII.

The Army said that these engines will permit maximum standardization and simplification while meeting a wide variety of power needs.

Sausalito School District Seeks Entrants Now

Children of kindergarten and first grade age who are planning to enter the Central School in the Sausalito School District for the first time should be registered as soon as possible. Registration is held from 0900 to 1500 hours week days in the Superintendent's Office, District Office Building on Nevada Street, Sausalito.

A child must be four years and nine months old on or before 1 September in order to enter kindergarten on 10 September, and must be 5 years and 9 months old on or before 1 September to enter the first grade.

Children's birth certificates must be presented at the time of registration.

Rural Deaths Up!

Some 30,400 automobile accident deaths occurred in rural areas, including towns under 2500 population, last year. This is a five per cent increase over 1955.

Finance Courses Head Plan For 6237th's Reserve Tour

The 6237th ARSU, Oakland USAR School will be at the Presidio teaching courses in ordnance and finance to reserve officers until Labor Day weekend.

The Oakland reserve school, commanded by Col. Harold P. Ballf, is teaching two finance courses, Company Officer and Advanced Class. Ordnance officers have the opportunity to take the Company Officer course and the Advanced Ordnance course, first, second and third year.

During their stay at the Presidio the reserve officers will have the opportunity to renew their weapons proficiency at the Post Pistol Range.

Ordnance officers will have practical exercises in ammunition handling when they visit the Naval magazine at Port Chicago. They will also visit various Post ordnance activities during their stay here.

The finance officers will be mostly confined to the classroom. However, they are scheduled to visit Post Finance Section on an orientation tour.

During the winter months the Oakland USAR School teaches a total of nine different courses to reserve officers. The school taught its first class in 1952.

Safety Program Shows Positive Results Early

Washington (AFPS)—Only one soldier—a passenger in a privately owned auto—lost his life in traffic accidents over the four-and-one-half-day July 4 weekend, giving evidence that the Army's "Back the Attack on Traffic Accidents" campaign is paying off.

Traffic deaths through June 1957 were nearly 17 per cent lower than during the first six months of last year, the Army said.

In the past five years, the campaign for traffic safety has been pressed through driver training, vehicle inspection and education through films, posters and unit talks.

Sky Cav—A New Concept With 'Pentomic' Aspects

Washington (ANS)—Cavalry has gone through two marked transition periods in the Army—horses and armored vehicles. Now it is on the threshold of another new concept to keep pace with the "Pentomic" look—"Sky Cavalry."

Still in the experimental stage, "Sky Cavalry" incorporating the latest electronic and photographic surveillance devices along with aerial reconnaissance and transport capabilities, is expected to increase the Army's mobility and give active support to combat intelligence operations by supplementing ground reconnaissance.

The "Sky Cavalry's" mission is to improve the reconnaissance capabilities of armored cavalry on the ground. The Army envisions air-ground reconnaissance teams capable of handling the increased demands on units carrying out cavalry-type missions on atomic battlefields.

This new concept will join fixed and rotary wing aircraft with tanks, jeeps and armored personnel carriers in a unit organized and equipped for performing cavalry missions. The "Sky Cavalry" unit will be either attached to or placed in direct support of the armored cavalry battalion.

The idea is not new to the Army. The first test was conducted as part of Exercise SAGE BRUSH held in Louisiana during November-December 1955 and designated SKYCAV I. It was tried again during Exercise JUMP LIGHT between October 1956 and January 1957 at Fort Bragg, N. C., and Fort Campbell, Ky. A "Sky Cavalry" provisional company was tested last spring during the Louisiana maneuver Exercise SLEDGE HAMMER.

Presidio Scouts Take Trail In Sierra Trek

Explorer Scouts of the Presidio's Post 77 are hiking the trails of the High Sierra wilderness this week, participating in the San Francisco Boy Scout Council's annual "Crescent M" expedition.

The group of older scouts (boys aged 14-17) began their trip last Saturday when they left for Kennedy Meadows, northeast of Sonora and just above Yosemite National Park.

From Kennedy Meadows, the Post hiked to Huckleberry Lake to establish a base camp where they took side trips to explore the region. Later, they hiked to Belle Meadow where they visited the Alameda Boy Scout Camp.

At the base camp, the Explorers joined in a series of activities based on knowledge acquired in the Exploring program.

The Presidio Post 77 joined with another group for a two-day survival course. Based on Explorer training, the boys will eat foods peculiar to the region, such as miner's lettuce, water lilies, cat tails and other of the wild herb families. They will also hunt by trap and snares and cook the fish they catch from nearby streams.

Problems of Night First Aid, Night Communications and Compass and Mapping work will also be worked out. As well as improvising a stone hatchet, the boys will construct a raft to cross the region's lakes and build bridges from logs and rope, to cross streams and ravines.

Through the study of land contours, vegetation and dried creek beds, the Explorers will endeavor to find water where it is not visible above ground.

Attending from the Presidio Post 77 are Hank Greenleaf, Rusty Jorgenson, Dennis Grunhie, Warren Luise, Garry Hong, Howard Moody and Jim Perry.

Group leaders are Sfc. R. J. Reilly and Pvt. R. Willet.

Crack Precision is displayed by the Presidian's drill team in Seattle's 1957 Seafair Grande Parade. More than 75,000 people lined up for the annual parade. The Sixth U.S. Army Pipe Band also performed for the Northwest spectators.

Company 'C' Paragon Of 'Do It Yourself' Plan

"Dear Star Presidian:

"Weren't there any women spies for the Union Army—and if there were, why does the Sketchbook tell only about those who served the Confederacy?"

Yes, there WERE women spies on the side of the Union; secret agents for both the Blue and the Gray . . . it was a spy-conscious war in which it seems that the ladies excelled . . . and in fact, never since have the Nation's women taken such an active part as spies . . . they took great risks and they were successful in ways impossible to the male of the species.

The appalling carelessness of citizens and officials, however, was a superb asset to secret agents on either side . . . and strangely, the Nation's newspapers served both the Armies of the Blue and the Gray by casually printing the most vital of military information.

Historians now claim that before the Battle of Chickamauga in Tennessee, Confederate General Braxton Bragg received a New York Times clipping which told accurately how the Unionists would trick him into a change in position. In Vicksburg, a Northern agent submitted to his officer a newspaper story in which the writer completely described the Federal plans for a secret canal behind the Mississippi . . . for this reason, the project had to be abandoned!

American Espionage—1861-1865—was never completely tabulated for historic purposes . . . countless agents died unheralded deaths . . . shot down in darkness or dying of exposure. In the official records of both Armies, however, are stories of espionage so strange and unbelievable that even a present-day novelist would hesitate to credit his characters with them.

One of the most important women spies for the Union Army was Elizabeth Van Lew . . . so highly respected by General Ulysses S. Grant that he visited her in her home in Richmond after the victorious Union Army took over the city.

A small blonde woman with high cheek bones and animated face, Miss Van Lew maintained that she was not a Yankee spy . . . just a good Southerner upholding the Virginia tradition of opposing human bondage whether the victim be of the North or the South. She was the daughter of a colonial Dutch family . . . given the best of academic training. Her home was in Richmond . . . across the street from where Patrick Henry called his classic phrase either for liberty or for death.

By way of explaining her strange allegiance to the North, Elizabeth Van Lew once said: "From the time I knew right from wrong it was my sad privilege to differ in many things from the opinions and principles of my locality."

She loved freedom so much that she released her family's servants after her father died. She volunteered as a hospital nurse in Libby Prison where the Union soldiers were being held under direction of Lieutenant Todd (Mrs. Abraham Lincoln's half-brother) . . . he declined her services . . . and in turn, she went to the Secretary of the Treasury and cajoled him into letting her serve. She traveled from one prison to another, carrying clothing, bedding and medicine. Scorned by her home-city press and her neighbors, she established contacts with Union agents and planted coded messages in the shoes of Negro men on horseback . . . or in the servant's baskets of eggs, one of which usually held an empty shell concealing coded information. The books she carried to Union soldier prisoners were often returned full of pin pricks like Braille conveying tremendous military information.

When resentment against her grew more intense . . . Elizabeth began to act as though she were mentally deranged . . . mumbling and humming to herself . . . wearing her oldest clothes and most battered bonnets. They began to call her Crazy Bet . . . but there was nothing crazy about her purpose or her achievements. . . . In the words of General George Sharpe of the Army Intelligence Bureau, "she represented all that was left of the power of the United States government in the city of Richmond."

Elizabeth went out frequently for a ringside view of the fighting in Richmond. "No dance could be as exciting as my ride this evening," she described one trip; "the rapid succession of the guns was wonderful; only think of the bright rush of life . . . the hurry of Death on the battlefield."

Hounded by detectives and strange faces hiding behind the portico of her home, she served faithfully in a city of hatred.

When the supply of Army horses decreased, the people of Richmond were given orders to turn in their animals. . . . Elizabeth received a tip from a friendly Confederate clerk that soldiers were heading for her home to confiscate her horse, which she needed badly for her spy work. She hid him first in the smoke house; next, she led the horse through the house and upstairs to the library. . . . "He accepted his strange position," she said . . . "he understood matters and neither stamped nor whinnied while the soldiers searched the stables."

In a later dispatch to General Butler, her coded message carried the additional information that three regiments of Confederate Cavalry were disbanded by General Lee for want of horses.

Elizabeth buried the Union dead and placed flowers from her garden on their graves. . . . In fact, so competent was her line of supply that flowers from the Van Lew garden often appeared on General Grant's breakfast table.

At the siege of Richmond, she ordered a big American flag smuggled through the lines . . . she scrambled to the roof of her house with it . . . flapping its 34 stars against the explosion of shells and gunboats, hers was the first Union flag to be unfurled in the Confederate capital.

UTAH NATIVE
Lt. Col. Theodore E. Curtis, Jr.

Silver Star Winner To Be Post Chaplain

Colonel Charles G. Rau, Post Commander, has announced the appointment of Lt. Colonel Theodore E. Curtis, Jr., as Post Chaplain, replacing Major Francis J. Tierney, S. J., who returns to his secular vocation as occupational director of the Jesuit Lay Brothers, in N. Y.

A native of Salt Lake City, Utah, Col. Curtis is an ordained minister of the Latter Day Saints Church. His Federal service comprises 18 years active duty and 10 years in the Reserve.

The newly appointed Post Chaplain came to the Presidio from an assignment as Brigade Chaplain of the 32nd AAA Brigade Hqs., in London, England, later as Deputy Chaplain to Seventh Army Hqs., in Germany. In the Far East, he served as U.S. Base Chaplain in Kobe, Japan, with World War II assignments as Division Artillery Chaplain of the 25th Division, ultimately as Division Chaplain to the 40th Infantry, in the South Pacific.

Col. Curtis was awarded the Silver Star for gallantry in action.

A married son, a former Marine, is currently studying for a Doctor's Degree in Psychology, at the University of Michigan. A daughter resides in Utah with her husband, formerly an oral surgeon in the United States Navy.

Col. and Mrs. Curtis have established residence at the Presidio.

Pfc. Representing Presidio In Army's Model Plane Meet

Pfc. Morris Howland of the 21st Engineer Company is representing the Presidio this week in the All-Army Model Airplane meet at Fort Lewis.

Sp2 Ron Crawford, also of the Presidio, had been named to the Sixth Army team, but the meet was too close to his discharge date.

Private Howland, who has been flying model airplanes for the past 10 years, is an expert in both combat and acrobatic flying.

Improved Quarters Bring High Morale

Presidio living organizations were given a blanket invitation to help themselves when the "Do It Yourself" program started at the Presidio a year ago this month.

The organization that has done the most to make its area more livable, in the opinion of Post Engineer Col. Ralph J. Griffin, is C Company, USA Garrison. Using its own manpower and supplies issued by the Engineer Section, this unit has tackled projects from basement to attic.

Unit personnel are most proud of their private little chapel located in the attic off the day room reading area. This meditation nook—just big enough for a single person—is painted white. But light streaming through the wine colored window covering bathes the room in rose colored light.

Plans for the chapel were furnished by Company Commander Eugene V. Williams who designed a similar room in Japan. Candlestick holders, cross and altar cloth were supplied by Post Chaplain Section.

"Do-It" Man M/Sgt. Andrew McKay, in the opinion of his Company Commander, Capt. Eugene V. Williams, is the man most responsible for the success of C Company in the Presidio "Do It Yourself" program during the past year. Besides the work at C Company, Sergeant McKay is responsible for many other fine carpenter jobs on Post, including the new bar at the Fort Scott NCO Club.

shelves and cabinets built by company personnel. One unique rack—designed by Captain Williams—holds folding beds in a vertical position. This gives personnel easy access to the cumbersome beds and yet takes up a minimum of space.

Pool players have their own hideaway in the basement. The newly reconverted storage room is equipped with fluorescent lighting, soft chairs, a cue rack and scoring device. It has been freshly painted.

Captain Williams insists on giving the credit for the company's successful "Do It Yourself" program to his men and especially to M/Sgt. Andrew McKay who has had a hand in almost every work project—either doing it himself or directing it.

An excellent carpenter, Sergeant McKay is full of plans for future projects. Right now he is engaged in refinishing all the company's office furniture. Another soon-to-be tackled project calls for repainting the interior of the company.

How has the emphasis on company improvement affected the morale of the men? Captain Williams puts it this way:

"In my personal opinion the company morale has improved 100 per cent. The men take a real pride in the building. Now, if there is a broken facility they report it immediately, because they know it will be repaired."

The C Company Commander is enthusiastic about the "Do It Yourself" program as a whole. "With these old buildings there is always a lot of repair work to be done. Through the use of soldier ingenuity we can save thousands of dollars and at the same time keep our living standards high."

NCO Dinner Dance

An informal dance, with music by the Paul Frey Quintet, takes place at the Presidio NCO Open Mess, 24 August. The dance begins at 2100 hours continuing until 0100.

Dinner may be enjoyed at the club before or during the dance interval.

In Meditation This C Company USA Garrison enlisted man takes time to be with his thoughts in the little chapel constructed at the company through the Presidio "Do It Yourself" program. The cross, candlesticks and literature were furnished by the Post Chaplain Section.

But the chapel is only one of many leisure time facilities located in the C Company attic for unit personnel. A large reading room complete with magazine stand, tables and soft chairs occupies one corner of the top floor area. Adjacent to the reading room is a glassed-in room reserved for those who desire to write letters.

A large TV room and adjacent ping pong room complete the list of newly constructed free-time facilities in the C Company attic. They are situated in another corner of the building where the noise does not disturb those who wish to read and write.

All of the hardwood floors in the building have been recently sealed and refinished. Post Engineer Section furnished the equipment and C Company supplied the manpower.

What has been described as the most elaborate I & E board on Post is located in the front hall of C Company. The mahogany masterpiece has space for maps, photographs, announcements, news clippings and even has racks to hold reading materials. Across from it by the orderly room is the newly installed mahogany and glass bulletin board.

The smooth operating supply room in the basement owes part of its efficiency to a series of new

All Presidio Turns Out To Welcome Army Secretary

Sharp Soldiers of the Sixth U.S. Army Honor Guard are inspected by Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker and Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Commanding General Sixth Army, during ceremonies on Wednesday morning. Members of the Honor Guard, stationed at Fort Scott, are selected both for their neat, soldierly appearance and for their general enthusiasm. They are well known in all parts of the Sixth Army area where they make public appearances.

Michigan Alumni including the Secretary of the Army get together for a chat during Mr. Brucker's visit to the Presidio on Wednesday. Both Secretary Brucker (right) and Sp3 Douglas E. Cutler (center) are graduates of the University of Michigan and the Michigan law school. Pvt. Lawrence B. Houck (left) graduated from Michigan with a degree in pharmacy and is now with the Sixth Army Medical Laboratory. Sp3 Cutler, a lawyer, is a legal assistant at the Post Judge Advocate Section.

LAI Chief Brig. Gen. Paul S. Fancher and his wife chat with Mr. Brucker during a reception Wednesday morning. From the reception Secretary Brucker traveled to the Fairmont Hotel, where he delivered a major address to electronic engineers attending the Western Electronics Show and Convention. In the afternoon he and General Young flew by helicopter to the Hiller Helicopter plant in Palo Alto.

would keep the U.S. at the top of the weaponry heap. "My office and the offices of my assistants are always open to you and your ideas. The Pentagon may seem far away but it is as near as your telephone."

In answer to a query, the Secretary explained that although the current cut in appropriations might force some stretchout in the Army's contracts with the electronic industries and others, he expected no drastic cuts.

At a press conference prior to his speech to Wescon, Secretary Brucker said that the Army's intermediate range ballistic missile, Jupiter, was not only on schedule, but ahead. He also stated that the U.S. was maintaining the lead in the development of missilery.

Asked about the future of manned-aircraft, the Secretary qualified his remarks by saying that at the present time piloted aircraft are essential to the nation's defense, but that the future portends almost exclusive use of pilotless aircraft and other aerial weapons for tactical use.

The Secretary also stated that he had the "painful duty" on his return to Washington of determining in the light of budget limitations where the Army will reduce its manpower.

Wednesday morning at the Presidio Secretary Brucker presented the new Army flag to Sixth U.S. Army Commander Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young. Sixth Army became the first continental army to receive the new flag.

The morning ceremony in honor of the Secretary included a 19-gun salute, precision drill by the Presidians and music by the Sixth Army Band and Pipe Band. (Picture story in center section.)

After his noon speech to the electronic convention Mr. Brucker returned to Crissy Field, where he, General Young, and other members of the official party boarded an Army H-21 helicopter and flew to the Hiller Helicopter plant in Palo Alto. There the party inspected Hiller's newest flying platform.

Yesterday morning the Secretary visited Stanford Research Institute in Menlo Park and Food Machinery Corporation in San Jose which is working on important Army contracts for the design and construction of armored vehicles.

In the afternoon Mr. Brucker flew to Monterey, where he inspected The Army Language School. At Fort Ord he was shown the latest projects at the Combat Development and Experimentation Center. Today he flies to Los Angeles to visit defense plants in that area.

Electronics Reps Tour Key Bay Area Nike Sites

One hundred and twenty-five of the West Coast's top electronics engineers toured Batteries A and C, 740th AAA Missile Battalion, at Fort Funston and Sharp Park this week. The men are in San Francisco for the annual convention of the West Coast Electronics Manufacturers' Association.

The visitors were greeted by the battery's commanding officers, saw the Nike Information film and then toured the administrative area.

The day's events included a visit to the underground launcher area to witness a simulated engagement of Nike on an enemy target and tours of the fire control areas located at Mt. San Bruno and Milagra at Sharp Park.

New Talent Show Series To Debut On Wednesday

An amateur talent show, one of a series planned for launching every month, is being presented at the Presidio Service Club, Wednesday, 28 August at 2015 hours.

Featured among the acts will be guitar and piano solos. Anyone who plays an instrument, sings or dances, alone or in a group, is invited to enter the contest and compete for prizes.

Winners in the talent contests are frequently chosen to travel with Army shows sponsored by the Special Services Entertainment Section.

For further details please call the Presidio Service Club — Ext. 2000.

Drill Team The Presidians assume one of their special formations in honor of Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker, who views the performance in the company of Sixth Army Commander Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young. During the ceremony a 19-gun salute was fired in honor of the Secretary, who is visiting the Sixth Army area this week in a whirlwind tour that has taken him to the San Francisco area, Monterey and Los Angeles.

441st Missile Unit To Fire Ajax Tests

Members of the 441st AAA Missile Battalion left last week for the Red Stone Canyon Firing Range where they will fire the NIKE-Ajax missile in the annual service practice.

Approximately 160 men made the trip to the New Mexico range, where they will undergo vigorous training for a week prior to the actual firing of the missile.

Each of the 441st batteries will fire three missiles containing warheads at radio-controlled drones while at the range.

The purpose of this annual service practice is to perfect personnel skills and procedures in the adjustment and maintenance of the Nike-Ajax system.

The scores of each NIKE battalion will be recorded and a national award will be presented to the top unit.

New Army Tire Uses No Natural Rubber, Won't Rot

Washington (AFPS)—A new, all synthetic, heavy duty truck tire may make the Army independent of natural rubber imports.

Made of butyl, a synthetic rubber produced from oil refinery gasses, the perfected tire will not deteriorate in storage, the Army said.

Developed after three years of research by the Pennsylvania Tire Co., Mansfield, Ohio, the tire now is being made in the 9.00 x 20 in. size, the Army's most widely used type.

Cross-country and highway tests have shown the butyl products to be equal to or superior to military tires presently being manufactured.

A program is underway to develop 100 per cent butyl tires in all other sizes for military vehicles.

Over Coffee Secretary Brucker chats with a fellow alumnus from the University of Michigan. Pvt. Jerrold A. Lawless, attired in the Army blue dress uniform, is a member of the Sixth U.S. Army Band. He studied music in college and plays the clarinet here at the Presidio.

Woman's View is considered by the Secretary of the Army as he hears from Pvt. Joy L. Beck, Company D, USA Garrison, during his visit to the Presidio this week. Private Beck, a newcomer to the Presidio, is 19 years old and hails from Florida. She works in the office of G2 Sixth U.S. Army on Post.

At Attention before the Flag of the United States of America, the new official Army flag and the Sixth U.S. Army flag presented the new flag to General Young, making Sixth Army the first continental army to possess it.

Specialist Third Class Paul R. Jones, a member of the Color Guard for the Sixth U.S. Army Honor Guard, became the first enlisted man to carry officially the newly adopted Army Flag in the U.S.

The flag was presented to Sixth United States Army by Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker and was received by Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander. General Young immediately turned the flag over to Specialist Jones to take its place in the Color Guard and be flown with the Stars and Stripes and the Sixth U.S. Army flag.

The presentation was held at the Presidio Wednesday. The event marked the first time that the new Army flag had been presented to state-side Army headquarters.

G-2 Captain Completes Studies At SF State

Captain John K. Yamauchi, Sixth Army G2 Section, was graduated this month from San Francisco State College with a Bachelor of Arts degree in social science.

His graduation brings to 32 the number of Presidio personnel who have received degrees since June from SFSC under the Post Army Education Center program.

Wins BA Degree

Capt. John K. Yamauchi

Captain Yamauchi, a B plus student, started with 44 hours of credit 2½ years ago. Since then he has attended only on-Post college courses. Usually he would take two courses at a time going to school four nights a week.

He credits much of his success to the Post Education Section and the superior guidance he received there. "It is hard for an individual to work during the day and then go to school almost every night without guidance," he explains.

Captain Yamauchi, who came to the Presidio in July 1953, has been in the Army for 13½ years. He studied the Japanese language when the Army Language School was located at Fort Snelling, Minn.

Dangerous Age?

Motor vehicle accidents cause more deaths than any other type of accident among persons under 65 years of age. Drowning was the outstanding non-motor-vehicle type killer for the age group from five to 44 in 1955.

Rocket Launcher. This artist's conception of the Air Force plan to launch a rocket from a 20-mile high balloon shows the balloon below with the thrust of the first-stage rocket complete, having fired through the apex of the launching balloon. At top the second-stage rocket is shown ignited.

Killing Our Young?

Accidents are the leading causes of deaths in the 1 to 4, 5 to 14 and 15 to 24 age groups. Heart disease causes the most deaths in persons 25 years and older.

Scissor Bridge — Army Engineers in the Ft. Belvoir, Va., laboratory examine a working model of the new scissoring-design assault bridge developed there. The full-size bridge is launched hydraulically across gaps up to 60 feet without exposing any troops to enemy fire. Launching time is less than two minutes.

Hopperdietsel Is Star Of Missileer's Win

In one of the most thrilling games played at the Ft. Barry diamond, the 9th AAA Missile Battalion defeated a stubborn 740th team by the count 9-6 to win the 30th AAA Group softball championship.

The 9th jumped the opposing pitcher for five runs in the third inning by combining a walk, an error, two singles and a double.

Leading the hitting parade for the 9th were William Newsham with a double and a home run driving in five runs, and Arlon Hopperdietsel who collected three singles in four trips at bat.

Hopperdietsel saved the day for the 9th with a spectacular catch in the last of the seventh. Trailing by five runs the 740th threatened by loading the bases. Then Hopperdietsel turned in the play of the series, by making a tremendous backhand catch in deep center field to rob Bud Larson of a grand slam home run.

John Olea got credit for the win, his third straight during the tourney. The 9th went through the tournament undefeated, winning over the 441st, 7-3; the 436th, 6-4, and finally over the 740th.

Helpful Hints

- To keep cheese fresh, wrap it in a cloth moistened with vinegar.
- When removing buttons, don't nick the fabric. Just slide a comb under the button, and then cut thread by running a razor blade between the button and comb.
- To separate two glasses that are stuck together, put cold water in the inner one and set the outer one in hot water.
- For a good paint preserver, melt paraffin and pour over the paint remaining in the can just as you would for jams or jellies.
- When tying a package, wet the cord. When the cord dries it will shrink, making a secure package.
- Those scissors you use around the house dull? Try cutting through fine sandpaper to sharpen them.
- When cooking green vegetables you have a choice between appearance and nutrition. A pinch of baking soda will brighten the color, but the soda will also destroy some of the vitamins.

The winners will travel to Fort MacArthur, California, to compete in the 6th Region, U.S. Army Air Defense Command tournament to be held September 5-12. There they will compete with the champions from Seattle, Hanford, and Los Angeles areas.

McKirahan faced only 23 batters in six innings, walking five and striking out 16. Jerry Wilson and Long Riley also belted home runs for the winners.

La Mesa will represent 11 Western States and two Canadian provinces at the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pa., August 21-23.

HL Deer Hunting Out!

Deer hunting on Hunter Liggett Military Reservation has been prohibited during the calendar year 1957 by the Commanding General, Fort Ord.

The anticipated use of Hunter Liggett by training units, which in the past were not normally present during the latter part of the deer hunting season, will result in difficulty of control of both training and hunting areas with the necessary overlap.

Beat San Rafael 9-4; Gritts Lost For Season

The Presidio Torero baseballers blasted out a 9-4 decision over the San Rafael Merchants to add another victory to their very successful summer campaign.

With the score tied at 4-4, Marlon Dehass relieved starter Roger Collins and went on to register ten strikeouts and allowing but three hits to gain his first victory of the season.

Big guns for the Toreros were Amelio Martinez and John Zeleznock with two hits apiece.

The Presidio men ran wild on the basepaths as they stole 8 bases from the hapless Merchants. John Zeleznock also led in this department as he pilfered four, including a steal of third base.

Last Sunday, the Toreros dropped a heartbreaker to the Cal-Vets at Yountville, by the score of 10-9.

In this game, the Presidio team suffered a severe blow as star outfielder Chuck Gritts was sidelined for the remainder of the season with a broken shoulder, as the result of a sensational diving catch of a line drive in the fourth inning.

The locals took a 4-1 lead in the fourth on home runs off the bats of Zeleznock and Gritts. Zeleznock's roundtripper was a terrific blast over the 400 foot left center field wall.

In the bottom of the seventh, the Vets forged ahead 8-5. The Toreros, however, came right back in

Late Flash - -

Behind the six-hit pitching of Roger Collins, the Toreros toppled the Oroville semi-pro team by the score of 4-1. Collins struck out a total of 13 batters. The Presidio men rallied for 3 runs in the ninth inning.

their half of the eighth by loading the bases. Fred Crissey then lined a single to center to score two runs and before the inning was over the locals were ahead 9-8.

The Vets tied it up in their half of the eighth and then tallied again in the ninth on a walk, sacrifice, and a double, to clinch the game for the Vets.

Dick Shinnick pitched a fine game for the Toreros allowing the strong hitting Vets, who are mostly former pro ball players, only 8 hits. The Presidio men outhit the Vets, 14-8, to continue their torrid pace in the hitting department.

All-American Award certificates are presented to Sp3 Burt Millard, Hq. USA Training Group and to Major Bob Jones, MRU, for their outstanding play in last season's U.S. Volleyball Association National Tournament, which earned them a spot on the Armed Forces All-American Volleyball team. Presenting the awards is Col. Sidney Grunck, Commanding Officer of Hq. USA Training Group. The Presidio team has won the Sixth Army Championship for the last three years and the All Army title for the last two.

Ft. Ord Dumps Post Nine In 'Garrison Finish'

Pirates Win Another; Retain League Lead

In the only game played this week in the Pony League, the league leading Pirates continued to overpower their opponents, as they took a close 8-7 decision from the faltering Braves.

Tom Stewart pitched a fine game for the Pirates. The Braves used three pitchers who gave up a total of 10 walks.

Doug Campbell of the Braves had a perfect day at bat, collecting three for three, including two triples.

The Saturday doubleheader was postponed due to the Little League play-offs.

Only two more weeks remain in the season. Tomorrow, the Dodgers will play the Braves in the first game of a doubleheader, followed by a clash between the Pirates and Tigers.

Wizards Drive Into Second Place 46th Boosts Presidio League Lead

The high flying Wizards of the Presidio Bowling League took four games from Hq. Co. Sixth Army to climb into a two way tie for second place.

Kiersztian with 504-229 was high man for the Wizards, while Kaminski was tops for the losers with 525-190.

The Kingpins led by Palomares with a very respectable 611-235, the high series and game of the week, upset the Keystone Kops by the count of 4-0. McInturff once again led the Kops with 604-228.

The league leading 46th Ordnance keglers continued their torrid pace as they shut out the last place Hilltoppers, 4-0. Ace-bowler DuBois again topped the winners with 589-223, while Dixon led the Hilltoppers with 468-164.

The 21st Engineers got back on the winning path as they took a 2½-1½ decision from the Hardnoses. MacDonald was best for the Engineers with 450-174. Bolton topped the losers with 508-181.

The Deuces, who seem to be running away with the Bay League title, won another series from the 30th AAA keglers by the score of 3-1. Kiersztian led the winners with 547-192, while Moskal paced the loser's attack with 505-175.

The rejuvenated Triple Aces who have regained their winning ways jumped into second place by taking a 3-1 decision from the 99ers. Salisbury was high man for the Aces with 516-200. Heidman led the losers with 450-164.

The 56th MRU keglers, who were in second place only a few weeks ago, continued their downward trend as they lost another series to the seventh place Officers' Mess, 4-0.

Mahon rolled a 518-181 to lead the Officers' Mess to their upset victory, while Martin was high for the MRU keglers with 537-203.

The match between Hq. Co. Sixth Army and the 740th AAA was postponed to a later date.

In the Pacific League, the front running CMD bowlers took four important games from the Presidio Cops. High man for the league leaders was McInturff with 607-211, while Dickey was tops for the Cops with 516-181.

Col. Esh bid farewell to the league in championship style as he led the second place Signaleers to a 3-1 victory over the Spoilers with a 609-216. Corbin led the losers with 499-180. Esh, who departs today for the Presidio of Monterey, leaves quite a bowling record behind. He leads in all three departments: Highest game with a 268; highest On 26-30 August, the WACs will compete in the Sixth Army WAC Softball Tournament to be held at the Fort Ord diamond.

The Presidio femmes have had a very successful season and will be the team to beat in the forthcoming tournament.

Locals Bow In Final Frame; Second Best

The Presidio softball team missed a chance to represent the Central Area in next week's Sixth Army Finals at Madigan Army Hospital by losing a heartbreaker to the fighting Fort Ord Warriors, 3-2, in the final game of the Central Division Softball Tournament held at the latter's home field.

Up until the fatal seventh inning, it looked as if the Presidio men had the game in the bag.

Trailing 2-0 going into the last inning, Roland Buhr of Ft. Ord hit a single down the first base line. Jack Mosher then rifled a 300 yard home run to tie the score. Bob Fisher kept the rally going for the Ordsmen by drilling a double into center field. Then came the decisive blow — Earl Williams slammed a double to center to score the winning run.

Ed Johnson pitched a fine game for the Presidio allowing only one hit until the fatal seventh. Henry Delano of Ft. Ord got credit for the win, his third during the tourney.

The Presidio team was greatly handicapped by the loss of star player Clarence De Vault who dislocated his foot during the first round of play.

The Post team, which is made up mostly of members of the 21st Engineers, reached the finals as a result of wins over Fort Ord, 1-0, on a one-hitter by Nick Themely, and over Letterman Army Hospital by the count of 5-0.

The softballers are still competing in the Class A City League with three games remaining on their schedule. They are in third place, only one game from first, and according to Sgt. Denver, coach and manager of the team, they have an excellent chance to win the pennant or at least tie for it.

Baxter, Sp3 Willie McCrary.

MP Pistol Team Tries For Association Trophy

The 163rd MP Company has entered its pistol team in the Third Annual Military Police Association Pistol Match. This marks the first time that the Presidio unit has participated in the annual shoot.

Scores were sent in by mail to Ft. Gordon, Georgia, where the winner will be selected by the end of September. A winning trophy will be awarded to the top team.

Heading the Presidio team was Pfc. Donald G. Baxter who scored a 335, followed by Pfc. Lawrence E. Lavernway with 334; Cpl. Milton E. Fell with 332; Pfc. Dale E. Tackett with 330; Pvt. Donald A. Torrance with 329; Pfc. Roger K. Kloechn with 326; Sp3 Willie McCrary with 315; Sp3 Wilburn H. Lowry with 314; M/Sgt. Charles D.

Mahon with 312; and Sp3 Eugene Dechant with 308.

The match consists of four targets: 25 yard timed fire, 15 yard sustained fire, 25 yard sustained fire, and 25 yard quick fire.

The 163rd plans to compete for the Provost Marshal General's Trophy in October.

Lt. Anthony Cutrera, Executive Officer of the 163rd, is the coach of the team.

Ten of La Mesa's fifteen Pony League Baseball championship players were stricken yesterday with what appeared to be Asiatic flu.

The La Mesa team, which won the Regional Championship here last Saturday, was to have boarded a Santa Fe train yesterday morning for Washington to compete in the Little League World Series. When the boys became ill the trip was cancelled.

Post Marksmen Show Well At Nationals

Three Presidio pistol shooters won individual awards and fired on winning teams in the first week of the 1957 National Matches now in session at Camp Perry, Ohio. The pistol competition, which attracted 90 teams and 946 individual shooters, was completed this week.

Sfc. Nelson H. Lincoln, Letterman Army Hospital, was one of the five shooters on the U.S. Army Grey Team which copped first place in the national trophy pistol team match. The team fired an aggregate of 1136 out of a possible 1200 points to win the title. The same team shot an aggregate of 1142 to win the .45 caliber championship.

The U.S. Army Blue Team, boasting the membership of Presidio shooter M/Sgt James L. Wade, took second place in the .22 caliber and third place in the .45 caliber matches. The Blue Team also topped Master Regular competitors in the center fire championship national match course.

Earlier in the competition Sergeant Lincoln took first place among Master Regulars in the .22 caliber championship with a score of 878. The score was based on his total scores in the slow fire, timed fire, rapid fire and national match course matches.

Sergeant Wade, who is assigned to Headquarters Company, Sixth U.S. Army, took second place among Master Regulars in the .45 caliber slow fire match. His score of 189-1 was based on 20 shots slow fire at 50 yards.

In the .45 caliber national match course, 1st Lt. Walter F. Norvell, USA Veterinary Food Inspection Detachment, won second place in the Expert Regular class. Lieutenant Norvell, who shoots for the Sixth U.S. Army Pistol Team, scored 282-5.

This week the National Match spotlight is turned on 575 of the country's top small bore rifle shooters. No local participants are entered in the competition. Privates John A. Alexander and Norman W. Teslik, 21st Engineer Company shooters firing for the Sixth U.S. Army Rifle Team, will compete later in the 30-day National Matches.

Goins, Goins, Gone

On An Appointment In Eritrea

"I'm all shook up," is the rather understandable reaction of Pvt. Charles Goins, Hq. Co., Sixth Army, to the news that he has been scheduled for shipment to Eritrea, a small country on the Red Sea coast of Africa.

Private Goins is going to Asmara, capital of the country which in 1952 became federated with bordering Ethiopia after being an Italian colony for 67 years. There he will work at Kagnew Station, a new $8 million tape relay transmitter site.

He doesn't yet know what his parents in Oakdale, Washington, population 600, will think about his new assignment. Before joining the Army for three years he assured them that he

Cleaning Week Set; Blanket Turn In Urged

Annual Summer Housecleaning Week takes place at the Presidio during the week of 9 September to 13 September. Post Headquarters recommends that logistic support activities here turn in excess supplies and equipment on a non-schedule basis, in conjunction with the housecleaning drive.

Technical services promise that their personnel will be available for turn-in of unneeded items, those in excess of demand, and those not formally "on paper" and similar articles of supply, during the Housecleaning Week at the Presidio.

Chiefs of activities are asked to take full advantage of this opportunity to conserve supplies through inspection of supply and storage rooms, garages, attics and other out-of-the-way corners where such articles may lie temporarily forgotten. No individual will be held accountable for articles of supply turned in during the Summer Housecleaning Week.

AAA Sets Regional Commander's Trophy

Establishment of a Regional Commander's Trophy to be awarded to the outstanding battalion of the 6th Region, U.S. Army Air Defense Command was announced this week by Maj. Gen. E. J. McGaw, Commanding General of 6th Region.

The trophy will be awarded each year to the Nike guided missile or antiaircraft gun battalion "which has maintained the highest standards of technical, operational and administrative efficiency throughout the fiscal year."

Commanders of the three major defense areas of the 6th Region—Seattle, Hanford and Fairchild Air Force Base, Washington; San Francisco and Travis AFB, California; and Los Angeles—will nominate one battalion from each area for the annual competition. The first nominations will be made at the end of this fiscal year.

The battalions nominated will be inspected by a command inspection team from 6th Region Headquarters to determine the winning unit. Each battalion will have a possible score of 1,000 points; 500 for its statistical performance for the preceding year and 500 for its showing in the command inspection.

The statistical performance rating will be based on operational readiness, annual service practice firing, command inspection, preventive maintenance inspections, gunners qualification program scores, manpower savings, marksmanship with individual weapons, records in organized athletics, participation and achievement in off-duty education, church attendance, participation in the savings programs, use of recreational facilities and participation in the Family Days program.

Disaster Leave

A pending change in the regulations will establish a liberal leave policy for service personnel from disaster areas, it was announced this week.

The change stems from a policy pursued during the recent Hurricane Audrey.

New Vice Chief Is Top General

General Lyman L. Lemnitzer, who succeeds General Williston B. Palmer as the Army's Vice Chief of Staff, has since June 1955 served as Commander-in-Chief of the Far East and the United Nations Commands.

The 57-year-old West Point graduate is a veteran of both World War II and Korea. During WWII he served in many capacities including Chief of Staff to the Supreme Allied Commander Mediterranean.

In October 1942 the General participated in the secret submarine mission to North Africa with General Mark W. Clark for discussions with the French military officials prior to the Allied invasion. Later in the war he managed the discussions with the German High Command in Switzerland which resulted in the unconditional surrender of the German Armies in Italy and Southern Austria.

General Lemnitzer commanded the 7th Infantry Division in Korea during some of the bitter fighting in late 1951 and 1952.

General Palmer has been assigned as Deputy Commander-in-Chief, European Command.

Program Saves Lives, $$

The Pacific Coast Association of Pulp and Paper Manufacturers reports an 84 per cent reduction in the accident frequency rate after embarking on an accident prevention program. The 84 per cent represents the prevention of more than 10,000 disabling injuries among the group's 45 member mills from 1945 to 1955.

No Easy Job!

The job of the combat engineers is to keep friendly forces moving forward by overcoming natural or man-made obstacles, to assist them in defense by construction of barriers and obstacles, and to join them when the chips are down in the time-honored role of rifleman.

Accident Prone No. 546 'Pelicanized' — Again!

"Pelicanized" is the odd notation opposite No. 546 on the aircraft status chart of the 40th Armored Division's aviation section, now in its second week of training at Camp Roberts, Calif.

Behind the entry is a strange story of a series of aerial mishaps which have all had a happy ending... in the latest chapter, the ending could even be called humorous.

While 1st Lt. Raymond F. Schutte, 40th Division pilot, was flying his small observation plane along the Pacific Coast a few miles west of this training camp, he was literally attacked by a pelican.

The ungainly bird, apparently thinking Schutte's L-19 was a monstrous enemy, dove on the tiny aircraft and went crashing right through the plexiglas windshield.

The beak that holds more than the belican—and the belican, and other assorted pieces of the bird—were literally plastered to the walls of the small cabin.

Lt. Schutte (who lives at 8626 Keokuk Ave., Canoga Park) fortunately escaped with a black eye caused when a piece of bird, or windshield, struck his forehead.

No. 546 is "deadlined," awaiting repairs—again!

It was just one year ago, while the Southern California National Guard unit engaged in its 1956 summer field training, that another pilot brought the same plane in for a miraculously safe landing with five feet of one wing gone. A heavy power line near the field had neatly sliced off the wing section as the pilot rounded a ground level turn near the landing strip.

A few months later, with a new wing, No. 546 conked out on still another pilot during a flight over the desert. In all the wide expanse of open desert land stood one Joshua tree and—you guessed it—that's where the plane came to a sudden halt after a bumpy landing, wrapped around the tree.

Once again No. 546 was deadlined. It was repaired and went back onto the 40th's list of serviceable aircraft just one week before the current encampment.

Now it stands again on the deadline at Camp Roberts, and how could the reason for its present useless status be stated more succinctly than—

"Pelicanized!"

Retired Army Scientist Receives Radar Patent

A fundamental and basic patent for radar under which the government has a royalty free license, has been granted in the name of Col. William R. Blair, retired U.S. Army Signal Corps scientist, by the U.S. Patent Office, the Department of the Army has announced.

This patent is considered to be as important and far-reaching in its military application as the first U.S. patent issued on the telephone was to commercial communication.

The pulse-echo method of direction finding and ranging was conceived before 1930 by Colonel Blair and was developed during the 1930's at the Signal Corps Laboratories, Fort Monmouth, N.J. By early 1937 a complete workable radar set was demonstrated for the Secretary of War and members of Congress. Plans for this set were turned over to manufacturing concerns to build radar equipment for the U.S. Army.

Due to the high degree of secrecy surrounding the development of radar, a patent application was not filed by the Army Signal Corps until June 1945. Since that time the matter has been under consideration in the U.S. Patent Office.

Commander of the U.S. Army Air Defense Command, Lt. Gen. S. R. Mickelsen will visit the Presidio and units of the 30th AAA Group today and tomorrow.

AAA Commander
Lt. Gen. S. R. Mickelsen

Meeting the Air Defense Chief today are Maj. Gen. E. J. McGaw, commanding general of the 6th Region, U.S. Army Air Defense Command, and Col. Daniel A. Ranney, Commander of the 30th AAA Group and San Francisco defense commander.

General Mickelsen will start his tour with a visit to Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, commanding general of the Sixth U.S. Army. On Friday he will also visit Battery A of the 740th Missile Battalion at Fort Funston and Battery B of the 271st AAA Battalion, a National Guard unit.

Saturday morning General Mickelsen will address officers of Headquarters 6th Region, 30th AAA Group and units of the 740th and 9th AAA Missile Battalions at the Fort Baker Theater. Later he will visit the most recently completed site in the San Francisco Defense, Battery C of the 9th Battalion, north of San Rafael.

The general and his party will go to Battery C of the 441st AAA Missile Battalion, San Pablo Ridge, for lunch. His final tour will be at Headquarters of the 740th AAA Missile Battalion at Fort Scott.

School Busses

Today is the deadline for submitting the school bus transportation questionnaires distributed to family quarters last Friday. The forms should be turned in to the Post Transportation Officer.

Parents are requested to enroll students in schools nearest the post. Government school bus transportation will not be furnished to colleges, junior colleges, universities, Balboa and Abraham Lincoln High Schools, nor for dependent children living off-post.

Presidio Gun Club Will Host Annual Marksmanship Meet

Four hundred or more top California marksmen are expected to journey to the Presidio next month to participate in the annual California Pistol Championships, Colonel Charles G. Rau, Post Commander, announced this week.

The competition marks the first time in 10 years that the championships have been held in Northern California. The Presidio Gun Club, headed by Capt. John F. Kallam, is hosting this year's matches scheduled 27-28-29 September.

Under the direction of the California Rifle and Pistol Association, the matches will be fired in cooperation with the National Rifle Association of America and the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice, Department of the Army.

"This should be the largest competition of its type that has ever been held in California or on the West Coast," Colonel Rau said when making the announcement. The matches will be fired on the Fort Barry Range.

Civilian organizations which are enrolled with the Director of Civilian Marksmanship, DA, will be able to utilize scores attained in the scheduled .45 caliber National Match Course event in making their annual firing and qualification reports. These reports are made by civilian groups which must fire a military qualification course annually in order to continue receiving government assistance in conducting marksmanship training.

Major Stromgren

30th Engineer S3 Ready For Visit To Iran Project

Maj. Lloyd Stromgren, 30th Engineer Group S3, will leave Wednesday on a three-week tour of the Group's Iranian Survey Project. He will be accompanied by a representative of Army Map Service.

The major will visit the Imperial Iranian Army mapping agency in Teheran as well as the 30th Group Detachment commanded by Maj. Luther Payne. Visits to the major field survey parties are also scheduled.

Progress on the field survey work has been hampered by the lack of roads throughout Iran. To cope with the obstacle, Department of the Army is considering the addition of helicopter support to the Group's fixed wing aircraft now in operation in Iran. Aircraft and personnel which may be added will probably come from the 521st Engineer Company at Stockton.

Brucker Selects G2 WAC For Pentagon Assignment

The qualities of good manners, good appearance and good looks, this week parlayed a Presidio Wac's meeting with the Secretary of the Army into her being chosen to fill a military assignment as a receptionist in the Secretary's headquarters, Washington, D.C.

Pvt. Joy L. Beck, a 19-year-old lissome, blue-eyed brunette, currently assigned to the Sixth U.S. Army's G-2 Intelligence Section, won the distinction of the unique assignment when she was one of a group of enlisted women of Company D invited to meet the Secretary of the Army during his recent visit to the Presidio.

During her meeting with Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker, Private Beck discussed her military career and what it means to her as a young American recently graduated from senior high school. She claims that she was too excited at the meeting to recall much more of what was said, but evidently it proved to be exactly what the Secretary of the Army wanted to hear—and to see! Shortly after the interview, Mr. Brucker's secretary told Joy that the Pentagon assignment was open to her if she cared to accept.

Joy said "Yes"—and this week came a TWX from Washington to the Sixth U.S. Army headquarters, confirming the pretty girl's top-level position. She leaves soon to join the great and the near-great in the U.S. Army headquarters, with the blessing and approval of the WAC staff advisor, her Company commander, her duty section, and her friends.

Private Beck took military train-

Missile Exhibit

The U.S. Army Missile Exhibit Unit from Cameron Station, Va., will present a display on the story of missiles in the U.S. Army from 3 to 10 September in the Emporium at Stonestown. The exhibit will be held during store hours in the auditorium located on the second level.

Last Weekend?

The Labor Day weekend—the last weekend before the school routine begins and summer drifts into fall. The weekend many families look forward to their last outing together. The last chance to spend three days camping, visiting or traveling until Thanksgiving or Christmas.

Will the Labor Day weekend literally be your family's last outing together? Will you be around to share another year of schooling with your child after the long highway-clogged weekend?

In 1956 the Labor Day weekend was the last weekend for 438 persons in the nation; 47 of these people were killed on the highways of California.

Yes, this is just one more reminder to think of the future before you speed to or from your weekend destination. Think before you pass on curves and hills. Think before you change lanes suddenly or follow a few inches behind the happy family in front of you. Think before you try one more test on the hopeless formula of mixing liquor and gasoline.

Think when behind the wheel and Monday evening you will be tucking away another happy memory of family fun. Don't think and you will still have a memory—the memory of your family's last weekend together.

Colonel Charles G. Rau, Post Commander, this week urged personnel to participate in the "Slow Down and Live" campaign over the three-day weekend.

Colonel Rau reminded unit commanders to supervise the distance limitations when issuing passes in order to prevent "racing to meet the deadline." He added, to encourage travel by privately owned motor vehicles during daylight hours only; to recommend using public transportation where long distances are involved and time is limited; and to discourage riding with non-Army personnel who may be suffering from fatigue and/or partaking of alcoholic beverages.

The colonel's memo also noted that hitchhiking is prohibited by the Army.

Going RA: Colonel Konrad V. Kvam, Post Dental Surgeon, swears Capt. Earl J. Krainik into the Regular Army through the augmentation program. Captain Krainik, a graduate of Marquette Dental School, Wis., has been at the Presidio since August 1956. In addition to his regular duties as dental officer, he is in charge of the Dental Section's dental van.

Liberty's Legacies

Sixteen-Year Journey To 'Freedom'

For Pfc. Manfred Kozuch, Post Dental Section, the road that led to the United States from Germany followed a wayward route through Bolivia and Brazil and took 16 years to travel.

The Kozuch family fled Berlin and Nazi Germany in 1939 to escape the anti-Semitic wave that engulfed that country under Hitler. They went to Bolivia—the only country in the world that would take them at the time.

Before leaving Germany — because he could not take money with him—the elder Kozuch used his savings to buy household goods hoping to resell them in Bolivia and recover enough capital to restart his tailor business.

But he made the mistake of allowing a German shipper to put the goods on a German boat while the family traveled on a French liner. The goods were never shipped. The Kozuch family arrived in La Paz, Bolivia, unable to speak the language and almost penniless.

But the father was a skillful tailor and soon he had established his business once again. Manfred left school at the age of 15 and became an apprentice in a dental laboratory. A year later his aunt traveled to Argentina and Manfred accompanied her in hopes of finding better training in his chosen profession.

After 2½ years of training and working at a second job to maintain his livelihood, Manfred returned to La Paz and went to work as a dental technician.

But there was no peace for this family which had fled the religious persecution of Nazi Germany. In La Paz the anti-Semitic riots gained in intensity. The Jewish people had no real protection from the police who invariably sided with their countrymen.

Dental Technician
Pfc. Manfred Kozuch

"The trouble was," explains Manfred, "the native population noticed that Europeans would come to their city with nothing, but after a few years they would begin to amass wealth while the natives were still as poor as ever."

Manfred left the unfriendly atmosphere of La Paz and traveled to San Paulo, Brazil, where he set up a dental laboratory in partnership with a German dentist.

In the meantime his parents and sister received permission to immigrate to the United States. Only three could go so Manfred stayed with his job in Brazil.

Then in 1955 his number came up and he joined his parents in Washington, D.C. He worked for a large dental laboratory in that city and went to night school to learn English. "And then after 11 months, I got my greetings," he says.

At the Post Dental Prosthetics laboratory Manfred is kept busy with his specialty—manufacture of white porcelain and plastic dental crowns. After the Army he would like to stay in the Bay Area where the climate is so mild.

Here in the United States he says: "For the first time in my life I have found complete freedom—the freedom to act and be and do whatever I want."

This type of freedom simply does not exist in South America—with the possible exception of Uruguay—he reports. "There are too many political parties and they fight each other. Many of the governments seem more interested in the welfare of their own pockets than the welfare of the people."

He thinks Brazil has the greatest future in South America. He attributes this to the large foreign population in that country. The foreigners are the ones who furnish the drive and initiative. Of the native South Americans, he says:

"Most of them seem to lack ambition and initiative. Oh, sure, there are rich Latin Americans, but most of them, you will find, have been educated abroad."

But while he is somewhat disapproving of these aspects of South America, he does not forget 1939 when he and his family had only one place to go. "I am very grateful to Bolivia—it gave us a chance to survive."

Four Sixth Army and two Post civilians were honored this week for superior performance of duties and useful suggestions. Their monetary awards totaled $430.

Top performance award winner was Miss Dorothy Casavant, clerk-stenographer with the Adjudications Board, G2.

Miss Casavant, who received $200 and a Department of the Army certificate, is a former Wave and came to the Presidio in 1955.

Mrs. Ellen Sheehan, a Personnel Clearance Security Division clerk, G2, received $100 and a DA certificate. Mrs. Sheehan has been at the Presidio for four years.

Miss Dolly Menzie and Mr. Jack Wilson, Sixth Army AG employees, each received $10 suggestion awards. All of the Sixth Army awards were presented by Maj. Gen. John J. Binns, Sixth Army Chief of Staff.

Post Signal Bride Feted By Section

Olah-la! — said the former Sharon L. Wilson of the Post Signal Office when she returned to her desk from her recent annual leave which resulted in her marriage to Paul Olah.

Sharon's surprise came when she was presented a desk sign by Maj. Edward G. Shackel, the section chief, bearing her married name. It was the first time the bride had had a chance to observe how impressive her new name really looks, other than for the more formal notification appearing on the couple's wedding certificate.

The customary office coffee and cake party was provided by Sharon's co-workers to mark the occasion of her becoming Mrs. Paul Olah.

Slayter New Exec Officer Of 30th Group

Lieutenant Colonel Vernie Slayter, who completed his last tour with the 30th Engineer Group nearly five years ago, returned to the Group this week as Executive Officer.

Colonel Slayter succeeds Major Carol Wood who has been assigned to Ohio State University to do graduate work in engineering.

A veteran of 27 years' service, Colonel Slayter has spent 23 of his Army years in the Pacific and Far East. He enlisted in the Army in 1930, received his reserve commission in 1938 through Army extension courses and was activated in 1940.

Returns to 30th
Lt. Col. Vernie Slayter

Colonel Slayter's previous six-year tour with the 30th was in Hawaii where he served as a survey company commander, battalion executive officer and battalion commander. His service also includes tours as Commanding Officer AFPE Map Service and Operations Officer of Army Map Service Far East.

Colonel Slayter received the Bronze Star Medal while serving on Saipan during World War II.

Military Justice

A make-up class in Military Justice Training, Course B, is to be conducted in the Post Theater, 6 September, from 0800 to 1630 hours. Warrant officers and enlisted personnel whose MJT course is still incomplete, are required to attend.

Post Not Included In First Curtailment

The first specific reductions in the Army civilian personnel force for this fiscal year were released this week by the Department of the Army. The Presidio is not included in the initial cut which includes nearly half of the scheduled 15,000 reduction.

The inactivation of the Seattle Army Terminal by 1 October was the only installation in the Sixth US Army area affected by the first cut. Some 860 employees are working at the terminal; of the total an estimated 520 will be offered new positions.

Eight depot and storage facilities employing 3,150 persons are scheduled to be inactivated during the fiscal year. Some 1,600 of the total employees will be absorbed by other depots in filling vacancies left through normal attrition.

At departmental headquarters in Washington some 1,713 civilians will be cut during the year; an additional 1,217 will be reduced at major subordinate headquarters.

The balance of the first reductions includes inactivating six government-owned industrial plants which employ a total of 270 civilians, and closing Murphy Army Hospital in Waltham, Mass., by 1 January. The hospital employs some 181 persons, most of whom will be offered new jobs.

The depot and storage facilities to be inactivated are Jeffersonville Quartermaster Depot (Ind.), Belle Meade General Depot (N.J.), Aberdeen Ordnance Depot (Md.), Delaware Storage Activity (N.J.), Curtis Bay Storage Activity (Md.), Camp Stanley Storage Activity (Tex.), New Orleans Storage Activity (La.) and Boston Storage Activity (Mass.).

The industrial plants which will be closed this year are Kankakee Unit, Joliet Arsenal; Hoosier Unit, Indiana Arsenal; Ordnance Assembly Plant, Edgewood, Md.; Ravenna Arsenal, Apco, Ohio; Louisiana Ordnance Plant, Minden, La., and Sunflower Ordnance Works, Lawrence, Kan.

Employees involved in the reduction will be offered the facilities of the Army's individual job placement service. This service provides for transfers to other government as well as Army activities, and placement in commercial employment through cooperation with state employment services.

The Army has curtailed the hiring of civilians during the past several months in order to minimize the necessity for lay-offs.

10,000 Applaud Band Members At Las Vegas

More than 10,000 Las Vegas applauded the concert given by the Sixth U.S. Army Band at the famous Nevada tourist resort this week. The Presidians and their music master, CWO Louis Ferraro, flew to Las Vegas to fulfill a request appearance during the "Night Of Stars" benefit performance for crippled children of America.

Stage and screen stars, including Betty Hutton, Carol Channing and operatic tenor Jan Peerce, joined the Mayor of Las Vegas in paying special tribute to the Sixth Army musicians.

This week-end, the band travels to Fort Bragg, N. C., to participate in a Paul Bunyan Day celebration. The unit returns to the Presidio Monday night, and on Tuesday day morning it hits the road again to present special concerts at the State Fair in Sacramento.

Premier Ball

The Fort Baker Service Club holds a Premier Ball this evening at 2030 when the guests appear in Hollywood fashions of the day, including sun glasses, loud shirts and other symbols peculiar to the land of fancy.

Lou Frye and his famous Tomcats are providing music for the event.

West Point Changes Requirements

The U.S. Military Academy has upped the standards for cadet candidates seeking competitive appointment to West Point. Starting with the class entering the academy in July 1958, cadets named through competitive examinations will be selected by a new method based on mental abilities, physical aptitude and leadership potential.

Previously, only the scores attained on the College Entrance Examination Board mental tests were considered to establish the order of merit for competitive-nomination categories.

These groups include those named by the President, candidates from Regular and Reserve components of the Army and Air Force, sons of deceased veterans, and honor graduates of military and naval schools.

The new system, which will affect about 15 per cent of each class or 100 appointees annually, has been introduced to improve the caliber of cadets, the Army said.

Mental abilities will be scored on the nominee's record in the Scholastic Aptitude and Achievement Tests in intermediate mathematics and English composition, and his academic standing in his high school graduating class. The tests are given at numerous military installations in the U.S. and overseas.

Physical aptitude will be determined by the West Point Physical Aptitude Test.

A review of the candidate's extra-curricular activities at institutions of learning and confidential evaluations by school authorities will decide leadership potential.

Final selection of all competitive-appointment cadets will be made by the Academic Board at West Point.

First from the West: Sp3 Lee Bruhn and Sgt. June Mette, Presidio WACs, are airborne spectators to the atom bomb tests in Camp Desert Rock, Nevada. The girls are the first enlisted women stationed in the Western area to be invited to attend the scientific defense show.

Best Mess award for July is here presented by Post Commander Col. Charles G. Rau to Mess Steward M/Sgt. William W. Waller, who accepts the award for the mess personnel of Headquarters Company, USA Garrison. This busy mess hall not only serves outstanding meals to Headquarters Company personnel, but also feeds MRU personnel and members of the Sixth Army Band.

40th Establishes Record Ratings

The 40th Armored Division, a southern California National Guard unit, has completed its two-week active duty summer training by receiving the highest ratings of any of its post-Korea field training periods.

Of some 5000 separate inspections, five per cent won the top rating of superior and another 58 per cent scored excellent. Only eight-tenths of one per cent were ranked as "unsatisfactory."

This was the 40th's fifth encampment since it fought in Korea in 1952-53.

Chaplain Promoted

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Dayton D. Drake of the Sixth US Army Chaplain Section was promoted from the rank of major on Thursday.

You can hardly believe it now . . . but there was a time in the mid-eighties when a Presidio commanding general took part in establishing a San Francisco practical joke which has since become part of the city's history.

This delightful slice of Command caprice was instrumental in the establishing of an emperor who ruled San Francisco for exactly 21 years. . . . The emperor received his first uniform from a commanding general of the Presidio during the year 1859. . . . Dressed in his gold-braided regimentals topped with a beaver hat sporting a vivid plume he inspected the troops on the reservation, the cadets at the University of San Francisco . . . and any other civic or military units which happened to catch his fancy. Norton I, Emperor of the United States and Protector of Mexico, even drew a military funeral . . . with three volleys fired over his grave in Woodlawn cemetery by the 159th Infantry Regiment, Third Battalion . . . 1880.

Emperor Norton's reign goes back the years to 1849 when he arrived in San Francisco with a quarter-million dollars . . . to open the first rice mill on the Pacific Coast. . . . He tried to corner the rice market but he was financially ruined when a surprise shipment of rice sailed up the bay from Indo-China. . . . Norton reacted to his disaster by becoming a harmless oddity living a hermit's life in a bare San Francisco room.

The emperor first came into civic prominence through a note he left quietly on the editor's desk of the San Francisco Bulletin. . . . After the smoke and cursing of news deadline passed, the editor read the note . . . to wit . . . "I, Joshua Norton, formerly of Algoa Bay, Cape of Good Hope, declare and proclaim myself Emperor of these United States . . . to make such alterations in the existing laws of the Union as may ameliorate the evils under which the country is laboring."

The editor printed the proclamation . . . deadpan . . . the readers accepted it likewise. . . . Flushed with his fame, Emperor Norton proclaimed the Bulletin his official journal . . . returning soon with an announcement to the effect that he was abolishing the Supreme Court because it erred in reversing the lower courts. . . . Thus was born from the whimsy of an eccentric old man . . . and the power of the press and the military . . . a Bay City legend which has since delighted the hearts of millions.

The emperor accepted the bows of his San Francisco subjects with infinite aplomb. . . . His script . . . printed by master craftsman Charles E. Murdock, bore the old man's picture and carried his own serial number. . . . It was commercially accepted at face value . . . 50 cents . . . each note carrying a promise of 5 per cent interest . . . due in 1880 . . . (the year of the emperor's death)!

Saloons and restaurants went along with Norton's Folly. . . . He ate and drank where he chose, and for 21 years he never paid a cent. . . . He stepped over office secretaries to ask their millionaire bosses for a million or two. . . . It was protocol for them to explain to him humbly, that the Queen of Sheba, or King Cole had arrived ahead of him . . . to secure a million . . . and would fifty cents suffice? . . . It usually did!

The emperor had access to any theater seat vacant at curtain time. . . . He paid no street car fares . . . and when he wished to ease out of his Presidio regimentals in favor of civvies, his suits were provided free by Bullock and Jones whose windows boasted an announcement that they were tailors by Appointment to His Majesty! He collected monthly tithes of 50 cents from Blue Book philanthropists. . . . He owned two lop-eared mongrel dogs, Lazarus and Bummer, just as famous as their master. . . . When Bummer died Mark Twain wrote a piece about him for the Territorial Enterprise in Virginia City. . . . The San Francisco Bulletin carried a 500-word obituary. . . . And when Lazarus died he got free and expert treatment from a taxidermist . . . winding up in a glass case in a famous saloon!

As Emperor Norton mellowed in Command experience he grew more demanding with his subjects. . . . After the Bulletin once neglected to include his name in an edition, he dropped it as his official newspaper. . . . The paper retaliated by publishing a letter to his tailors, saying: "His Majesty's full dress never-mention-ems have lost their seat and there is danger of the Empire being brought into contempt!" . . . His answer, published in the Examiner: "Whereas the Evening Bulletin has been goosey enough to join prospective traitors against our Empire of the United States and the Protector of Mexico, I, Norton I, Gratia Dei Emperor, do hereby fine the said Bulletin $2000; the amount to be appropriated for our Royal Wardrobe." . . . The city bought His Majesty a new suit!

Thus lived the famous man to whom a Presidio commander and the city of San Francisco once paid homage. . . . He died in a 50-cent-a-week room . . . with only a cot, a chair, a bowl and a pitcher. . . . The Pacific Union Club of Nob Hill picked up his burial tab. . . . The old man lay in state in an O'Farrell Street undertaking parlor for a day . . . while 10,000 mourners came to do him final honor. . . . They wept openly for the uniformed symbol of a time . . . a place . . . an era!

CWO Graduates In Record Time

A Presidio warrant officer who "started from scratch" and in 21 months of spare-time schooling earned a college degree reveals one of the secrets of his success:

"When you're going to class four nights a week and taking USAFI courses on the side, you don't schedule your study time. Instead you study all the time and schedule moments to be with your family."

CWO George A. Goodrich, who is chief of the funds division, Sixth Army Special Services, and custodian of the Sixth Army Command Welfare Fund, gives his wife, Blossom, the lion's share of credit for his San Francisco State College degree. "If it hadn't been for her, I'd have never made it. In fact she was the one who first put the bug in my ear to try it."

Eight-year-old son Ronald also gets credit for having patience with his busy father. "He just couldn't understand why—me being so old—I still had to go to school."

Back in October 1955 when CWO Goodrich entered his energetic education program he had just three hours for service schooling and 15 hours for being a warrant officer to his credit. Going to school four nights a week—"One semester I only went two nights a week,"

Top Student
CWO George A. Goodrich

A big factor in his success was that he took USAFI courses on the same subjects as his classroom studies at the same time. He credits Post Education Section with a fine job of coordinating his studies and figuring out his whole educational program.

CWO Goodrich gained additional financial assistance for his education program by applying for California State veterans' aid. He couldn't use federal aid, because he is on active duty, but he thought he might be eligible for state help. His case was run as a test, and it was determined that he was eligible for help.

What does this man, who has absorbed what is probably the most intensive dose of schooling in the history of the Presidio, say about higher education?

"It enables us to learn the whys behind the every day occurrences that we take for granted. I believe a liberal arts education is important for every professional man—including the soldier. These men need a broad educational foundation to support their specialized training."

As for himself, his bachelor of arts degree in social sciences is just a beginning. "I will go on for a master's degree in education and perhaps a doctor's degree," he promises.

he confesses—CWO Goodrich racked up 51 hours of A-minus credit. He earned 11 A's, 5 B's and 2 C's. The C's came when he was first starting.

Reservations Due For Women's Tea

Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Sixth US Army Commander, will deliver his final address to Presidio Woman's Club members at their welcome tea scheduled at 1400 hours Thursday. Reservation deadline is 1200 hours, 3 September.

A millinery show presented by a nationally noted hat designer is also on the program.

There were 77 million licensed drivers and 64½ million registered vehicles in the United States last year.

Jewish Clergy Join Services

Nineteen Jewish chaplains—one of the largest single groups of new chaplains to be inducted since WWII—have entered the service.

Most of the new chaplains will be ready to officiate at military services for Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur in September, according to an announcement by Rabbi Morris Lieberman of Baltimore, Chairman of the National Jewish Welfare Board Commission on Jewish Chaplaincy.

THE HIRED GUN shows Rory Calhoun, a gunfighter for hire, as he agrees to track down a young girl who escaped from jail just before she was due to hang for the murder of her husband. Locating the girl (Anne Francis) in New Mexico, Rory eludes her father and his ranch hands and sets out for Texas with Ellen as his prisoner. Returning to town Calhoun locates a key witness who can establish the girl's innocence.

THE THREE MUSKETEERS is the story of D'Artagnan and his dashing comrades of the sword, a re-issue of the Dumas classic. Flashing rapiers, dashing heroes, beautiful women and explosive drama highlight the famous motto "One For All And All For One."

STOWAWAY GIRL is a frankly adult and realistic story of a young girl who tries to use men to her own advantage.

HELL ON DEVIL'S ISLAND presents a newspaperman unjustly condemned to eight years' imprisonment in the French penal colony. He fights to help his fellow convicts end their seemingly hopeless servitude.

VALERIE is the story of a frontier town where a murder trial hears conflicting testimony from three witnesses, but the prosecution manages to reveal the truth in time to avoid a miscarriage of justice.

THE COUNTERFEIT PLAN is the inside story of a big-time counterfeiting expose, as five men plan to shake down two continents for millions of dollars.

a book and report on it.

And if that isn't enough, make a tepee out of brown paper and have all the boys and girls put their names on it. This way they know just who's in the club.

The whole plot came to a climax on Wednesday when the entire tribe of screaming (not in the library, of course) Indians got paid off in certificates by Maj. William Corcoran of Post Special Services.

Some of the redskins were Shelia Anderson, Noel Brown, John Burke, Charles Duke, Janet Duke, Cathy Engel, John Flynn, Kathleen Flynn, Mary Goff, Ruel Goff, Barbara Hague, Kathy Hague, Brooke Hambley and Susan Hawes.

Other members of the tribe included Mike Janiss, Linda Kitts, Michael McKrell, Mary Myers, Kim Nevitt, Cindy Newman, Bobby Parfitt, Ricky Parfitt, Miriam Reuss, Nikki Sabo, Sherry Sabo and Denise Young.

The annual summer dinner-dance of the officers and wives of the 740th AAA Missile Battalion took place at the Treasure Island Officers Open Mess on Saturday.

Presidio Players Set Second Performance

For their second theatrical venture, the Presidio Players have chosen "The Hasty Heart," it was announced this week by Harry Hellman, Post Entertainment director.

Authored by John Patrick, noted for his now-classic "Tea-house Of The August Moon," the "Hasty Heart" played on Broadway for more than a year.

It deals with World War II and some of the men who served in the armies of the world. Only one acting part remains open in the play.

Both humorous and serious by turns, "The Hasty Heart" has been adapted for radio and screen during the past few years. It brings together in a hospital ward in Assam, India, a group of international patients sharing a dual problem — sickness and shared devotion for their nurse, Margaret.

The largest group to date turned out for the try-outs concluded last week.

Don Canty, who appeared in the Presidio Players kick-off theatrical production, resumes the casting and directing reins for staging of "The Hasty Heart." Don holds an M.A. in Speech and Drama from the University of Missouri.

Among those reading for play parts were Lt. Colonel Thomas Baker, Letterman Army Hospital; Lin Chiles, Ruth Coleman, Chuck Gordon, Mel Jones, Lowell Lynn, Carol Lynn and Ed Maxcy. The cast of eight men and one woman will be headed by Chiles, a radio announcer at LAH.

Janet Marie Peterson, another Lettermanite, takes the part of the charge nurse at the Indian hospital.

Slated for staging during the last week in October, "The Hasty Heart" will present a single performance at each of the three service clubs and LAH.

Presidio's Top Kegler Leaves For Monterey

Lieutenant Colonel Leland D. Esh, one of Presidio's top bowlers and founder of the Presidio Aero Club, left last Friday for the Presidio of Monterey for a 47-week course in the Turkish language. Upon his graduation he will be assigned to Izmir, Turkey.

Colonel Esh came to the Presidio on 3 January 1955, and was assigned to the Sixth U.S. Army Signal Section. Two years later, he became Chief of the section's Supply and Maintenance Division.

In February, 1955, he, along with five other men, was instrumental in forming the Presidio Aero Club, a private association of flyers. Out of their own club funds they purchased three airplanes. Today the membership has increased to 30.

Colonel Esh was best known around Presidio circles for his outstanding play in the post bowling leagues. He has been on winning teams for the last two years, and upon his departure he headed the Pacific League in all three departments: Highest game with a 268; highest average with a 186; and highest series with 674.

Four-Team Clash Opens Tuesday; Winner Goes To All-Army Meet

The Torero baseballers leave tomorrow morning for Fort Ord to compete in the Sixth Army Tournament which begins next Tuesday and winds up Saturday with the championship game.

The winner of this tournament will journey to Ft. Knox on 16 September for the All-Army finals.

Four teams from the Sixth Army Area have qualified for the tourney: Ft. Huachuca, Ft. Lewis, Ft. Ord, and the Presidio.

The Presidio team will rely mainly on their strong pitching staff to carry them through the tourney. Led by Manager Dick Shinnick, the Presidians boast a staff of three righthanders and two southpaws, who have the stuff to whip any of the Sixth Army teams.

Roger Collins, Fred Crissey, and Shinnick compose the righthanded strength while Danny Cook and Marlon Dehass are the top left-handers.

Dehass and Collins, however, will see double duty as they are both strong lefthanded hitters and will play in the outfield when not pitching.

Another hardhitting outfielder who will see action is John "Zeke" Zeleznock, who led the Torero hitting parade this year with the most home runs and extra base hits.

The infield will be made up of Bud Larson behind the plate; power hitting Rudy Buffin at first base; sharp fielding Amelio Martinez at second; and either Carroll Williams or Dave Hennigen at shortstop, with infield captain Hubie Brown rounding out the Torero inner defense.

Pinch hitting strength will be provided by Kenny "Dusty" Carroll, a powerful lefthanded hitter, and hard swinging infielder Bob Jolly.

Ron Ross and Bill Julian will provide the Presidio team with extra field insurance.

Still a Record

The Deuces, who are gunning for the first division, upset the front running CMD kegler of the Pacific League by the score of 3-1.

De Mario led the Deuces to their upset victory with 591-218. DuBois was tops for the losers with 520-197.

Armed Forces To Support People-to-People Program

Washington (AFPS) — President Eisenhower has rallied Armed Forces support to a new People-to-People Program for increased understanding between Americans and world populations in the interests of peace.

The Armed Forces People-to-People committee is one of 40 organized from leaders in the various areas of American life to promote foreign appreciation of our customs, traditions and way of living, our peaceful aspirations and the nation's devotion to freedom and justice for all.

The cooperation of commands world-wide is imperative, Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson said in a letter to the service secretaries launching the People-to-People movement in the Armed Forces.

William H. Francis, Assistant Secretary of Defense (Manpower, Personnel and Reserve), is chairman of the military committee, and will plan and direct service participation in the program.

All members of the Armed Forces, military and civilian, stationed overseas or aboard ships calling at foreign ports, will receive a pamphlet explaining how the program will operate and what individual Americans can do to improve relations with the citizens of other countries.

Produced by the People-to-People Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization headed by William J. Donovan, WWII chief of Strategic Services, the booklet will be distributed about 1 September. In addition, a copy will be given to all service members leaving the States for foreign assignment before the first of the year.

All-Purpose

Forklift Truck Can Overcome Rough Terrain

A new rough-terrain forklift truck for rapid handling of supplies under rugged field conditions has been developed by the Army Quartermaster Corps.

The truck can operate over beaches and readily move onto rougher areas for off-the-road distribution of equipment.

Able to move through surf up to five feet to transfer cargo from landing craft, the forklift truck also can drive across snow covered fields.

Equipped with front and rear axle steering, the vehicle can move at a 20-degree angle sideways.

The body and forks can be tilted right or left independent of the axles to load, or to carry supplies without tilting across sloping hills.

The truck has specially designed tubeless tires and either two or four-wheel drive. Each wheel has a spot-type disc brake similar to those used on large aircraft.

Maximum speed of the new ground carrier, either forward or reverse, is 25 mph.

WW II Philippine Guerrilla Chief Completes Active Duty At Presidio

By SP3 RICHARD A. LEWIS

Star Presidian Associate Editor

Having your appendix cut out in a Philippine village without anesthesia is tough.

Climbing out of bed two days later and struggling up a mountain side and into the jungle is tougher.

But this is the easy way out if you are a colonel in the Philippine guerrilla army and the only alternative is staying behind and facing Japanese soldiers who are after your neck.

This brush with death was just one of a series experienced by Sfc. Gottlieb Neigum during his three years as an American guerrilla chief in the Philippines during World War II.

This month Sergeant Neigum, whose final assignment has been operations sergeant for Post police at the Presidio, retires from active Army service. Looking back over his World War II adventures, it seems most amazing that this thin, quiet sergeant ever lived to retire the normal way.

He first arrived in the Philippines in 1938 and by 1941 was thoroughly familiar with the people and their language. This, however, didn't prevent him from being captured on Bataan and making the "Death March."

At the PW camp he was put to work with the rest of the prisoners repairing bridges. He had thought of escape but had not yet put a plan into action. Then one afternoon a typhoon struck and forced all members of the 250-man work gang to seek shelter.

It is ironic that this sergeant, who was to become a leader in the Philippine resistance with a tag of $5,000—dead or alive—on his head, didn't plan his escape at all. During the typhoon he fell asleep. He awoke in the dark and found all the prisoners had been returned to the compound. If he returned, he could be shot so he took off to the hills.

"I didn't know a thing about guerrilla warfare at first, but I learned fast," says Sergeant Nei-

Puppet Poster declaring the Philippines at war with the United States is displayed by Sfc. Gottlieb Neigum, who fought with the guerrilla forces on the Island of Luzon during World War II. He explains that the Japanese forced the Philippine puppet government to declare war just one month before the American liberation armies invaded the islands. Sergeant Neigum retires from active Army service this month.

gum. During the war the American army ranked him as a lieutenant, but in the guerrilla army he was a colonel. For a while his second-in command was an American airman, but he was captured and executed.

Sergeant Neigum had 165 men directly under him; he estimates that there were approximately 10,000 Philippine guerrillas operating on Luzon during the war. Their job was to keep as many Japanese troops as possible occupied and out of the Pacific war. It took 200,000 troops to control the occupied areas of the Philippines.

"Naturally we used hit and run tactics," says Sergeant Neigum who explains that the guerrillas never killed a Japanese soldier—in or near a village. "If we did, the Japanese would automatically kill 25 villagers."

The real success of the guerrilla operations, is attributed by Sergeant Neigum to the friendliness of the Philippine Constabulary. This was a sort of "state police" group set up by the Japanese to control the population. "The Japs never caught on," reveals the sergeant, "that these men were secretly loyal to us."

This "in" enabled Sergeant Neigum to gather exact information on all Japanese fortifications, air bases and other military projects. All information was transmitted by radio to Australia. To escape detection the code was changed three times a week and the radio moved continually.

One information request that puzzled the sergeant called for the names of all Japanese military commanders and the areas of Japan they came from. He later learned that from this information the American intelligence units could determine whether the troops were regular army or draftees.

During the war Sergeant Neigum was continually in fear for his family. His wife was in a Manila POW camp and his children were hidden with friends in the jungle. In October 1944—just as the invasion of the Philippines began—he was able to escape with his children. They traveled from Luzon to New Guinea by submarine, then by PT boat and finally by airplane.

In 1946 he went back to the islands for an assignment with G3 Government Affairs. It was his job to help evaluate the guerrilla claims for payments.

From 1948 to 1954 he was a cell block commander at Camp Cooke, Lompoc, Calif. From there he came to the Presidio for an assignment with the 595th Military Police Battalion. The unit deactivated and he stepped into his present assignment with Post police.

After retirement he plans two months of relaxation. Then Sergeant Neigum plans to work in the Bay Area at either a state or federal penal institution.

He, his new wife of five months, the former M/Sgt. Kathryn Brown of Sixth Army OIA, and family have moved into a new home in Fairfax, Calif.

PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

Friday 6 September, 1957

Reward for Honesty Pfc. John W. Compton was a two-time winner this week! Assigned to the Presidio's Company E, US Army Garrison, Compton is shown receiving a commendation from Capt. Robert F. Glynn, Company Commander, for his honesty in returning a lost wallet. The owner followed suit by presenting John with $25.

Diogenes' Soldier!

Private Sights Wallet, Saves Same--For Owner

A Presidio serviceman's honesty in returning a lost wallet containing money and valuable papers came to light this week when the owner of the wallet paid a visit to the soldier's Company commander.

Finder of the wallet was Pfc. John W. Compton, E Company, U.S. Army Garrison. The 25-year-old Army man spied the lost wallet lying in a San Francisco parking lot. Identification papers showed that it belonged to Mrs. C. W. Moulton, Concord Way, Burlingame, to whom Compton promptly returned the lost property.

With equal dispatch, Mrs. Moulton journeyed from her home to the Presidio to personally thank the soldier with a $25 award and to recommend that he be commended by his commanding officer, Capt. Robert F. Glynn.

The captain's commendation to Pfc. Compton reads in part:

"I wish to take this opportunity to thank you for the honesty and integrity you displayed in returning Mrs. Moulton's lost property. The fact that the lady came to the Presidio to thank you should make you proud of your prompt action and of the fact that it brings further credit to the military service."

Pfc. Compton is serving his first tour of military duty at the Presidio. He was graduated from San Diego State College. He is currently assigned to the Central Post Funds Office.

U. C. Physicist Wins Sylvanus Thayer Award

Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence, Professor of Physics at the University of California and Director of its Radiation Laboratory, is the first recipient of the Sylvanus Thayer Award to be given annually by the Association of Graduates, U.S. Military Academy. The announcement of the winner was made this week by the association.

The award, which evolved from a class project proposed by the class of 1931, is presented to a U.S. citizen "whose record of service to his country, whose accomplishments in the national interest, and whose manner of achievement exemplify outstanding devotion to the principles expressed in the West Point motto — Duty, Honor, Country."

Presentation of the award is scheduled next March at West Point in the presence of the Corps of Cadets.

Dr. Lawrence, who received the Nobel Prize for Physics in 1939 for his concept and construction of the cyclotron, was chosen in recognition of his outstanding contribution in the development of nuclear physics and the application of nuclear and thermo-nuclear principles to U.S. national security.

A member of the Stassen Commission to the London Disarmament Conference, Dr. Lawrence was one of a small group of scientists called by the President in 1941 to evaluate the atomic energy program.

The U.C. professor was nominated by a Selection Committee composed of Jacob L. Devers (Ret.), Omar N. Bradley (Ret.), Lucius D. Clay (Ret.), Alfred M. Gruenther (Ret.), and Orval R. Cook (Ret.).

Remember--Register!

Registration of new San Francisco voters is now underway and will continue through 12 September. New residents, those who will be 21 by 5 November and persons who have not voted at least once in the last two elections, must register during this period. Registration booths have been set up in convenient downtown and neighborhood shopping areas.

IFO Hits Copter

Flying saucers aren't the only flying objects a pilot must avoid, Lt. Robert F. Sternat, 521st Engineer Company, discovered while practicing landings and take-offs in the Stockton Channel near the Stockton Navy Annex.

The lieutenant had just applied full throttle for a take-off when he heard a sharp thud. He cut the throttle to investigate and found that some teenagers swimming in the channel had thrown a golf ball at the plane.

Eminent Entomologist, Author Back At Medical Laboratory

"Fighting insects is a continuous battle and always will be," says Col. Stanley J. Carpenter, chief entomologist for Sixth Army Medical Laboratory and one of the country's foremost authorities on mosquitoes.

Even DDT, which in his opinion is "the greatest find ever in mosquito control" has already become ineffective with certain species of mosquitoes. Now some of the insects are even developing immunities to the deadly phosphorus compounds which have succeeded DDT in certain areas of insect control.

"Insects are the most successful group of animals in the world," comments Colonel Carpenter, who relates rather ominously that "some say we are in the age of insects and they will eventually take over the world." "Of course, that would take millions of years," is his reassuring conclusion.

Col. Carpenter, who was at the Sixth Army medical laboratory from 1951 to 1954, has just returned from the Pentagon where he was a member of the Regular Army Augmentation Board. Before that he spent two and a half years at the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research.

He is the author of two books, "Mosquitoes of the Southern U.S." and "The Mosquitoes of North America." The latter book is rated as the most comprehensive volume on North American mosquitoes ever published. The colonel is also author of 50 scientific articles dealing with medical entomology and related subjects.

During World War II he was one of the first three Army entomologists to go overseas for malaria control. He set up a control unit in Iran and visited Egypt before returning to the United States to train mosquito control personnel for overseas assignments.

From 1948 to 1950, Colonel Carpenter was in Panama engaged in yellow fever study. His research took him into the remote jungle areas of Panama inhabited by the Darien Indians. He reports that these Indians are friendly enough during the day, but at night one must stay out of their way.

Travel in these remote areas was by dugout canoe, horses and mules. The investigators carried gifts with them in order to gain favor with the native populations.

Before entering the Army in 1941, Colonel Carpenter was medical entomologist for the Arkansas State Health Service. He was engaged in malaria research. Of this disease he says: "Malaria is almost a thing of the past in this country." He also reports that the Army has developed vaccine which is 100 per cent effective with yellow fever.

In his spare time—as might be expected—the colonel goes on mosquito hunting expeditions. He prefers the mountain areas of the west, because he can enjoy the beautiful scenery while he is hunting his prey.

During his current assignment, Colonel Carpenter will be concerned with insect control in the Army area. He reports that mosquitoes are still a real problem in the California valley regions.

In two more years he will retire and plans to remain here in the Bay Area where he will continue with his insect studies. He and his wife, Lorelie, plan to make their home in Marin County. Their son, Barton, is a junior at the University of Idaho School of Forestry.

Polio Drops

DEADLINE IS WEDNESDAY NOON

Local College Classes To Start This Month

Three on-Post college classes conducted by San Francisco State College instructors will get under way on 16 and 17 September under the sponsorship of the Post Army Education Center. The three-unit courses lead to a B.A. degree in social sciences at the college.

Africa and World Affairs, International Relations 199, and Evolution and Heredity, Zoology 192, are scheduled from 1830 to 2100 hours, Mondays and Wednesdays beginning 16 September. Recent European History, History 146, will be taught during the same hours on Tuesdays and Thursdays starting the next night.

Both the history and international relations courses will be taught in Bldg. 1101. The zoology course, which satisfies a biology requirement, will be held in Bldg. 1131.

Africa and World Affairs is an introduction to Africa south of the Sahara. The course includes the country's role in the cold war and in world affairs, its sources of racial tension and its major economic and social problems. The struggle between Western European colonialism, African nationalism and world communism and American foreign policy in Africa are also studied.

Evolution and Heredity covers the basic principles and factors involved in organic evolution. Recent European History concentrates on Western Europe since World War I. The course emphasizes the current political and social problems originating in the conditions of the interwar period and World War II.

Further information and counseling for the college program are available from Mrs. Kathryn Mason, Post Army Education Center, Bldg. 258 or Ext. 3189.

30th AAA's Best

Private First Class Stephen C. Padilla, 740th AAA Missile Battalion, was named the 30th AAA Group Soldier of the Month this week.

A panel operator in Battery C's launcher section, Private Padilla was accorded special honors by Col. Daniel A. Ranney, Group Commanding Officer.

Private Padilla, who received several special awards, will serve as the colonel's orderly for three days.

Periscope-Type device to measure radiation is being tested at the Nevada atomic tests. US Army scientists Gerald Carn (left) and Eric Ellstrom set up the instrument which pops up from the ground right after a blast to make a continuous record of radiation hazards. The instrument is stored underground to protect it from the big atomic shock.

Detector Network Measures Radiation In Bomb Blast

A new network of radiation detectors is being used in tanks, balloons and underground by Army scientists at the Nevada atomic tests to measure the amount of radiation following an atomic explosion, the Department of the Army has announced.

Developed at the U.S. Army Signal Engineering Laboratories, Fort Monmouth, N.J., the new equipment keeps a continuous record of radiation hazards in the test area after a blast. The information is stored in well-protected underground receivers until the area can be entered safely. These facts could be used to prepare radiation charts for combat.

One type of spotter being used is designed to pop up from the ground like a periscope to measure the radiation at various distances from the blast. The instrument is kept underground to protect it from the fierce atomic shock wave.

A split second after detonation an automatic air gun jolts the detector into position. It remains above ground for hours to keep a running account of fall-out radiation.

A similar radiation probe has been installed in a Sherman Tank to determine how close to a blast such an armored vehicle can be without danger to its crew.

A third set of instruments is attached to a balloon tethering at 1,000 feet to measure radiation hazard in the air. The balloon burns instantly from the nuclear heat flash, but instruments have time to send readings through coaxial links to the underground recorders.

Making Plans for the annual California Pistol Championships which will be held at the Presidio 27-28-29 September are Post Commander Col. Charles G. Rau and Capt. John F. Kallam, president of the Presidio Gun Club, which will host the matches. They stand before a stack of targets, some of thousands, which will be used during the competitions. The matches are expected to be the largest of their type ever held on the West Coast.

Stars From National Will Compete Here

Three outstanding pistol shooters at the recent 1957 National Matches are among the some 400 California marksmen expected to compete in the coming California State Pistol Championships, Capt. John F. Kallam, Presidio Gun Club president, announced this week.

The annual championships, which will be hosted this year by the local gun club, are scheduled for 27, 28, 29 September. It will be the first time in 10 years that the competition has been held in Northern California.

The noted shooters are Marine 1st Lt. William W. McMillan, the 1957 Pistol Champion; Navy CPO Offutt Pinion, 1957 .22 caliber free pistol match champion; and Sfc. Nelson H. Lincoln, LAH shooter who was top scorer on the Army team that copped this year's championship.

The matches will be shot on the Fort Barry Range.

Drunk? Don't Drive Or You'll Be Very Sorry

New traffic regulations governing drunk driving offenses have been released concurrently by the California Vehicle Code and Post Regulations. The state law change becomes effective 11 September.

The code states that "it is unlawful for any person who is under the influence of intoxicating liquor to drive a vehicle upon any highway." The first conviction is punishable by 30 days to 6 months in the county jail; a $250 to $500 fine; or both.

Subsequent convictions will bring a jail sentence of five days to a year and a $250 to $1,000 fine. Probations and sentence suspensions will not be granted on subsequent convictions.

Most violations of this section will result in suspension of the operator's license.

Ft. Baker High School Skeds Classes Soon

An on-Post high school education program will get underway at Fort Baker on 17 September, the Post Army Education Office announced this week. Certified civilian instructors will be supplied by the Marin County Public Schools.

The first two 16-week courses scheduled are English each Tuesday starting 17 September, and mathematics each Thursday, beginning 19 September. Classes will meet from 1800 to 2100 hours in Bldg. 702. Courses in general science and U.S. history and government will be offered next February.

After completing the four courses and passing the Army GED High School Level Test, military personnel will receive credit for full high school graduation and will qualify for diplomas either from their home states or Marin County.

Military and civilian personnel who wish to take the classes for review are welcome to enroll. Non-military personnel over 18 years of age can also qualify for high school diplomas under the Marin County program.

Mickelsen's Tour Ends; Pins New Bars On CWO

An 11-year Army veteran, the former Warrant Officer Howard Staggs, received his promotion to Chief Warrant Officer last week from Lt. Gen. Stanley R. Mickelsen, Commander of the U.S. Army Air Defense Command. CWO Staggs is assigned to D Battery, 740th AAA Missile Battalion.

Presently serving as battery missile officer, CWO Staggs entered the Army in 1946 with two years prior service in the U.S. Navy. He was graduated from the Electronic Material Maintenance Course at Fort Bliss, Texas.

General Mickelsen participated in CWO Staggs' promotion during his two-day visit to the 30th AAA Group. While here the general also visited Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Sixth U.S. Army Commander, and toured several Nike sites.

Babies, Babies, Babies

San Francisco's population took a natural leap during the week of 9-16 August as 467 births and 170 deaths were recorded. During the corresponding week last year 356 births and 163 deaths were recorded.

Sfc. Leta Massacar, Sfc. Mary Rice, Sgt. Rose Sabo, Sfc. Ruth Gosnell, Sfc. Dorothy Barnum, Sp/1 Hazel Humes.

Terminal pay in such cases will not be retroactive to the time served in the WAAC.

WAAC Service Credit Will Aid Several Here

There are approximately 18 women non-commissioned officers at the Presidio whose combined years of military service add up to the staggering total of 350 years Federal duty.

The as yet unofficial tally, now being conducted by the Post Military Personnel office, is the offshoot of the recent Senate Armed Services committee action in granting members of the former WAAC longevity credit which will enable them to retire from their Federal careers at an earlier age.

Through the medium of the new SAS bill, women non-coms who began their military service as members of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps—early World War II forerunner of the WAC, are now enabled to count the 16 months auxiliary duty toward longevity pay and retirement purposes—but not in point of time in grade, for promotion. (The original WAAC existed from June 1942 until September 1943, but prior to the current Government action the women were not credited with that service for official-administrative purposes, since it was not acknowledged as regular Army service).

The measure, widely acclaimed in the military service, is expected to cost $47,000 for the Army, $30,000 for the Air Force.

Presidio enlisted women favored by the Senate action include M Sgt. Betty Gregor, M/Sgt. Daisy Kountz, M/Sgt. Lena Behler, Sfc. Florence Miller, Sfc. Mary McCrite, Sfc. Lillian Aronson, Sfc. Esther Johnson, Sfc. Mattie Stephens, M/Sgt. Olive Hinchcliffe, M/Sgt. Margaret Klopp, Sfc. Ethel E. Rowe, Sfc. Cartalance P. White,

Gun Club Members View SJ Police Junior Course

Four Presidio Gun Club members observed a hunter safety course given for juniors by the San Jose Police Department this week. A similar class is planned as a local gun club project in the near future.

The members, M Sgt. Douglas B. Sheridan, Cpl. Milton E. Fell, Sfc. Robert J. Reilly and M Spec. David R. Dunsmoor, will instruct the local course.

All California juniors under 16 years of age are required to pass the five-hour course before they are authorized state hunting licenses. The course is sponsored by the National Rifle Association.

Post Provost Marshal Named

Post Commander Colonel Charles G. Rau this week announced the appointment of a new Post Provost Marshal, Lt. Col. Charles F. Helderman, Jr., who comes to the Presidio from Fort Bragg, N. C., where he served as 503d Military Police Battalion Commander and Provost Marshal both for the XVIII Airborne Corps and Fort Bragg.

Colonel Helderman, who is enthusiastic about his new assignment, reveals that his last visit to the Presidio was in 1932 when he played football here as a member of the West Coast Army team.

Boxing fans may know the Colonel by another name, Panama Mickey O'Brien. From 1933 to 1943 he boxed professionally under this title. During his fighting career he captured the light-heavyweight championship of the South and of the Northwest.

His Army career started in 1927 when he enlisted for Panama. During this period he served as a squad leader under Maj. Gen. William F.

Dean, who was then a lieutenant.

It was during Colonel Helderman's second Army enlistment, when he was stationed in Missoula, Mont., that he played Army football. Then followed ten years as a professional boxer.

He re-entered the Army in 1943 and attended Officers Candidate School. He was then assigned to the 703d MP Battalion at Fort Myer, Va., which was known as the "President's Battalion," because it handled all military police duties for the first executive.

From 1945 to 1948 Colonel Helderman served in the Philippines where he commanded Luzon Prisoner of War Camp Number One, or the "War Criminals' Compound." Confined here—until their execution—were General Yamashita, who had commanded Japanese forces in the Philippines, and General Homma, who was responsible for the "Bataan Death March."

In 1948 a new assignment returned Colonel Helderman to the states where he became senior

In July 1952 the Colonel was sent to Korea to command the Chinese communist stockade at Chedudo. It was his decision on 1 October 1952, to commit troops to quell the severe communist riots that erupted in the camp. Later during his Korean tour Colonel Helderman served as Provost Marshal for the Korean Base Section, which was the largest geographical operational PM area in the Army.

From Korea he went to Japan to take over as Post Commander of the 8044 ASU which operated the Army stockade there. Then in July 1955 he received his Fort Bragg assignment from which he came to the Presidio.

While at Fort Bragg Colonel Helderman had the additional assignments as Army Provost Marshal for Operation Sage Brush and XVIII Corps Provost Marshal for Operation King Cole.

Dante's Inferno as described by Presidio Wacs, Mollie L. Bruhn and June Mette. The girls are shown behind a sandbag protective barricade as they observed the explosion of two atom bombs in Yucca Flat, Nev., late last week.

Their Story!

Lady Soldiers See Atom Blow; Reactions To Blast Differ

Strontium 9 and Changel Number 5 met without Fallout recently when two Presidio WACs stood with combat troops behind ground zero during the atom bomb tests at Yucca Flats, Nevada.

At the scene of the bomb tests on a volunteer basis, the girls—June Mette and Mollie Bruhn, with two Army nurses, were the only women soldiers to experience the power of the Nation's mightiest atomic weapon, at relatively close and supervised range.

Exactly eight miles from ground zero, the women had made the supreme sacrifice—shucking off their smartly-tailored summer OD uniforms to climb into some out-size Army fatigues and take their positions behind a wall of sand bags to become eye-witnesses to one of the world's most awesome shows.

The enlisted women's trip to Nevada was sponsored by the Sixth U.S. Army Information Section, at their home station on the Presidio. It began with an indoctrination course at the Nevada desert bomb site—a five-day interval during which the women were briefed in the elementary phases of a highly scientific test which was certain to draw world-wide interest.

Mollie and June—climbing into the troop trucks in that vast wilderness of men and potential destruction—were said to be more devastating under the given combat conditions—than might the atom bomb itself!

The two WACs were just as excited equally and articulate in describing the 25 Army generals they met during the tests as they were in their account of their twin atom bomb show reactions.

"The bigger the rank, the more charming and easy to talk with," says June. "They treated us as though we were members of their immediate families."

Their eyes covered by heavy-duty density glasses, the girls watched the first bomb detonated from a balloon about 700 feet above ground level.

"We had the most amazing feeling of anticipation," declared Mollie; "it was both frightening and fascinating—just as though you were about to watch an actual scene from Dante's Inferno!"

"The big one—40,000 tons of TNT, was all purple and gold when it exploded," June explained; "the thing kicked up clouds of black dust that came over the area like a dirty-black veil."

A psychological study in reaction was that of the two WACs during the bomb tests.

- June didn't feel the resultant heat wave; Mollie did!
- Mollie felt two after-shocks. June didn't feel any!

• Mollie felt reassured that while the United States holds the strongest of scientific aces-in-the-hole, the world, aggressive-wise, will keep a respectful distance.

June kept thinking of radioactive fall-out disaster.

Mollie experienced a delayed fear reaction. June was terrified just before the explosion took place—not at all afterwards!

By and large it was a lifetime of experience for both Presidio WACs. The importance of being prepared for any and all emergencies was the most outstanding message conveyed to each of them during and after the bombs had been exploded.

Lighter aspects of the girls' visit to the Yucca Flats, Nevada, bomb test site were their side-trips by helicopter to Boulder Dam and Lake Meade.

The most amusing part of their visit was the departure from the radio-active area, when with the male members of the audience, the girls were gone over with Geiger counters—"cellar to attic—by a couple of the handsomest men in the U.S. Army, at Yucca Flats."

Local Association Selects Officers

Three Presidio people are among the newly elected officers of the San Francisco Bay Area Chapter of the Armed Forces Management Association.

On the group's governing body are Mr. John H. Blake, Post S1 Program Coordinator; Maj. Hedwig J. Cadell, Assistant Chief of the Authorization Branch, Manpower Division, Sixth U.S. Army G1; and Mr. Gerald King, Post Medical Section Program Coordinator.

Mr. Arthur E. Montana, U.S. Army Engineer District in San Francisco, is the president elect.

Two-way air-ground radio communications were successfully demonstrated on 16 December, 1914.

Presidio Teen Age Club Open To 13-19 Group

Membership in the Presidio Teen Age Club is open to dependents of military personnel and Department of the Army civilians stationed at the Presidio, its sub-Posts or Fort Mason.

Prospective club members must have reached the age of 13 but not yet 19 to be eligible.

The Teen Age Club is open weekdays until 1630. On Fridays and Saturdays it is open until 2300 hours.

For further information on the club call M/Sgt. David Hill, extension 3066, or the liaison officer, Lt. Colonel James Enmeier, 2511.

Hours Of Danger!

According to a Pennsylvania study, more than half of the on-the-job injury accidents happen during the first four hours on the job. During this time, the third hour is worst and the fourth is best.

Patrolman Named Best Presidio MP

Sp3 William Nicholas, a patrolman, has been named the first 163rd MP Company Outstanding Military Policeman. The selection was based on his appearance, military bearing, alertness and knowledge of his duties during the month of August.

Each day the MP Duty Officer picks an outstanding MP on each major guardmount held at 0730, 1530 and 2330 hours. The MP selected most during the month receives a three day pass and the Outstanding MP title. Specialist Nicholas was pointed out seven times out of 21 days of duty.

Specialist Nicholas came to the Presidio in March from Camp Drew, Japan, where he spent a 29-month tour with the Engineers, Quartermaster and Security. He has been in the Army for more than three years.

"Serene, indifferent to fate . . . Thou sittest at the Western Gate . . . Thou seest the white seas fold their tents . . . oh warden of two Continents . . . Thou drawest all things great and small . . . to Thee beside the Western Gate."

Kipling was SO right . . . when, in tribute to San Francisco, he wrote of the magic wrought by this magnetic Western city. . . .

Not the least of San Francisco's charm lies in its street names . . . fragments of history . . . building timeless monuments to her early heroes . . . Anza . . . Arguello . . . Alvarado . . . The names catch the eye and the mind as you leave the Presidio for an evening on the town . . . skimming past each block, on the bus . . . wondering . . . why Baker . . . why Sutter . . . Octavia . . . or O'Farrell? Were they great or small . . . and what particular magnet drew them to the Western Gate?

O'Farrell, for instance! What did he do to earn such lasting fame?

Jasper O'Farrell, for whom the street in San Francisco is named, was a Dublin Irishman . . . his obituary, published in the San Francisco Chronicle in 1875, describes him as one of the city's most neglected pioneers.

It was O'Farrell who . . . more than 100 years ago . . . mapped the city of San Francisco . . . outlining her streets exactly as they are today. The famous Hibernian was a graduate civil engineer from Dublin University. He became fabulously wealthy through land holdings given him in payment by the Presidio military governor in return for his services as a surveyor. He also was appointed State Senator from Sonoma and Mendocino Counties.

Early San Francisco newspaper files describe O'Farrell as a rugged giant of a man with patrician features . . . a heavy black beard and a who-the-hell-are-YOU look in his Irish eyes. He worked for the Mexican Government surveying Spanish and Mexican land grants, until after the American occupation of California in 1846. He then transferred his allegiance to the military government and began his surveys for the Presidio commander. His pay was in tracts of land in Marin and Sonoma Counties.

During 1846-1847, O'Farrell was contracted by the City of San Francisco to survey her streets. He changed an earlier plan drawn up by Frenchman Jean Vioget, in which he corrected mapping lines which at intersections he frequently found to be nearly three degrees off right angles. He also extended the city map to include North Beach streets . . . several streets west of Powell and California . . . to Rincon Hill.

Because O'Farrell's generous Irish hand made Market Street too wide to suit the avariciousness of some property owners, they held a protest meeting and decided to lynch him. A friend warned Jasper O'Farrell, and he took off by boat to Sausalito . . . thence by fast horse to the sanctuary of Sonoma County. Here, on 60,000 acres of land grant, he took a fling at mining . . . a member of the first party to dig for gold on the Yuba River. . . . Prior to the Gold Rush, O'Farrell prophesied in a letter to one of his friends that San Francisco would one day become the Empire City of the Pacific.

Even though he worked for and with the military government, O'Farrell openly denounced Colonel John Freeman for his participation in the shooting of the de Haro twins near San Rafael Mission during the Bear Flag revolt against the United States.

"I feel degraded," he wrote, "in soiling paper with the name of a man who, for his actions then, I must always look upon with contempt and consider as a coward!"

In a last letter to his sister, O'Farrell displayed further spiritual convictions when he described a fire in the mines. . . .

"Many are they who went to bed last night believing they were rich," he said . . . "who woke up poorer than the poorest! . . . Such, dearest Elena, is the evanescent quality of the world's riches. . . . Let it teach us to lay more store . . . more thought . . . on the wealth of the next . . . that once obtained can never pass away!"

Twenty-one days later . . . the 58-year-old man for whom O'Farrell Street is named, was dead . . . pioneer . . . soldier . . . miner . . . whose spiritual zeal was as fervent as that of the Franciscan missionaries for whom his adopted city was named. And like the poet . . . Kipling . . . now rests O'Farrell of San Francisco . . . "serene . . . indifferent to his fate . . . at rest beside the Western Gate. . . ."

More Flu

The incidence of influenza shot up in San Francisco this year as 91 cases were reported by the middle of August. In 1956, 10 cases were reported in the same period.

740th Pastor Rides To Scattered Group

A peripatetic parson—modern version of the circuit rider pastor—is Chaplain Edward G. Carson, currently on duty with the 740th AAA Battalion at the Presidio.

As a former enlisted man, Captain Carson holds the Combat Infantryman's Badge for service as a 60 MM Mortar squad leader in C Company, 387th Infantry Regiment, in Europe. He now practices the more spiritual side of Army combat duty by traveling with his enlisted-man organist to the isolated NIKE sites at Fort Funston, Sharp Park, and Coyote Hills. As God's traveling salesman he makes his bi-weekly rounds by sedan and helicopter.

The wandering minister is a product of the National Guard in which he served during 1933-'34. In 1943 he was assigned as an enlisted man to the 387th Infantry Regiment, 97th Infantry Division in which he served in the United States and Germany during World War II. He was later sent to Japan where he became a staff sergeant in Unit Supply.

After leaving military service in 1946, Chaplain Carson won a B.A. degree from Westmore College, Santa Barbara. He took post-graduate studies at California Baptist Theological Seminary, from which he holds a B.D. degree.

Capt. Carson reentered the Army as a first lieutenant in the Chaplains Corps, at Camp Roberts. His next assignment was with the 24th Infantry Division in Japan and Korea, going ultimately with the Third Battalion of the 21st Infantry to Kojima Island during Operation Big Switch.

Later assignments returned Chaplain Carson to Korea with an AAA Battalion. He subsequently served with the 34th Infantry Regiment on the DMZ before coming back to Japan, where he was chaplain at Mizawa Air Force Base.

Chaplain Carson's favorite biblical verse is "For where two or three are gathered together in My name, there am I—in the midst of them!"

Last 'Y' Picnic Of Summer Due At Lake Temescal

The Armed Services YMCA, 166 Embarcadero, announce that their last picnic of the season takes place at Lake Temescal, 22 September, leaving the YMCA at 1000 that morning.

It costs only 75 cents and the guest signature (in advance for planning purposes) for the picnic, which will be followed by a "Come As You Like" dance from 2000 to 2300 at the YMCA, in the evening.

Don't forget the YMCA Supper Club every Tuesday when you can enjoy a fine home-cooked meal for only 35 cents.

Want a Kitten?

Two (patriotic) little kittens who have NOT lost their mittens, are begging some small boy or girl at the Presidio to give them a good home with nice people, and preferably a room with a view!

Born on the Fourth of July the kittens boast that they are nieces or nephews of Uncle Sam. One kitten is black, the other grey. They may be adopted, either singly or together, by calling Fort Baker Service Club, Ext. 58-239.

New Amplitron

Electron Tube Will Benefit Nation's Radar

A new, lighter, more powerful electron tube called the "amplitron," has been developed which may be put to such versatile uses as making radar sets lighter or making electronic ovens more effective, the Department of the Army announced this week.

The new tube, developed by the U.S. Army Signal Engineering Laboratories, Fort Monmouth, N.J., and the Raytheon Manufacturing Company, Waltham, Mass., can handle a power load equal to that needed to light a small community.

The most important immediate use of the amplitron will be to increase the power in the nation's radar defense networks. The tube, which works like an ordinary TV or radio tube—although it looks different—doubles the efficiency of existing radar boosters. It is capable of boosting the energy output of a radar's basic signal by as much as 8 to 14 times.

In addition, the tube's ability to respond to a wide range of signals makes possible rapid tuning to evade enemy jamming or interference.

movie previews

JEANNE EAGELS presents Kim Novak as Jeanne—a "coch dancer" on a midwest carnival owned by Jeff Chandler. The movie describes the meteoric career of the carnival dancer who drove herself to become the toast of Broadway.

FORTY GUNS introduces three brothers, each an experienced gunhand, as they become involved in a desperate struggle to break the hold of a powerful cattle empire in the Arizona of the '80's.

THE WAYWARD BUS describes a wild and dangerous bus ride through a mountain storm—exposing the hopes and fears, the problems and frustrations of a frightened group of passengers.

QUANTEZ is the story of four bandits and a girl friend of the leader, who hole up in a ghost town as they flee from a posse. Ragged emotions erupt into hate and violence before they take to the trail in a futile effort to reach the Mexican border.

LADY OF VENGEANCE is about a lady who has been wronged—the story was filmed against a continental background.

JUNGLE HEAT is set in Hawaii in 1941. The story deals with Japanese Fifth Column activities just prior to the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Rolling Along to the Presidio is the new Army soldier-show, due for a kick-off performance at the Fort Scott Theater 20 September at 2000 hours. A matinee will be presented at the Fort Baker Service Club on the same date at 1400 hours. A special performance for LAH patients is slated for 9 November.

Rolling Along Show Will Play Twice Here

A fast-paced, brilliantly costumed and directed soldier show—Rolling Along of 1957—takes to the boards at Fort Scott Theater 20 September at 2000 hours, with a matinee performance slated for the Fort Baker Service club the same day at 1400. This year's globe-girdling extravaganza marks the 301st performance of the Army's touring series which has already chalked up a record of 300 performances since 1955. A special performance for LAH patients is scheduled for 9 November, the hour to be announced later.

Special Services Division of the Adjutant General's Office sponsored the show series, under direction of the U.S. First Army. Original music for this year's show was composed and orchestrated especially for the latest performance, as was the special material for each performer. Schedules, meanwhile were coordinated with the various Commands, involving the chartering of tour aircraft and overseas reservations through MATS.

Early this summer, Rolling Along hit the foreign circuit, providing entertainment throughout Europe for the men stationed in isolated areas where the U.S. Army serves.

Practically all the performers in the current show were featured in the Ed Sullivan Show late last month.

The 23 members of Rolling Along include dancers, singers, instrumentalists and novelty actors under stage direction of Leonard Kobrick, a band leader and dramatist of note. The present show continues its travel circuit until early in 1958, after which the performers take a break and then begin rehearsals for a new all-soldier show.

Ex-Jockey Recalls Racing Highlights

Jim Murray, a warehouseman with the Post Ordnance Section, can remember the day he won $10,000 by betting on himself.

For you see, the 56-year-old Brooklyn-born Jim is a former jockey.

His riding days date back to 1916 at Pleasanton Race Track. However, he went back East within a few years where he spent most of his time.

1929, he, along with many people, went broke. It was at this time that he turned from the flat races and entered the steeplechases.

In 1932 his racing career, which won him about 450 races, came to an end as a result of a broken back suffered in one of the races. His mount fell while jumping over a hurdle pinning him underneath. This, according to Jim, was the most memorable, if not the most frightening, thing, which ever happened to him.

From 1932 until 1941, Jim worked at odd jobs as a trainer, exercise boy, owner, groom, and anything which meant being around horses.

When World War II broke out, he enlisted in the Army at Fort Du Pont, Delaware.

Since 1950 he has been working for the Army as a civilian. He was assigned to the Letterman Army Hospital Medical Warehouse section for five years. Today, he works for the Post Ordnance section.

Yes, Jim still loves horseracing. Many of his close friends are among famous people in the business.

When Tanforan opens next week, he'll be hustling out there every so often to try his luck; most of all to watch the horses run and to recollect some of the happier moments of times gone by!

New Leagues Set

Two new bowling leagues will be formed to begin play around the first week of October. One league, on Thursday nights, will be on a team handicap basis and on Tuesday nights on an individual handicap basis.

Anyone interested in starting a team in either of the two leagues, please contact Sp3 K. Schell at 2776 or M/Sgt. Mahon at 2829, as soon as possible.

He rode at such famous race tracks as Belmont, Pimlico, and Saratoga. Some of his most prominent mounts included Star Master, Fruit Cake, Royce Rolls, and Bantry Pass. It was on Star Master in a Stake Race at Pimlico that he won $10,000. The horse went off at 5 to 1 odds and Jim felt that this was a good opportunity to make a little money.

In 1922 Jim traveled to England to ride in a special handicap race on a horse named Bohemian.

Master Sergeant Douglas B. Sheridan took second place in the .22 National Match Course by scoring 291 out of 300. Capt. John F. Kallam took second place in the open class in the Camp Perry Course, a match shot at 25 yards. The captain scored 295 out of a possible 300.

the expert class in the Camp Perry Course.

Privates First Class Carl Nygren and Melvin Hardy, 30th Engineer Group, took second and fourth place, respectively, in the sharpshooter class of the .45 National Match Course.

9th AAA Leaves For 6th Region Tournament

The 9th AAA Missile Battalion, winners of the 30th AAA Group softball tournament held at Ft. Barry two weeks ago, left Wednesday for Ft. MacArthur to compete in the 6th Region, U.S. Army Air Defense softball tourney to be held from 5 to 12 September.

The 9th will compete against champions from the Seattle, Hanford and Los Angeles areas. Each squad is limited to 15 players, one coach and one officer in charge.

If they win at Los Angeles, the 9th will represent the 6th Region in the All-U.S. Army Air Defense Command tournament. This tourney of regional champs will be held from 19 to 26 September at Ft. Baker.

Football Game Seats Available At United Offices

Seats to games played by teams in the National Football League now can be reserved at any of United Air Lines' 135 ticket offices in 80 cities across the nation through a unique arrangement between the airline and 11 of the 12 teams in the league. Games played at Detroit are not included in the arrangement.

Coupons issued by the airline are exchanged for actual admission tickets at the "Will Call" office of the stadium. Cost of the ticket is the same as when purchased at the stadium and either box or grandstand seats can be reserved.

Previously, tickets to National League games could be purchased only in cities where the games were being played.

Late Flash . . .

The mighty 21st Engineers softball team won the city Class A Championship as they toppled the 2400 Club by the tune of 9 to 0.

Ace hurler Nick Themely pitched another beautiful game as he allowed the opposition only one hit. He had a no-hitter up until the top of the fifth inning.

This completed a highly successful season for the Engineers, who won a total of 35 games, losing only six. They won the Post Softball Championship and then went on to the Central Area Sixth Army Tournament losing a heartbreaker to the Ft. Ord Warriors in the last few minutes of the final game.

Winning Trophy is admired by Lt. Frances Kirk, Executive Officer of Company "D," and Sgt. Julian Kite, NCOIC of the Post Sports Section and member of the WAC softball team. The Presidio WACs won the trophy by defeating Fort Ord in the finals of the Sixth Army Softball Tournament held last week at Fort Ord.

Kite's Pitch - Harris' Hit Down Ord WACs

In a story book finish the Presidio WACs dumped the Fort Ord femmes by the score of 7-6, to win the Sixth Army Women's Softball Championship at the latter's home field.

Trailing 7-5 going into the last inning, the Fort Ord WACs staged a last minute rally which fell short by one run.

A combination of two hits and one base on balls produced one run for Fort Ord and loaded the bases with two outs. The next batter, Claxton, hit a line drive, which had all the makings of a sure single into right field. Lee Brandl, fleet first baseman for the Presidio, however, jumped two feet in the air to spear the ball and that was the ball game.

Julian Kite pitched for the locals allowing a total of fourteen hits but all were well scattered.

Peggy Harris once again led the WAC hitting parade by belting a home run and a single in two times at bat.

The first game was won by the locals by the score of 20-11. Julian Kite, who pitched the final game and part of the second, took credit for the win allowing a total of eight hits.

Army Tennis King Upsets Australian

Army Lieutenant Clif Mayne, runner-up in last week's Inter Service Tennis Tournament held at Arlington, Virginia, is making quite a name for himself in the tennis world.

The surprising soldier from Berkeley upset Australia's Davis Cup hopeful, Neal Fraser, on Monday and then went on to whip Pvt. Donal Thompson of New York in the quarter-final round of the National Tennis Championships being played at Forest Hills, N.Y.

Mayne, a former basketball player and tennis star at the University of California, used his smashing service and volley assault to defeat Thompson.

Trout eggs are large and are easily cared for in hatcheries. At certain stages of development, they can be shipped long distances without danger of loss.

Peggy Harris, who has lived up to her reputation as the Presidio home run queen, came through once again as she collected three hits, one a home run.

Beatrice Van Houten, another hard-hitting WAC, slammed four singles in five trips at bat.

The second game was won by Fort Ord by the score of 18-12, but the Presidio femmes came back in championship style to win the final contest.

The locals completed a highly successful season capturing runner up honors in the Northern California Army-Air Force Female Softball League.

Top Army Dog Assigned Duty At Ft. Benning

The most decorated dog in the history of the Army was recently assigned to Ft. Benning's 26th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon.

York, an 11-year-old German shepherd, is considered the only living decorated war dog in the U.S. that holds the Purple Heart, Combat Infantryman Badge, unit citations and a special citation. He is a veteran of 148 combat patrols in 19 months during the Korean campaign.

After gaining acclaim in Korea, York was assigned to a special kennel, topped by the sign "Hell on Paws." He travels in a brightly decorated traveling kennel.

Recently, York, who is considered to be the oldest dog in the Army, retired from active service. He is believed to be stone deaf. Today, he is content to loll on the grass while the younger dogs are put through their basic training.

Presidio Nine Seek Sixth Army Crown

The Presidio baseball team is competing in the Sixth Army Baseball Tournament this week at Ft. Ord.

The Toreros, which boast some of the top pitchers in the Sixth Army Area, left for Ft. Ord last Monday with a squad of 16 players.

Three other teams besides the Presidio qualified for the Tournament. They are Ft. Huachuca, who won the Southern Division Sixth Army championship, Ft. Lewis and Ft. Ord.

The winner of this tournament will travel to Ft. Knox on 16 September for the All-Army Finals.

Pirates Lose Twice; Braves In First Place

The Pirates saw their Pony League lead vanish in thin air this week, as the Braves trimmed the Dodgers by the count of 2-1 to take a half a game lead with one game remaining in the second half of play.

Last night, the Pirates and Tigers were scheduled to play the final game. If the Pirates should win and thus tie for the title with the Braves with an 8 and 3 record, then a 3-game playoff will take place beginning tonight at 1730 hours, with the second game played Saturday at 1000 hours, and the third, if necessary, at 1400 hours the same day to decide the second half champion.

If the Pirates should tie to the title and then go on to win the playoff from the Braves, then a one game sudden death playoff will be staged next Monday evening between the Pirates and Dodgers to determine the season Pony League Champion. The Braves won the first half of play.

The Pirates, meanwhile, dropped two games over the past week while the Braves were winning two.

Behind the one-hit pitching of Pat Horrell, the Braves trounced the Pirates 14-0. Bobby Clark of the Braves had a perfect day at bat collecting 3 for 3.

Last Saturday the Dodgers belted the Pirates by the tune of 14-7. Dennis Youngdahl received credit for the win.

The Braves continued their climb to the top by walloping the hapless Tigers by the score of 26-4. Bobby Clark was the winning pitcher. Horrell belted a home run for the winners, giving him a perfect day at bat with 3 for 3.

The Braves then went on to trim the Dodgers, 2-1, to insure themselves with at least a tie for first place. Doug Campbell starred for the winners by pitching a no-hitter.

Deuces Still Setting Pace; CMD Leading Their League

Things went as usual in the Bay League this week, as the Deuces won another series to reach closer to clinching top spot.

Led by Dodson with 605-213, the highest series and game of the week, the League leaders blanked the hapless 740th AAA, 4-0. Sadler was high man for the losers with 512-180.

The Triple Aces, the only real threat to the Deuces, won by forfeiture from the Officers Mess, 4-0. Eight games still separate the two top teams.

The third place 99ners tied Hq. Co. Sixth Army, 2-2. Loucks was tops for the 99ners, with 513-212, while Bauman was high for the Hq. Co. with 510-182.

The 56th MRU keglers regained some of their winning punch as they took a 3-1 decision from the 30th AAA. Wehrheim rolled a respectable 517-191 to be best man for MRU, while Butler was tops for the losers with 494-165.

In the Pacific League, CMD also came closer to clinching first place, as they took an important 3-1 decision from the Esh-less Signaleers. Lefebvre was high for the winners with 506-172. Moss led the Signaleers' attack with 476-169.

The third place Spoilers toppled the last place Missileers by the tune of 3-1. Wolfman was high man for the winners, with 518-195, while Stevens once again led the hapless Missileers with 533-155.

The Deuces reached a step closer to the first division by defeating the Phills, 3-1. New-comer Opozda led the winners with 518-187. Diamond was best for the Phills with 428-156.

The fourth place Compt-Rollers hung on to the first division by playing a 2-2 tie with the Presidio Cops. Kunec led the Compt-Rollers with 522-205, while Dickey rolled the highest series of the week with 530-185 to lead the Cops.

The Presidio League was idle

Small Town--Big Interest

La Mesa, California, an average size American community of approximately 20,000 people, located near San Diego, California, is probably one of the baseball playingest towns in the world. That is, if you happen to be a boy between the ages of 8 and 16.

Five per cent of the population, 1,200 young boys, belong to one or more baseball teams.

Three La Mesa teams this year have reached national Junior League play-offs. The La Mesa Little League All-Stars, who won the district championship at the Presidio Little League field several weeks ago, captured runnerup honors at the Little League World Series held at Williamsport, Pennsylvania, two weeks ago.

The La Mesa Pony Leaguers won the regional championship and the right to play in the national tournament at Washington, Pennsylvania, but were forced to cancel the trip because of a flu epidemic.

The La Mesa Colt Leaguers, made up of older boys between 15 and 16, are now playing in the National Tournament.

Quite a baseball record for a small town!

Asiatic Flu Shots Due Here Shortly

Army-Trained Flyer, Maj. Charles M. Bussey, has spent most of his military service in and around airplanes. A combat pilot in both World War II and the Korea conflict, Major Bussey is now Commanding Officer of the 521st Engineer Company, which provides aerial support for the 30th Engineer Group.

Combat Pilot Says Army Aviation Due Key Role

A combat veteran who has spent 10 of his 14 Army years close to the air service, Maj. Charles M. Bussey, believes that Army Aviation will play an important role in the new Pentomic Army.

Now Commanding Officer of the 521st Engineer Company, Major Bussey completed the Army Air Force Aviation Cadet School in 1943. He was assigned to the European Theater of Operations as a fighter pilot and completed 115 combat missions. The following year he was awarded the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters.

When the war ended the major joined a reserve Army Engineer Unit. Upon his return to active duty in 1948 the Air Force was a separate unit of the service so Major Bussey was assigned to the Army Corps of Engineers. In Korea he commanded the 77th Engineer Combat Company and won the Purple Heart, the Bronze Star Medal and the Silver Star Medal.

In 1952 the major returned to his first love—flying—and attended the Army Flying School at Fort Rucker, Ala. He was assigned to a combat battalion as an aviator and flew such missions as reconnaissance, transportation, communications and convoy control.

The 521st, which Major Bussey has commanded since last December, provides the 30th Engineer Group with aerial support for its survey operations. This includes providing quick transportation to inaccessible areas and flying aerial photography.

Chief Commends Civilian Worker For Attendance

Mr. Elmer McLaughlin, chief of the Accounting Policy and Evaluation Division, Sixth U.S. Army Finance and Accounting, has received a letter of commendation from Maj. Gen. John J. Binns, Sixth Army Chief of Staff, for accumulating 1,000 hours of sick leave.

A 23-year Civil Service employee, Mr. McLaughlin has spent his government career in the Army finance field. He started with the U.S. Army Finance Office at Fort Mason, was transferred to the Army Regional Accounts Office in 1951 and was assigned to the Presidio in 1954 when the Accounting Division was placed under Headquarters, Sixth U.S. Army.

For the past four years Mr. McLaughlin has been active in implementing the accounting aspects of the Army Financial Plan in the Sixth Army area.

30th AAA Sends Two To Bliss Missile Course

The first officers from the San Francisco Defense Area to attend the transition courses on the new Nike-Hercules will report to Fort Bliss, Texas, this fall, 30th AAA Group Headquarters announced this week.

The officers are CWO Barney I. Hill, Group Guided Missile and Fire Control Officer, and WO Murdoc C. Munn, Electronics Material Maintenance Officer. CWO Hill begins instruction in his field on 24 October and WO Munn starts 18 November.

The Nike-Hercules has many times the destructive power of the original Nike and is faster and has greater range than the Nike-Ajax.

Death On The Job!

Twenty-three persons per 100,000 workers were killed in work accidents last year. The highest rate was recorded in 1937 when 43 persons per 100,000 workers died in on-the-job accidents.

Virus Harvesting takes place at the Sixth US Army Medical Laboratory, Fort Baker, where influenza virus is propagated in eggs infected with nose and throat washings from persons who have contracted the disease. From the egg membrane being removed above, scientists will extract virus to use in tests determining whether the virus is of A, B or C group. Asiatic flu is caused by one strain of A group. These tests are but one small part of the over-all Armed Forces research into the nature and prevention of influenza.

Army Tests Vaccine Potency At Ord, Dix

Armed Forces personnel, who are scheduled to receive a dose of anti-flu vaccine in October and a second in November or December, will be among the first large groups of people in the country to receive immunization against Asiatic flu.

The vaccine will be available to the Armed Forces first, because—as the only large organizations in the nation that have adopted a policy of inoculating against influenza—they placed large orders for anti-flu vaccine months ahead of the Asiatic flu outbreak, explained Col. Gottlieb L. Orth, chief of the Preventive Medicine Division, Sixth Army Medical Section, this week.

With the Asiatic flu outbreak, the Armed Forces immediately revised their order to specify a vaccine being developed which would provide protection against the new strain of virus.

Extensive tests are currently being carried out by the Commission on Influenza of the Armed Forces Epidemiological Board to determine the effectiveness of the new vaccine. The two major centers for this tri-service and U.S. Public Health Department scientific testing project are at Fort Ord and Fort Dix.

The Fort Ord testing is being carried out in conjunction with the Viral and Rickettsial Disease Laboratory, State of California. Only 2,000 doses of the vaccine were available for the tests so all Fort Ord soldiers did not receive immunization. In late August President Eisenhower was inoculated with a similar type vaccine.

The strain of influenza causing Asiatic flu appears to be a mild form of the disease, said Colonel Orth, who explained that the things to be feared are the secondary infections—such as pneumonia—which could follow the flu attack.

The anti-flu vaccine is simply a solution of dead flu virus. The body reacts to these dead virus just as it would to the living organisms by building anti-bodies. These anti-bodies, which retain their strength for about a year, protect the body against contact with the live flu virus.

The Asiatic flu strikes after a 24 to 48 hour incubation period. Similar to other types of influenza, it produces a headache, sore throat and pains in the joints and muscles. Called a three-day flu, it leaves the victim feeling weak, but generally there are no after effects.

Colonel Orth emphasized that everybody doesn't get the flu. It might strike one or two members of a family and never bother the rest of the group.

Delay Unit Day

The 30th Engineer Group will commemorate its unit day on 4 October, Col. Lawrence R. St. John, Group Commander, announced this week. The actual unit day was 1 September, but the observance was postponed until the Group's troops return from various mapping projects.

The day will feature competitive events between the companies, a picnic and a game between the officers and enlisted men.

Host AFC Members

Battery A of the 740th AAA Missile Battalion played host to members of the Armed Forces Committee of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce last week.

The visit included a lecture by 1st Lt. Charles E. Watkins, Battery Commander, films and a tour through the area.

Bambi's Luck!

Missilemen's Mascot Is Murdered

Bambi, the hard luck buck mascot who was twice nursed back to health by his adopted family of 441st AAA Missilemen, has fallen for the third and last time—the stabbing victim of an unknown person.

Bambi and the battery first discovered each other when the wounded deer wandered into the Castro Valley site. His new friends cared for him and soon he had top secret clearance to roam the area as one of the gang.

Last March (Star Presidian 22 March) Bambi leaped through a barracks window after being mysteriously startled. He was operated on by an Oakland Army Terminal veterinarian, cared for again by battery personnel, and soon was back on duty at the site.

Bambi returned "home" after the stabbing but died despite an emergency operation. He was buried in the "A" Battery area and accorded honors at a retreat ceremony.

Happier Days for Bambi, late mascot of "A" Battery, 441st AAA Missile Battalion, when an Oakland Army Terminal veterinarian and battery members were able to patch him up. The above picture was taken after a frightened Bambi leaped through a barracks window. An unidentified person brought about Bambi's death through stabbing.

The Army will be represented by 14 fixed wing and rotary aircraft from the Presidio and other Northern California Army bases at the air show, ranked largest in the United States since the discontinuation of the National Air Show last year.

First Charity Drive Set Under New Regulations

The annual Presidio United Bay Area Crusade campaign will be conducted from 1 to 31 October, Post headquarters announced this week. Lt. Col. James F. Young, Assistant Post Executive Officer, and Capt. Herbert Youngdahl, Post Funds Custodian, have been named co-chairmen of the drive:

Assisting the co-chairman will be a committee comprised of staff section and activity chiefs and unit and detachment commanders. The committee will meet at 1330 hours, 23 September at the main Post theater.

The campaign will be conducted under the key man-envelope system, whereby individuals make private contributions in blank envelopes. Key men will be named for every 25 persons—or less in smaller sections—to distribute the envelopes and assist prospective contributors.

Enlisted men will donate through their companies; officers and civilians through the sections. The contribution envelopes can be mailed directly to UBAC headquarters.

Persons selected as key men are requested to report the number of envelopes needed to Ext. 3823 by 19 September.

The UBAC raises funds once a year for more than 250 health, welfare and youth agencies in five counties. Some of the organizations represented are Red Cross, Salvation Army, Travelers' Aid Society, American Cancer Society, Heart Association, United Cerebral Palsy Association, Mental Health Association and Rheumatism and Arthritis Foundation.

Emergency Request

At the direction of the President, the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare has appealed to employees of the Federal Government to help those who suffered from the recent Hurricane Audrey by making additional contributions to the American Red Cross, according to newly released Circular 900-3.

Strength Report Shows Increase

Based on preliminary reports the numerical strength of the Armed Forces was 2,809,528 as of 31 July, the Department of Defense has announced. This represents an increase of 13,730 over 30 June totals.

Recruitment and inductions of enlisted personnel of all the military services during July was estimated at 70,871, an increase of 8,184 over June. Army procurement totaled 29,424 in July to top the other services.

The strength figures represent full-time military personnel comprising both Regulars and Reserves on continuous active duty, and include cadets and midshipmen at West Point and the Naval Academy.

Flu Vaccine? - - Nyet! DA-- 'Must Take Shots'

Mandatory inoculations against Asian Flu have been ordered for all Army military personnel, the Department of the Army has just announced.

At the Presidio the Post Surgeons office—which has been swamped with calls asking for information on the vaccine—reports that it does not yet have official information on when the influenza vaccine will arrive.

"We have been told that the vaccine will arrive at the medical supply depots in the latter part of September," states Lt. Col. Maurice A. Newman, Medical Section executive officer, "but it's a long way out here from the depots so it is doubtful that we can get the vaccine before the first part of October."

The vaccine will be made available also to Army dependents on a voluntary basis and to civilian employees at overseas stations including Panama, Puerto Rico, Alaska and Hawaii. The policy on civilian employees within the United States and on retired personnel has yet to be determined, according to Department of the Army.

A second influenza inoculation, needed by the Army to increase immunization among personnel concentrations, is expected to be completed by 31 December, said DA.

Hunger, Death Plagued Childhood

The last two years have been quite a change of pace for Pfc Constantinos Psittas of the 30th Engineer Group, who spent the first 20 years of his life on a farm in Greece.

From Greece he traveled to Colorado where he attended high school for a year. And for the last year he has been serving in the United States Army.

Dino, as he is known to his friends, had to stop his education after completing grammar school in order to help his family on their farm.

Although he was young at the time, Dino has vivid memories of the German occupation during World War II. He reports that the Germans directed all the work that went on, forcing the people into virtual slavery. They did what they were told or they were shot. He can remember the wholesale murders that took place.

"It is still hard to believe," says Dino, "So many people were killed for little or no reason."

The food situation was extremely bad. Even though he lived on a farm, it was difficult to get enough food to eat.

With the war's end, Dino's uncle who lived in the United States enabled Dino's family to survive in this difficult period by sending food packages and other necessities. The Germans had stripped the country and there were shortages in everything.

In 1955, Dino was extremely discouraged with the situation in Greece. It was difficult to get jobs and even more difficult to make a living. So with the aid of his uncle in the United States, he journeyed alone from Patrai, Greece, all the way to Pueblo, Colo.

During his year in high school Dino concentrated on learning the English language. A year ago he joined the Army through the Enlisted Reserves and is now stationed with the 537th Engineer Company.

His immediate goal is to attain his citizenship. Looking ahead, he says confidently, "Here in the United States, there is everything; good living, no worries about food, and plenty of jobs. I can really appreciate these things for in Greece there were no jobs, and the people were always hungry."

Reenlistment Team Cites AFB's Modern Coverage

Army Fringe Benefits are neither just fringes nor things of the past, according to Capt. James E. Corum, Post Reenlistment Officer. AFB is more than just a fringe! It is a whole shawl by which the military man may protect his dependents against the cold of ill-winds; augmenting his pay through Social Security and Indemnity payments covering death or other family loss.

Current Army Fringe Benefits are as modern as tomorrow, according to the Post Reenlistment Branch. M/Sgt. John E. McConnell, the Branch NCOIC, is quick to point out that widows are also generously provided for under the terms of a new Act, both for their immediate needs or as a lifetime service.

For example, it has now been established that a widow receives a death gratuity lump-sum payment of at least $800—as compared to the former payment of $468—with a maximum payment of $3,000. In addition, for lifetime security, widows will also receive a steady income of at least $122 a month, or more—depending on grade and number of dependents or minor children.

Other Fringe Benefit advantages as quoted by the Reenlistment Branch are the Post Exchange and Commissary services, dedicated exclusively to the soldier and his family. Reduced prices make it possible here for the serviceman to provide family food essentials for less than he would have to pay on the outside market.

Unlike civilian industrial health and accident plans, the soldier pays no monthly premiums for his family's health and welfare. Long-term specialist care, often adding up to thousands of dollars, is cancelled out, through the AFB policy which covers the soldier who makes the military service his career.

Signal Soldiers Aid Rescue Work In Tunnel Blowup

Army Signal Corps personnel participated in rescue operations at Oswego, New York, following an explosion that trapped construction workers in a tunnel beneath Lake Ontario, recently.

The personnel, part of a detachment of the 501st Signal Company, were stationed at the AAA Firing Range at Oswego at the time of the disaster.

Using field wire and telephones, they provided communication facilities between the tunnel entrance and rescue workers beneath the surface.

One member of the detachment went directly underground to connect emergency facilities of the Army Signal Corps with the telephone communication system of the tunnel construction crew. At least two of the assisting Army personnel are to be recommended for the Soldier's Medal.

Olympic Medalist, CWO Offut Pinion poses with some of his 500 trophies he has garnered in 16 years of active pistol competition. Chief Pinion will enter all of the individual events in the California State Pistol Championships planned at the Presidio from 27-29 September.

Top Navy Shooter Sets Sights On CSP Trophies

Chief Warrant Officer Offut Pinion, 1956 Olympics medalist, will be one of the top contenders in the coming California State Pistol Championships scheduled at the Presidio from 27 to 29 September. The annual competition will be hosted this year by the Presidio Gun Club.

CWO Pinion, who took third place in Olympic pistol competition, was the only member of the U. S. Olympic team to win a medal for shooting in last year's games.

Now Small Arms Training Officer for the Twelfth Naval District, Pinion won the Slow Fire Free Pistol event at the recent 1957 National Matches. He has participated in the national matches every year for the last 10 years.

In 1954 the Navy chief warrant officer was a member of the U. S. Shooting Team that competed for the World's Championship at Caracas, Venezuela. The team was then coached by Col. Charles G. Rau, Post Commander.

Pinion has won more than 500 medals and trophies in his 16 years of pistol competition. His interest in shooting dates back to his childhood.

A veteran of more than 28 years of Navy service, CWO Pinion plans to compete in all of the individual events in the championships here. He also hopes to enter a U.S. Navy team in the competition.

Great-Greatness personified, is Sp3 John Letterman, Sixth US Army soldier. A nephew, four generations removed, of Maj. Jonathan Letterman, famous Civil War surgeon, John is currently assigned to Sixth Army Headquarters at the Presidio.

Letterman Descendant On Duty At Presidio

A great, great—or great, great, great—nephew of the noted Civil War surgeon, Major Jonathan Letterman, has been assigned to the Sixth U.S. Army G2 Section on the Post that immortalized his forefather.

Although other installations may just have considered him SP3 John Letterman, the descendant of Letterman Army Hospital's namesake has been deluged with questions about his family here.

Well, Specialist Letterman remembers his grandfather who died in 1943—and he remembers his mother telling of Jonathan Letterman visiting his grandfather in Webster County, Mo., where the family originally settled.

Some of the details he may not remember are in the history books of LAH, for Major Letterman is best known for his reorganization of field medical service and creation of an effective ambulance service for the evacuation of battle casualties. The basic plan of field hospitalization and evacuation known as the "Letterman plan" has influenced the medical service in every modern Army.

Specialist Letterman, who entered the Army in 1949, served as a merchant seaman during World War II. His Army service includes duty in the Far East and Germany.

The specialist is one of two living males who bear the name Letterman—the other is his six-year-old son, Larry.

Hopelessly snarled in a traffic jam, the wife asked: "What do I do now?" "I don't know," her husband answered. "But I'm sure if you climb into the back seat you can figure it out."

Top ROTC Grad

Mershon Memorial Award Announced

The most outstanding ROTC graduate entering the Regular Army each year will be awarded the newly established Dr. Ralph Mershon Memorial Award, the Department of the Army has announced.

The late Dr. Mershon, electrical engineer and inventor, was an advocate of civilian military education and former member of the Joint National Commission for the Reserve Corps of Engineers. He established the Mershon Fund at Ohio State University to be used for furthering civilian military education.

The award, a certificate and $250 check, will be presented each January by the Secretary of the Army to the most outstanding ROTC graduate who accepts an RA commission during the preceding year. Selection by DA will be based on evaluation reports submitted by professors of military science and tactics and summer camp commanders following the officer's graduation.

Top JAG Pair To Attend Annual Confab In East

The top two Headquarters, Sixth U. S. Army Judge Advocate officers will attend the annual conference of Army judge advocate officers in Charlottesville, Va., 30 September to 4 October. The JAG School will conduct the meeting.

Colonel Carlos E. McAfee, Staff Judge Advocate, and Col. Walter O. Beets, Deputy Staff Judge Advocate, will be among the some 150 senior officers of the JAG Corps attending.

Theme of this year's conference is "The Role of the Military Lawyer in the Atomic Age." Those attending will assist the Judge Advocate General in preparing the annual report on the operation of the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

The officers will have the opportunity to exchange information on legal problems and to hear noted guest speakers discuss some of the broad fields of military law.

Please Remember!

The Veterans Administration, which has 30 million names carried in its central file, this week asked individuals to be sure and enclose their benefit claim ("C") number when writing the agency about a benefit claim or insurance problem. The "C" number enables VA personnel to immediately trace the individual's file, it was explained. When this number is not included considerable lost time results while this "mystery mail" is tracked down.

Lucky 13th Three persons who don't believe that Friday the 13th is bad luck day are, from the left, Col. James C. Hamilton, Miss Ruth Eggert and Mrs. Marjorie Ligier, who all celebrate their birthday today. These three members of the Sixth Army Judge Advocate Section were rather astounded to find that in their section of some 20 persons the three of them have the same birthday. And they all agree that 13 September is a rather special date for being born. They point out that it dates the birth of General Pershing, too.

The uniform was an attractive one, and would still be considered so today but for the length of the skirt. Skirts were daringly short for those days . . . eight inches from the floor!

The girls wore a Norfolk-style jacket of navy blue serge . . . fastened with brass buttons and carrying two patch pockets. The skirt also had two patch pockets with a cuff tabbed with a brass button. The rating badge was sewn on the left sleeve.

With this was worn, in summer, a shirt of white beach cloth or similar material, open at the neck . . . or closed, with a yard square of navy tie folded and tied in a knot.

The girls' hats . . . for summer wear, were straw sailors trimmed with navy ribbon.

From October to April, the Yeoman (female) wore a shirt of dark blue silk with her dress uniform . . . a navy blue felt sailor hat and a full-length cape of navy cloth, lined with black satin and fastened with two braided military frogs. White cotton gloves were adopted for street wear, and the familiar "dog tag" of the service was worn on a chain as a bracelet, or suspended from the neck.

Like all pioneer projects, the enlistment of women for the first time in the armed services was viewed with a measure of alarm. "Nice" women did not know quite what to make of it! . . . Even though canteens for men were being enthusiastically operated by patriotic women all over the nation, any small courtesy was denied a girl wearing the Army, Navy or Marine uniform.

In the Naval service, offices operated on a wartime basis of 24-hour schedules, comprising four watches of six hours each. The watches rotated from midnight to 6 a.m.; from 6 a.m. to noon; from noon to 6 p.m., and from 6 p.m. to midnight, with a crew changed every two weeks.

A great many girl Yeomen lived in suburban towns or nearby cities . . . commuting to and from their military work. The only lounges made available to them while awaiting transportation home was a railroad station waiting room, or similar shelter in a ferry building.

Typhoid inoculation was compulsory, and, although medical officers and nurses tried to give the "shots" at convenient hours, it often happened that the Yeoman could not reach home before they took effect. Hence, there she would sit . . . in some station waiting room . . . shaking with the chills and fever induced by the needle.

Enlistment proceedings for the Yeoman (female) were events approached with great apprehension. Frequently the girls faced the officer who swore them in with such fear and trembling that panic froze their lips . . . and the finally-spoken fatal words . . . "For two years or the duration of the war," became to them a mighty key which locked forever the door to personal freedom.

Nervousness on this count was not lessened by the Navy enlisted men who held forth at the Recruiting Office doorways . . . warning the girls going for the first time on the midnight or "graveyard" watch that "being shot at sunrise" was the penalty for any who dared to close an eye during the night.

The first time a Yeoman wore her uniform on the street, she was self-conscious . . . often dodging around corners to avoid officers . . . for as yet there were no official orders regarding the hand salute. When they DID come to light, it was with relief that she read "Yeomen (female) do not salute commissioned officers of the Armed Forces."

"The only salute I ever gave was to a retired Chief Boatswain's Mate whom I used to meet on my way to midnight watch. We girls were all fond of 'Pop' Barnes, so the salute came easy . . . although we did not take very seriously his earnest efforts to instruct us every Monday night on how to adhere to the rules carried in The Blue Jackets Manual."

The Presidio Sketchbook is indebted to Mrs. Avis Yates Brownlee of San Francisco, Yeoman (F) in the United States Navy during World War I, for the column interview, so interesting that the Star Presidian used it verbatim. Mrs. Brownlee is a Daughter of the American Revolution, and one of some 12,000 enlisted women who served the US Navy with 350 women Marines and 1,300 WACS in World War I. She served in the offices of the Cable and Postal censor, later as an accountant for the Naval Cost Inspector at Bethlehem Shipyards—June 7, 1918. Highlight of her years of service was the day her unit paraded in Golden Gate Park for review by Marshal Petain of the French Army.

The Post Sports Office is contemplating building a new field behind the Engineer Motor Pool. The new field near the Pitch and Putt Golf Course will also be used.

The Honor Guard, last year's Post champions, will defend their title against 20 other teams. Hq. Co. Sixth U.S. Army captured runner-up honors.

Shelton 3rd In 'Special Shoe' Meet

Ernie Shelton, California Military District, took third place at the World University Games held at Paris, France, by clearing the bar at 6'6".

In what was referred to as the duel of special "shoes," Yuri Stepanov from Russia won the high jump event with a leap of 6'11½". Igor Kashkarov, also from Russia, was second.

Both Russian entrants wore "spring action" shoes which were described as having an inch-thick sole of elastic material. The Russians, however, refused to allow local track officials and sports writers to examine their shoes.

Shelton wore a homemade "elevator shoe" which he hoped would help him to out-jump the Russians. They had an aluminum attachment under the sole.

Ord Cops Baseball Title; Locals Falter In Stretch

After capturing the opening game from Camp Irwin by the walloping score of 17-1, the Presidio baseball team was unable to hit the win column again, and lost its two remaining games to drop out of the Sixth Army Baseball Tournament held at Ft. Ord last week. Ord went on to win the Sixth Army title tussle.

Following the initial win, the Toreros lost to Ft. Lewis by the count of 10-3. The locals used a total of three pitchers with Roger Collins getting credit for the loss.

Arlen Downs of Ft. Lewis pitched a fine game, giving up three runs on eight hits, and registering a total of 10 strikeouts.

Salvatore Aiello of Ft. Lewis belted a 330-foot homer, the first of the five-day tourney.

The Toreros met Ft. Ord in the third game to decide which team would play Ft. Lewis for the championship.

In the closest game of the tourney, Ft. Ord downed the Presidio by the tune of 4-1.

Dick Shinnick, star Torero hurler, and Bill Bouley of Ft. Ord, both pitched outstanding games for their clubs, allowing no hits, no runs, and no men to reach first, until the bottom of the fourth when Shinnick walked Ord's first baseman Hugh Inglett.

In the top of the fifth the Toreros scored the first run of the game on Shinnick's double, scoring Roger Collins from second base.

The Ordsmen remained scoreless until the bottom of the seventh when Lowell Hess hit a single into short right field with the bases loaded to push in two runs. Ft. Ord collected another run in the seventh and added the final one in the eighth.

Ft. Ord then went on to capture the Sixth Army Championship and a chance to play in the All Army Finals next week at Ft. Knox, Kentucky, by taking a hard-fought doubleheader from Ft. Lewis by scores of 9-8, and 12-10.

Because of their outstanding play in the Tournament, Dick Shinnick and John "Zeke" Zeleznock, hard hitting Torero outfielder, who collected six hits for 13 times at bat, were picked to play for the Sixth Army in the All-Army Finals. Both players left this week for Ft. Knox.

In the Presidio League, Hq. Co. Sixth U.S. Army, paced by Kaminski with 505-191, moved into a two way tie for first place with the 46th Ordnance Keglers by taking four games from the hapless Hilltoppers. Levinson was high man for the losers with 458-172.

The slumping 46th Ordnance, meanwhile, dropped a 3-1 decision to the surging Wizards. Purves was best for the Wizards with 539-196, while DuBois once again led the Ordnance group with 484-167.

The Keystone Kops, who are in third place only two games off the pace in the tight Presidio League race, toppled the Hardnoses by the tune of 3-1. Johnson of the Kops rolled the highest series and game of the week with 575-215. Bolton paced the Hardnoses with 569-201.

The 21st Engineers forfeited their game to the King Pins, thus losing 4-0.

The Deuces of the Bay League have virtually clinched first place as they smothered Hq. Co. Sixth U.S. Army by the score of 4-0. Dodson, one of the top keglers of the league, led the winners with 563-200. Bakke was best for the Hq. Co. with 503-191.

The Triple aces, who still have a slim mathematical chance to win the pennant, took a 3-1 decision from the 56th MRU bowlers. Grambort paced the Aces' attack with 468-170, while McInturff continued his torrid pace by rolling a 533-192 to lead the MRU outfit.

The Tripe Aces and the Deuces were scheduled to play last night. The Deuces need only two more wins to clinch the title. The 30th AAA won four from the Officers Mess by forfeiture.

The hapless 740th AAA dropped two series, one to the 99ners and the other to Hq. Co. Sixth Army by 4-0 scores.

Loucks led the 99ners to their shutout victory, while Sadler was best for the losers with 463-170.

Stabile paced the Hq. Co. attack to their win over the AAA outfit with 503-180, while Leversky was best for the cellar dwellers with 494-169.

CMD reached closer to winning the Pacific League title by splitting this week's series with the Compt-Rollers, 2-2. DuBois was high man for the front-runners with 523-213. Kunec was best for the losers with 553-201.

The second place Signaleers failed to gain ground on the league leaders as they split their series with the Presidio Cops.

The Phills, led by Diamond with 495-174, upset the Spoilers by the count of 4-0. Bauman was tops for the Spoilers with 477-190.

The Deuces-Missileers match was postponed.

Ardent Sports Officer Leaves For Tokyo Job

Captain Milton Saunders, Company Commander of the 21st Engineer Company, who has been an ardent supporter of his company's athletic program, has been reassigned from his present position to the 29th Engineer Battalion in Tokyo.

Captain Saunders has always encouraged his men to participate in off duty activities, and has instilled in them a determination to win, which has paid off in the numerous awards which the Company has received over the last few years.

This year alone, the 21st Engineers have won enough trophies to fill a large size trophy room, including the Sixth Army Model Airplane flying championship, the Post Softball Championship, runner-up honors at the Sixth Army Central Area Softball Tournament, and numerous bowling awards.

These are exceptional results for a Company made up of less than 160 men. Captain Saunders has been the motivating force which brought them about.

Braves Stage Comeback; Win Pony Pennant

Fifth Army Takes Crown In Overtime

Fifth Army, spearheaded by the perfect relief pitching of John Hood, won the 1957 All-Army Softball Championship at Ft. Leonard Wood, Missouri, this week, by scoring three runs in the top of the thirteenth to defeat second place Third Army, 4-1.

The champions, represented by Ft. Riley and Ft. Benning of Third Army, each scored once in the first inning and then played through 11 scoreless frames before the Rileymen reached starter Lou Cox for three runs on two hits in the thirteenth.

The Sixth Army, represented by Ft. Ord, was eliminated during the second round of play by the Second Army by a score of 4-1. They had lost their opening game to Third Army by a 3-0 count.

Pirates Fire, Fall Back In Cinderella Climax

The Braves toppled the Pirates in a two out of three game playoff to cop first place in the second half of Pony League play. By doing this, the Braves automatically became the seasonal champs, as they also won the first half.

Behind the one-hit pitching of Doug Campbell, the Braves captured the opening game by the score of 11-1.

Pat Horrell, who has played outstanding ball all season, was top sticker for the champions with two for three, a double and a triple. Tom Delaney was second best with two hits for four times at bat, a triple and a single.

The Braves wasted no time as they captured the second game, thus winning the league title, by the tune of 9-2.

Once again a fine pitching exhibition by the Braves spelled the difference. Pat Horrell tossed a nifty one-hitter for the winners.

The losing pitcher was Tom Stewart.

Big guns for the Braves were Bob Clark and Marv Lupo who collected two hits apiece.

The 1957 Pony League season thus came to an end. Tomorrow afternoon, the Pony Leaguers will hold their annual picnic at 1400 hours at the Youth Baseball Field, highlighted by a game between the championship Braves and the fathers of the players.

Mr. Tom Delaney, chief scorekeeper, wishes to thank all the managers and coaches of the teams for a job well done.

Casaba Crew Must Replace 3 Key Men

The Presidio basketball team will commence practice for the coming season this Monday at 1300 hours at the Letterman Army Hospital Gymnasium.

Personnel interested in playing for the team are urged to contact Mr. Hal Fischer, as soon as possible, at Ext. 3968, or to report for practice at the designated time.

The Presidio team, last year's Sixth Army Champions and runner-ups in the All-Army Finals, is faced with the task of replacing three key men lost from last season's championship squad.

Still with the team, however, are Tony Psaltis, ex-University of Southern California star, and Carroll Williams of San Jose State. Both were picked on the last season's Army all-star team.

Night Play Balks 9th Missileers; Errors Prove Costly In ADC Tourney

Unaccustomed to playing under the lights, the 9th AAA Mis. Bn. committed a total of sixteen errors in four games, but made a gallant comeback to capture runner-up honors at the Sixth Region Army Air Defense Command Tournament held at Los Angeles this week.

After losing the first round of play to the 10th AAA of Spokane, by the tune of 19-1 in their first night game, in which they committed 10 errors, the 9th shut out the 551st AAA from Los Angeles, 6-0 on the following day.

John Olea of the locals and Bob Moriel staged a pitchers' duel until the fifth inning when the 9th exploded for two runs. Two drag bunts by Arlon Hopperdietz and Ralph Smith went for hits. A line drive single by third baseman Chuck Jones scored the first two runs of the game.

The locals added four more in the sixth on 2 hits, 2 errors, and a sacrifice fly.

On the next day, the 9th came back to play the 10th AAA, which had beaten them 19-1 in the first round, to score one of the major upsets of the tourney by handing them a 2-0 loss.

Sensational defensive play, the 2-hit pitching by John Olea, and inspired baserunning, all combined to give the locals their well deserved victory.

The two teams went scoreless until the fourth when Harry Burridge chopped a bouncing bunt along the first baseline to beat it out for a single. Bill Newsham doubled putting runners on second and third. Burridge scored on Ralph Smith's sacrifice fly, and Newsham moved to third scoring on a wild pitch.

As a result of this win, the 9th moved into the finals against the undefeated 20th AAAA from Seattle.

The night game jinx once again plagued the locals as they committed a total of six errors.

This fact coupled with a forced run in the second inning gave the 20th the necessary runs for victory, winning the finale, 3-2.

Trailing 3-0 in the third inning, the 9th bounced back for two runs when Lloyd Parks walked and Charlie Jones went to first on an interference play by the catcher. Shortstop Ralph Smith then singled both men in.

The 9th, however, was unable to push across any more runs and was forced to settle for runner-up honors.

The 20th AAA will represent the 6th Region in the All-U.S. Army Air Defense Command Finals to be held at Ft. Baker on 19-26 September.

Small Turnout May Hurt West Point Grid Play

One of the smallest turnouts in West Point history showed up for the opening day of football practice.

Coach Earl Blaik, who begins his 24th year as head football coach and his 17th at West Point, greeted a group of 40 players, including 12 returning lettermen.

Although the squad is small in quantity, it is bigger physically than any Army squad since 1950.

Last year, the Cadets won five, lost three, and tied the Middies in an exciting climax to the 1956 season.

Blaik faces the problem of fielding a team lacking in depth, especially in the line where it hurts the most. One of the bright spots of the team, however, is at quarterback, where converted All-American end Don Holleder will call the signals. Backing up Holleder is Dave Bourland who played outstanding ball last season.

Army opens its season against the University of Nebraska, followed by Penn State, Notre Dame, Pittsburgh, Virginia, Colgate, Utah, Tulane and Navy, in that order.

High Cost of Hiking

Nepal, in northern India, charges mountain climbers an admission fee of $630 to assault 29,028-foot Mount Everest, the National Geographic Magazine says.

Anyone attempting to scale 26,811-foot Dhaulagiri, the earth's highest known unconquered peak, must pay the same, but lower peaks may be tackled for bargain prices.

River Cruise Set

The Fourth Annual Colorado River Cruise, one of the most novel cruises of its kind, will take place between Blythe and Yuma on the Colorado River on the 12th and 13th of October. It consists of a procession of motorboats 12 miles long retracing the route taken by the old steamboats of Civil War Days.

All military personnel are reminded once again that fishing licenses are now required. However, fishing off public piers, or breakwaters, or jetties, is permitted without a license. The San Francisco Bay is open up to Point Richmond.

International Angle

Angling teams from the British Commonwealth, Chile, Cuba, Mexico, Peru, Spain, the U.S.A., and Venezuela, will converge upon Wedgeport, Nova Scotia, 11-14 September for the 14th International Tuna Cup Match.

Gone Away -- One Good Girl Friday!

"She could easily be credited with doing the work of four men," said one of her former section chiefs.

Sfc. Julian Kite, often referred to as one of the busiest WACs in the Army, left this week for reassignment in the Far East Command.

Sgt. Kite, NCOIC of the Post Sports Office for the last three years, came to the Presidio almost four years ago.

She enlisted in the Women's Corps in 1944 at Jackson, Mississippi. Like most Army personnel, she has traveled extensively, having been stationed at such places as Napier Field, Alabama, Fort Meyer, Virginia, and at Heidelberg, Germany.

Among the numerous tasks which were assigned to her while

Sfc. Julian Kite

NCOIC of the Post Sports Section, were the planning of intra-mural and post level sports; the scheduling of all Post games, including football, softball, and volleyball; and the arranging of all athletic banquets.

Sgt. Kite was also very active in WAC sports. She was a member of the WAC volleyball, basketball, and softball teams. All three distaff teams won the Sixth Army Championship this year.

Just a week before she departed for the Far East, Sgt. Kite was promoted to Sfc.

Sgt. Kite will be missed by all. Mr. Hal Fischer, Post Athletic Director, said that her "character and ability were beyond reproach," and that a replacement of her caliber "will be difficult to find."

Graveyard Shift for aircraft maintenance work has been successfully developed by the 521st Engineer Company. Preparing an aircraft for morning duty are, from left, Sp2 Bobby L. Cass, Pfc. Robert S. Gerard and Sp2 Jose M. Montanez.

Graveyard Set Solves Availability Problems

A working solution to a seemingly insurmountable aircraft maintenance problem has been developed and put into use by the 521st Engineer Company, 30th Engineer Group.

The problem, which centered upon meeting aircraft availability demands, was tackled by setting up a night maintenance schedule. So far the system has doubled the aircraft availability time and has increased the average flying time per aircraft from 31 to 48 hours a month.

Under the system only a skeleton crew is on duty during the day to service the aircraft and assist in such things as parking. The major part of the maintenance work is done at night when there is a minimum demand for aircraft. The planes are ready for flight the next morning.

The early complications such as extra meals and a drop in personnel morale created by the new working schedule have been ironed out. The 521st mess hall now serves five meals a day and troop morale has picked up because of the advantage of a longer weekend.

QM System Will Lighten Soldier's Pack

The strap and buckle-Individual Load Carrying System familiar to combat soldiers will soon be replaced by a new system developed by the Army Quartermaster Corps, the Department of the Army has announced.

The new load carrying equipment consists of two basic parts—a specially designed belt and shoulder-padded suspenders. Although the new system has been adopted by the Army as standard equipment, it will not be introduced into the supply system until stocks of the present equipment are depleted.

The new equipment is lighter and better distributes the load on the soldier's back. It makes adjustment, attachment and detachment of the components easier and adds flexibility in the methods of carrying. The equipment permits maximum dexterity and minimizes interference with the soldier's movements, including those involved in crawling.

AAA's Top Soldier

A computer operator assigned to Battery "C's" Integrated Fire Control Center, Pfc Richard A. Kuehne, has been named the 9th AAA Missile Battalion Soldier of the Month for August.

Private Kuehne, who has been assigned to the 9th since last November, was selected by a board comprised of the battalion commander, battalion executive officer, IFC officer, battalion sergeant major and the four first sergeants.

AG Poll Shows EM Would Prefer Smaller Unit Gyro

Washington (AFPS)—The majority of career soldiers in Gyroscope organizations like the rotation plan but would prefer to have the program applied to smaller units.

According to a study of the attitudes of enlisted men toward Gyroscope and the Combat Arms Regimental System recently made by the Adjutant General for the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, 75 per cent also favor unit rotation rather than individual replacement.

The poll was taken in 14 Army organizations ranging from division to battalion-size units designated to switch overseas and stateside posts on a regular schedule every three years.

The greatest portion of the troops questioned were married men in the upper three grades.

As to the Regimental System, seven out of 10 approved of belonging to a permanent combat outfit with a historic background. Those of higher rank and longer service tended to hold this association to be of more significance.

Of all the considerations for or against the program, family housing has prime importance. The largest number feel assignment to a Gyro unit solves their problems of quarters for dependents and assures concurrent travel, regardless of their next duty post.

On other aspects of Gyroscope, the survey revealed:

- Only about half of the men prefer to return to a home station.
- The majority believe Gyro units are more efficient and that organization pride is higher.
- Opinion is equally divided as to whether promotions are faster or slower and stabilized rotation stimulates reenlistments.

● One of the biggest disadvantages of Gyro assignment is inability to transfer for better advancement opportunities.

● The primary reasons for joining Gyroscope outfits are: to be with friends for a longer period of time, and the desire for housing and to serve in a favorable location outside the ZI.

● Two-thirds of the troops would rather be assigned in a small than a large unit.

Divisions in the U.S. slated to change stations with the 2nd Armored and 10th Infantry in Europe are the 4th Armored and 3rd Infantry Divisions.

Top Man in the 30th Engineer Group this month is Sp3 Milo F. Hennemann, 521st Engineer Company aircraft mechanic. The Soldier of the Month, who has been in the Army for 23 months, was graduated second in his class from the Non-Commissioned Officers' Academy at Fort Ord last November.

After 50 Years—It's A Real Small World

Three ladies—all more than 79 years old . . . all young for their ages . . . all former Army contract nurses . . . all old friends—have been coincidentally reunited at the Oakland Veterans Administration Hospital after more than 50 years apart.

All three served at the Presidio during the Spanish-American War when the medical facilities were flooded with disease victims.

From the Presidio Mrs. Effie Seller and Miss Vena Richmond went on to the Philippines where they served during the Philippine Insurrection. Mrs. Elsie Phillips stayed in the Bay Area and in 1908 lobbied the first law requiring professional nurses registration through the California State Legislature.

From these ladies' memories we have a glimpse of the Presidio in 1898 and 1899. "It was a desperate thing," recalls Mrs. Seller, "when the soldiers sick with typhoid and malaria arrived from Cuba." At about the same time a troop of men came down from Oregon—most of them ill with the measles.

"And then it started to rain so we took the men out of their tents and brought them into the old brick barracks. The beds were so close then that we nurses had to walk on top of the beds to give the soldiers their medicine."

At about this time Mrs. Phillips was nursing a ward of men from the 51st Iowa. "We had nothing but canned milk," she remembers, "and the poor boys just couldn't drink it. Then we found if we put a little whiskey in the milk, they could get it down. A doctor came in and asked what we were doing with all the whiskey. When we told him, he said 'Go ahead.'"

They Remember the Presidio in 1898. These three former Army contract nurses, who have recently been reunited at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Oakland, all helped care for Spanish American War troops who were evacuated to the Presidio. From the left they are Miss Vena Richmond, age 91; Mrs. Elsie Phillips, age 79, and Mrs. Effie Seller, age 84.

By the time Miss Richmond got to the Presidio from Cuba, the medical facilities had been moved out of the "old brick barracks" and into newly constructed Letterman Army Hospital. "It was the last word in hospitals; it had everything," she recalls.

Mrs. Sellers actually took part in the move and thus became one of the first nurses ever to serve at LAH.

Names famous in the history of San Francisco and the Presidio flash out of the past when the three ladies start talking: "Dr. Otillo Giannini, a contract surgeon during the war crisis who later gave up medicine for the banking business . . . Dr. Frasier and Dr. Gunn, two San Francisco doctors who helped out in the emergency . . . Nurse Schmidt, a pioneer X-ray technician at Letterman, whose arm was later amputated as a result of X-ray exposure . . ."

Mrs. Sellers served on a hospital ship that picked up American soldiers who had been wounded in China's Boxer Rebellion. From Yokohama the ship carried the men to San Francisco for treatment at LAH.

While serving in the Philippines during the insurrection, 1899-1901, Mrs. Sellers and Miss Richmond became good friends. For a while they were stationed together in Manila. They separated when both answered calls for nurses at isolated outposts in the Islands.

Miss Richmond was one of six nurses sent to Aparri in Northern Luzon. Three of the women refused to stay, but three stayed a year. During this period natives would often visit the Army post. One chief really gave Miss Richmond a looking over during a visit. She later learned that he had offered his men $100 if they would bring in her head.

In Southern Luzon Mrs. Sellers also spent a year at an Army post in the company of just two other nurses. She recalls seeing Aguinaldo, leader of the Philippine Insurrection, many times after his capture.

The ladies represent an era when nurses were fighting for recognition—and not often getting it. It was not uncommon to work 12 hour shifts. Even then, men balked at giving women professional nursing status.

"They argued that if women became nurses, then they'd want to be plumbers," explains Mrs. Phillips, who spent many years fighting to attain profession recognition for women nurses.

"Tell them," says bright-eyed Mrs. Phillips (who is 79) "on behalf of myself and Mrs. Sellers (who is 84), and Miss Richmond (who is 91), that if we had it to do all over again—we'd still be Army nurses. It's a wonderfully satisfying way of life, and there's certainly a need for nurses."

Officers Offered Choice In 9 Specialist Fields

Washington (ANS)—Many officers can now ask for and receive assignments to duties of their own choosing in any of nine specialized areas.

The Army Specialization Programs have mushroomed during recent years. Today there are programs in Intelligence, Information, Army Aviation, Atomic Energy, Research and Development, Logistics, Foreign Area, Civil Affairs/Military Government and United States Army Security Agency.

Generally these programs develop and use qualified officers for repetitive but not necessarily consecutive assignments in one of the specialized areas. Assignments within his specialty are programmed to develop the officer's stature in his field by scheduling assignments in order of progressive importance. This careful programming results in highly trained and professionally competent officers within the specialty area.

In between assignments in their specialized field, officers in the program are given assignments in their basic branch for which they are qualified. This branch qualification is also needed to assure that they maintain their over-all military perspective.

One of the main differences between the officer specialists and the non-specialists is that, while both can expect assignments outside their basic branch, those of the non-specialist are not purposely programmed in any one area and may vary over a wide range of duties. The specialist's assignments outside his branch are programmed in the area of his choice.

Officers interested in specialization may submit an application as authorized by whichever of the following Regulations covers the field of their interest:

Foreign Area, AR 350-23; Army Aviation, AR 611-110; Logistics, AR 614-132; Atomic Energy and Research and Development, AR 614-135; United States Army Security Agency, AR 614-137; Information, AR 616-140; Civil Affairs/Military Government, AR 616-170; and Intelligence, SR 605-150-30.

Outstanding officers are encouraged to apply for entry into the program as priority of assignments is given to those who have shown by their past record that both they and the Army will benefit. Application is on a volunteer basis.

Chief Stresses 'Limited Means' At AFMA Meet

"Management Objectives vs. Limited Means" was discussed by Maj. Gen. John J. Binns, Sixth Army Chief of Staff, at last night's meeting of the San Francisco Bay Area Chapter of the Armed Forces Management Association.

The dinner meeting, held at the Fort Scott Officers' Club, officially opened the 1957-58 season. Some 75 members and guests, representing all three major armed services in the Bay Area, attended.

The group's October meeting will include a guided tour of the San Francisco Bay Model, constructed and operated by the U.S. Army Engineer District, San Francisco.

GI Policies Not Available To Some

Young veterans who first entered service after April 25, 1951, and who are now being discharged, cannot buy GI life insurance unless they have a service-connected disability.

Mr. J. Glenn Corbitt, manager of the Veterans Administration regional office in San Francisco, said considerable misunderstanding exists on the subject.

Mr. Corbitt said veterans leaving service with service-incurred disabilities and who are insurable except for those disabilities may apply to VA for GI life insurance any time within one year after VA finds their disabilities are service-connected.

Further information is available at any VA office, Mr. Corbitt said.

National Champ Will Compete Here

The 1957 National Pistol Champion, Marine 1st Lt. William W. McMillan, will be one of the leading contenders in the California State Pistol Championships scheduled at the Presidio next week end.

Lieutenant McMillan scored a 12-match aggregate of 2,612 out of a possible 2,700 to take the national title from five-time champion, Army M/Sgt. "Joe" Benner. Sergeant Benner lost the title by two points.

Earlier this year Lieutenant McMillan took the world record grand aggregate title from Sergeant Benner. Firing in registered tournaments at San Diego, the lieutenant bested Sergeant Benner's 2,643 record three consecutive times by scoring 2,645, 2,648 and

'Hard To Fill' Positions Open At Numerous Posts

Officers and enlisted men leaving the military service under honorable conditions and with the required qualifications for filling DA Civilian job vacancies are advised to avail themselves of the opportunity to fill any of the approximate 800 job vacancies currently listed under Civil Service.

At present, the jobs listed are in the "hard-to-fill" category ranging from Aeronautical Engineer to Xerox Operator. They are itemized in DA Circular 601-9, which is on local distribution.

Prior to separation from military service it is customary for each man to be briefed on the area employment opportunities available through the Post Civilian Personnel consultant.

In cases where a soldier returning to civilian life is already qualified through his military background—or through his pre-service employment—to fill a slot listed in the current DA circular maintained in Civilian Personnel sections, he is likely to be considered for the vacancy without the customary Civil Service examinations pertaining to on-the-job qualifications.

Presidio servicemen preparing to return to civilian life are urged to contact the Civilian Personnel officer at their earliest convenience, as a means of avoiding the frequent time lapse between military and civilian occupations.

Army Regulation 365-15, paragraph 3-B(5)-D, carrying the ex-serviceman's rights and privileges as they apply to post-military employment under Civil Service, is available at the Post Civilian Personnel office on the Presidio.

Types of jobs open to qualified ex-service personnel and other civilians, as listed in the circular, include: Architects, attorney advisors, adjudicators, appraisers, astronomers, stenographers, secretaries, typists, technologists, pharmacologists, physicists, biologists, geologists, chemists, economists, machinists, mathematicians, statisticians, electricians, librarians, veterinarians, and many others.

Vice Chief Scores Red Aims At JWV Convention

Boston, Mass. (ANS)—The aim of International Communism is still world domination, Army Vice Chief of Staff General Lyman L. Lemnitzer told Jewish War Veterans here at their 62d Annual National Convention.

"This aim has been deeply rooted in Communist minds since the October Revolution in 1917 and has been repeatedly stated by Communist leaders since that date," said General Lemnitzer. "It is their aim today as surely as it ever was, and from it stems the real threat to the future of the United States."

Stressing that the Communist bloc today possesses vast military power in both Europe and Asia, the speaker warned that they were capable of launching an attack anywhere along the entire frontier of the Free World.

"The powerful, well-trained and modernized armies, supported by a strong tactical air force, provide the foundation of the Communist military strength," he continued.

A serious naval threat is posed by the Soviet Navy with its powerful submarine fleet. Also, Soviet air power has achieved a strong air bombardment capability against countries in Europe and Asia and an increasing ability to launch a surprise atomic attack on the United States and Free World nations, according to the Vice Chief of Staff.

A holder of the Distinguished Marksmanship Badge with pistol, the lieutenant last year set a new record in the .45 National Trophy Match. The match is fired by individuals competing for leg medals toward the Distinguished Marksmanship Badge. Lieutenant McMillan is stationed at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

The matches will be fired on the Fort Barry range.

Love Conquers All, even superstition, say WAC M/Sgt. Marian John P. Mraz, as they leave the Chapel of Our Lady of the Presidio after their wedding Friday, 13 September. The bride is assigned to the Sixth US Army AGP Section. Her husband is first sergeant for Headquarters Company, 660th Engineer Battalion, Fort Scott.

Superstition Defied As Army Pair Wed On 13th

With the blessings of the church—and 12 shared military stripes to dispel superstition, M/Sgt. John Phillip Mraz and M/Sgt. Marian Virginia Herbert were married at the Chapel of Our Lady of the Presidio, last Friday, 13 September.

Chaplain Robert J. Plocki, Post Catholic Chaplain, performed the wedding ceremony during a nuptial Mass attended by family members and friends of the couple.

CWO Alex Mraz, the groom's brother, and his wife, were wedding attendants. Warrant Officer Mraz himself was married at the Chapel of Our Lady 17 years ago.

The new bride and groom met at Letterman Army Hospital when he was a patient there and she was on duty with the hospital WAC Detachment.

The male member of the team of Mraz is a veteran of nearly 20 years' Federal service, which includes duty in Europe, Japan and Korea. His wife has completed 14 years in the Women's Army Corps.

M/Sgt. Mraz and his wife plan to continue their military careers. They hope to establish their new address on the Presidio as soon as quarters are available.

Army Still Has Strong Appeal For Career Officer

Through the Army augmentation program, a select group of outstanding Reserve Officers—men who have chosen to make the Army their careers—are granted Regular Army commissions.

In July, 1032 officers were integrated into the Army under this program. Of this number 105 of the new RA officers are in the Sixth Army area.

Typical of the young, integrated officers, who have been brought into the Regular Army fold, is Lt. Galen W. Radke, assistant SGS (Visitors Bureau), Sixth U.S. Army.

Lieutenant Radke, who played college football and reads history and Shakespeare in his spare time, is point blank about his decision to make the Army a career:

"I get personal satisfaction out of serving my country through the Army. That was the most important factor influencing my decision. I also like the travel and variety of assignments. The pay is more than adequate and there is a fair amount of security."

He feels that there is a great need for more young men to select a career that allows them to serve their nation directly. He cites a college professor friend who once told him: "The U.S. has assumed world leadership, and now—more than any other time—responsible people are needed in the service of their government."

"There is a special need in the Army for thinking people who are elastic and willing to adjust," says Lieutenant Radke, "for today the Army is a rapidly changing organization."

the retirement of many Reserve Officers, the lieutenant states: "We knew the cutback was coming. It didn't influence my decision to go RA at all. And, friends, who are in a similar situation to my own, made their decisions to apply for RA commissions right along with me."

The 29 year old officer got a rather late start in the Army. When he enlisted in 1952, he had already graduated from Northwest Missouri State College and spent a year teaching school. Why did he enlist?

"There was a little thing called Korea going on then, and I had a feeling I ought to get into it," he explains, adding, "That may sound a little hollow now, because I never went to Korea. I went to Germany instead."

He was commissioned a second lieutenant in August, 1953, after going through OCS at Fort Benning, Ga. Next he went to the 11th Airborne Division, as a platoon leader. In August, 1954, he went to Germany and the 5th Infantry Division where he had a succession of assignments including platoon leader, executive officer and company commander.

Lieutenant Radke gyroscoped with the division to Fort Ord in February, 1956, and was subsequently assigned to Sixth Army SGS at the Presidio in November, 1956.

He and his wife, Kathleen, were married eight years ago. They have a boy age 2½. Does Mrs. Radke like the Army? "Well, we've been in the Army five of our eight married years, and she's still with me. Yes, she likes it—the travel and many other advantages."

"Let's get this straight," says the Lieutenant with emphasis, "the Army is a fine place to live."

Performance Awards Go To 3 Civilians

Two Sixth Army and one Post civilian employee were awarded $100 checks and Department of the Army Superior Performance Award Certificates this week. The presentations were made by Col. Charles G. Rau, Post Commander, and Maj. Gen. John J. Binns, Sixth Army Chief of Staff.

Mr. Martin L. Goodwin, G-2 mail and file supervisor, has spent more than five years in Federal service. This is his first award.

A second superior performance award was presented to Mrs. Yuen Sin L. Lau. Mrs. Lau, a Sixth Army Chemical Section clerk-stenographer, began her Federal career three years ago.

Mrs. June Vernon, personnel clerk, has been with the Post S1 Section since 1954. This was Mrs. Vernon's first award.

Finance Chief Lauds Post, Sixth Army, Bond Record

The Sixth US Army Finance and Accounting Section and the local contributors who made the accomplishment of its mission possible—were included this week in a nation-wide congratulatory note from the Chief of Finance for over-the-top participation in the 1957 Army Savings Bond Program.

Sixth Army sections receiving citations for hitting the 65% goal set by Washington at the Bond Program's beginning, included G-1, G-2, G-3, Finance and Accounting, Engineering, Special Services, and the Chaplains' and Ordnance Sections.

Post sections cited for prompt and generous contribution in the Army Savings Bond Program included the Chaplains', Comptroller, Civilian Personnel Division, Company A and Headquarters Company, USA Garrison, and Quartermaster.

The Sixth US Army Headquarters phase of this year's Savings Bond Program was in charge of Lt. Col. Walter R. Jorgenson and Lt. Patricia Flynn.

Spanish Class Starts Wednesday

A 16-week class in Spanish for military and civilian personnel will get under way 25 September at the 561st Engineer classroom, Bldg. 714, Fort Baker, the Post Army Education Office has announced. The class will meet from 1900 to 2100 hours each Wednesday.

Mr. Erwin Peterson, Tamalpais School District, will conduct the course. A $3 registration fee will be charged by the district and free text books will be supplied by USAFI. The class will be organized as a USAFI study group and the examination for college credit will be given at the end of the course.

Further information is available at the Education Center, Bldg. 258, or Ext. 2975 or 4445.

The 1957 Program provided for person-to-person approaches using "salesmen" who themselves were sold on the principle of Army Savings Bonds as a means of individual and family financial security.

Most important result from the canvassing of each installation and separate activity which had not reached the Army-wide goal of 65% was that a number of major Commands and Department of the Army agencies built a new and vital continuing savings bond program built on the foundation established by the canvass medium used in the 1957 Army Savings Bond Drive.

DAC Plaque Marks Anza Discovery Site

Mountain Lake Park, located on the south boundary of the Presidio, was marked for posterity this week as the exact spot where Juan Bautista de Anza and his troops camped the night before de Anza discovered San Francisco Bay.

A bronze marker was presented to San Francisco Wednesday by the San Francisco Chapter, Daughters of the American Colonists, designating Mountain Lake Park as the historic spot. Col. Theodore E. Curtis, Post Chaplain, gave the invocation and benediction at the ceremony.

De Anza's discovery of San Francisco Bay and his selection of the Presidio headquarters, Fort Point, and Mission Dolores locations have been authenticated by the California Historical Society and the Society of California Pioneers.

Military Suggestion

A traffic control suggestion submitted by Sp3 James W. Smith, Jr., of the Presidio, has won for him a Department of the Army Honor Certificate and an award of $15.00.

A World War II soldier, Smith was presented the award by Colonel Lawrence R. St. John, Group Commander. The winning specialist entered military service in 1940. Since then, he has participated in combat action in Europe, later assigned as a DA civilian in Germany and Italy.

Smith is a veteran of more than 15 years Federal Service.

Army Assist Proves Boon; Soldier-Scholar Wins BA

Sp3 Ronald R. Tiffany, head waiter at the Presidio Officers' Club, who recently received a bachelor of arts degree from San Francisco State College, is almost two years ahead in his education because he took advantage of his Army education opportunities.

"It was a tremendous way to finish college," he says, explaining that he actually finished faster being in the Army. Had he been a civilian, he would have worked part time and taken longer to finish.

Although he has a degree, SP3 Tiffany is not through going to school. After the Army he will attend Brigham Young University where he plans to get a master's degree in education in preparation for a career in secondary education.

He gives credit for his educational success to the officers at the Presidio under whom he has been working. "They have always been very considerate, and helped schedule my duty hours so as not to conflict with my education," he reports.

Going to on-post college classes four nights a week, he has been able to gather 40 credits while in the Army. These credits, together with hours earned before going on active duty, gave him enough for a degree.

SP3 Tiffany, who was originally trained in the Army as a military policeman, came to the Presidio from Fort Lee, Va., two years ago. He lives at 4726 Cabrillo Street.

Did you know that Mary, Queen of Scots, was the first woman golfer?

Top Suggestion award winner of the week was Mr. Floyd F. Losinger, Engineer Equipment Technical Inspector, who received a $50 check and certificate from Col. Charles G. Rau, Post Commander. Mr. Losinger is with the Post Engineer Field Maintenance Shop in Sausalito.

Civilian Pair Given Suggestion Checks

Suggestion award checks totaling $65 and certificates were presented to two local civilian employees this week. The recipients were Mr. Floyd F. Losinger, Post Engineer Field Maintenance Shop, and Mrs. Catherine E. Straub, Sixth Army Medical Section.

Mr. Losinger, who received $50 for a suggested Auxiliary Fuel Line Connection, is a technical inspector of engineer equipment. His suggestion has been adopted locally and forwarded to Sixth Army for possible wider application. Col. Charles G. Rau, Post Commander, made the presentation.

Mrs. Straub, a clerk typist, received $15 for a suggested simplification of work distribution. Maj. Gen. John J. Binns, Sixth Army Chief of Staff, presented the awards. Mrs. Straub's suggestion is expected to save the Medical Section some $300 a year.

High Holy Days

Commanders have been urged to cooperate in helping Jewish personnel observe the High Holy Days which begin with the New Year, sundown Wednesday through sundown Friday. The Day of Atonement services follow from sundown, 4 October, through sundown, 5 October. Information on local services is available from the Post Chaplain's office.

Lt. Col. Banks

Name New Exec For 30 AAA Group

Lieutenant Colonel C. M. Banks will become the 30th AAA Group Executive Officer on 1 October. Group Headquarters announced this week. Colonel Banks will succeed Lt. Col. Benard J. Drew.

The new executive officer, who came to the Presidio from an assignment as S3 of the Bad Krauznach Sub-Area, Western Area Command in Germany, has been in the service since 1928.

A graduate of the Officers Candidate School, Colonel Banks served in the Pacific Theater during World War II and has completed two tours in the Panama Zone. The colonel's service includes an assignment with the Army Security Agency.

Engineer Promotion

The former 1st Lt. Harry A. Taylor, 30th Engineer Group member now assigned to the Iranian Survey Project, has been promoted to captain. Captain Taylor previously served as Commanding Officer of Headquarters Detachment, 660th Engineer Battalion.

Top WAC Title Won By Company 'D' Pfc.

"I want to be one of the best United States Army nurses this side of the pike," declares the Presidio's WAC Of The Month—Pfc. Dorothy Alexander, of Company D.

The pike, in this case, must be the Pennsylvania Turnpike, for Dorothy comes from Verona in the famous Quaker State.

She has other distinctions in that she carries a Medical Aidman's MOS—and—for some obscure reason—determined by her friends—she is known only as "Duck." For official purposes, therefore, it is necessary for one and all to check the card file in the WAC Orderly Room. Even "Duck" has to think twice when you ask what her first name really is!

In order to implement her desire to become one of the best military nurses, 20-year-old Dorothy takes special evening school courses at the Presidio Army Education Center.

"I don't faint at the sight of blood," says Dorothy, in describing her work as a Medical Aidwoman for the Post Dispensary doctors, "and I once was privileged to watch a premature baby being born, so I think I've already met one of the most formidable jumps in the nursing profession."

Every Monday, Wednesday and Friday morning, Dorothy travels to Fort Barry to assist the fort's dispensary doctor, Capt. William E. Dozier, during his out-patient clinical hours.

Back in the WAC Detachment, "Duck" is suspected of making "points" with the Non-Com Council members who elected her to her WAC Of The Month honors. There's been an extra, super-shine on her Army oxfords lately, and her always impeccable manners have been enhanced by an even brighter smile.

However, the over-all opinion of Pfc. Dorothy Alexander is that she really deserves her recent honors—and that she actually has the makings of a good U.S. Army nurse.

30th Engineer Retreat Parade Honors Pair

One of the first men to receive the new Army Wings for Flight Surgeons, Capt. Robert L. P. Edwards was one of two officers honored at a recent 30th Engineer Group retreat parade. Lt. Col. Richard M. Underwood received a Certificate of Achievement at the same ceremony.

Captain Edwards, Group Aviation Medical Officer, is assigned to the 521st Engineer Company. The wings, which were presented to him by Col. Lawrence R. St. John, Group Commander, are awarded to medical officers trained in the specialized field of aviation medicine.

Colonel Underwood, Commanding Officer of the 660th Engineer Battalion, was awarded the certificate for his work as Operations Officer of the U.S. Inter-American Geodetic Survey at Fort Clayton, Canal Zone, from 16 July, 1956, to 10 June, 1957. During this period he directed the technical efforts of the organization in its collaborative mapping program which extends through most of Latin America. Colonel St. John presented the certificate.

Luncheon Guests

The officers and wives of Headquarters, 30th AAA, Fort Barry, were luncheon guests at the home of the Group commander, Colonel Daniel A. Ranney, and Mrs. Ranney, this week.

Among other guests present at the social event were Lt. Colonel and Mrs. C. M. Banks. (Col. Banks is the newly assigned Group Executive officer.) Also present were Major Herman McCallum, recently assigned to Group S-4, and Mrs. McCallum.

Misslemen To Play Key Role In Newark Fete

The theme of Civil Defense is being adopted by the town of Newark, Calif., in illustrating its second anniversary being marked tomorrow with a giant celebration.

Battery D, 740th AAA Missile Battalion, at Newark, is slated to play an important part in the full-day celebration activities.

Beginning at 1000 hours, a parade will be led by the famous Sixth U.S. Army Band, the Presidio Honor Guard, a Coast Guard Color unit, and a marching unit from the 740th AAA Missile Battalion's Battery D, whose commander, Capt. William G. Chick, will be the parade Grand Marshal.

Civic and military dignitaries will be hosted at a special luncheon honoring the anniversary of the town of Newark.

Colonel Daniel A. Ranney, the 30th AAA Group Commander, and Lt. Col. Charles P. Sampson, the 740th Missile Battalion Commander, will be among the Army guests present.

A street dance and other festive activities are planned for those attending Newark's second anniversary party.

27 Pints Giver!

Missilemen To Blood Bank Call

Local missilemen responded to a San Francisco emergency this week not with Nikes but with 27 pints of blood. The appeal was made by Irwin Memorial Blood Bank on behalf of three bleeders who had depleted their blood stocks.

The request was for 11 pints of Types A and O blood. Members of the 9th and 740th AAA Missile Battalions and Headquarters Battery, 30th AAA Group, donated immediately.

Back-To-College Dance Highlights 'O' Club Sked

A back to college welcome dance, sponsored by the Sixth U.S. Army Medical-Dental Sections, will take the spotlight Saturday at the Presidio Officers' Open Mess. The dinner-dance, open to everyone, will begin at 2000 hours with dancing scheduled at 2100 hours.

Harry Mason and his orchestra and vocalist Julie Mason will provide dance music and entertainment. A floor show is also planned. Prizes will be awarded to the table which gives the best rendition of its favorite college song.

A family night buffet style dinner will be featured from 1600 to 2000 hours Sunday at the club. Favors for the children and a dance orchestra highlight the program. Dinner cost is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children under 12.

Ship's Roast, Turkey Marengo and other buffet delicacies are menu features for the Chuckwagon dinner-dance on Wednesday, 25 September. Joe Brigandi and his orchestra will provide music.

Host PM's Wife

Mrs. Charles F. Helderman, wife of the newly appointed Post Provost Marshal, will be the honor guest at a Military Police Officers' Wives Club luncheon next week. The affair is scheduled at 1245 hours, Wednesday, at the Presidio Officers' Open Mess.

Mrs. Anthony N. Cerasoli is chairman of the luncheon.

Military Role In Suggestion Program Off

Military participation in the suggestion program dropped in the Sixth Army area during the last two quarters of FY 1957 after hitting a peak during the second quarter of the year, according to a newly released report on the Incentive Awards System.

Military personnel in the area submitted 605 suggestions, of which 73, or only 12.1 per cent, were adopted during the year. Last quarter 13 of the 147 suggestions were adopted for an 8.8 per cent rate.

Sixty-four military suggestions were submitted at the Presidio during the year, nine of them during the fourth quarter. Six were adopted during the year and two during the last quarter.

It wasn't just Gold Fever that raised the temperatures of Presidio soldiers stationed here following the Civil War . . . soon after the Eastern and Western seaboard were united . . . through the famous gold spike that punctuated the new trans-continental railroad's completion!

Two leathery-faced prospectors arrived in San Francisco one day with a sack full of uncut diamonds which promptly kindled a many-faceted gleam in the minds of get-rich-quick artists, military and civilian, from Lodi to London. Thus it happened, that the Seventies outdid the already-famous Sixties in a gambling fever whose flame outshone any fostered by the lure of gold.

Local soldiers joined city bankers, bakers and candlestick makers in buying shares in a fabulous diamond mine which they had only yet heard of . . . never even seen!

Laundresses . . . bellhops . . . coachmen . . . they withdrew their life savings from San Francisco banks and besieged the Stock Exchange to cut them in on the take from a rapidly rising market. Meanwhile, cables began arriving in San Francisco from London and the Continent . . . staking further claims through thousands of British pound notes turned into the English Stock Market.

The two wandering prospectors who so innocently left their sack full of diamonds in a bank for safe-keeping suddenly became world-famous. They were besieged by offers of uncounted thousands of dollars . . . for just one clue as to where the diamond mine was located. But they remained cautious and taciturn . . . conveying the idea that dollars were only small change in comparison to the yet unmined fortune in precious stones which lay at their fingertips.

Conceding finally . . . as though yielding to their clients more through annoyance born of their persistence than by any interest in their money . . . the pair promised to head a safari to the location of the diamond mine . . . as proof that it did exist . . . but on one condition only . . . that the interested members consent to being blindfolded once they reached the area where the mineral wealth lay waiting. They showed only one faint gleam of interest, otherwise . . . that it be proven to all and sundry that their find was bona fide.

Shepherded by these two bored diamond mine discoverers, some fifty real estate agents . . . bankers . . . stock exchange merchants and lesser promoters . . . augmented by a group from London representing the famous House of Baron Rothschild, set out on a two-day train journey to the famous El Dorado. Finally, the blindfolds were removed from the eyes of the travelers . . . and sure enough, the flat Wyoming land on which they disembarked from the train was aflame with diamond dust glittering in the sunlight.

Arnold and Slack . . . the two discoverers, had meanwhile been informed that their original find of rough diamonds had been appraised at approximately $125,000. This added further fuel to the diamond fire. . . . A blaze was greater in scope and squander than the real fire which later demolished San Francisco.

At the mine site, the two men airily flung out their arms, exclaiming "There it is; help yourselves and find out if they are real!"

The area was covered with little hummocks like ant hills from which shone the gleam of living diamond dust. By slashing them with jackknives the visitors turned up chunks of raw diamonds reflecting every color in a vast spectrum.

The twin wanderers and their followers were now in the world's biggest business! Back in San Francisco, the take for everyone but the stockbuyers, ran into millions of dollars . . . paving a two-way traffic zone of money from here to London. Urgent cables crossed and recrossed, while the DeBeers South African Diamond Mining Company was ready for mass suicide. The machinery of local diamond mining was being geared for fortune-making on a large scale.

It took a lone geologist in the service of the United States Government to disenchant the multitude. He did it with a wire to the newly-established diamond mine corporation in San Francisco . . . to the effect that the mine was man-made . . . with mineral dust and a supply of second-rate stones procured by Arnold and Slack in an earlier, nefarious deal with agents in South Africa.

The great Diamond Hoax of San Francisco left thousands of people sadder and much wiser . . . penniless but wealthy from the point of view of dearly-bought experience.

The two unassuming wayfarers who . . . without unusual degrees of formal education or exceptional intelligence had temporarily set the world and a flat Wyoming plain on fire with diamond dust . . . disappeared like Arabs . . . folding their tents and silently stealing away.

One of them was recalled to have taken a train Eastward before the storm broke. The other was tracked down in Wyoming . . . the birthplace of their nebulous fame. Through technical knowledge of loopholes in the law which surrounded him, he wrangled free of any penalty. At the scene of his crime, he lived a seemingly untroubled life . . . happily married, and without obvious regret for the fact that he and his partner had been directly responsible for separating thousands of people from their money.

An A-Age Bulldozer!

Washington (AFPS) A unique lead cab that can protect a bulldozer operator from radiation in fall-out areas has been developed by the Army Engineers.

Weighing about 5,000 pounds, the cab will permit early clean-up operations in radioactive areas following a nuclear attack.

The enclosure can accommodate the operator, tractor controls, radio, and special meters that record amounts of radioactivity in the area. Using a crane, three men can mount the cab in 30 minutes.

Lead glass windows on four sides provide visibility. For added protection, the cab is pressurized with fresh filtered air.

Talented Soldier Pair Slate Presidio Concert

Two dedicated students of music—both Presidio soldiers—will present a recital at the Presidio Service Club, Tuesday, 24 September, at 2015 hours. This is the first concert by active duty personnel given here in three years.

Sp3 Norman Womack, who has appeared as tenor soloist for the Bach Festival in San Diego, and Pvt. Richard Lane, a graduate of the Eastman School of Music, will present a program which will include classic Italian, romantic German and modern English songs.

Both men are members of the Sixth U.S. Army Band, directed by CWO Louis Ferraro.

SP3 Womack, a native of San Diego, attended State College there and studied voice under Raoul Couyas. His many musical activities in the Southern California area include three summers with Robert Shaw and the San Diego Symphony.

In San Francisco he has studied with Earl Saxton of the San Francisco Symphony. He has also studied voice with Otto Schulmann from the Conservatory and is presently with Mrs. Sharon Currier-Dodd, formerly of the San Francisco opera. He is scheduled for a concert during October and the San Francisco Public Library and in November he will sing at the First Unitarian Church.

Need More Teachers

Army wives at the Presidio and its outlying units are eligible to apply for positions as regular substitute teachers in the Sausalito schools for the year 1957-58.

Qualifications require a Regular California General Elementary teaching certificate or for the applicant to be able to qualify for it.

Requests for teaching interviews in the Sausalito schools should be made to Mr. Clifton L. Boyle, District Superintendent, Sausalito School District. His telephone numbers are EDgewater 2-3190 and EDgewater 2-3191.

'Rolling Along' To Give Afternoon, Night Play

Judo experts, tumblers, singers, jugglers, guitar players—they'll all be in action when “Rolling Along of 1957” plays to a Presidio audience at the Fort Scott Theater, 2000 hours tonight. Fort Baker personnel will see the show at their service club at 1400 hours this afternoon.

Talent is the key to this cast of soldiers—most of them professional entertainers—who will be performing tonight. From Sfc. Roman Ancho, Jr., the Army's most noted Judo expert, to Pvt. Floyd T. Huffstetler, a western guitar player who has played with Red Foley, the performers will be displaying exceptional talent.

The Birk Twins, John Edward and Edward John, should be a special favorite with the Presidio audience tonight. This comic acrobatic dance team has studied with Gene Kelly and Lou Wills and has played all the leading hotels including the Statler and Hilton chains. On TV they've appeared with Ed Sullivan and on “The Mickey Mouse Club.”

Tap dancer Pfc. Carl C. Wright gained fame when in 1953 he teamed up with Frank James, the sensational one-legged dancer. They called themselves “The Three Leggers” and worked theaters and night spots from Kansas City to New York.

Pvt. Alan Kohan has the singular distinction of having written a book, sketches, music, lyrics and orchestrations and directing his own musical for his master's thesis at the Eastman school of music. His talent brought success to two first place winning groups in the All-Army Entertainment contest. He wrote the special material for himself and Private Dishy which brought them first place in the specialty group musical class. And he composed special material for “The Cavaliers,” the first place winning vocal group.

Selections of popular Calypso songs will be sung tonight by Pvt. Clarence Gilliam, who was the top individual specialty performer in the European Command.

Sp3 Carl Manulkin is a perfect example of a young man in uniform who has participated in the Army Entertainment Program and benefited by it. He credits most of his experience to Special Services for whom he performed in soldier shows. Last year he was one of the winners in the European Command's Jazz Contest. And in this year's contest, he swept the boards in the grand finals, winning first in the vocal soloist class.

Two talented groups that are rated as “out of this world” are “The Dixielanders,” top instrumental group in the 1957 All-Army Entertainment Contest, and “The Cavaliers,” first place winning vocal group.

The Army talent show will return to the Presidio on 9 November when they will put on a special performance for Letterman Army Hospital patients.

San Francisco Children's Hospital, sharing United Crusade gifts, reported 5,201 days of free and part-pay hospital care and more than 22,400 clinic visits in 1956.

Dog Day is coming to the Presidio on 28 September when the Children's Dog Show takes place at the Presidio Service Club starting at 1300 hours. Above, Terry Takaki, son of M/Sgt. Post Private At Center Aids Windbreakers' Debut

Pvt. Warren E. Fanning, Hq. Co., USA Garrison, is presently playing for the South San Francisco Windbreakers professional football team which won its debut last Sunday over the Phoenix Suns by the score of 12-7.

The local team is a member of the newly formed Western Professional Football League, which embraces three other teams: Tucson, El Paso and Albuquerque.

Teams are composed mostly of former collegiate stars who had to forego any tryouts with pro football to earn a living elsewhere or for other commitments, such as military obligation.

Don Brand, ex-San Francisco high school star, led the Windbreakers to their initial win over Phoenix as he blocked one kick that resulted in a safety. Then late in the game he scooped up another punt that had been blocked by teammate Jerry James, and dashed 24 yards for the winning touchdown.

Fanning, who played first string for the University of Southern California last year, occupies the center position.

Six Regions Compete For AADC Crown

The 1957 softball championship of the US Army Air Defense Command got under way at Fort Baker yesterday. The 6th Region, US Army Air Defense Command, is hosting the tournament for the second consecutive year.

The second annual command-wide softball tournament brings together teams from the 1st, 2d, 4th, 5th and 6th Regions, representing the best softball talent among more than 100 Nike guided missile and antiaircraft gun battalions throughout the nation.

Representing the Sixth Region will be the 20th AAA Gun Battalion of Seattle, Washington. The 20th AAA won an exciting victory over the 9th AAA of Fort Baker 3-2 enabling them to represent the Sixth Region in the All-U.S. Army Air Defense Command Finals.

The other four Regions are represented by the 526th AAA Missile Battalion from Fort Hancock, N. J., 1st Region; the 550th AAA Battalion, of Norfolk, Va., 2d Region; the 531st AAA Missile Battalion of Ellsworth AFB, S. D., 4th Region; and the 852d AAA Missile Battalion of Milwaukee, 5th Region. Each of the five entries won the right to represent its region by winning regional tournaments earlier this month. Earlier competition was held in brigade and group level tournaments within the regions.

Play opened yesterday at 0930 with the introduction of the teams. Welcoming speeches were given by Maj. Gen. E. J. McGaw, Commanding General of the 6th Region, and Colonel Daniel A. Ranney, Commanding Officer of the 30th AAA Group, Fort Barry.

Play rolled along yesterday with two games scheduled at 0930 and 1300 hours. Games also are scheduled Saturday and Monday at 1000 and 1300 hours.

The semi-finals begin Tuesday with a single game at 1300 hours. This will narrow the field to two teams for the double elimination tourney. The finalists will meet next Thursday at 1000 hours to decide the 1957 softball title. Should a second game be necessary, it will be played at 1430 hours.

Champions and runners-up will be honored Thursday night with a banquet at Letterman Army Hospital Officers Open Mess at 1900 hours. Individual and team awards will be presented and the group will be addressed by General McGaw on behalf of Lt. Gen. S. R. Mickelsen, Commanding General of the U.S. Army Air Defense Command.

A half-hour stage show will precede the banquet.

Defending champion in the tournament is the 2d Region, although the region representative is a different team. The 1956 crown was won by the Headquarters Battery, 35th AAA Brigade of Baltimore.

The tournament will decide the first of four championships for the command-wide athletic program for AAA units. Volleyball, basketball and tennis will follow later in the 1957-58 fiscal year, with a different region hosting each tournament.

Dix Drops Ord From Army Baseball Play

Fort Ord, representing the Sixth Area in the All-Army Baseball Finals at Fort Knox, Ky., was eliminated from the tournament Wednesday by a strong Fort Dix team, 8-3.

Fort Ord made a gallant try in the ninth inning to overcome the strong lead set up by Fort Dix, but was unable to muster the scoring punch.

Fort Carson, undefeated in the tournament, will face the winner of the Fort Dix-Fort Knox clash today to determine the 1957 All-Army Baseball Championship.

Earlier in the week, Fort Ord lost to Fort Knox by the score of 4-0. Fort Knox was led by the superb pitching of Ed Hobaugh, who struck out 14 batters and allowed 6 hits.

Two top Presidio baseballers played for Fort Ord, hard hitting John Zeleznock and ace hurler Dick Shinnick.

Master Sergeant John W. Utley, Sixth Army AG Section, fired a perfect 200 score with the Carbine Caliber 30 Rifle in this year's Army arms qualification test. The sergeant topped all personnel on Post in the test.

A member of the Sixth Army Rifle team, Sergeant Utley won first place in last year's test with a 199 score. In 1947, he fired the Presidio for 18 months, is a perfect scores with the Thompson veteran of 14 years' service. Crusade Drive Near, Soldier Aid Cited

More than 250 health, welfare and youth agencies in five Bay Area counties will benefit from this year's Post United Bay Area Crusade Campaign. The drive opens 1 October and runs through 30 October.

The campaign committee, headed by co-chairmen Lt. Col. James F. Young and Capt. Herbert Youngdahl, will hold its initial meeting at 1330 hours, Monday, in the Post Theater. The committee consists of staff section and activity chiefs and unit and detachment commanders.

Presidio families have been helped by Crusade agencies in many instances, such as in the case of the young couple who were stymied by the birth of their first baby. Money problems along with adjusting to the new personality combined to create a family rift.

The husband followed a friend's suggestion and called the San Francisco Nurse Association, which immediately sent out a caseworker and then a trained nurse.

The nurse, who had met many distraught young mothers, soon had the situation well in hand. She also called in a Red Cross trained social worker to unravel the couple's financial and emotional problems.

Post contributions to these and other UBAC agencies will be made in blank envelopes distributed to officers and civilians through their sections and to enlisted personnel through their companies.

Extend Deadline Date For Foundation Entries

Presidio contestants and prospective entrants in the Freedoms Foundation 1957 Letter Awards Program are advised through a news release from the Freedoms headquarters at Valley Forge that deadline date for arrival of entries is extended to 15 October inclusive.

The new deadline was established as a means of allowing for distribution of the preliminary entry forms which have not yet been completed by some of the Army installations.

If further delay is encountered in securing the entrance forms, the Freedoms Foundation states that entries may be submitted directly to the Valley Forge headquarters on plain paper, with the envelope addressed to Freedoms Foundation, Valley Forge, Pa., USA.

Apart from the current deadline, the entrance rules for the Letters contest remain unchanged. Any soldier serving in the United States Army is eligible to enter the contest, and all are urged to try their luck for prizes ranging from a top award of $1000 to two awards of

The subject for this year's awards is MY JOB: Protecting America's Way Of Life.

The quality and the brevity of the individual letter are determining factors in its Award potential. Military rank has no bearing on the judges' decisions, nor do the entries have to be constructed from lofty phrases or elongated English words. The ability to incorporate in from 100 to 500 words of everyday English, a lasting message of inspiration to any man or woman who reads it—and through that message—to foster deeper appreciation of the National way of life and its principles—is the main point on which the Freedoms Foundation awards its Best Letters of 1957 prizes.

WarOrphans ARC Special Nursing Ed Program Plan To Aid Flu Fight

Applications for schooling under the year-old War Orphans Education Program have reached the 10,000 mark, Veterans Administration announced today.

Many more young men and women are expected to apply within the next few weeks, as fall terms get under way in schools throughout the nation, VA said.

The education program for sons and daughters of deceased war veterans became effective last October. All together, 150,000 young people will be eligible for War Orphans schooling, according to current estimates.

War Orphans students generally must be between 18 and 23 years of age. Also, they either must have completed or have been a pupil in a regular high school. They may receive up to 36 months of education, with VA paying an allowance of up to $110 a month for each month they are at school.

Before they start school, they will be given vocational counseling to help them select a goal and the proper course leading to the goal.

To be eligible, their veteran parent must have died from a war-time-incurred disability.

CMD's Top Soldier

Specialist Third Class George Hooker has been named the third Soldier of the Month by the U.S. Army Military District of California.

Assigned to the District's Supply Section since last February, Specialist Hooker has been in the service for 13 months. He was awarded a three-day pass and plaque for his top efficiency and military manner.

A man can usually tell what kind of a time he's having at a party by the look on his wife's face.

The possibility of an epidemic of Asian influenza this Fall has made it advisable for the American Red Cross to present a special class in home nursing.

San Francisco Chapter of the ARC recommends that at least one member of every family avail himself of the local, preparatory nursing course which is being given free of cost.

Dr. Ellis Sox, Director of the San Francisco Department of Public Health, this week stressed the importance of this type of training in helping to cope either with family illness of epidemic nature or confinement to the home through injuries occurring to family members throughout the year.

Last year in San Francisco some 3,405 women and high school girls studied home nursing skills in the classes taught by Red Cross trained volunteer registered nurses.

New classes in home nursing are now forming in San Francisco. Women and young girls of the Presidio are asked to contact the ARC offices, telephone PProspect 6-1500, for further information on nursing class schedules and where such studies will be conducted during the Fall season.

Suggestion % Lower But Quality Higher

The Sixth U.S. Army area fell short of its civilian participation goal in the suggestion award program during FY 1957, a newly released report on the Incentive Awards System revealed. Last year's participation also was lower than that attained in FY 1956.

The overall quarterly participation rate, which is based on a percentage of civilian population, was 12.8 per cent. Although Yuma Test Station, Camp Hanford, Fort Ord, Branch U.S. Army Disciplinary Barracks and Camp Irwin each reached more than 17 per cent participation, Fort Lewis, Fort MacArthur and the Presidio had low participation rates.

The Presidio's rate for the year was 11.3 per cent based on 261 suggestions submitted. During the fourth quarter its participation rate dropped to 2.8 per cent with only 63 suggestions entered.

Of the 1,388 suggestions received in the area during the year, 411 were adopted for a 29.6 adoption rate. Since the adoption rate increased, it was indicated that the quality of the suggestions was improving. Estimated savings indicated that $23 was saved for each dollar invested during the fiscal year.

The quality of Presidio suggestions topped the average with 35.2 per cent adopted during the year and 47.6 per cent adopted in the fourth quarter.

Help For Thousands

The Family and Children's Agency, which last year received nearly all its $219,000 budget from United Crusade, aided more than 3,400 adults and children.

FireProgram Reduction At New Highs

Washington (ANS) — The Army is making great strides in reducing its losses by fire, according to a recent Pentagon statement here.

Worldwide Army fire losses for the fiscal year ending June 30th were well below the average for the previous five years.

The average annual fire loss of the Department of the Army for the period from July 1, 1951 to June 30, 1956 (excluding fires in Korea) was less than two cents per hundred dollars of property value subject to fire loss. This loss experience is far superior to that of the American Insurance industry. In fact, it is about 25% better than the experience of companies underwriting only so call "preferred risks."

The Army's Chief of Engineers, Major General E. C. Itschner, warned that, notwithstanding the substantial progress made, most fires continue to be both predictable and preventable. "Continued aggressive command interest is essential," the general said, "if the fire loss record of the Department of the Army is to be maintained and improved."

New DA Form Will Ease Rule Assignments

Washington (ANS) — A new streamlined Officers Assignment Preference Statement has just been approved by the Department of the Army which allows an officer to change his preference at any time.

New DA Form 483 supersedes the current form which contains much information that is either unnecessary for officer assignment purposes or already available in other records in the Career Branches.

In the past, officers have been required to submit an Assignment Preference Statement at periodic intervals to their Career Branch.

After considerable study the Army concluded that an officer should be free to change his preference at any time. However, once the preference is recorded in his Career Branch, resubmission should be required only when determined necessary by the officer concerned.

7,000 For Nov.

The Defense Department has asked Selective Service to induct 7,000 men for the Army during November.

With a similar number of selectees to be called in October, inductions have been cut more than 50 per cent this year, dropping from a high of 17,000 last January.

talions were assigned to defend Massachusetts from sea attack.

Maj. Gen. E. J. McGaw, Commanding General, 6th Region, Army Air Defense Command, sent personal greetings to the unit. His message, in part stated:

The regiment was deactivated in 1944, but on 15 September, 1950, the 1st Battalion was reactivated and designated the 9th AAA Battalion (120mm gun) at Fort Bliss, Texas. After an 11-month training period the battalion was assigned to the San Francisco area. On 1 October, 1954, the unit was again reorganized and redesignated the 9th AAA Missile Battalion and equipped with the Nike.

This is such an important day to your unit and every man in it that I am sure you will want to share it with your fellow soldiers and with your civilian neighbors. This is another opportunity to show the people of this area, and also would-be aggressors, that Army Air Defense units are alert, confident and capable of repelling any air attack. Your attitude should be "this is the birthday of one of the Army's finest organizations and we want you to help us celebrate."

Commendation Ribbon with Metal Pendant is awarded to Sp2 Alan Y. Poston by Maj. Gen. E. J. McGaw, Commanding General, 6th Region, U. S. Army Air Defense Command. Specialist Poston is administrative assistant to the Headquarters Chief of Staff and chief clerk of the Aviation Section.

GSA Tells Army:

Keep It Simple; Keep It Plain

Government agencies—which spend a billion dollars a year on a billion letters—ought to be able to save $75 million annually by substituting simplicity for gobbledygook and writing plain letters, according to the Hoover Commission.

The Archives and Records Service of the General Service Administration has been given the job of teaching its fellow government agencies how to write understandable English. This week a three-man team from their San Francisco office has been conducting a workshop on plain letters.

The backbone of their instruction is the 4-S technique which stands for:

- SHORTNESS—Instead of: "The display of your entrance permit is mandatory," use "Show your pass."
- STRENGTH—Instead of: "John Henry was elected chairman by the committee," use an active verb, "The committee elected John Henry chairman."

- SIMPLICITY—Instead of: category, correspondence and contemplate, use class, letters and intend.
- SINCERITY—Instead of: "It is understood that this applicant will report for duty on Thursday," be human and use, "We understand that Mr. Black will report for duty on Thursday."

Some 25 persons from different sections of the Presidio took the course which stressed plain letter writing the first two days and form and guide letters the last two days. Three instructors, Wesley Clark, chief of the records maintenance division; Albert J. Mielke and Charles Schultz, both management analysts, used brightly colored slides to accompany their lectures.

Mr. Mielke, who is a reserve officer in the Air Force, said Wednesday, that the military has some especially difficult correspondence problems due to its impersonal nature.

During his lectures, Mr. Mielke likes to liven up his instruction with stories that make a point.

Such a story follows:

A plumber wrote a plain letter to a government agency stating that "he found hydrochloric acid good for cleaning clogged drain-pipes."

Back came this answer: "The efficacy of hydrochloric acid is indisputable, but the corrosive residue is incompatible with metallic permanence."

The plumber wrote back saying he was glad the government people agreed with him.

The agency replied with a second letter: "We cannot assume responsibility for the production of toxic and noxious residue with hydrochloric acid and suggest you use an alternate procedure."

By return mail the plumber told the agency how glad he was that the government thought his idea was so good.

In desperation the government agency broke down and wrote the plumber a plain letter: "Don't use hydrochloric acid. It eats the hell out of the pipes."

ROTC Grad Students To Get 3-Year Delay

Washington (ANS) — The Army has just relaxed restrictions on Reserve Officer Training Corps students desiring to take graduate work by offering them a delay of up to three years in reporting for active duty. This applies to those graduating on or after 1 May, 1958.

Originally limited principally to students taking graduate studies in technical research and scientific activities, the policy now permits consideration for any Army ROTC graduate entering graduate study in recognized fields at degree-granting institutions.

Under the new plan, the ROTC graduate must furnish evidence that he has a reasonable chance of acceptance for graduate study. If granted a delay by the Army the student must re-apply every six months to maintain his deferred status.

The Army says it may not be able to use all of these "delayed" officers in their chosen field of graduate study. Upon completion of graduate work, officers qualified as critical specialists for which the Army has a requirement will be called up for two years' active duty. Those not in critical fields may be considered for a six-month tour of active duty.

Fire Prevention Week!

Important Checklist

With the 35th Fire Prevention Week a little more than a week away the National Board of Fire Underwriters has issued a checklist of the most common hazards found in and around the home. Check your "fire potential" and protect your home from being one of the 800 struck by fire each day.

HOUSEKEEPING HAZARDS

- Do you keep rubbish cleaned out of your storage areas?
- Do you get rid of oily polishing rags after using them or store them in a covered metal can?
- Do you keep your oil mop in a metal container or other safe, well-ventilated place?
- Is it a family rule that gasoline, benzene or other highly flammable liquids are never used for cleaning clothing, floors or anything else in your home?

HEATING AND COOKING HABITS

- Is your entire home heating system professionally checked, and cleaned if necessary, every fall?
- Are you careful not to let grease accumulate on the burners, or in the oven or broiler of your stove?
- Are walls, floors, ceilings and partitions near boilers, stoves, furnaces and heating pipes protected by non-combustible insulation or ventilated air space?
- Have you warned your family never to start fires in stoves, fireplaces, etc., with kerosene or other flammable liquids?
- Is there a metal screen in front of every fireplace?

- Do you always see to it that towels, curtains and other combustible materials are a safe distance from stoves, heaters and other sources of heat such as light bulbs?

MATCHES AND CARELESS SMOKING HAZARDS

- Do you keep matches away from heat and out of reach of youngsters?
- Have you equipped every room in the house with plenty of good-sized non-combustible ash trays?
- Do you make sure that all matches, cigarette and cigar butts are out before disposing of them?
- Is there a "No Smoking in Bed" rule in your home?

ELECTRICAL HAZARDS

- Do you allow only qualified electricians to install or extend your electric wiring, and tell your home handyman "hands off" any electrical equipment?
- Do all your electrical appliances bear the "UL" label of Underwriters Laboratories, Inc., which means they have been tested for fire and shock safety?
- Do you have enough outlets to take care of all your electric appliances?
- Have you done away with all "octopus outlets"?
- Are your electric irons and all electric cooking appliances equipped with metal stands and heat limit controls?
- Have special circuits been provided for heavy-duty appliances such as washing machines, stoves, etc.?
- Do you use only 15 amp. fuses in the fuse box for your household lighting circuits?
- Are all extension cords and lamp cords in the open and not strung under rugs, over hooks, through partitions or door openings?

Found Opportunity In Army

For M/Sgt. Francis J. Marchand retirement from the Army Monday, doesn't mean a rest, but a change in jobs.

The 42-year-old master sergeant, who for the past three years has alternated between jobs as first sergeant and operations sergeant at the 561st Engineer Company, Fort Baker, now becomes proud owner of the Parkside Delicatessen at 19th and Taraval streets in San Francisco.

"Opportunity only knocks once," is his explanation for leaving the Army after 24½ years and going into business for himself. The venture is possible, he says, because of two things, money saved while in the Army and the help of his wife, Julia.

Sergeant Marchand started his Army career in February, 1933, when he enlisted and was sent from Massachusetts to Hawaii to serve in an anti-aircraft gun battalion. He was a first sergeant with the 98th AAA (AA) Regiment at Wheeler Field when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor.

This was but a preview of the action Sergeant Marchand was going to see in the coming years—both in the Pacific during World War II and in Korea in 1950. He left Hawaii in 1942 for the South Pacific and took part in several assaults of islands in the Gilbert group.

After the war and a brief stay in the United States the sergeant went to Panama where he served with a submarine mine battery, from 1946 to 1949. Next he went to Portland, Maine, and helped close out the Army harbor defenses and turn them over to the Navy.

In July, 1950, less than a month after the start of the Korean Conflict, Sergeant Marchand was on his way to Korea. There he assumed the position of pioneer and ammunition platoon sergeant for the 3rd Battalion, 8th Regiment, 1st Cavalry Division. He was to see a full year of action.

This year will never be forgotten by the sergeant, who was a member of the battalion picked to block the Chinese Communists at Unsan when they first entered the war. The four-day battle reduced the battalion strength from 900 to 167, but it gave the rest of the division time to get away.

Sergeant Marchand returned to the States in July, 1951, and in October of that year went to Germany for a three-year tour in Munich. He was battalion sergeant major for the 118th Engineer Battalion of the 43rd Infantry Division.

Next came the Fort Baker assignment with the 561st Engineer Company. During this period, from 1954 to present, he has served as first sergeant on four separate occasions.

Sergeant Marchand and his wife will live in San Francisco at the site of their delicatessen. Their 10-year-old son Steven lives at home. Twenty year old Robert is presently in the Navy.

United Crusade Campaign Underway

Campaign Material is distributed to military and civilian personnel at the Kickoff Meeting of the Bay Area Crusade held at the Post Theater on Monday. At the meeting key-men received instruction on how they would solicit donations from some 7,000 Presidio personnel. They learned that this year all money would be contributed on a strictly volunteer basis.

'Voluntary Give' Keynote At Kickoff Conference

The emphasis will be on voluntary giving during the 1957 Bay Area United Crusade campaign to be conducted at the Presidio during the month of October.

This approach was made clear to more than 200 keymen—those men and women who have the responsibility of giving approximately 7,000 Presidio personnel the opportunity to make a donation—at the kickoff meeting of the campaign held at the Post Theater on Monday.

"Maximum participation without coercion or pressure is the goal we seek," said Lt. Col. James F. Young, assistant Post executive officer, who made the kickoff speech.

It is the job of each keyman to explain to those persons in his collection area just where the money goes and why it is needed. Then it is up to the individual—with only his conscience as his guide—to volunteer his donation.

Here is what the individual doesn't have to do under the new Army fund raising policy:

- He doesn't have to tell anyone how much he is giving. (He puts his donation in a sealed envelope.)
- He doesn't even have to turn in an envelope. (He can mail his donation directly to campaign headquarters, or he can do nothing.)
- He doesn't have to make a donation to get a "We Helped" sticker for his automobile. (The stickers are given out before the donation is collected.)
- He doesn't have to meet a minimum donation quota. (Of course, there is no maximum, either.)

Those who would like a receipt for their contribution may put their name on their donation envelope. They may also write on the envelope which particular agency their money is to assist.

Come See!

For those who would like visual proof on just where their money is going "Come See" tours may be arranged which enable the contributor to follow his dollar and see just what the money is doing. Tours can be arranged by the keymen for groups of from 15 to 20 people. Or, interested persons may call and arrange to accompany a tour as an individual. For further information call Capt. Herbert M. Youngdahl, extension 3823. Or call directly to the "Come See" tour chairman, Marion Cotton, JO 7-5700.

The keyman will collect the in a large envelope and turn individual envelopes, put them over to Capt. Herbert M. Youngdahl, Post Funds Custodian. He, in turn, will send the sealed envelopes to UBAC headquarters where the envelopes will be opened and the donations tallied.

A count of the money contained in each large envelope will be returned to the Presidio so that each keyman will know how well he did in conducting his part of the campaign.

Military Missions

Foreign Mission Duty Open To Qualified EM

Military Missions to Thailand, Viet Nam, Cambodia and other countries, are open to qualified enlisted men—married or single—it was announced today by the Post Personnel Section. In any phase of these foreign assignments, including commissions and military assistance groups in the given countries, enlisted men chosen to fill the slots will be assigned as part of a group operating in the given territory; not in a solitary capacity or in an isolated area.

The tour for enlisted men runs from 12 to 15 months' duration, with adequate leaves guaranteed under existing regulations.

Concurrent travel for the soldier's immediate family is approved only through Department of the Army decision, depending on whether or not his assignment will be in a non-restricted area where his military mission group is on duty.

Most important of the required qualifications for assignment to one of the foreign military missions is that of experience in the required MOS, with physical and mental standards and educational level.

Actually, there are other foreign mission areas needing volunteers to fill current and future vacancies. A quota of enlisted men for Southeast Asia is now being assembled.

For any and all foreign mission assignments, applicants are asked to contact Sgt. Roberts. This information service is limited to enlisted men whose military records are maintained at Post Personnel. Where records are in unit Orderly Rooms, information must be requested by the serviceman from his own file.

Sgt. Is Honored

Members of the 561st Engineer Company gathered at the Fort Baker Service Club, Wednesday evening to honor M/Sgt. Francis J. Marchand with a semi-formal reception. Sergeant Marchand, who has been serving as the company first sergeant, retires from active duty on 30 September.

Sergeant and Mrs. Marchand were joined in the receiving line by the company officers and staff and their wives.

An Outstanding Award Certificate and a check for $100.00 was awarded Mrs. Morgia Smith this week in Department of the Army recognition of her services at the 115th CIC Group, Oakland. She also received a commendation from Col. S. Grunck, the CIC Group commander.

A University of California graduate, Mrs. Smith began her Civil Service career in the Naval Gun Factory, Washington, D. C., in 1942.

Signal Meteorological Teams To Support R-D

A U. S. Army Signal Corps Meteorological Company has been formed at Fort Huachuca, Arizona, for the support of Army research and development activities.

The unit, only one of its kind in the Army, is made up of 240 officers and enlisted men. It is separated into nine different teams stationed in various parts of the Western Hemisphere.

The teams will be located at Fort Huachuca, Yuma, and Gila Bend, Arizona; Dugway, Utah; Fort Monmouth, New Jersey; Natick, Massachusetts; Mount Washington, New Hampshire; Panama; and Greenland.

The new company was organized to provide better operational and administrative control of meteorological support to Army research and development projects. In the course of its normal operations, the teams will contribute some information toward the support of the International Geophysical Year.

MacArthur Revisited

Served 20 Interesting Years

After Monday's retirement ceremony M/Sgt. Kenneth C. Kraemer will leave the Bay Area for Southern California where he started his Army career 20 years ago.

While in the Army the sergeant's heart has never really been out of the Southland. Three times he has reenlisted for Fort MacArthur. The fourth time they were full up so he came to the Presidio Harbor Craft Detachment, Fort Baker, where he has been working as a marine engineer. Now he will live in Lakeside, California, which is south of Los Angeles.

After his enlistment at Fort MacArthur in 1937, Sergeant Kraemer was transferred to Fort Baker where he was assigned to the Niles, an Army mine planter. In 1940 the ship and crew sailed to Panama.

He came back from Panama to reenlist in the 63rd Coast Artillery at Fort MacArthur. Next came an assignment at El Paso, Tex. From there he went as cadre to Camp Davis, N.C., where he instructed in an anti-aircraft unit. In January, 1942, he went to Hawaii, and in April 1943 he returned to the States to cadre at Camp Han, California.

In 1944 he was transferred to the 1482nd Engineer Company at Camp Swift, Tex. He went overseas with this unit in February, 1945, and saw action in Central Europe. At the end of the war in Europe his unit was put on a boat and shipped directly to the Philippines. In November, 1945, he returned to the United States.

He reenlisted for ordnance and went to Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md., where he taught mechanics. From June, 1946, to August, 1948, he was assigned in Japan as shop foreman in the Tokyo Ordnance Depot.

Next came reenlistment and a return to Fort MacArthur. He worked as an inspector until the USAR program came into being. From then until January, 1953, he instructed reservists in tank mechanics, driving and tactics. During this period he appeared with Army tanks in the following movies: "Battleground," "The Tanks Are Coming," and "Blonde's Hero."

He transferred to Germany in January, 1953, but returned in July of that same year where he again reenlisted at Fort MacArthur. He had his same USAR job, but now he was also in charge of engineer equipment, as well as tanks and trucks.

In May, 1955, he returned to Europe and the 9th Infantry Division at Ulm. It was during this tour that he had the opportunity to improve relations between the German people and the American soldiers which had grown somewhat strained.

In the town of Heilbronn the Germans had manufactured two huge bells, weighing 8 and 10 tons apiece. To make bells of this magnitude it was necessary to pour the metal into forms set in the ground. They were then left to harden for six months. Now the Germans couldn't get their bells out of the ground.

With only a ten-ton wrecker, a block and tackle, Sergeant Kraemer extracted the bells and earned for the Army the gratitude of the townspeople.

In July, 1956, he returned to Fort Ord and was subsequently assigned to the Presidio. He has no immediate plans after today's retirement other than returning to Southern California with his wife, Elizabeth, and his two daughters, Patricia, age five, and Carol Ann, age 7.

Wilson Orders Second Major Services Slash

Washington (AFPS)—Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson has ordered the Armed Forces to cut an additional 100,000 men to bring force levels down to 2.6 million shortly after 1 July, 1958.

The new military personnel cutback, approved by President Eisenhower, follows by only two months the 16 July edict to trim a similar number from the rolls by 31 Dec.

Added reductions ordered in the new 19 Sept. directive are: Army, 50,000; Navy, 15,000; Marine Corps, 10,000, and Air Force 25,000.

It is important that these reductions be made "as promptly as possible," Mr. Wilson said in a memorandum to the service secretaries.

Strength ceilings fixed for next 30 June, the end of Fiscal Year '58 are: Army, 900,000; Navy, 645,000; Marine Corps, 188,000, and Air Force, 875,000 for a total of 2,608 million. Although the Marine Corps will be required to drop 10,000 more men to a level of 180,000 at least, 8,000 of the latest reduction in force will be delayed until early FY '59, eventually bringing total military strength to 2.6 million.

According to 31 Aug. reports, estimated strength by service was: Army, 990,000; Navy, 678,000; Air Force, 922,200, and Marine Corps, 199,500.

This means that between now and 30 June, 1958, the Army will lose 90,000 men, the Navy 33,000, the Air Force 47,200 and the Marine Corps 2,000, or a total reduction of 181,700 from the current active duty strength of the Armed Forces.

These objectives can be accomplished, Mr. Wilson declared, within the framework of a balanced military program and without impairment of our national security through:

Improvement of efficiency and elimination of non-essentials and duplication in administrative and logistical support activities.

Capitalizing on technological advances.

Developing to the fullest extent the effective combat capabilities of smaller, more mobile forces.

Reducing turn-over of trained, effective combat-ready personnel, and thereby reducing the number required to be in training pipelines for replacement purposes.

Except for previously announced troop reductions in Japan, the force economies are to be achieved without "materially" affecting major combat units overseas, Mr. Wilson added.

The retiring Defense Secretary, who relinquishes his cabinet post to Neil H. McElroy in October, also requested the service secretaries to submit to him by 27 Sept., 1957, monthly plans to make "maximum rate of reduction" designed to reach the ordered objectives.

Major Corcoran was graduated from the Infantry School, the Ordnance School Armament Course and the Ordnance Guided Missile Course. He holds the Combat Infantryman Badge and Purple Heart with two clusters.

PRESIDIO SKETCHBOOK

How would you like to have been a soldier on duty at the Presidio during the late 'Fifties? The reservation was about the only spot in which there was evidence of either the dignity of Government or the military way of life.

The town of San Francisco was then only a hamlet . . . yet to Californians it was the metropolis around which their dreams lingered . . . a seaport without much ocean-going traffic . . . housing limited to tents and shanties made from packing boxes . . . sidewalks improvised from barrel staves and wood discarded from ships in the outer sea-lanes . . . flotsam, like many of the human tide which swept the local shores . . . obsessed with visions of wealth and colonization!

The space now marked by Montgomery, Jackson and Kearny Streets was tenanted by South Americans from Chile . . . lovers of color and the lazy life . . . waiting like happy children for the day that a vessel arrived in the harbor from their homeland. Mine workers or fishermen, each wore the round-crowned straw hat and the multi-colored serape of the Latin American country. They worked after a fashion during the week, but Sunday was the day in which all forms of activity, other than those involving festivity, were completely abandoned.

Were you to walk down Kearny Street at night, the little stores would all be closed . . . but the saloons . . . blazing in a glory of oil lamps and busty bar maids of French or Spanish origin . . . tinny music . . . jangling little bells which hung suspended from each doorway as a means of announcing the arrival of some thirsty soul. Each would bring to you some whispered message of a new city in the making.

Historians say that in 1853, an orderly, intelligent type of wanderer was beginning to inhabit San Francisco. The citizen's pride was in process of being born . . . evident in the fact that those who came here arrived with a firm conviction that the newly-born city should be the haven only of the honorable, the aggressive, the progressive and the good. Here it seemed that the adventurer sent down his roots, here the place he wanted most to stay.

As a soldier here . . . you would have had much in common with the native . . . haunted by the hope of eventual wealth and other aspiration . . . mingling with a town and its people . . . killing loneliness by contact with other lonely people.

Letters from home were then even more of an event to the soldier than now . . . for the mail steamers arrived in port from the east only three times a month.

High on a promontory on Telegraph Hill was a primitive signal device which announced the arrival of an incoming vessel to the cliff dwellers below. And when the steamer docked . . . although it was usually no more than some wheezing old side-wheeler . . . it received a more enthusiastic welcome than might the great ocean-going "America" of more recent origin. Disembarking would be passengers from home . . . from little hamlets all along the eastern seaboard . . . but above all, would be letters . . . living symbols of the love which was only increased by the absence of the more adventurous family members who had listened to Horace Greeley of the past time or some other sage who preceded him in time.—"Go West, young man, go . . ."

And so, when the signal flag was unfurled on Telegraph Hill, San Franciscans would hurry to the nearest vantage point to watch the little puff of smoke that heralded the vessel's arrival. Excitement became as keen as though a fire bell had been rung, as the side-wheeler churned her way through the Golden Gate . . . workmen, businessmen . . . bums . . . they would go racing to the wharf . . . to greet a friend . . . to weep at the renewed breath of "home" . . . to soothe an old nostalgia!

Then out on the dock would tumble the passengers . . . up the muddy streets to the nearest hotel . . . to bathe and change into their eastern-tailored clothing . . . to sally forth into the new empire of the West.

By now, the natives had lined up at the post office windows . . . although it was nearly a whole day before the mail would be sorted. Some brought their chairs to wait out the mail . . . others sold their places in the line to those wealthy enough to pay for the privilege of being at the top . . . while French bartenders circulated with liquid refreshment and hotel waiters dispensed whatever kind of food the financial traffic could bear. That would be what a soldier might have seen in San Francisco on a day in the late 'Eighties.

But it was not the end of the pageant! A week later the same side-wheeler would be outward-bound, when would begin a new nostalgia in the hearts of those being left behind . . . and the same group would congregate on the wharf to watch it go . . . There would be champagne and books . . . bottles and boxes and a motley collection of bearded miners in woolen shirts . . . grime and gold dust in their hair . . . returning home with the loot and tall stories of the West.

Whether princes or paupers in point of wealth, they would receive a royal welcome when their voyage was completed . . . for were they not in the eyes of their own . . . the living pages of the story of California?

Seattle Pilfers AADC Softball Championship

20th Wins 7-6 Thriller From 526th Missileers

A hard charging 20th AAA Gun Battalion nine from Seattle, Washington, charged from behind yesterday at Ft. Baker to win a last ditch 7-6 decision from the 526th AAA Missile Battalion and become the 1957 Softball Champions of the U.S. Army Air Defense Command.

With two away in the last of the 7th inning, centerfielder James Clemens slapped a scratch single between short and third that sent leftfielder Charles Ayers scampering home with the winning tally. The winners had tied the game a few minutes earlier when third baseman Ed Susabek scored from third on Allen Mangin's deep fly to center.

Five unearned runs proved the margin of victory for the 20th who were outhit 9-6.

Champions and runners-up were recognized last night at a banquet at the Letterman Officers Club. Team and individual trophies were presented to the top two teams by Major General E. J. McGaw, Commanding General of the 6th Region, U.S. Army Air Defense Command.

General McGaw, acting as host for the 6th Region and as representative of Lieutenant General S. R. Mickelsen, Commander of the U.S. Army Air Defense Command, congratulated all the teams on their sportsmanship and spirit and passed along greetings from General Mickelsen.

He also presented the ARAD-COM Sports Participation and Achievement Trophy to the 2nd Region for the second consecutive six-month period. Should the 2nd Region win the trophy for three straight periods, the region gets permanent possession.

General McGaw opened the softball tournament Thursday, 19 September, with a welcoming address after which he threw out the first ball.

In the action that followed, the 531st AAA Missile Battalion of Ellsworth AFB, S. D., 4th Region, was eliminated from the tourney by dropping its first two games. Norfolk's 550th team topped the 531st AAA Missile Battalion of Ellsworth AFB, S. D., 8-4 in the tournament opener and the South Dakota team fell 14-4 before the 526th Battalion of 1st Region on Saturday.

The 526th, dead tired from an all-night plane ride the night before the tournament opened, lost its own opening game to Milwaukee's 852nd AAA Missile Battalion 11-4, before getting back on the winning track with the triumph over the 531st.

Seattle, idle with a bye in the first day's play, knocked the 550th Battalion out of the unbeaten bracket in the second round with a 12-2 decision. The 2nd Region gunners became the second team to be eliminated from the tournament when they collapsed under a 23-4 avalanche brought down by the 526th in Monday's first game.

The 1st Region team scored in every inning—the biggest frame was the fourth, when eight runs crossed—to turn in the most one-sided game of the tournament. The New Jersey missilemen scored five runs in the first and coasted the rest of the way.

The 20th Battalion became the only unbeaten team in the tournament and first to reach the finals when the gunners smacked the Milwaukee entry 9-3 Monday afternoon. The Seattle team gained the decision the hard way, dropping behind 3-0 in the first four innings and then breaking loose with four runs in the fifth and five in the sixth for the victory.

Fort Hancock's 526th Battalion became the other finalist Tuesday afternoon with a 10-4 victory over the 852nd. Bare pitched hitless ball in every inning but the sixth and shut the Milwaukee men out in the five innings.

The 526th scored three unearned runs in the first for a lead they never lost. A bases-empty homer by third baseman Jim Boyle and a two-run home run by leftfielder John Finley led the New Jersey attack.

Five errors did the most damage to the 852nd efforts, letting eight unearned runs cross the plate. Milwaukee shortstop Jose Rodriguez gave the 852nd all its earned runs in the sixth with a home run that found two men on base.

The 852nd picked up an unearned tally in the seventh when pinch-hitter Gerald Stern lifted a high fly into right field and went all the way around when the 526th's Richard Joos couldn't handle the ball.

The tournament decided the first of four championships for the command-wide athletic program for AAA units. Volleyball, basketball and tennis tournaments will follow later in the 1957-58 fiscal year, with a different region hosting each tournament.

Casaba Coach Sees Tough Sailing Ahead

With the coming of basketball season, head coach Hal Fischer feels doubtful that the Toreros will be able to defend their championships set up by last year's outstanding team.

The team this year is composed of mostly small men and coach Fischer says, "without some height it will be a losing season." Coach Fischer also stated, "that in basketball unless you control the backboards and get the ball your scoring punch is halted."

In last year's season the Toreros reigned as Sixth U. S. Army Champions, Runner-up All-Army; Northern California Armed Forces; Bay Area Armed Forces, Central Sixth U. S. Army and Runner-up Southwestern AAU Invitational Tournament.

Coach Fischer requests that all companies help to get men out for the 1957-58 Toreros basketball season.

Meet Ken Johnson - A Rugged Individual

Public warning: Don't get smart with the Sergeant who works at the bus station. He is Sgt. Kenneth Johnson who currently holds the Presidio heavyweight championship.

Sgt. Johnson, who has compiled an amateur record of 20 wins and seven losses, was runner-up in the Sixth Army Boxing Tournament in 1956 and in the Northern California Armed Forces Tournament that same year.

While stationed in Okinawa, prior to his assignment to the Presidio as truckmaster for the motor pool, Sgt. Johnson won the 1949 light heavyweight championship for that area.

According to him, winning the Okinawa title was the most thrilling moment of his boxing career as he knocked out his opponent in the very last round.

Johnson is a 1948 graduate of McClymonds High School in Oakland, which has produced many outstanding athletes. Among some of his famous classmates were Bill Russell, All-

Young Ends 35 Years Of Brilliant Service

Sixth Army Commander Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, who retires today after more than 35 years of Army service, leaves behind a brilliant double crowned record of achievement as battlefield commander and peace time administrator.

He assumed command of the Sixth U.S. Army on 1 July, 1955, after two and one-half years in Washington, D.C., as Assistant Chief of Staff for Personnel, Department of Army. Promotion to lieutenant general came two days before his assignment as Sixth Army commander.

Prior to the staff assignment in Washington, D.C., the General had been Commandant of the Infantry School at Fort Benning, Ga., and before that had commanded the 2nd Infantry Division in Korea. After being promoted to major general, he joined his division in September, 1951. At this time the 2nd was bogged down in its assault of Heartbreak Ridge.

By splitting the North Korean forces—which numbered four divisions—General Young succeeded in breaking the bloody, two-week stalemate and in taking the ridge with his 23rd Regiment. Then came more fierce battling until, at the end of October, enemy forces were cleaned out of the surrounding heights. With United Nations Forces in command of the high ground, the hard-fighting troops were relieved on the line.

In September, 1950, General Young had gone to the Infantry (Continued on page 6)

Farewell Message

As I relinquish command of the Sixth United States Army and retire from active duty, I extend to you, the men and women of this command, my deep appreciation for your many courtesies and accomplishments which have made my tour as Commanding General a memorable and rewarding experience.

My future years will be enriched by recollections of my service here and the many splendid friendships that Mrs. Young and I have enjoyed among you. I shall always recall these years happily and with great pride, remembering that every achievement of this command was made possible by the effectiveness of your efforts and your enterprise.

I leave with deep feelings of gratitude for the privilege of having been your Commander, and no little sense of loss as the parting approaches. I am confident that you will accord to my successor, Lieutenant General Lemuel Mathewson, the same loyal and devoted support you gave to me in our years of association.

After General Mathewson's transfer into Field Artillery he became a battery reconnaissance officer at Fort Sill, Okla. Later he completed the battery officers' course at the Field Artillery School there.

In 1930 the new Sixth Army Commander studied Spanish at Centro de Estudios Historicos, Madrid, Spain, and the following year he returned to West Point as a Spanish instructor.

Five years later General Mathewson was appointed battery commander of the 83rd Field Artillery. His next military step was graduation from the Command and General Staff School, after which he returned to Fort Sill to become an instructor in the Department of Tactics and Communication.

General Mathewson's first Washington, D.C., assignment came in November, 1940, when he served on the War Department General Staff as a member of the Plans Section, War Plans Division. Mother Recalls General's Early Days

"I have accepted the commission! I am reporting for military service in a few days." These—in essence—were the words which shaped the military destiny of a young graduate of the University of Maryland, 37 years ago. Today, Lt. General Robert N. Young, that same student who so surprised his parents, closes the book on the last page of his military career.

His mother, Mrs. Fanny Hempstone Young, takes quiet pride in the achievements of her soldier son; yet like all mothers, she is more inclined to look back on his boyhood with a nostalgia so pronounced that it mirrors itself in her hazel-grey eyes.

Tall, arrow-straight and white-haired, Mrs. Young is currently a house guest in the residence of the General and his wife. Sitting in the family living room today, she said mischievously to a Star Presidian reporter: "Robert will think that this is silly, but I DO want to tell you about him when he and his brother Walter were very young."

"We didn't think," Mrs. Young continued, "that the General would ever want to become a soldier. For one who loved home so much, it was difficult to imagine him being able to adjust to the constant uprooting imposed on a military man."

But the General wanted to become a soldier, as evidenced in the opening paragraph of his mother's story. His late father, Robert H. Young, was a sandlot baseball official in Washington, D.C. He was also associated with many pioneer airmen, flying in early Wright Brothers planes while handling international patent problems for the Aviation section of the Signal Corps in World War I.

At war's end, while holding the rank of Major, he continued in widespread patent work as a special assistant to the then Attorney General. And in World War II, Mr. Young drew upon his background, as a civilian employee of the Signal Corps, again traveling abroad. His burial in Arlington National Cemetery, was conducted with full military honors.

In the early 1900's, the Young household in Washington lived completely up to its family name! The spirit of youth was manifest in everything done and said by Robert and his younger brother, Walter, now a patent attorney in Bethesda, Maryland.

"I returned from a meeting one afternoon," Mrs. Young recalls, "to find Robert and Walter squared away for battle on the sidewalk outside our home. I brought them inside, read them the riot act and applied the paddle diligently! In their shared grief and shattered pride, they immediately embraced each other while two pairs of eyes glared at me from the corner where I had put the culprits in temporary exile."

Then there was the interval when the General-to-be decided that he was going to raise pigeons. Pigeon-like, the pigeons became so prolific that the boy figured there was money to be made from the sale of the younger birds for table use. He appointed his mother his first customer in this project, coming to her one day with an offer of four squabs for a dollar. Mrs. Young agreed and the sale was effected. "But Robert couldn't eat his dinner that night. He seemed terribly upset, so we asked him what the matter was." "Please, mother," the troubled boy answered; "take back the dollar and give me my squabs. I couldn't bear to think that we would have to kill them and eat them!"

The older the Young family grew, the younger they became! For instance, the boys, particularly Robert, established the reputation among their school and college friends of being the most hospitable pair in Washington. This fact was more than adequately proven to their parents when on coming down stairs one morning, they found one strange young man sound asleep on the davenport, one on the living room floor, two in the back bedroom and four on the front porch. They were University of Maryland students who dallied overly-late at a dance and were granted carte blanche welcome to the Young house through courtesy of Junior.

The big, old-fashioned Young mansion was the rendezvous of all the young in heart. Halloween, Christmas, Thanksgiving and birthdays. Any and all were the magnet whose source lay at 4522 Middleton Lane, Bethesda.

"Our sons were a joy to us because they loved people as did we ourselves," Mrs. Young concludes; "considerate, sincere and of good taste, they added further to our happiness by giving us two of the world's best daughters-in-law."

Gjelsteen Ends 34-Year Career This Afternoon

Special assistant to the Sixth U.S. Army Commander, Maj. Gen. Einar B. Gjelsteen, will retire from active duty today after more than 34 years of service. General Gjelsteen will be awarded the Legion of Merit during the retirement

Before coming to the Presidio the general served as Chief of the Army Audit Agency in Washington, D.C.

During World War II General Gjelsteen was artillery commander for the 86th Infantry Division in Europe until the defeat of Germany. He then accompanied the unit to the Philippines in the same capacity.

General Gjelsteen's major Army assignments include instructor and assistant professor at the U.S. Military Academy, Assistant Commandant of the Field Artillery School, a member of the Command and General Staff College faculty, Chief of Staff of the Seventh U.S. Army in Germany and Commanding General, Fort Devens, Mass.

All four military services are represented by both active and reserve officers. Civilian aides to the Secretary of the Army have been invited to attend the ceremonies.

The Sixth U.S. Army is represented today by the Command Group, General and Special Staff personnel and general officers of this Army area. Various distinguished military guests and retired military personnel are also on the guest list.

Both retiring Sixth Army Commander Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young and the new Sixth Army Commander Lt. Gen. Lemuel Mathewson, along with their wives, will receive guests at a private reception which begins at 1800 hours at the Presidio Officers' Open Mess.

Snappy Force on the parade ground or the battlefield is this 100-man unit from the 38th Infantry Regiment, now stationed at Fort Lewis. The regiment, part of the famed 2nd Infantry Division which Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young commanded in Korea, will be accorded a place of honor in today's retirement ceremony for the general and 11 others.

Life And Times Of An American General Officer

Traditional Hawaiian welcome awaited General and Mrs. Young as he reported for duty as Chief of Staff, U.S. Army Pacific, Fort Shafter, T.H., in May, 1949. It was during this tour of duty that Gen. Young won his second promotion to brigadier general.

Prospective future Army leaders are not overlooked by General Young as he briefs the members of Burlingame, California's Junior Army Corps. As Sixth Army Commander, Gen. Young placed strong emphasis on good community relations. As a result, the Presidio reached a new high as a respected member of the San Francisco Bay Area community.

Assigned as Chief of Staff, U.S. Army Pacific, General Young won temporary promotion (his second) to Brigadier General. Mrs. Young does the honors.

Isn't it surprising to know . . . that since the Presidio was founded in 1776 . . . its commanding officers, including Lt. General Robert N. Young who retires today . . . add up to the total of 185, including the Spanish, the Mexican and the U.S. Army administration of this garrison? . . .

From 1776 to 1822 . . . the Presidio was served by eight Spanish commanding officers . . . and from 1822 to 1846, Mexico provided 10 to supervise operations of her troops then in residence here.

General Joe Stilwell

From 1846 to 1957 . . . the United States Army provided 167 commanders. An interesting sidelight on the Mexican occupation of the garrison is that during the last year of its term here, the Command decisions were carried out by one sergeant in charge . . . during 1841 . . . and in 1884 by a corporal . . . Both men were actually only caretakers, since the major body of Mexican troops had left the garrison at that time.

Since the Sixth U.S. Army established its headquarters at the Presidio in 1946, seven Commanding Generals have presided over the eight-state military area from the established headquarters here.

General Joseph W. Stilwell and Major General George P. Hays as Deputy . . . began the Sixth U.S. Army's administration at the Presidio.

"Vinegar Joe" flew "The Hump" enough times to qualify him for the Air Medal, an award that came after his death . . . It was from his military theater that the first B-29 strikes were made against Japan. As CBI commander he ran the 10th Air Force, 14th Air Force and the Troop Carrier squadrons. He was one of the few military men in history to actively command troops of a foreign soil while serving in the uniform of his own country. (He was Chief of Staff of the Chinese Army while CG of American troops in the CBI theater). Additionally, he had charge of Indian, British, Gurka and other foreign troops. At the Presidio, General Stilwell is known as "The father of our Service clubs." Under his direction they came into being! Stilwell Hall here . . . the meeting place for Reserve units . . . was named for "Vinegar Joe."

Lt. General George P. Hays was born of missionary parents in China . . . In the second Battle of the Marne he won the Nation's highest tribute . . . its Congressional Medal of Honor . . . Early in World War I, he earned the extra distinction of having seven horses shot from under him as he personally carried vital messages between front line units after other means of communication had been wiped out.

General Mark W. Clark took command at the Presidio in 1947 . . . He was the son of a military family . . . born in Madison Barracks, N.Y. . . . Shortly before the Normandy Invasion, General Clark made a dramatic and highly successful trip by plane and submarine from London to French North Africa . . . for a secret meeting with French officers arranging details of the landing . . . With his Fifth Army . . . opposed by 25 German Divisions, he entered Rome . . . to see the Eternal City fall before the force of his own U.S. legions. He remains one of the most highly decorated of wartime American Army generals.

Lt. Gen. Wedemeyer

Lt. General Albert C. Wedemeyer assumed command here in 1949 . . . Born in Nebraska, cradled to the strains of military music, General Wedemeyer was the grandson of a German music master. Oddly enough, he did not distinguish himself as an officer until he was sent to China to command the 15th Infantry at Tientsin . . . On his return Stateside he studied economics, foreign affairs, history and the new concept of air power . . . He is credited with having a mind as cold and rigorous as a steel trap . . . also with being instrumental in shaping to great degree the architecture of current China's future . . . through his return there as a Staff general engaged in rebuilding the Chinese Army.

Lt. General Joseph M. Swing was born in New Jersey . . . He served in Mexico with the Punitive Expedition of 1916 . . . Later as an artillery officer between World Wars . . . As a Brigadier General, Swing organized the division artillery of the 82nd Infantry Division which later became Airborne . . . He also pioneered in planning and conducting the first airlift of an entire division by planes and gliders . . . After action with his division in New Guinea, Leyte and Luzon in 1944 . . . General Swing postscripted the final surrender of the Japanese by leading the first airborne units to Atsugi Airfield, outside Tokyo.

General Willard Gordon Wyman was a New Englander . . . Born in Augusta, Me., he became a language student in Peking, China, during 1928-32, while serving as a topographer for the Central Asiatic Expedition in Mongolia . . . During the defense of Shanghai he served with the Chinese 19th Route Army against the Japanese . . . During World War II, General Wyman led the 1st Division assault forces across Omaha Beach on D-Day . . . With his troops, he later crossed the Rhine River at Oppenheim . . . to take the key industrial cities of Mannheim and Bayreuth . . . He is credited with developing the "Aggressor" concept of military training by which mythical enemy forces are placed in combat positions with U.S. troops for the purpose of adequate field training.

"Soldiering My Life!"

EM Finishes 32 Years In Grand Style

Another enlisted man representative at today's massive retirement ceremony, which will also pay honors to 11 officers—including three generals—is M/Sgt. Daniel Mysel, who retires just two months short of 32 years in the Army.

This "old soldier" who has known many generals when they were lieutenants and captains, is proud to be a part of the distinguished group scheduled for retirement today. "It's a grand day," he says, adding "For many years I've watched my friends take their turns at the ceremonies, and now it's my turn."

This sergeant, who hardly looks his fifty years, may be retiring from the Army, but he's not going to get very far away from this environment which he knows so well. He will step out of his Army job as chief clerk for the Sixth U.S. Army Provost Marshal section and into a job as administration and supply technician for Company L of the 159th Infantry Regiment, California National Guard, in Daly City.

He leaves the Army with a proud record—not a single AWOL or court martial. This record set the standard during the many years he served as first sergeant. As he puts it:

"When I was first sergeant, I told my men there was only one excuse for being absent without leave—if they got themselves killed!"

Looking back over 32 years in the service of his country, Sergeant Mysel comments: "If I had to do it over again, I would follow the same profession for I believe I was cut out to be a soldier."

He first entered the Army on 18 February, 1925, after spending his boyhood in New Jersey. He reports that during his first tour, spent in the Panama Canal Zone, he served under a young lieutenant who went on to become a commander of Sixth Army, Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer.

Following the Panama tour in 1928, Sergeant Mysel took a discharge with no idea of making the Army a career. But, "The Army bug bit me," he explains, and eight months later he returned to the military for a lifetime of service.

Already a veteran soldier at the start of World War II, the sergeant joined the cadre of the embryo 84th Infantry Division in Camp House, Tex. There, he helped mold this unit into a fighting force in preparation for their part in the Battle of Europe.

As first sergeant for Headquarters Company of the 335th Infantry Regiment, he moved with his unit through Belgium, Holland and into Germany, where it finally halted at the Elbe River to await the Russians.

At the conclusion of the hostilities, he returned to the United States until December, 1946, when he was ordered to Japan. Returning in September, 1948, he went to Camp Chaffee, Ark., to serve as cadre in the new leadership Course beginning there. He fulfilled a dual responsibility, first sergeant and battalion sergeant major.

Next came the assignment which turned into "the best four years of my life." The sergeant went to Berlin, Germany, where he joined the 11th Military Police, C.I. Det. It was during this tour that he met his wife, an English girl working as an interpreter for the American forces.

Today, his wife, Mary, his two daughters and his mother-in-law will all be watching "their sergeant" in the last act of his official Army career.

Young Led 3rd Division Drive

School to earn his Parachutist Badge and then became Assistant Commanding General for the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg.

From May, 1949, to July, 1950, the General served as Chief of Staff, U.S. Army, in the Pacific. He was stationed at Fort Shafter, Territory of Hawaii.

His first assignment following V-E Day called for him to assume command of the Military District of Washington, D.C. This duty lasted a year, until July, 1946, when he became Commandant of the School of Combined Arms, Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan. From there he went to Fort Bragg for his airborne course.

When the United States entered World War II, General Young was on duty in Washington, D.C., as an assistant to the Secretary of the War Department General Staff. For seven months, from September, 1942, to March, 1943, he served as the Secretary of the War Department General Staff. He left this assignment for an appointment as assistant commander of the 70th Infantry Division which was then stationed at Camp Adair, Ore. This marked his appointment as brigadier general.

He was next assigned to the U.S. Seventh Army in Europe in October, 1944. He became Assistant Commander to the 3rd Infantry Division under Major General J. W. (Iron Mike) O'Daniel.

General Young joined the division as it was poised for its brilliant campaign in the Vosges Mountains overlooking Strasbourg on the Franco-German border. Secretly crossing the Meurthe River on the night of November 19-20, elements of the division succeeded in kicking off a drive for the Rhine River which culminated in the destruction of the German Winter Line and the successful link-up of the division with French forces in Strasbourg.

This maneuver marked the first time in history that a military force had succeeded in crossing the Vosges against organized resistance.

The German forces west of the Rhine were split with part of them concentrated south of Strasbourg in what was to become known as "The Colmar Pocket." In the temporary absence of his commander, General Young undertook to move the division south in preparation for the reduction of these forces. The ensuing 16-day battle resulted in the annihilation of the enemy defenses and the termination of all German resistance from Alsace to the Swiss border.

The General's many awards include the Distinguished Service Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Silver Star for gallantry in action, the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, and the Purple Heart. For services with the 3rd Division, he wears the Distinguished Unit Citation Badge, the French Croix de Guerre and Legion of Honor. He also wears the Combat Infantry Badge.

His battle campaigns in World War II include Southern France, Ardennes-Alsace, Central Europe and the Rhineland. His battle campaigns in the Korean Action include the Chinese Communist Forces Spring Offensive, the United Nations Summer-Fall Offensive, and the Second Korean Winter.

Top Martial Musicians Will Score Ceremonies

Some 80 Sixth U.S. Army musicians assigned to the Sixth Army and 52nd Army bands will combine their talents in a commemorative program of band music during today's retirement ceremony honoring Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Sixth U.S. Army Commander.

The bands will lead off with "Dog Faced Soldier," the 3rd Infantry Division song. General Young was named assistant commander of that division in October, 1944. Second on the band's program is "Maryland, My Maryland," the alma mater of the University of Maryland, from which the general was graduated in 1922.

"My Heart is in the Land of Maryland" and the "82nd Airborne Song" also will be featured. General Young served as assistant commander of the 82nd in 1950.

Completing the program will be "The Caissons Go Rolling Along," the Army song; "Auld Lang Syne," "He's a Jolly Good Fellow", and "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight."

PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

Friday 4 October, 1957

Honor Guard Review Greets New General

A 15-gun salute and honor guard review formally welcomed the new Sixth Army Commander, Lt. Gen. Lemuel Mathewson, Tuesday. The traditional three Ruffles and three Flourishes were played by the Sixth Army Band.

During the ceremony General Mathewson watched the Sixth Army Pipe Band present a drill and inspected the Honor Guard and band. Post and Headquarters staff officers attended.

Maj. Gen. R. L. Howze, Jr., Deputy Commanding General, was host for the ceremony.

Modern Missiles are now the sole components of the West Coast's 6th Region, Army Air Defense Command. The last five gun battalions in the command were ordered deactivated on 1 October, as part of the Department of the Army plan to cut 18 battalions throughout the Army Air Defense Command before 1 July, 1958. Three of the command's gun battalions were cut earlier this year.

Flu Serum Here; Shots Underway

Military personnel supported by the Post's medical facilities are in the process of receiving their first compulsory Asiatic flu immunizations. Men stationed with AAA units were immunized this week and Post immunizations are scheduled next week.

According to the Surgeon General's order, all military personnel must receive shots first. Voluntary immunization of dependents and some civilian employees will be offered at a later date.

Post Dispensary officials also stated that military personnel assigned to small units in the Bay Area are urged to contact the local dispensary at Ext. 2285 for information concerning the shots.

The immunization program is being handled by Dispensary teams through cooperation with unit commanders and section chiefs.

Army Commander To Address QMA Meet

Some 700 members of the Quartermaster Association opened their two-day national convention in San Francisco yesterday. Activities will be climaxed tonight with the annual banquet.

The Honorable Calvin Johnson, special consultant on public affairs for the American Trucking Association, will be the principal banquet speaker. Lt. Gen. Lemuel Mathewson, Sixth Army Commander, also will address the delegates.

Mr. Roger Deas, American Can Company, will be the guest speaker at today's luncheon. Col. Arthur L. Bivens, Sixth Army Quartermaster and president of the association's Northern California chapter, is also slated to speak.

Among those attending this first QM convention held on the West Coast is Maj. Gen. A. T. McNamara, Quartermaster General. General McNamara will present two special awards at the banquet.

The convention, which is being attended by key members of the local Quartermaster sections, is devoted to seminars on various military supply agencies.

AAA Open House

The three battalions of the 30th AAA Group, the San Francisco Air Defense Command, will hold open houses next Thursday in observance of the 40th anniversary of the Army Antiaircraft Artillery. The week has been proclaimed San Francisco Bay Area Defense Week. Battalions participating are the 441st, 9th and 740th.

New School Will Train Army Crews

A temporary school for Army crews who will man the Missile Master system of fire-power coordination of Army Air Defense Command guided missile batteries will be established at Fort Meade, Md., this month, the Department of the Army has announced.

More than 100 officers and enlisted men will be enrolled in the initial class which begins 14 October. These men will form the nucleus of a 135-man Missile Master team in the Washington-Baltimore area when the system becomes operational in the near future.

The school will be moved to Orlando, Fla., after the first class is completed. The Martin Company, principal contractor for the Missile Master, is conducting the training.

The Missile Master is a complete semi-automatic system for the coordination of all Army antiaircraft weapons, including the Nike-Ajax, Nike-Hercules and Hawk.

More Augmentation Lists Due October, November

Washington (ANS)—In a move to accelerate the announcement of Regular Army officer selections under the Augmentation Program, the Army intends to make "recess appointments" during the next three months, a spokesman disclosed here today.

Present plans call for three "recess appointment" lists before the first of the year. The first list, containing, for the most part, second lieutenants with less than three years service, will be released as soon as presidential approval is obtained.

The second list, expected to be ready for processing by the middle of October, will consist principally of first lieutenants and captains with more than three and less than 10 years service. A November list will include captains and field grade officers with more than 10 years service. It has been pointed out, however, that appointments in other grades may appear on the new lists.

These three lists will not contain all the Augmentation Program selections, the spokesman said. One and maybe two more lists will be required after January 1, 1958, to complete the RA Officer Augmentation Program.

In accordance with law, the recess appointments will require confirmation by the Senate when it reconvenes next January. This process, which also requires re-administration of the oath of office, in no way affects the status of officers appointed.

New Move Will Affect 2,000 Troops, 5 Gn. Bn.

The 6th Region, U.S. Army Air Defense Command, became an all-missile command this week when the region's five gun battalions were deactivated on orders of the Department of the Army. Some 2,000 troops were involved in the deactivation order.

Battalions affected are the 77th in Los Angeles and the 20th in Seattle, both 90-mm gun units; and the 501st, 518th and 519th at Hanford, Wash., all 120-mm units. The battalions are to dispose of equipment, property and personnel by 20 December, according to Maj. Gen. E. J. McGaw, 6th Region Commander.

Personnel involved will be transferred to other units within the U.S. Army Air Defense Command; sent to the Army Air Defense Center for retraining with the Nike-Hercules equipment; assigned to other units in the Army; or released from the service.

The 6th Region now consists of 13 missile battalions armed with the Nike-Ajax. Plans are under way to convert a number of the battalions to Nike-Hercules and to add the Hawk missile system to the defenses. The command includes four battalions in Los Angeles, three in San Francisco, three in Seattle and one each at Hanford, Fairchild AFB, Wash., and Travis AFB.

The order brought to eight the number of gun battalions deactivated in the region since 1 January. The 752nd was eliminated from the Presidio and the 52nd and 451st Skysweeper Battalions were cut last spring.

The deactivation of the five gun battalions followed word from DA that 18 battalions throughout the Army Air Defense Command would be cut before the end of this fiscal year.

The order does not affect the four National Guard gun battalions which are on-site and considered part of the defenses in San Francisco and Seattle.

Quick Change!

Yesterday M/Sgt. Today A CWO

Master Sergeant George Goddard, Battery A, 740th AAA Missile Battalion, will go on active duty today in his commissioned rank of Chief Warrant Officer. He will be assigned to the battalion's Battery D as battery missile officer.

A veteran of 15 years' service, CWO Goddard served as a platoon leader during World War II in Africa, Italy and Germany in a Chemical Smoke Generator Company.

CWO Goddard was graduated from the Army Language School and the Electronic Material Maintenance Course at Fort Bliss.

Signal's New Silent Sentry Smallest Known Radar Set

Direct conversion of the chemical energy of gases into electricity has been accomplished with the development of the first fuel cells capable of economically producing thousands of watts of power. First significant application of the new fuel cells, which use hydrogen and oxygen as fuel, is in providing silent electrical power for the U.S. Army Signal Corps' "Silent Sentry" radar.

The "Silent Sentry," the world's smallest known radar set, is a lightweight, portable unit which provides mobile Army forces with local combat surveillance of enemy movements despite smoke, darkness or fog.

The silent source of power was developed by scientists at the Research Laboratories of National Carbon Company, Division of Union Carbide Corporation. The fuel cell is the first that does not depend on high temperatures or pressures for efficient operation.

In addition to the military applications, the fuel cells may eventually be used in lawnmowers, outboard motors and small cars.

Health Plan Open

The Kaiser Foundation Health Plan will be open for membership during the rest of this month. Membership may be made effective 1 or 15 October or 1 November. Further information and application cards can be obtained by calling Ext. 4481.

Fuel Cell operation is shown in this simplified illustration. Hydrogen and oxygen gases enter the cell through specially-treated, hollow porous carbon electrodes, and diffuse to the surface, where they come in contact with the electrolyte, a solution of potassium hydroxide. At the hydrogen electrode, the electrochemical reaction releases an electron, which flows through the external circuit and is accepted at the oxygen electrode. This flow of electrons is the current that powers electrical equipment. Ionic conductivity through the electrolyte completes the circuit, and the water formed in the reaction passes from the cell in the hydrogen stream.

An Ounce of Prevention . . .

Fire is the second leading cause of death in the home for all age groups, according to the National Safety Council. Children under five and persons over 65 are fire's most helpless victims.

Last year fire struck more than 300,000 homes in the United States. This is an average of 800 daily or one fire every two minutes.

Sunday opens the 35th National Fire Prevention Week. Because of these staggering statistics Col. Ralph J. Griffin, Post Engineer, has urged local personnel to become fire hunters in their homes.

According to Colonel Griffin more than half of the fires start in either the kitchen or the living room. Bedrooms and basements are the sources of more than 10 per cent, while concealed wall, ceiling and floor spaces and attics are other principal starting points.

Matches and bad smoking habits cause the most home fires. Heating and cooking equipment, electrical hazards, rubbish, defective chimneys and flues and ignition of flammable liquids are other leading causes which can be overcome.

A quick preventive check of these potential hazards in your home could be your most valuable fire insurance. Why not join the fire hunting crowd during National Fire Prevention Week?

The Barbary Coast in old San Francisco was once a great favorite with Presidio soldiers. It was here they received their "social" baptism by fire . . . a solid three blocks of dance halls . . . each with its own saloon attached . . . pianos tinkling and gramophones blaring as the swinging doors creaked in jig time.

The Eye Wink dance hall was a particular soldier favorite. It was in 1906 that Will Irwin, in his story—"The City That Was"—described the hell that broke out in the Eye Wink because of a sailor known as Kanaka Pete. Pete lived in the What Cheer House, and he had a yen for a gal called Iodoform Kate. Kate's feminine eye was attracted to another admirer, but not for long. . . . Kanaka Pete loaded the trespasser's heart with a blast of lead as he entered the Eye Wink. The bullets that cut down Kate's extracurricular activity were preserved as souvenirs until the great fire of San Francisco burned out the fair, the foul, the contrary and the kind, including the Eye Wink.

Fringing the waterfront, the Barbary Coast never permitted anything of a commonplace nature to occur within its precincts. Some poor trusting soul seeing the sights or having himself a quiet drink in a saloon there was frequently dropped unsuspectingly through a trap door in the floor or the sidewalk and spirited underground to the water's edge, to wake up shanghaied . . . on a whaling vessel bound for the Arctic. . . . It was only during the last decade that the San Francisco police and the Sailor's Union banded together with the foreign consuls to put an end to the practice.

Novelists described Kearny Street . . . the main thoroughfare, as a Street of Adventure from which casual wanderers could be inveigled into taking part in any lawless venture, from destroying a statue to shipping out in search of some fabulous, often phony, treasure in the South Seas.

Robert Louis Stevenson, Frank Norris and Rudyard Kipling were its historians . . . drawn here by the writer's quest for atmosphere . . . more than adequate . . . as their novels testify.

The Saturday afternoon parade in San Francisco was one of the highlights of its fabulous weekends. The ladies . . . rose-petaled of cheeks, and hauntingly beautiful behind veils and the feathered hats . . . would pass and repass the five blocks between Market and Powell, or Sutter and Kearny Streets . . . to be ogled by the male dandies en route to the "Cocktail Strip" where they engaged in the social amenities of their time.

Early writers describe the event as resembling an Easter parade in South America. . . . Tall, busty and ultra-feminine in the manner of their bearing, they are said to have been as graceful as Diana. The connoisseurs admired them, but because it seems, of their sameness, there was often a hankering for some of the fire and the changing expression of the more Latin type . . . a hankering later fulfilled by the arrival of the French and the Greeks who settled on the Barbary Coast rim.

Restaurants and cafes were just as plentiful and as popular in old San Francisco as they are today. For instance, for one dollar, sometimes only half, it was possible to get a seven-course dinner. The State of California was self-sustaining in practically all its food needs . . . the bay was full of a variety of seafood . . . the fruit orchards rimmed the town . . . and the best of meats, game and vegetables could be found anywhere.

Strangely . . . the chefs all came from France in those days. They passed on their skills with the skillet to the Chinese and the Italians who came after them . . . a legacy of fine food and atmosphere that remains unchallenged even today.

Is it any wonder then that Presidio soldiers of yesteryear loved to wander in this paradise of the uprooted? This great-hearted, buxom, blond-crested city . . . gold-washed by sunlight as well as by her more materially precious metal . . . kindly toward the wanderer . . . an enigmatic mother to the displaced children of the world.

Have Your Dependents Card?

Washington (ANS)—Do you have DD Forms 1173 for all your dependents?

An urgent warning was sounded in the Pentagon yesterday that nearly 100,000 dependents might be denied commissary, PX, medical care and other privileges after the first of the year unless they or their sponsors applied for DD Form 1173 at once!

All persons entitled to privileges, other than active duty and retired personnel, must have this form (Armed Forces Identification and Privilege Card) in their possession to qualify for the privileges after December 31st, according to AR 606-5.

Officials have warned that "secondary dependents" (that is, parents, parents-in-law, adopted children, common-law wives, persons divorced in Mexico or other foreign countries, dependent husbands or un-remarried widowers, unmarried legitimate children over 21 but not yet 23) must have a verification of their dependency from the Finance Center, US Army, before the form can be issued them.

"Since from 6 to 8 weeks are required to process such verification," read the warning, "persons who have not applied before October 31st run the risk of leaving themselves or their dependents without protection from January 1st until such time as their applications are processed and the card issued."

In the case of sudden severe illness, this lack of protection could cause serious hardship.

The many privileges available to dependents are among the greatest benefits of an Army career. Be sure your dependents qualify for them. If you haven't yet applied for their Uniformed Services Identification and Privilege Cards, do it today! See your Personnel Officer for assistance!

Overseas Areas Aided By 30th Group Experts

This overseas element of the 660th Engineer Battalion operates as the topographic section of the U.S. military advisory group to Iran. It is organized from officers and men on one-year temporary duty assignments. Its mission is to carry out the Iran Survey Project, assigned to the 30th Engineer Group by the Army Map Service on 6 June, 1956.

This detachment, commanded by Major Luther Payne, is accomplishing three missions: connecting the basic geodetic control

On its 18th birthday, the 30th Engineers' commander, Col. Lawrence R. St. John, informs his command that "The need for new techniques in geodesy, in photogrammetry, in map reproduction, and in the logistics of map distribution demands that every man be better trained and more creative than ever before. And the familiar red shield of the 30th Engineer Group, with its confident motto 'Imprimis'—in the first place—continues to denote the distinguished past and confident future of mapping in the Corps of Engineers."

networks of Turkey, Iraq and Pakistan, through Iran; establishing a line of geodetic level stations based on sea level, for use in mapping and construction in Iran; and training Iranian technicians in American surveying and mapping techniques.

There are 38 military personnel from the 30th Engineer Group now in Iran. The Imperial Iranian Army furnishes 76 officers, 61 enlisted men, and 6 civilians to this project. After receiving training by the U.S. advisors, these Iranian personnel conduct the field surveys under supervision by the 30th Engineers' men.

In spite of all the problems of supplying and maintaining U.S. surveyors in the primitive Iranian country, the work has been progressing excellently.

Army L-17B is one type of excess aircraft that has been made available to the newly organized Army sponsored Presidio Flying Club. The group will get two L-17B's and one L-21.

Presidio Flying Club Seeks New Members

An Army sponsored Presidio Flying Club which will be able to utilize excess Army aircraft is now being organized, Col. D. K. Armstrong, club president, announced this week.

Membership is open to military personnel on active duty in the Bay Area, their dependents, retired personnel and Federal employees working at military installations.

Purpose of the club is to stimulate an interest in aviation, provide authorized personnel with an opportunity to engage in flying as a recreational activity, and to encourage and develop skills in aeronautics, navigation, mechanics and related aero sciences.

Two L-17B's and one L-21 have been made available to the club by the Department of the Army.

Membership fees include $30 for initiation and $3 monthly dues. Monthly meetings will be held in Bldg. 204. Further information is available from Capt. Bernard D. Thompson, Jr., Ext. 2788.

PTA Meet Tuesday

The Fort Winfield Scott PTA holds its Membership Drive Luncheon Tuesday, 8 October, in the school auditorium at 1230 hours.

Miss Ruth Pechart, the school principal, will conduct an introductory discussion on the new report cards soon to be put in use.

Here's Why You Should Give To Crusade Drive

This year Presidio personnel will be given the facts on why they should donate to the United Bay Area Crusade. From there on, it will be up to them—and their common sense.

The facts are that—by making "One Big Give"—an individual is able to do his part in supporting 256 different causes in the Bay Area. This greatly reduces the expense in making individual drives for each charity, and it greatly reduces the bother to the individual who will be asked only once.

More than half of the total funds collected will go to support family and children's services and youth. Agencies sponsored by religious faiths and non-sectarian organizations like the Salvation Army will receive funds enabling them to spread a blanket of assistance that will reach every family and child in the community.

Your children and your neighbor's children will certainly make use of the funds that go to support boys' and girls' clubs, troops, councils, centers and associations that guide them in good citizenship and teach them to get along with other members of their group.

The third biggest piece in the United Crusade pie, 18.2 per cent, goes to military and disaster services. This means the Red Cross and six USO clubs in the Bay Area that are specifically occupied with helping the men in uniform. Nine Red Cross chapters in the Area provide disaster relief, as well as free classes in first aid, water safety, and home nursing.

The money is collected by volunteer manpower — 50,000 strong in the Bay Area — who work without pay. The money is distributed by a volunteer group that carefully studies each agency's expenses and determines its allocation.

Community health services, including visiting nurses, a blood bank, hospitals and clinics which provide free or part-pay service, receive 8.7 per cent of the money. Another 7.7 per cent goes to national health organizations such as the American Cancer Society, Heart Association, Cerebral Palsy, the Mental Health Society, the Multiple Sclerosis Society and the Rheumatism Foundation.

A final 14.7 per cent of the collected money is divided among administration costs which include campaign costs and promotion, budgeting and planning, administration and public information, reserve against loss and amortization, national services.

Will Presidio personnel open their hearts and support the Bay Area Crusade on a strictly volunteer basis? One man who thinks they will is the President of the United States who recently said:

"I know that all employees everywhere, as well as the members of the armed forces, will continue to give it their wholehearted support. To give to these deserving causes does more than provide them with necessary support—it helps to fill our personal need for serving in the cause of mankind."

New Date Set For Paper Drive By Local Scouts

The Presidio Boy Scouts' paper collection, originally slated for 28 September, was canceled due to rainy weather. It has been rescheduled to get rolling on the morning of 19 October.

Quarters occupants are asked to have their discarded newspapers (no magazines included) stacked on either front or back porches on the given Saturday morning for pickup by the local Scouts.

Money derived from the salvaged newspaper sale will be contributed to the Presidio Youth Activities Fund.

Story Hour Set

A story hour for pre-school children is being conducted from 1000 to 1030 hours each Wednesday at the Fort Scott Library. The program began this week.

549th Back From White Mountain Survey Project

After three and a half months of extensive field surveying in the White Mountain area of California, the 549th Engineer Company came home to Fort Scott this week.

The Company, Commanded by Lt. George Jacob, completed the first phase of a project which consisted of the surveying of five quadrangles in that area. The project, which will be completed in subsequent seasons, is being performed in conjunction with the United States Geological Survey in Sacramento, California.

The 549th performed all field surveying and primary computations, which included triangulation and leveling operations, and classification of detail.

Since the quadrangles contained some extremely mountainous areas, the unit was supported by helicopters from the 521st Engineer Company, which proved to be of great value in transportation of survey parties and equipment.

Aviation Plays Top Role

In recent years, Army Aviation has made great strides in every field it has entered. Among these fields is Topographic Aviation. The 30th Engineer Group has taken full advantage of what Army Aviation has to offer the Topographic Survey Group through the 521st Engineer Company stationed at Stockton, California.

Since the first helicopters and fixed wing craft were provided to the 30th Engineers in 1950, dependence upon the skill and effectiveness of the Engineer Aviators has constantly increased. The outstanding success of the survey operations in the mountains and muskeg of Alaska and in the California Desert is largely attributed to the ability of the aviators to get the surveyors into the most remote and forbidding areas and to support them there while they complete their work.

The 521st Engineer Company has 10 fixed-wing aircraft and 28 helicopters for reconnaissance and cargo carrying missions. They are also capable of flying some aerial photography for the Group.

The Company's current mission includes supporting 30th Engineer Group survey projects, providing support to various special activities in the Sixth U.S. Army area, and providing advanced training for Engineer aviators in the highly-demanding techniques of "pinpoint flying."

30th Engineers Slate 'O' Day Fete

Tough Jobs—Well Done Highlight Unit History

Another autumn has arrived . . . the eighteenth since the military formation at Portland, Oregon, at which every second man answered "Here!", stepped out of ranks and removed his blue 29th Engineer insignia; and the 30th Engineer Battalion was born. And today the 30th Engineers are celebrating full maturity, tempered by the Second World War, the Korean conflict, and continuing world-wide responsibilities.

In its birthday, in September, 1939, Hitler's new war was blazing across the plains of Poland. The US Army existed only in a small core of disciplined Regulars, and in the farsighted mobility plans then being carried out. These plans for a new Army demanded flexibility and mobility. They required initiative and intelligence from every man. This meant that it must have more maps per man than any army in history . . . that those maps must be compiled, printed, and distributed in the field in immediate response to the commander's decision.

This was why one of the first of the new Army units to be activated was the 30th Engineer Topographic Battalion. For the 30th Engineers inherited the fine traditions and prestige of the 29th Engineers, along with some of the best topographic specialists in the United States Army. And the 30th Engineers, in turn, was to train hundreds of skilled technicians and to father more topographic battalions and companies before itself moving into a theater of war.

The newly-activated 30th left Portland for its new home at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, sailing from San Francisco to New York via the Panama Canal on a troop transport painted with brightly-lighted American flags as protection against the new sea war. There, it expanded and grew, adding survey companies and mobile map reproduction units.

As U. S. entry into the war loomed, the unit activated new topographic units for every theater of operations. One of these was the 660th Engineer Battalion, which served in Europe and Panama before "coming home" to the 30th Engineers in 1954.

In November, 1943, the 30th Engineers sailed for Casablanca. From North Africa it supported the Allied war effort in the Mediterranean. There it received the first of two Meritorious Unit Service plaques "for Superior performance of exceptionally difficult tasks."

After the invasion of southern Europe, the 30th was deployed intact to the Pacific. Moving through the United States, it sailed from Fort Lawton, Washington, on New Year's Eve, 1944, for Hawaii. There, working in an underground plant, the 30th Engineers produced maps for the stepped-up war operations in the western Pacific. It received its second unit award for this outstanding effort.

From 1945 to 1949 the unit concentrated on field surveying for new large-scale maps of the Pacific Islands. It operated survey companies in the Palau, Solomons, Admiralties, and on New Britain. These, the last U. S. troops in the South Pacific, withdrew in late 1949 when the 30th Engineers returned to the Presidio of San Francisco to start a new mission.

New large-scale maps of vast areas of Alaska were needed, and the 30th Engineers was assigned the job of providing field survey control. So for each summer, from 1950 through 1955, a task force of up to seven hundred men moved to Alaska, supported by landing craft, "Weasels" to negotiate the tundra and muskeg, and dozens of aircraft. This tremendous project was finished in 1955, when the 30th's largest task force to date landed on the extreme northern rim of the continent in a race against the freeze-up.

Since that date, units of the 30th Engineers have been deployed to Panama and Libya. A detachment is now performing high-order surveys in Iran, in cooperation with the military advisory group. On the other side of the world, astronomers and electronics technicians are engaged in precise star-moon observations. And companies of the assigned 660th Battalion are completing new mapping surveys of remote areas of the western United States.

At the Presidio, a base mapping plant provides stereo-compilation of new maps from aerial photographs, and complete map reproducing service. The aviation company, located in the sun at Stockton, California, is continuing to support 30th Engineer operations and Sixth US Army special projects.

Photomapping Top Function Of 21st Team

Photogrammetry, the science or art of obtaining reliable measurements by means of photography, is the key to the military map compilation of the 21st Engineer Company. The skilled technicians of this unit are engaged in producing detailed map manuscripts and color-separated drawings to the accuracy and quality specifications of the Army Map Service.

Activated with the 30th Engineer Group in September of 1939, the 21st Engineer Company, then known as Company "B" (Photomapping), was made up of the highly skilled specialists of the 29th Engineer Battalion. It has remained within the Group since then and was redesignated the 21st Engineer Company in 1950.

While continuing with map compilation projects of Pacific island areas, the unit is training technicians and supervisors, providing photo-evaluation support to Air Force aerial photographic units, and testing newly-developed Engineer mapping equipment. During the past year it has converted its color-separation process, one of the most time-consuming operations in the mapping sequence, entirely from the traditional ink drafting to the more rapid method of plastic scribing.

Equipment, Mobility Key 99th's Record

The 99th Engineer Company of the 30th Engineers is organized and equipped to print millions of military maps per month in a theater of war. Its record of map reproduction in two theaters during World War II still stands as an example and inspiration to its present members.

The Company was born in February, 1941, when Company "C" (Reproduction Company) was added to the 30th Engineer Battalion, thus making the Battalion a complete map making organization. In 1941, during the Louisiana and North Carolina Army maneuvers, mobile reproduction units made up of personnel from "C" Company, supplied the majority of maps used. These maneuvers tested for the first time the new concept of mobile map production in direct support of combat units.

During the war, the 30th produced more than 500 separate large-scale maps in support of the push to Rome, the invasion of the Dalmatian Coast, the landings in Southern France and the march on Lyon, France. Later, in the Pacific theater of war, over six hundred maps and charts of Japanese held territories were reproduced. All these maps were printed by "C" Company.

Real Fine Job!

Material on the 30th Engineer Group Organization Day was prepared by Major Gordon L. Smith, Assistant Group S3, and 1st Lt. Kenneth Hoberman, former Assistant Group S3. The art work was done by Sfc. Edward J. Meister, Headquarters Company, 30th Engineer Group.

In December, 1947, the Company was redesignated the 99th Engineer Base Reproduction Company and continued to operate with the Group in its mission in the post war mapping program.

Its present reproduction plant, located at Fort Scott, Presidio of San Francisco, has been continually improved since the Company returned from Hawaii in 1949. The only such base map reproduction plant in the continental United States, it now operates at a fraction of its potential capacity, printing maps to meet requirements of the Sixth US Army and training a regular flow of officers and men in the military graphic arts.

549th On Job From Desert To Tundra

The 549th Engineer Company has spent the greater part of its history in places ranging in latitude and climate from deserts of Southern California to the northern tundra regions of Alaska.

The main body of the 549th Engineer Company has recently returned from the White Mountain area of California where, in conjunction with the United States Geological Survey, the unit has undertaken the mapping of five quadrangles. This project, like many others taken by the survey companies, is not expected to be finished in one season.

The surveying of areas like these, is greatly expedited by the use of helicopters, since peaks over 13,000 feet in elevation are included in the quadrangles.

MapperCode Is Realism Ingenuity

The only such unit in the active Army, the 171st Engineer Detachment is continuing to test various methods of producing three-dimensional terrain models and plastic relief maps. Operating with a variety of materials obtained locally or through regular supply agencies this unit's peacetime experience will result in improvement and standardization of model and relief map making methods in the field during wartime.

The large scale terrain models which it produces, showing detail in any desired degree, are always in demand for assault planning and special operations. And its corollary product, standard maps printed on plastic and heat-formed to show relief in three dimensions as well as by contour lines, opens a new field for the Corps of Engineers in its topographical service to the Army.

The 171st Engineer Detachment (Relief Map) was activated in 1950 at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, as the 531st Model Making Detachment. The Army designated its mission as the construction of plastic relief maps, detailed terrain models, and three dimensional training aids. Some of its original projects were the reconstruction and renovation of approximately 500 existing terrain models, the construction of a series of terrain models of the Prince, West Virginia, bridge test site area, the preparation of terrain models for the Pentagon and the Smithsonian Institution, and the construction of displays and display models for Fort Lee, Virginia.

On March 20, 1955, the unit was redesignated the 171st Engineer Detachment of the 99th Engineer Company, and assigned to the 30th Engineer Group at the Presidio.

Parade, Barbecue Mark Group's 18th Birthday

The 30th Engineer Group (Topographic Survey) located at Fort Scott, Presidio of San Francisco, is celebrating 30th Engineer Day today, in a deferred celebration of the 18th anniversary of its organization day. The 30th Engineers was activated as a battalion on 1 September 1938, and that date is its official Unit Day; however, celebration was postponed this year to permit participation of the 549th Engineer Base Survey Company, which returned to its home station on 25 September from a summer spent surveying near Bishop, California.

Ceremonies and festivities will center around the Fort Scott parade ground.

Scheduled activities will commence at 0900 with a Group Parade, followed by unit competition for the annual trophy. A barbecue lunch will be prepared and served out-of-doors, to the music of the Sixth Army Pipe Band. An officer-enlisted men softball game will be played after lunch.

An annual trophy will be awarded at a final assembly at 1530. Group officers and families will meet for dinner in the Fort Scott Annex, Presidio Officers Open Mess.

Competitive events include precision drill, jeep wheel-changing, tug-of-war, softball-throwing, carbine-stripping, tent-pitching, and cake-baking.

The 30th Engineer Battalion was activated in Portland, Oregon, with a cadre from the 29th Engineer Battalion, the Army's oldest topographic unit. The 30th Engineers trained at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, in 1939-1940, and furnished cadres for many more topo units during 1941-42. In 1943 it sailed to North Africa, where it provided maps for the Italian campaign and the invasion of southern France. It was deployed to Hawaii in January 1945, where it supported the final operations in the Pacific, and then mounted major mapping-survey operations in the Pacific Islands under the Post-Hostilities Mapping Program.

It returned to the States in December 1949, and has since carried out extensive surveying operations in Alaska each summer and southern California each winter. To perform this mission the battalion became an Engineer Group.

Since completion of the Alaska Project in 1955, the 30th Engineers have furnished survey companies to Panama and Libya, and is now maintaining a survey detachment in Iran. In addition it operates a map-compiling and map-printing

537th Stays Busy On Key Projects

In January of this year, the 537th Engineer Company moved en masse to Thermal, California, to survey for maps of the Anza Desert. Although progress was hindered by dust, heat, and desert conditions which the very name Thermal implies, four and one-half quadrangles were completed before the Company returned to Fort Scott in April.

From April through July, the 537th Engineer Company furnished personnel for an Army Map Service project in Yakima, Washington. Here the men went from the heat of Southern California to the snow and rain of Mt. Bishop National Park. The Company now has men on different projects throughout the western part of the United States.

plant at its Fort Scott headquarters, where aerial photographs and survey data are compiled and printed as large-scale military topographic maps.

Group units include the 660th Engineer Battalion, the 521st Engineer Company, the 21st Engineer Company, the 99th Engineer Company, the 171st Engineer Detachment, and the Group Hq. and Hq. Company.

The 30th Engineer Group is commanded by Colonel Lawrence R. St. John. The 660th Engineer Battalion is commanded by Lt. Colonel Richard M. Underwood.

Remoteness No Bar To Survey Men

Principal mission of the 660th Engineer Battalion is to perform field surveying for military mapping. This task involves the use of precise instruments to measure angles and distances on the earth's surface. These angles and measurements are used to compute the latitude and longitude of selected positions, which eventually form the framework of a modern map. Details of the map are compiled from aerial photographs which have been precisely related to the field survey control points.

The nature of the survey mission requires that the men of the 660th Battalion penetrate the most remote and undeveloped areas and remain there for weeks or months. Frequently the only possible entry is by helicopter, and food or water may have to be parachuted from supporting light aircraft.

Men of the 660th Engineer Battalion are celebrating the 18th anniversary of the 30th Engineers in widely separated locations, from the deserts of ancient Iran to the snow-capped mountains of Montana and California.

The 660th Engineer Battalion consists of Headquarters Detachment and two survey Companies, the 537th Engineer Company and the 549th Engineer Company.

Los Angeles Cops Early Lead In Swim Fest

Bowling Off And Running; Shatters, Recruiters Lead

The winter season of the Presidio Bowling League got off to a great beginning as the Recruiters and the Shatters both blanked their opponents.

The Recruiters rolled over the King Pins 4-0 to grab an early lead in the new season's play. Leading the Recruiters was Burmister with 501-192. Lansing was high for the losers with 491-192.

Keeping a tight hold on first place were the Shatters as they defeated H.Q. Co., 6th Army, 4-0. Schell led the Shatters to their 4-0 shutout with a 470-180. Wilmonth was high for H.Q. Co., 6th Army, with a 488-185.

The Atoms' triumph over the Honor Guard showed the first place teams that they are not going to be easily defeated in this coming season's play. The Atoms splintered the Honor Guard, 3-1. Leading the Atoms was Druba with 613-246. High for the Honor Guard was Jackson with 440-170.

The Keystone Kops got their season off to a good start also by defeating the Toros, 3-1. McInturff, one of the League's outstanding bowlers, was high for the Kops with 555-215. High man for the losers was Auer with 472-183.

The Bay League, Pacific League, and the Mixed Bowling League all get under way next week.

Did you know that for their size, beetles are the strongest of all creatures?

Fishing on the Presidio

We've been getting many inquiries about fishing, so we now give you the dope, straight from the fish's mouth!

Mr. Perch Sez:

"I get caught at the Fort Point Engineer dock and at the Fort Barry dock. My size isn't important because you can always catch me and I provide sport for the whole family. Any lazy man can hook me! I'm available all year; no closed season. Use a light fresh water casting or spinning outfit, and make sure you wash the gear in fresh water after you get home.

"I'm caught best on a size 8 hook with a piece of shrimp about the size of a pencil eraser for bait, and a half-ounce weight.

"Pack a lunch some Sunday; get Ma and the kids. Grab a package of commissary shrimp and come on down. It's fun for the whole family.

"Come on, soldiers! Me and my family will be delighted to meet you here."

Watch That Bass

A conservation-minded judge has served a warning that he will be tough on violators who take undersized striped bass illegally in his district. Judge Milo E. Dye of Walnut Grove told the Department of Fish and Game he would fine such violators $25 plus $5 for each undersized striper, "and if this does not stop them," he added, "it will be $10 per fish."

RAADCOM Meet Winds Up At Letterman Today

The Los Angeles Defense Area, sparked by two fine performances by Clifford Hubach, took a convincing early lead in the first annual Sixth Region U.S. Army Air Defense Command swimming and diving tournament being held at the Letterman Army Hospital Sports Center Pool.

After the first day of competition, the Los Angeles Defense Area led with a total of thirty-two points as they captured first and second place in all four events. Hanford was second with eight points, followed by San Francisco with two points, and Seattle with one.

The results of the first four events were: 200 yard backstroke: first place, Hubach, Los Angeles; second place, Milo Rowell, Los Angeles; third place, Larry Green, Hanford; and fourth place, Linwood Butts, San Francisco. The 100 yard freestyle event was won by Ken Gengler of Los Angeles. In second place was Landry Treague, also from Los Angeles, followed by Tony Guido of Hanford in third place and Dana Gordon, of San Francisco, in fourth spot.

The 100 yard breast stroke was won by Stewart Evans, Los Angeles, followed by Andrew Daigau, Los Angeles; Daniel Adams, Hanford; and Francisco Jayme, Seattle. Hubach came back to win the last event, the 400 yard individual medley. In second place was Basil Meyer, also from Los Angeles, followed by Larry Green of Hanford in third spot.

The meet concludes today with the first of four events scheduled to begin at 1315 hours. They are the 200 yard butterfly stroke; the 400 yard freestyle; the 1 meter diving; and the 400 yard medley relay.

This tournament is the first held at the regional level under the newly-expanded athletic program of the U.S. Army Air Defense Command. In addition to command-wide competition in major sports, the Sixth Region plans to hold tournaments in three more sports—golf, bowling, and table tennis.

Army Tabs Ticks

The Army is catching up with the tick.

For years the tiny bug has plagued the private lives of fighting men, as any soldier who has scratched himself to sleep while on bivouac can attest.

Now the Army is turning the tables. It is bombarding the little nuisance with radio activity, chasing him with Geiger counters and completely upsetting his love life.

It started when the Entomology Dept. of the Fourth Army Medical Laboratory decided to study the tick's biology to determine whether it would transmit rabies virus when hosted on rabid bats.

The object of all this is to find the best insecticide for the ticks.

PRESIDIO

The intramural touch football program at the Presidio is moving into the third week of play with two leagues of the three in full motion. The AAA League at Fort Baker is starting this week and was delayed by the ARADCOM softball tournament being held at their field.

In the Presidio League the MRU is out in front with two wins and no losses. In their game this week they rolled over 16th BPO 27-18, after trailing the whole game. The 16th BPO scored on a 25-yard sprint by Arcaro and on two great pass plays. Averitt threw and connected for two touchdowns, one to Hoffman for 50 yards and one to Herritt for 40 yards.

The MRU tallied on a run by Johnson for 60 yards and passes from Frankenberg to Gordon for 30 yards; Johnson to Frankenberg 25 yards and Coniglio to Johnson for 20 yards.

In the Engineer League the rain and parade held up the schedule and the league is still in a wide open condition. The 46th Ord. suffered their second defeat at the hands of the 99th Eng. 20-12. The 99th scored on passes of 60 yards from Barneski to Carmody; Barneski to Levy 30 yards and 35 yards.

The 46th Ord. scored with Paul Belay running 15 yards and Syminski to Thompson on a 25-yard pass play.

All games that were scheduled and were postponed will be run off this coming week.

Top Lady Golfers Begin Play Today

Presidio Quintet Hampered By Serious Player Shortage

The 1957-58 basketball season is right around the corner as the Toreros begin practice for the coming year.

Coach Hal Fischer feels doubtful that the Toreros will be able to defend their championships set up by last year's outstanding team.

Mr. Fischer is in grave need of some height to go along with this year's speed. Coach Fischer stated, "that you can be deadly from the field but without the ball it is impossible to win the ball game." Mr. Fischer requests that all companies help to get men out for the team.

In last year's season the Toreros reigned as Sixth U.S. Army Champions, Runner-up All-Army; Northern California Armed Forces; Bay Area Armed Forces, Central Sixth U.S. Army and Runner-up Southwestern AAU Invitational Tournament.

Some of the returning members of last year's championship team are Tony Psaltis, Carrol Williams, Tor Hanson and Bob Bondanza.

Championship Trophy is presented by Maj. Gen. D. J. McGaw to Sgt. Merle Rindess and 1st Lt. Bruce Crawford, coach of the 20th AAA Gun Bn., of Seattle, Wash., which won the US Army Air Defense Command Softball Tournament, held two weeks ago at the Fort Baker diamond.

License Decline Noted This Year

Hunting license and deer tag sales through August both show declines, the Department of Fish and Game reported.

License sales through August totaled $235,870, a drop of $47,246 from the sales of the 1956-57 licenses for the comparable period last year. Total reported deer tag sales through August amount to $88,262, a decrease of $17,693 from the figure for last year at this time.

Sales of 1957 angling licenses, however, are steadily increasing. Through August, license agents reported 1,146,920 licenses sold. This figure is well ahead of last year at this time when 1,117,500 were accounted for through August. Sales of the 1957 series have amounted to $3,402,054, an increase of $84,516 over the comparable period in 1956.

Runner-up Trophy Here

Captain Frank W. Sample, captain of this year's Post tennis team, presented the Sixth Army runner-up trophy to Col. Charles G. Rau, Post Commander, this week.

The Post team was second to Fort Ord in the area tournament.

Hawks, Owls Now On Protected List

Hunters who like to plink away at other targets while pursuing deer are reminded by the Department of Fish and Game that all hawks and owls are now on the list of protected birds. Shooting of hawks and owls was prohibited by act of the 1957 Legislature.

The list of nonprotected birds now includes only the following: English sparrows, crows, American or black-billed magpies, California or scrub jays, Steller's or crested jays, and starlings. Any of these may be taken at any time.

Half-Price Tickets On Tap for Military

Some of the nation's outstanding professional and amateur women golfers tee off today in the long awaited first National United Voluntary Services Golf Swing Club Ladies Open Golf Tournament at the Presidio Course.

A pre-tournament clinic was held yesterday afternoon.

The proceeds of the three-day star-studded tourney, which concludes Sunday evening, will be used by UVS to provide golf facilities for Veterans' Hospitals and for military installations throughout North America.

Among the many top women golfers competing are: Patty Berg, Gloria Armstrong, Vonnie Colby, Kathy Cornelius, Fay Crocker, Betty Dodd, Mary Lena Faulk, Gloria Fecht, Marlene Bauer Hagge, Beverly Hanson, Betty Hicks, Betty Jameson, Ruthie Jensen, Jackie Pung, Bonnie Randolph, Marilyn Smith, Louise Suggs, Joyce Ziske, Barbara Williams, Anne Quast, Mrs. Fred Wetmore, Mrs. Barbara Romack Porter, Angie Vote, Mrs. Ruth Miller, Joan Weeks, Mrs. William Hartson, Chris ViSibio, and Lucille Wardell.

Starting times are at 1030 hours and 1300 hours Friday through Sunday.

Sgt. Kahn, NCOIC of the Post United Service Golf Club Office, announced that tickets to the tourney are selling rather slow, but that a last minute rush is anticipated.

Season tickets for all three days are priced at $5.00 apiece and may be obtained at all golf clubs. Single admission tickets may be purchased at the course at $1.50 for today's play, and $2.50 each for Saturday and Sunday.

Sgt. Kahn announced that military personnel in uniform will be admitted for half price.

Meet Tony Psaltis—Presidio Basketball Ace

Just mention the name Tony Psaltis to any Pacific Coast basketball fan, and this will bring into mind the 1953 University of Southern California's cinderella team.

Tony Psaltis, of the Post Special Services, attended USC from 1952 to 1956. He played basketball for four years, the first with the freshman team and the last three with the varsity.

He was a member of the 1953 team which, faced with insurmountable odds, went on to win the PCC title and then the Regionals in a story book finish.

Picked by most experts to finish no better than fourth in the PCC, the USC team defeated a highly regarded UCLA team to win the Conference title and then upset the University of Santa Clara quintet in the Regionals.

The Santa Clara game, according to Tony, was the most exciting moment of his basketball career. Trailing by three points with 40 seconds left, USC stole the ball and tied the score. In the overtime period, USC made a quick point to take the lead. Santa Clara then stalled the ball for four and a half minutes, waiting for the perfect setup which never did materialize, and USC went on to win the Regional crown and the right to represent the West in the NCAA tourney at Kansas City.

That same season, Tony made the Pacific All-Conference team and received honorable mention in the annual "Look" All-American selections.

Tony entered the service in August, 1956. He played on last season's Presidio team which won the Sixth Army Championship and took runner-up honors in the All-Army Finals.

Fort Dix, which boasted such stars as All-Americans Tom Gola of La Salle and Si Green of Duquesne, toppled the locals to win the All-Army crown.

As a result of his outstanding play, Tony, along with another Presidio cager, Carroll Williams, was selected on the Army All-Star team.

Tony will be here for another season and great things are again expected from him.

VA Announces

Electronic Meter Gauges Blood Pressure In Veins

A new electronic meter, about the size of a match stick tip, has been developed to measure venous blood pressure for use in research on heart failure, shock, and other blood circulation disorders, the Veterans Administration has announced.

Dr. Herbert O. Sicker, Assistant Chief of Medical Service at the VA hospital in Durham, N.C., has already used the tiny gauge to measure blood pressure in the veins of 10 normal persons and 15 patients with heart disease symptoms, taking 50 to 100 different readings for each patient.

While doctors have long been able to measure the pulse of the blood as it is pumped through the arteries from the heart, measurement of pressures involved in the return of blood through the veins has been difficult due to the minuteness of venous blood pressure variations. The highest pressures in the extremities are about the weight of a lead pencil, Dr. Sicker explained.

The little meter, called a manometer, is fastened to one end of a thin flexible plastic wire, which is inserted into a vein at a convenient point on the arm.

The manometer contains a small float suspended in a magnetic field. Small pressure variations move the float, sending electrical impulses along the wire to a recording device where the results are read as wave bands by the doctor.

Civilian Leader

John W. Macy, Jr., Executive Director of the Civil Service Commission, will address some 200 Chiefs of Federal Agencies in the Bay Area from 1400 to 1530 hours, Tuesday, at the Post Theater. Mr. Macy will discuss "Personnel Forecasts for 1958."

EM Strength Will Be Cut By December

Some 72 enlisted men serving in the Presidio military area are to be released from active duty by 31 December, in accordance with the Secretary of Defense's order to reduce Army manpower strength to 900,000 by 30 June, 1958.

The same order excludes the further release of officers between now and 31 December; however, it is possible that additional officers will be notified through the next two months that their names are included on release lists to be announced through the months of January and February.

The current DOD order calling for another cut of 50,000 in Army strength is being complied with through a two-part program involving an initial dropping of 21,000 enlisted men, to be followed by a cut of 29,000 men in all grades to meet the existing schedule being completed by 31 December.

In order to comply with existing directives regarding the release of men from the military service, a thorough review of their service records has been ordered at Department of Army level, as a process of evaluation of their training and their skills in relation to the present military needs.

Letterman Lieutenant Gets Regular Army Integration

Four local U.S. Army Reserve officers, one on active duty at Letterman Army Hospital and the others on current inactive status, are included in the President's approved list of 403 Reservists to be appointed members of the Regular Army, the Sixth U.S. Army AG Personnel Section announced today.

Lt. James P. Cooney, Jr., MSC, now assigned to LAH, heads the list of those in the area affected by the new augmentation program. Lieutenant Cooney's selection is one of 12 MSC allocations permitted.

Lt. Reuben J. Camaren, Inf., of Petaluma; Lt. Robert J. O'Brien, CE, of San Francisco; and Lt. Harold M. Grey, TC, Palo Alto, also have been notified that they have been selected to take the preliminary physical examinations and other tests governing their appointments.

The complete list, as approved by President Eisenhower, permits "recess appointments," subject to later routine Senate confirmation.

Of the 403 confirmed for possible augmentation, 375 are to receive appointments in the grade of second lieutenant. Some 201 of these are now serving under the given grade, 172 as first lieutenants and two hold the grade of Captain, AUS.

In addition, 27 officers are to receive permanent grades of first lieutenant. One of these due for permanent grade of captain, is currently serving in the temporary grade of major. Two more lists are due for Army-wide release by 1 December, with most appointments expected in the grade of first lieutenant and a few small units of captaincies and field grade officers anticipated.

To qualify for the given RA appointments, candidates must pass a Regular Army physical examination and carry out another oath of office.

Conscience - - The Campaigner

No competition—no compulsion—merely the strong pull of conscience will be your guide in contributing to the United Bay Area Crusade this year.

The 256 varied service organizations have been listed and explained to you. You have heard the arguments supporting one big drive. You are happy with the convenience of only one contribution. But will you listen to your conscience? Will you give as much as you would if you were solicited 256 different times during the year?

How much will you give? One day's pay? Coffee and cigarette money for a month? The cost of a movie for two? Only you and your conscience will know your decision as you fill the blank envelope.

Every one of us will benefit from your contribution. Our hopes lie with your conscience.

Vivacious Newcomer Gets Wac-of-the-Month Crown

"No honor could have pleased me more—on my birthday or any other," said Pvt. Helen M. Tait, a Presidio enlisted woman whose natal date coincided with her Company commander's announcement that Helen had won the garrison's WAC-of-the-Month laurels.

A 19-year-old beauty from suburban Detroit, Private Tait reported to duty here only about two months ago. From her first day of service, however, she is credited by her commanding officer and the company at large as being one of the Corps' most commendable service women, fulfilling all the requirements of the WAC most likely to prove the ideal for all time.

Helen reported here from a training course in office administration at the Adjutant General School, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana. She was assigned to the Sixth U.S. Army's Machine Records Unit where she had just begun to establish herself as a competent records clerk when she became a patient at Letterman Army Hospital.

While still on patient status at the hospital, Helen requested medical permission to participate with her company members in the retirement parade honoring Lt. General Robert N. Young, former Sixth U.S. Army Commander. Her doctor granted that favor which she now treasures as one of the most memorable in her short military career.

In summing up her stay here, Helen says: "I could never wish

During this time CWO Schwartz was responsible for operation of the message center, accounting for funds, security of classified documents and supervision of normal administrative activities. His ability to meet these varied responsibilities resulted in a smooth functioning section.

CWO Schwartz has been in the military service for more than 21 years. He has served in various posts in the United States, Europe, and Korea. Numbered among his other awards and decorations are the Bronze Star Medal and the Army Commendation Ribbon with one Oak Leaf Cluster. CWO Schwartz came to the Presidio on 13 September, 1957.

30th Officer Takes RA Oath

First Lieutenant Stanley R. Forbes, Commanding Officer of Headquarters Company, 30th Engineer Group, has become one of the first officers to be sworn into the Regular Army under the integration program initiated in 1956.

A native of Morgantown, West Virginia, Lieutenant Forbes was graduated from West Virginia University in 1951 with a B.S. Degree in Mining Engineering. He received his Reserve Commission through the Reserve Officers' Training Course and was activated in 1952 after completing an additional year of studies in engineering.

Lieutenant Forbes served as an instructor in topography at the Engineer School at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, and was stationed with the USAREUR Communications Zone, at Fort Bussac, France, for three years before coming to the Presidio in June, 1956. He served as Assistant Group S-4 until his recent assignment as Company Commander of Headquarters Company.

The Bay Section of the California Association of Supervisors of Child Welfare, part of a state organization organized to promote the work of child welfare and attendance throughout the school systems of California, will hold its annual meeting today at the Presidio to discuss the military aspects of students' futures.

The group will hold a luncheon at the Presidio Officers' Club to be preceded by a short formal meeting. Major General John J. Binns, Sixth U.S. Army Chief of Staff, will greet the Bay Section members on behalf of Lt. Gen. Lemuel Mathewson, Sixth U.S. Army Commander. General Binns will address the group on the subject: "Opportunities Opened to Youth Through Military Service."

In the afternoon the group will visit Battery Caulfield to observe one of the NIKE installations in operation. Lt. Col. Charles P. Samson, Company Commander of the 740th AAA Missile Battalion, will escort the group and will discuss with them the qualifications necessary for NIKE crewmen and officers.

Top Presidio Marksmen Win More Pistol Events

The newly crowned California State Pistol Champions, the Presidio Pistol Team, exhibited their top marksmanship by taking first place in a Northern California Pistol Match Sunday. The match was sponsored by the Oakland Pistol and Rifle Club.

Team members also took individual honors in four events and the first three places in the Grand Aggregate, based on total scores in the day's firing. The team scored 1154 out of a possible 1200 in marking up its latest win.

Sfc. Nelson H. Lincoln, Sfc. Antonio V. Soza and M/Sgt. James L. Wade walked off with the top three places in the Grand Aggregate. Sergeant Lincoln also took first place in the Camp Perry Course which is fired at 25 yards; third place in the Centerfire National Match Course; and scored a very high 293 to take first place in the .45 caliber National Match Course.

Sergeant Wade placed second in both the Centerfire and .22 caliber National Match Courses.

A newcomer to the Presidio, Sergeant Soza scored second in the .45 caliber National Match Course, third in both the .22 National Match Course and the Camp Perry Course and fourth in the Centerfire National Match Course.

First Lt. Frank W. Norvell, team alternate, copped first place in the expert class of the .45 Caliber National Match Course. Sfc. Arthur G. Ogden was the fourth member of the winning team.

4th Division Set For Exercises To Test Combat

Some 1600 men of the reinforced 2nd Battle Group will take part in Exercise Cold Bay in the 60 below zero winds of Fort Greeley, Alaska, during February.

Warmer weather will greet the 1400-man contingent participating, along with elements of four other divisions, in the 25,000-man Exercise Gulf Stream at Fort Polk, Louisiana, in March.

Sixth Army Pilot Lauded For Skill In Emergency

On October 2d, at 0815, 1st Lt. Robert Jackson, Sixth US Army Aviation Flight Detachment, took off from Crissy Field on a routine support flight in a twin-engine L-23.

At 0945, Lieutenant Jackson noticed a malfunction in the aircraft, when about to land. He was unable to get the nose wheel to lock as it was stuck in the midway position. In this position, the wheel would have folded under the plane on landing.

A forced landing would have to be made.

Maj. Robert O. Holliday, 6th U.S. Army Flight Detachment CO, decided that the landing should be made at Alameda Naval Air Station, with its special emergency runway and cranes for removing aircraft, rather than tie up Hamilton Field's single runway.

Lieutenant Jackson kept the plane in the air for the next hour and a half in order to use fuel prior to landing.

At 1116, Lieutenant Jackson executed a wheels-up landing, without injury to himself or to his two passengers, First Lieutenants London Evans and Charles Haney.

The plane sustained only slight damage. Two antennae were damaged, one of which caused a small rip in the skin of the craft. The bottom of the tail skid was worn off due to the necessity for a nose high landing.

For his skill in executing the landing without human injuries and with only negligible damage to his craft, Lieutenant Jackson received a citation of commendation from Maj. Gen. John J. Binns, 6th Army Chief of Staff.

Lieutenant Jackson has chalked up 4,500 hours of flying time, including 1,500 hours of instructor flying. In addition he holds an airline transport rating with 1,300 hours of civilian flying time.

During the Korean War, Lieutenant Jackson flew support with the 8th US Army Flight Detachment.

Private First Class John Ikard, Battery A, 9th AAA Missile Battalion, was selected 30th AAA Group Soldier-of-the-Month for October. Ikard, who is a Missile Tracking Radar Operator, received more than $40 in cash and services along with the award.

The 22-year-old soldier was graduated from Kemper Military School at Booneville, Missouri, in 1953, and attended Texas A&M for two years prior to entering the service.

A resident of Midland, Texas, Ikard took his basic training at Fort Bliss, Texas, before reporting to the 9th Battalion in September, 1956.

You're Right, that's Kim Novak, Hollywood movie star, being presented with an award nominating her "The Girl We Would Like Most to Submerge With." The presentation was made by Capt. Charles F. McCurdy, Company Commander of the 561st Engineer Company. The lucky diver is Sp1 Steven Green. Others pictured are Lt. Donald A. Stotts and Sfc. John Raguth, both from the 561st Engineers. Miss Novak was at the Presidio shooting a forthcoming Alfred Hitchcock thriller.

Rowbottom Pays The Pipers; Goes Home With Bonnie Jean

A brau brau Hieland Laddie is Piper Edwin S. Rowbottom of the Sixth U.S. Army Pipe Band! Dressed in his Royal Stewart tartan and doublet of the Royal Scot Guard, Rowbottom piped a hot tune to a lass from Vancouver during the band participation in the Highland Games in Portland, Oregon, last year. The modern Pied Piper returned with his brother pipers—and the heart of Jean Mortensen who danced to his music.

Rowbottom claims that neither the tune or the extra wig-waggle of his kilt was directed exclusively at Jean, but Jean knows better. The couple was married at the Presidio last week.

The wedding was extraordinary in more ways than one! Just as the chaplain, Lt. Colonel Theodore L. Curtis, Jr., intoned solemnly, "I pronounce you man and wife," Edwin's co-pipers—all dressed in their swirling kilts, tore the air apart with a mass rendition of "Highland Wedding," via 14 Scottish bagpipes. And what the bagpipes lacked in brass was submitted by the regular Sixth U.S. Army band in a titanic tintinabulation of the timpani under tilt of the tipstaff. (Go look at your musical dictionary!)

Rowbottom wanted to get married in church but THAT was Rowbottom's idea, only. The Pipe bandmen took the wedding ceremony right out of his hands and transplanted it in the Sixth U.S. Army Band Dayroom, another sacred place where they devoted many hours of musical meditation.

Gilt-framed in the hundreds of trophies won by the Pipe Band in international competition, and colored by candlelight and massed white chrysanthemums and ribbon streamers, the bridal couple promised to love, honor and obey.

Then there were 16 kisses for the bride, from 16 white-spatted giants in full Scottish regalia, and an uncounted number from the regular band musicians.

Jean was given in marriage by CWO Louis Ferraro, band commander. The groom's aide was Piper Jack Donaldson.

There were wedding cakes and quick-tempered Scottish punch and gifts of silver and crystal from the Kilties—and a last-minute reprieve from "special duty" that night, in favor of a five-day pass for Rowbottom from CWO Ferraro.

'Tis said 'twas the most elegant and the most colorful wedding to take place on the Presidio.

The bride? She wore a plain white sheath dress and a heart in her eyes!

Col. Gustafson Given Awards At Conference

Colonel Arthur W. Gustafson, Sixth Army Special Services Officer, was awarded an American Recreation Society Special Citation and the Armed Forces Section, American Recreation Society, Special Citation (Military), at the 39th National Recreation Congress held in Long Beach, California, last week.

The Special Citation awarded Colonel Gustafson for working "tirelessly to raise the standards of the recreational program and the grade levels requisite to attract the most competent professional personnel; and to further the interests of recreation by speeches in its behalf and the maintenance of excellent public relations, bringing prestige and merit to the Armed Forces Section and the field of recreation as a whole."

Col. Gustafson has had more than 23 years' experience as an instructor, coach, and Army Special Services Officer. Since his graduation from Oregon State College in 1933, he has been active in the field of recreation, both in civilian and military circles. He was assigned to Sixth Army Special Services in 1954, and is currently serving as Chairman of the Armed Forces Section, California Recreation Society.

"She laughed upon her hills out there . . . beside her bays of misty blue . . . The gayest hearts . . . the sweetest air that any city ever knew . . . For I have whistled all the songs . . . that thrilled upon her carefree breath, and I have mingled with her throngs—but never in the thought of Death."

Lady of Ventures . . . Joy of Earth . . . how more the pity for your moans . . . With all the blossoms of your mirth . . . crushed like your Youth . . . beneath the stones."

This is the poem through which Will Irwin paid tribute to an older San Francisco . . . rather to a younger San Francisco . . . for his lyric farewell was fashioned for the Gate City of his boyhood, back in the eighties when to him the new-born settlement flaunted the life and color which grew vinelike, from the roots of its origin.

"If," he said, "it rises from its ashes, it must be to a modern city, much like other modern cities and without its old atmosphere!"

In part, Mr. Irwin was right . . . Actually, however, the Queen City hasn't lost a trace of her charm . . . Perhaps her dowager bonnet is slightly less askew, and some of the gingerbread which gilded her houses is gone, but surely she may still be rightfully called the gayest city in the Western continent.

The obituary which Irwin wrote for San Francisco turns out to be one of the most startlingly unnecessary farewells ever written. Its very past is what brings the city to life as a personality among all cities, old or new . . . Gazing on the bay even now, one remembers that once it was the reservoir for millions of dollars' worth of gold dust washed down from the nearby mountain mines.

Mount Tamalpais . . . overlooking the Presidio . . . used to be full of wild coyotes that came down in droves to rob the hen roosts owned by early San Franciscans . . . The people lived much out of doors . . . consequently the little harbors of Belvedere, across the bay, held a colony of houseboats where people lived during the summer months . . . coming to their offices each day by ferry.

In Will Irwin's day, and even later, men used to hunt deer on the slopes of Tamalpais . . . the bay was full of sailing ships anchored with cargoes from the oceans of the world . . . Most of the buildings were one-story frame hovels . . . replaced in a later age by the architecture of the 70s, at once so hideous and so fascinating in their lack of line or grace . . . It was the time that bow windows were the fashion of the day . . . to catch the brief fragments of sunshine which penetrated heavy fogs.

Italian emigrants were among the first of the foreign colonists in San Francisco . . . They built on Telegraph Hill and evidently they held main thoroughfares in an unfriendly light, for their houses teetered on the edge of a series of cliffs which remain to the present day.

Although the Chinese took over the abandoned business district, their houses were rebuilt in the Chinese designs . . . In turn, the Mexicans and the Spaniards added the little balconies common to the countries of their origin. The color of the wooden houses took on the strange two-tone grey-green of the sea-borne fog . . . Dull at first, it became enhanced by time . . . to blend into fading rainbow shades . . . like in a Toulouse Lautrec landscape . . .

Russian Hill boasted a flight of regular steps running upward from Vallejo Street . . . sweetgrass grew among the paving stones . . . making the area a sort of pasture for cows owned by the Italian residents . . . On the top of this crazy quilt in design, was a colony where artists lived in tiny houses overlooking the lovely wide sweep of the bay . . . while eastward beyond the old city lay the Mission Dolores with its Spanish padres and Irish wanderers who settled in the shadow of its Cross and belled spire.

From the bay window on the hill, one could look outward on the sea and see cargo vessels with their tattered sails now at rest in the harbor . . . from China, Japan, the South Sea Islands . . . from Australia and even from Alaska and Siberia . . . ancient whalers from colder climes . . . Chinese junks that had prowled the seas for shark liver cargoes to take home . . . copra, cotton and Far Eastern idols . . . or some old pot-bellied wind jammer fresh in from rounding The Horn.

The crews met along the docks . . . which fact, one gathers, is why Robert Louis Stevenson called San Francisco "the melting pot of the races" . . . Here would convene men from the far away Gilbert Islands . . . Kanakas and Samoans . . . Lascars in colored turbans . . . pig-tailed Chinese . . . stocky Russian sailors . . . Italians in sea-going tam-o-shanters . . . men from across the face of Europe . . . killing loneliness with the anodyne poured from bottles in the nearest saloon.

Down in Portsmouth Square around which the city was built . . . there might be a hanging in process, for at that time the vigilance committees made and shaped their own form of justice . . . and on the same plaza you would be more than likely to find Robert Louis Stevenson . . . consorting with the drifters . . . listening to their yarns which later he knit into his famous novels of the South Seas.

Here then . . . was a small and colorful fragment of the San Francisco for whose passing Will Irwin composed such a timeless obituary . . . He wrote it . . . believing that the subject was close to death . . . but Phoenix-like, she rose from her ashes . . . to combine the magic of her past with the charm of her present . . . proving that like old soldiers . . . a proud city never dies.

Could Be Tougher

During the 1848-1849 Gold Rush, it was impossible to maintain any kind of military force in the California area. The Presidio was deserted. With no real function to perform, the Presidio's commanding officer worked as a surveyor and contractor, constructing the first wharf in San Francisco.

Right here at the Presidio there is such a land hidden behind a cluster of buildings and filled with all the toys a child could ever wish for.

Open until Christmas eve, the Presidio Toyland is stocked with everything in the toy field. Just name it and they have it—dolls, electric trains, sixteen ton Panda bears, microscopes, bicycles, chemistry sets, electronic equipment, wagons, doll clothing, athletic equipment, and on down the "dream" list.

Toyland is operated by the Bay Area Exchange under the supervision of Mr. J. Porter and managed by Mr. Frank E. Lealand.

The store is open Monday through Friday between the hours of 1000 to 1800, and on Saturday from 1000 to 1400 hours. The store is closed on Sundays and holidays.

The Merry Macs, three men and a maid, look merry in anticipation of their coming performances at the Presidio Non Commissioned Officers' Open Mess and the Presidio Officers' Open Mess, on the nights of the 25th and 26th of October, respectively.

Well-Known Vocal Group To Perform Here Twice

The Merry Macs, noted song stylists, are booked for two appearances at the Presidio on 25 and 26 October. Making their first bow to Non-Commissioned Officers' Mess members on the evening of the 25th, the Merry Macs take the stage at the Presidio Officers' Open Mess for their second performance on the night of the 26th.

Legendary in show business, the Merry Macs are credited with introducing the vocal group fad so popular today. Not the least of their other accomplishments is their initial introduction of four-part harmony, bouncy rhythm, and the precision style of singing which rocketed them to their current fame.

Stars of stage, screen, radio, TV and recordings, the Merry Macs completed 25 years of show business in mid-summer of this year. Spanning the years from memory lane to rock and roll, they are one of the biggest name group entertainers to hit the Presidio.

Post Libraries Boast New Satellite Books

The appearance of the Soviet satellite Sputnik caused world wide excitement and also much concern about what the United States is doing in the race into space.

The Presidio Post Library has just received THE MAKING OF A MOON by Arthur Clarke which is the story of Project Vanguard, the United States' earth satellite program. In his usual lively fashion, Mr. Clarke deals with such questions as how the satellites' orbits will be determined, the possibilities of using satellites as radio and television relays and the eventual use of satellites as space stations. He also explains how the satellites are being constructed, what equipment they will carry and how they will be launched. This book is a must on the reading list of anyone who wants a more complete picture of the Earth satellite program.

A look at the country and the people who startled the world with the first satellite is given in Louis Fischer's RUSSIA RE-VISITED. Mr. Fischer lived in Moscow from 1922 to 1938 as a foreign correspondent. He returned last year searching primarily for old friends. He wanted impressions, recollections, feelings, and the truth about what it is like to be a Soviet citizen in the post-Stalin era. The information he gained in his talks with Muscovites makes interesting reading about what is actually going on (from behind the people's point of view) behind the Iron Curtain.

Far removed from satellites but a book about people up in the air is Max Shulman's latest effort, RALLY ROUND THE FLAG, BOYS. The Army installs a Nike base near a Connecticut commuting village where discontented husbands live with their discontented wives and where teen-aged disciples of the late James Dean prove you don't have to be underprivileged to be delinquent. The results are explosively funny and guaranteed to please.

Still on the subject of rockets and space travel, we can offer you Leonard Wibberley's TAKE ME TO YOUR PRESIDENT. Jerry Blackwood, a huge, slow talking native of a remote Yorkshire village called Mars, wanders through a top-secret rocket launching station into England's first intercontinental rocket. Both Jerry and the rocket take off and finally come to earth again on the Paiute Indian reservation in Nevada. Accepted literally as a man from Mars—the planet—Jerry assumes the responsibilities of his unique position.

These new books and many others are available to you through the Presidio Post Library, Ft. Scott, Ft. Baker, Ft. Cronkhite and the Bookmobile.

for your pleasure!

Local Scouts Participate In National Roundup Day

The big Marina Green Round-up rally of San Francisco Scouts and their Presidio members of Troops Nos. 77 and 178 will be held from 1000 to 1400 hours tomorrow at the green.

The get-together for local scouts and their friends is part of a nation-wide plan to develop greater scout membership through community field programs; introducing the wide variety of interests thrown open to potential and prospective members.

For the rally each district troop is setting up its own field headquarters, identified by signs indicating unit numbers, time, meeting place and the organization sponsoring the group.

Fathers of the scouts and other specially invited guests will have a chance to meet troop leaders, and each non-member visiting the rally may secure information regarding the unit of his choice.

The Scouts are providing their own noon meals. Soft drinks are being dispensed free, by the Golden Gate District Scouts.

Following registration at 1000 hours, the scouts will participate with their non-scout buddies in athletic events including tug-of-war, antelope races, knot-tying relay, chariot races, centipede races and compass relay.

Fishing On The Presidio

We've been receiving many inquiries about fishing, so we now give you the dope straight from the fish's mouth!

Mr. Rainbow Trout sez:

I'm the only fresh water fish stationed at the Presidio; I come in on PSF annually from the State Fish Hatchery. I'm a fighter; I go from 8 inches to 18 inches, light fresh water tackle and a number 10 hook is what you need.

Salmon eggs, worms and best of all "Velveeta" cheese is my dish; roll the cheese to about the size of the lead in 45 rounds. I bite when I please, but I'm really hungry in the first two hours and last two hours of daylight.

During July and August you might as well not try for me. There is so much algae and weeds here in my quarters that I get sick and lazy, at the last of October, when my season ends, I perk up—try worms or lures on me, I might bite!

RAADCOM Swim Champs: Maj. Gen. E. J. McGaw, of the Sixth Region US Army Air Defense Command, presents the championship trophy for the first annual Sixth RAADCOM swimming tournament to M/Sgt. Thomas J. Nash, NCCIC of Los Angeles' champion 47th AAA Brigade. Team members are in the background.

Southerners Dominate All Events In 6th Regional AAA Competition

Los Angeles' 47th AAA Brigade won every event but one and grabbed most of the second, third and fourth places as well to win the first annual 6th Region, U.S. Army Air Defense Command Swimming Tournament last weekend at Leterman Sports Center.

The Southern California entry scored enough points the first day to win the tournament, racking up 32 points and winning all four events. The tourney finished with Los Angeles having 93 points, Hanford 30, San Francisco 11 and Seattle 3.

The tournament was the first in the series of sports events conducted on the battalion, group, brigade and region level by units of the Army Air Defense Command. The program will decide regional champions in swimming and diving, bowling, table tennis and

The largest population of ducks ever recorded in the central valley areas was checked in the mid-September inventory by crews of U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Department of Fish and Game.

A total of 2,034,000 ducks were tallied in the annual September aerial survey. This is a 77 per cent increase over last year's record-setting tally of 1,151,000 waterfowl.

Sacramento Valley populations were almost doubled over 1956 for the same period and San Francisco Bay populations quadrupled that of last year's.

Former Army G3's Niece Takes UVS Golf Honors

Wiffi Smith, a young newcomer to the women's professional golf tour, won the first UVS Women's Open by seven strokes last weekend.

Miss Smith wrapped up the tournament held at the Presidio Club with one sub-par round of 73 and matched par 74 on the other two rounds.

Going into Sunday's play she led the field by seven strokes and only a complete change in her play could have lost it for her.

Fay Crocker, Montevideo golfer who won second place made a late bid to upset Wiffi Smith's lead by firing a 71 to break the course record by two strokes.

Miss Smith credits part of her success to her uncle Col. Franklin

G. Smith, former Sixth Army G3 and enthusiastic golfer. The colonel gave Wiffi some important tips on how to play the tough Presidio Course.

Proceeds from the charity tournament will go toward providing golf facilities for Veterans' Hospitals and military installations throughout North America.

Friendly Terms: Ernie Shelton, top USA track star, and two of the Russian track stars pause for pictures and a chat during the recent Balkan Games in Bucharest. Shelton is competing with the American AAU track squad.

U. S., Russian Athletes Open Political Curtain

Ernie Shelton, fleet Presidio high jumper, recently returned from his European tour where he competed in several meets with the American AAU track squad.

At the Balkan Games held at Bucharest, in which more than 25 countries participated, including the Soviet Union and the Iron Curtain countries, Shelton captured second place by clearing the bar at 6'8 1/4".

The Russian champion, Sitkin, who according to Shelton wore shoes that were built up at least two inches, won the event with a 6'9" jump.

Shelton stated that there were no ill feelings between the Russians and the Americans. After the meet, a banquet was held for the athletes and friendly terms were expressed by all members of the teams.

Shelton's future plans include participation in the AAU indoor meets which will be held throughout the winter season on the east coast.

Retired Mule Re-Ups Army

Trotter, a mule who knows his way around the Army, is the new mascot of the U.S. Military Academy.

He was presented to the corps of cadets at half-time ceremonies of the Army-Nebraska football game by the Colorado Springs Rodeo Association.

Trotter, a full-gaited mule, had been retired from the Army at Ft. Carson, Colo., when he was purchased by the association and given to the Academy.

Trotter is 11 years old. He has five principal gaits—the walk, trot, canter, gallop and pace—making him full-gaited. He replaces Hannibal, the previous mascot.

Top Third Army Golfer Reports To Presidio

Major Rayna L. Anderson, this year's Third Army Women's Division golf champion, reported to the Presidio this week as Chief of Sixth Army AG's Administrative Branch.

Major Anderson represented Fort McClellan in the Third Army tournament and went on to compete in the recent all-Army Championships at Fort Ord. Last May the major won the Third Flight of the Alabama State Women Golfer's championships and the Fort McClellan Women's Open.

Included in Major Anderson's golf record are first place in the First Flight of the Women's Club Championship held here in 1953 and winner of the Panama Women's Golf Association Handicap Tournament in 1950. Her golf trophies include many taken in minor tournaments throughout the United States.

Major Anderson is enthusiastic about the merits of the Presidio Golf Course, describing it as one of the best she has played during Army-sponsored tournaments. She hopes to resume her golf activities here in the near future.

Intramural Competition Stiffens; Top Engineer Teams Clash Thursday

Showdown games in all the intramural football leagues are on slate for this coming week's schedule.

The undefeated 549th Engineers, lead by Ed Sage will battle it out with the undefeated 21st Engineers on Thursday.

The 21st Engineers kept themselves on top in last week's play by winning two decisive victories. The rugged 21st rolled over 99th Engineers by 19-13. Goff and Anderson of the 21st seemed to have the 99th sewed with their effective passing and running. The first quarter saw Goff and Anderson connecting with the first tally of the game on a pass play. In the second quarter, Anderson got up steam and rambled 50 yards for the second score, but they still were unable to get the extra point. The first half ended, 12 to 0, in favor of the 21st. The third quarter saw no score from either team.

The 99th came out strong in the fourth quarter by scoring two touchdowns trying to overcome the early lead set up by the strong 21st team. The 99th attempt just couldn't do it, and Goff let go with another touchdown pass to Nefio. The extra point was good and the 21st still remained undefeated.

In the 21st Engineers—A Battery, 740th game, the 21st had a heyday romping over the 740th, 38-0. Shultz and Nefio both scored two touchdowns for the 21st Engineers.

The Presidio league is wide open with the Post champions, the Honor Guard, trying desperately to defend their championship for the second straight year. The Honor Guard defeated Hq. Co. Sixth U.S. Army, last year's runnerup, 16-7. It was a hard fought contest with the champions having to come from behind to win. Fred Crissy of the Hq. Co. Sixth U.S. Army team got by Bob Bondanza to get the first score of the game. The Honor Guard then scored on a pass interception by Rudabacin, who ran 45 yards for the touchdown.

In the last period of play, Oliver connected with Williams to put the champions out in front. Crissy, of Hq. Co. Sixth U.S. Army, was trapped in the end zone for a safety for the final score.

In the AAA League, it looks as if Hq. Co., 30th AAA is the team to beat. Hq. Co., 30th AAA has defeated the 561st, 41-0, and the Motor Pool, 39-1. It is still a toss-up for the second place spot in this league. Both the winner and the runner-up in each league will compete in the Post Championship Play-off.

10 Commandments Of Gun Safety

A Hunting Season Reminder

1. Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun.
2. Guns carried into camp or home, or when otherwise not in use, must always be unloaded, and taken down or have actions open; guns always should be carried in cases to the shooting area.
3. Always be sure barrel and action are clear of obstructions, and that you have only ammunition of the proper size for the gun you are carrying. Remove oil and grease from chamber before firing.
4. Always carry your gun so that you can control the direction of the muzzle even if you stumble; keep the safety on until you are ready to shoot.
5. Be sure of your target before you pull the trigger; know the identifying features of the game you intend to hunt.
6. Never point a gun at anything you do not want to shoot; avoid all horseplay while handling a gun.
7. Unattended guns should be unloaded; guns and ammunition should be stored separately beyond reach of children and careless adults.
8. Never climb a tree or fence or jump a ditch with a loaded gun; never pull a gun toward you by the muzzle.
9. Never shoot a bullet at a flat, hard surface or the surface of water; when at target practice, be sure your backstop is adequate.
10. Avoid alcoholic drinks before or during shooting.

Continuous Training Needed By Specialized Missilemen

From eight weeks to nearly a year of specialized schooling is the first step in training men to arm the complex missile system under the Army Air Defense Command. After formal schooling the missilemen receive on-the-job training at the various sites and also attend annual service practice firings.

Training at the Fort Bliss Army Air Defense School is completed in "packages" or groups, which must successfully fire Nike missiles using the same equipment that they will transport with them when the "package" moves to assigned tactical areas.

Recognizing the need for highly skilled men in this field, the Army has established policies which permit men to enlist or reenlist for assignment to the Army Air Defense Command. In addition ARADCOM encourages top three grade enlisted men with other military occupation specialties to reenlist for assignment to ARADCOM and retraining in the field of guided missiles.

The Department of the Army also has recognized the importance of rapid advancement in these units and has made it possible for some enlisted men to become warrant officers a year after they enter the Army.

Because of the isolated location of Nike sites and the hours the men are required to be on-site, several conveniences have been set up for the Nike soldier. Sites are equipped with complete hobby shops, above par day-room facilities and in the Bay Area, a book-mobile.

Since personnel are required to live within a specified limit of their batteries, a Leased Housing program was set up within the command. Under this program officers and NCO's contract a lease for a home in adjacent communities; the rent and utilities are paid by the Army in place of the individual's housing allowance.

Another solution to the housing problem has been to construct quarters with Military Construction Army (MCA) funds. Some 48 sets are now being constructed in the San Francisco area and some in the East Bay are expected to be completed by next February.

Something Pretty!

New Draperies At EM's Barracks

The 740th AAA Missile Battalion's Battery C is sporting new draperies in the enlisted men's barracks and BOQ due to the efforts of the Battery Wives Club.

The missile ladies started the drapery project with a cake sale; proceeds from the sale were used to buy the drapery material. The ladies then picked up their thimbles and the gold draperies were soon completed.

The feminine touch not only has added to the battery's appearance, but also is credited with boosting on-site morale.

Anniversary Dance

The 740th AAA Missile Battalion will host a formal dinner dance this evening at the Presidio Officers' Club for the members of the 30th AAA Group in commemoration of the 40th Anniversary of the Antiaircraft Artillery.

Special guests will be Major General E. J. McGaw, Commanding General, Sixth Region, U.S. Army Air Defense Command; Major General Hugh A. Parker, Commanding General, West CONAD, and Brig. General Curtis Lowe, Commanding General, 28th Air Division at Hamilton Air Force Base.

There were 22,000 Allied troops assigned to the antiaircraft artillery defenses of Antwerp against German buzz bombs in October, 1944.

AAA Battalion Slates 'O' Day Next Tuesday

A celebration marking Organization Day for the 441st AAA Missile Battalion is scheduled Tuesday. The date was selected to commemorate the day the battalion went into action in Southern Italy in 1943.

The 441st later and while attached to the 45th Infantry Division and the 3rd Infantry Division, participated in many of the Divisions' campaigns, ultimately fighting as infantry and antiaircraft artillery through Naples, Foggia, Rome-Anzio, Southern France, the Rhineland and Ardennes-Alsace.

"The Four Forty First, Antiaircraft Anywhere" — was the slogan born of the battalion's heroic participation in almost every supporting action during the Italian campaign. Its unit decorations include the campaign streamers with arrowhead for service in the invasion of Sicily, Naples - Foggia, Anzio, Southern France; and the campaign streamers for the Rome and Ardennes-Alsace drives.

For its specific action in the Colmar Pocket, the 441st was awarded the American Presidential Unit Citation. Individual military awards include five Silver Star Medals, four Soldier Medals, 173 Bronze Star Medals and 11 Oak Leaf Clusters to the Bronze Star Medal.

The battalion was activated at Fort Cronkhite in 1955 at which time it became part of the San Francisco Air Defense.

Organization Day events begin at 0930 with a parade at the Oakland Army Terminal parade ground. Each battery site holds open house from 1130 to 1530. The sites are Battery A, Lake Chabot; Battery B, Rocky Ridge; and Battery C, San Pablo.

A battalion dance for all members and their guests will be held in the OAT EM Service Club, from 1900 to 2400 that night.

Radar's Grandfather, the Sound Locator, was used by the Army during World War I. Relying on the ability to hear aircraft flying overhead, the operator turned the huge horns to a position where the sound of the plane was the loudest. This equipment, used just 40 years ago, was the forerunner of the highly accurate electronic devices used today to position and control guided missiles.

Defense Week Set By City's Mayor

Four decades of Army experience with antiaircraft artillery weapons has laid a firm foundation for the Nike guided missile system which today gives the San Francisco Bay Area the most effective defense in the world against aerial bombardment.

Acting San Francisco Mayor Henry R. Rolph has proclaimed this week San Francisco-Bay Area Defense Week in honor of the establishment of the American Anti-aircraft School on 10 October, 1917.

A static Nike display was set up in downtown San Francisco yesterday by the 30th AAA Group. The exhibit also will be open today in Mechanic Square, located at the intersection of Bush, Battery and Market Streets. Open houses will be held at the Group's missile battalions today.

Beginning with the coast artillery, the grandfather of the present day antiaircraft, the first units were assigned to the Bay Area after World War I. From similar national units evolved the present Army Air Defense Command, the Army's second largest combat-ready command.

From the first "balloon guns" and rudely converted field artillery pieces used during World War I, the science of antiaircraft artillery has mushroomed into a highly complex system of electronically guided missiles now adapted to use either conventional or atomic warheads.

The Nike-Ajax is the backbone of the Bay Area antiaircraft defenses. The Nike system consists of three parts which have not been basically changed by later improvements — ground based launching and control equipment; an expendable missile with booster; and the ground guidance system. The Nike-Hercules and the Hawk are the latest additions to the system.

The first missile unit was assigned to the Bay Area in July 1954. Today three missile battalions comprise the Bay Area defense—the 740th located at Fort Scott, the 9th at Fort Baker and the 441st at San Pablo Ridge, Richmond. The battalions make up the 30th AAA Group which is commanded by Col. Daniel A. Ranney. The 30th AAA Group and 10 other missile battalions located along the West Coast comprise the 6th Region, U.S. Army Air Defense Command headed by Maj. Gen. E. J. McGaw.

AAA Sergeant Lauds Army Schools

Master Sergeant Lovell F. Furry, A Battery, 740th AAA Missile Battalion, typifies the highly skilled personnel necessary in the complex defense system in and around the San Francisco Bay Area.

Sergeant Furry was assigned to the 740th in December 1956 as a fire control repairman and later was promoted to master sergeant, serving as Platoon Sergeant for the IFC Platoon.

Among his numerous duties are radar and computer repair and the general maintenance of the Nike sites.

During his 12-year tenure in the Army, Sergeant Furry has acquired a wide experience in the field of electronics.

While stationed at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland, he took a six-week course in deisel engines. In 1949, he was promoted to shop foreman in the Ordnance Depot at Carlsfeldt, Germany.

Sergeant Furry left Europe in 1951 and went to the Sacramento Signal Depot to work on generator rebuilding. In 1953 he was assigned to Korea with the 38th Field Artillery, 2nd Division, as battalion motor sergeant. In January 1955, Sergeant Furry was sent to Travis Air Force Base to join the 436th "Sweepers." Interested in furthering his knowledge of electronics, he attended a special training course at Ft. Bliss for one year. From there he was assigned to the 740th.

Sergeant Furry plans to remain in the Army for 20 years. He feels that the Army has afforded him the opportunity to acquire a complete education in his field.

Air Defense School Opens Here Tuesday

One of the first area Army Air Defense Schools in the nation will be formally opened and dedicated by the 30th AAA Group at 1000 hours Tuesday. The school is located in Bldg. 1208 at Fort Scott.

Sixth Army Signal Units To Gulfstream

Exercise Gulfstream will be conducted at Fort Polk, Louisiana, from 26 March, 1958 to 15 April, 1958.

The Department of the Army announced today that the following Sixth Army Signal Units will participate: The 232nd Company, 505th Group, 193d Company, 56th Company, 416th Company, 18th Battalion Corps, 504th Battalion, 62nd Company, 526th Company, and two Wac detachments, from Fort Huachuca, Arizona; the 228th Company and 41st Battalion, from Fort Ord, California; and the 504th Company from Sacramento, California.

Additional information on other types of units is expected shortly.

The San Francisco Army Air Defense School, which started instruction 7 October with 35 students, is prepared to train more than 100 persons simultaneously in four separate classes. The school will concentrate on training line soldiers and is not equipped to handle specialist training which is conducted at Fort Bliss.

Two of the courses are gauged for new AAA soldiers. The first is an eight-week advanced basic training course in the Nike, and the second a course for men being retrained in the Nike field.

Rounding out the curriculum are a week-long orientation course for newly assigned 30th AAA Group officers and a command inspection course.

The school battery is the 740th AAA Missile Battalion's B Battery. Since the school is located at this site, necessary on-site training will be conducted there.

Maj. Harold C. Utley, former 30th AAA Group Special Services and Communications Officer, is Commandant of the school. He just returned from Fort Bliss, Texas. Officers in the 30th AAA Group will instruct the various classes.

Seek Junior Officers As Trainees In Army's FAST

Washington (ANS)—The Army is encouraging qualified young officers desiring an attractive education to apply for enrollment in its four-year Foreign Area Training Program.

Often called FAST, the continually mushrooming program is being conducted in areas where the Russian, Chinese, Japanese, Greek, Turkish, Arabic, Persian, and Hindustani languages predominate.

Due to the great increase in the international picture by the U. S., Army officers who thoroughly understand the language, customs, geography, and social environment of the peoples of other nations are becoming more and more in demand.

Foreign Area Training is usually conducted at post-graduate level with emphasis on linguistic fluency in the language of the area studied, an early objective. However, this program is designed to produce highly qualified area specialists rather than super-linguists.

The Army's complete Foreign Area Training may take as long as four years. The training is given at the Army Language School, certain civilian universities, and in the overseas areas actually studied.

Assignments and branch schooling of Foreign Area Students are guided by the career pattern established by their respective branches. It is stressed that officers in this program are given equal opportunities to attend senior service schools for which they are qualified, enabling them to keep abreast of their contemporaries in every respect.

Mandatory prerequisites for selection are outlined in AR 350-23, dated 15 October, 1956.

Mail Early!!

Washington (ANS)—According to a Department of Defense announcement, Christmas parcels should be mailed to Army personnel overseas between 1 and 20 November if senders want them to arrive in time for the holidays.

Mailers should consult their local post office for complete mailing information, as cigarettes, tobacco, and coffee may not be sent to some overseas areas. Matches, lighter fluid, and inflammable items are prohibited. In addition, there is a size and weight restriction in the shipping instructions.

Cadets Visit Nike

Some 35 graduating cadets from the University of San Francisco will be guests of Battery A, 740th AAA Missile Battalion tomorrow. The cadets will be accompanied by their officers and instructors.

A tour of the site climaxed by a visit to the battery's fire control area is planned.

UBAC Wins in the Sixth US Army Photo Contest as Lt. Col. O. J. Vogl, Headquarters, US Army Military District of California, turns over his $25 check to the local drive. Colonel Vogl submitted the top entry in the single black and white amateur class of the recent competition. The UBAC drive, which is based on voluntary contributions, will continue through 31 October.

'Mercy Mission' Test Slated By 30th AAA

A simulated "mercy mission" which someday may mean life or death to a Nike soldier or his dependent will be conducted today by the 30th AAA Group Air Section and a member of the 441st AAA Missile Battalion located at San Pablo Ridge near Richmond.

The emergency evacuation from the isolated site will be attempted by helicopter, a system used during the Korean War but never tried by Bay Area anti-aircraft units.

The "patient," Sp2 Harvey Ketchum, will be loaded aboard the aircraft at about 0930; thirty minutes later he will be unloaded at Crissy Field, and rushed to Letterman Army Hospital by ambulance. Evacuation from the 441st site by vehicle would take about an hour's driving across the Oakland-Bay Bridge and through San Francisco traffic.

The helicopter system could be used soon with the expected completion of dependent housing at the 441st site in February.

Among those who will witness the demonstration at Crissy Field are Maj. Gen. E. J. McGaw, Commanding General, 6th Region Air Defense Command; Col. Daniel A.

Reservists Meet Here

Fifty-eight Sixth Army Reservists and three Reserve advisors will complete a week-long Methods of Instruction course here today. The course is sponsored by Headquarters, US Army Military District, California.

The course included the fundamentals of military instruction, planning the lesson, the use of training aids and demonstration methods.

Maj. Gen. Robert L. Howze, Jr., Deputy Commanding General for Reserve Forces, welcomed the Reservists Monday.

Ranney, Commander of San Francisco Army Air Defense; and Lt. Col. Roy H. Lundren, Commander of the 441st.

Green Light Pro Plan Grades E-3 Through E-6

Washington (ANS)—The proficiency advancement plan designed by the Armed Forces to retain enlisted personnel in critical Military Occupational Specialties will be initiated Army-wide early in 1958.

Under the terms of a new directive (No. 1340.2) issued by Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, enlisted personnel may be granted one or two pay grades proficiency advances without any advance in military rank. This is in recognition of their skill qualifications in an occupation of critical importance or for demonstrating outstanding effectiveness in an assigned specialty.

The directive states that the proficiency advancement plan entitles the recipient to all pay and allowances of the higher grade.

In order to qualify for proficiency advancement, EM must be either serving in pay grade E-4 or higher or serving in pay grade E-3 and have completed at least 24 months of active duty service. Additionally, personnel must also have a minimum of six months' continuous active duty immediately prior to an advancement and serve a minimum of six months in a pay grade, including a pay grade attained by proficiency advancement.

Army personnel serving in pay grade E-7 will not qualify for

Unique Trials Will Develop New Methods

A novel experiment of manpower and equipment—in capsule form—which may blueprint the U.S. Army combat units of 1965-70 got underway this week at the Camp Roberts-Hunter Liggett Military Reservation.

Under the security of scientists and military observers, company-sized units are exploring future tactical doctrine over the hilly laboratory of the Army's Combat Development Experimentation Center, a unique organization established and directed by the U.S. Continental Army Command.

The series of day and night engagements, which place theories and techniques of future ground warfare under microscopic examination, is expected to last until late December.

Mobility, dispersion of men and equipment at squad and platoon levels, use of helicopter supply and offensive and defensive action are among the factors to be measured against requirements of war projected 10 to 15 years.

Troops, formed into three rifle companies, will operate under conditions of atomic warfare or non-atomic warfare in which the threat of nuclear war is present. Aggressor forces are being used to simulate enemy troops.

CDEC officials point out that the "test tube" exercises are unique in that they stress experimentation; regular field exercises and maneuvers emphasize training and entail movements of large troop units over large areas.

The combat tests are among the first major operations to be conducted at the laboratory which was set up last year by Gen. W. G. Wyman, CONARC Commander.

the proficiency advancement and E-6's will be limited to a one pay grade advance.

According to the Department of Defense announcement, reservists may qualify for advances if they are serving on extended active duty for a period in excess of 30 days and meet the other specified criteria.

Mesa Avenue will become a one-way street south (in the direction of the Presidio Officers' Open Mess) between the hours of 0700-0800 and 1600-1700 Monday through Friday beginning 21 October.

This change is expected to relieve some of the congestion on Lincoln Boulevard during peak hours by routing traffic on Mesa Avenue toward Presidio Boulevard. Drivers are asked to park their cars on the left hand side of the road facing south.

Specialty Series

Many Lives Depend On His Skill

The pilots, crews and passengers who use the 38 planes assigned to the 521st Engineer Company daily place their lives in the hands of Sfc. Lyman Barber, the company's aircraft maintenance supervisor.

Assisted by some 60 men in the maintenance section, Sergeant Barber's job is to keep mechanically perfect aircraft available at all times. The planes he services range from helicopter to fixed wing.

"Planes are always kept in excellent condition, for we all know that a man's life is constantly in our hands," Sergeant Barber explains. "From the minute he steps into the aircraft until he leaves it, he is depending on all the hours that we have put in."

Sergeant Barber has devoted his 10 Army years to aircraft maintenance. He has attended seven Army courses in his specialized field and served with the Army Aviation Section at Fort Belvoir, Va., before being assigned to the 30th Engineer Group in 1951.

During his present assignment he has made five trips to Alaska when his company was flying aircraft support for 30th Engineer Group projects.

Sergeant Barber makes his home in Stockton with his wife and son.

DEADLINE IS WEDNESDAY NOON

16th BPO First Off To Germany; Was Active Here

First Sergeant William Matcaroff, assigned to the 16th Base Post Office for the last three years, has been re-assigned to the 26th BPO in Munich, Germany.

While at the Presidio, Sgt. Matcaroff was active in off-duty activities. He was a board member of the Post NCO Mess and participated in the Presidio Bowling League, besides being a star third baseman for the 16th BPO softball team.

Matcaroff entered the Army in 1942. He took part in the Invasion of North Africa, and during the remaining war years was assigned with units in Italy, France and Belgium.

Following the war, Sgt. Matcaroff left the Army but re-enlisted three years later. He was then assigned to Heidelberg, Germany, until his transfer to the Presidio in 1954.

Replacing Matcaroff as First Sergeant of the 16th BPO is Sgt. Arnold L. Barden, who has been with the Sixth Army Transportation Section since 1954.

Barden was with the 6930th SU unit at Letterman Army Hospital from 1946 to 1950, at which time he was transferred to Fort Lewis, Wash.

Maintenance Expert for the 521st Engineer Company, Sfc. Lyman Barber is responsible for servicing the 38 aircraft assigned to the company. A veteran of 10 years' Army service, he has attended seven service courses in aircraft maintenance.

Ex-School Teacher Joins SP as Assistant Editor

A former school teacher with an A.B. in English Literature and an M.S. in Journalism joined the staff of the Star Presidian this week.

Miss Lois Johnson, an alumna of Boston University, will be a temporary replacement for Mrs. Marian Cornfield who departs this week on maternity leave.

Mrs. Cornfield joined the staff of the Star Presidian almost a year ago following her graduation, Phi Beta Kappa, from the University of Washington. As assistant editor she has become widely known and extremely well liked by civilian and military members of the Presidio. Mrs. Cornfield expects to return to her job sometime in February.

Miss Johnson, who returns to her first love—journalism—following stints in teaching and advertising, has an excellent background in weekly newspaper work. She hopes her current assignment will lead to a permanent career in military journalism.

New Model assistant editor, Lois Johnson, pounds out her first local assignment on an old model mill.

9th AAA Teams Leave For Red Canyon Range

Four firing teams representing each battery of the 9th AAA Missile Battalion will leave tomorrow to undergo their annual service fire practice at Red Canyon Range, New Mexico. The units will compete with all other units in the U.S. Army Air Defense Command.

Since Nikes would be fired in the Bay Area only in case of an enemy attack, each year battery firing teams travel to New Mexico to fire 12 actual Nikes. The missiles are fired at swift, radio controlled drone targets that can duplicate any maneuver of an enemy aircraft.

The missiles to be fired are received in factory containers by an advance party of missile maintenance men who must assemble them, attach the warheads and boosters and fuel them.

The annual practice is judged on hits, battery assembly of missiles, fire control operations, launching area procedures, actual firing, time involved in firing and the checks taken.

In 1846, Captain John C. Fremont named the entrance to San Francisco Bay, The Golden Gate.

Father-Son Duo

Sergeant First Class Othello Carr, former troop information non-com at Headquarters, U.S. Army Military District, California, and strong exponent of the Reserve Forces Act of 1955, reached a milestone in his military career this week when his son was sworn into the Reserve under the program.

Othello Carr, Jr., an architectural engineering student at City College of San Francisco, was sworn in by Maj. Paul H. Bouchard, USAMD Recruiting Officer. Carr will go on six months' active duty next February.

Sergeant Carr, a veteran of more than 13 years' Army service, is now assigned to the 56th MRU. His son is a member of the 335th MRU of the Army Reserve.

Command Team Checks Bay Area Nike Sites

Nike sites throughout the 6th Region, Army Air Defense Command were recently paid short-notice visits by a three-man inspection team of experts from the Command Headquarters in Colorado. The team applies rigid checks to the operating readiness and effectiveness of Nike units across the United States.

Unlike the annual service practices conducted at Red Canyon Range, the inspections are not competitive and batteries are rated either "operational" or "non-operational." Visits of the team provide a direct, two-way communication channel between the commanding general and troops on the firing line.

From four to six hours are generally spent at each battery inspected. More than 50 separate checks, which take from a few seconds to 20 minutes each, are conducted.

Before inspecting a battery, team members brief its key personnel on what to expect and what is expected of them. This is followed by a training test during which battery members simulate engagements of "targets of opportunity"—any aircraft which may be in the area at the time is utilized for this test.

After the inspection, the team conducts a "de-briefing" on the day's work. Copies of the team's report are filed with the battery commander and also at the Colorado Springs headquarters, where it is reviewed by the commanding general and forwarded to the regional commander.

Nike Inspection specialist, CWO John F. Kane, is part of a traveling three-man team that conducts short-notice checks on the operational effectiveness of Nike sites all over the United States. CWO Kane recently conducted inspections at 6th Region, Army Air Defense Command sites in Spokane, Camp Hanford, Seattle and San Francisco and Los Angeles.

warded to the regional commander.

Two Chief Warrant Officers on the present inspection team, Edward J. Brunstein and John F. Kane, were involved in the Nike program during its early development before Army troops first fired the weapon.

Chemical Show Set For Harmon Hall

Unusual Award is presented to M/Sgt. John D. Vekich, Chief Clerk with the Post Military Police, by Capt. John F. Kallam, Presidio Gun Club president. Sgt. Vekich became the fourth person in the United States ever to be presented with the National Rifle Association Instructor Training Award for unselfishly devoting his time to training young boys and girls in the safe handling of firearms.

High NRA Award Goes To Presidio Rifle Coach

Master Sergeant John D. Vekich, Chief Clerk with the Post Military Police, this week was presented with the National Rifle Association Instructor Training Award, the fourth person in the United States ever to receive such an award.

The award was given in recognition of Sgt. Vekich's "will- ingness to give his time, effort, and skill" in training more than 100 new shooters between the ages of twelve and seventeen.

The youngsters were members of the Presidio Junior Rifleers, a junior club of the NRA, in which Sgt. Vekich is class leader. The training was conducted at the Presidio Indoor 22 Range at Ft. Scott with Army weapons.

Over the past two years, Sgt. Vekich spent over 400 hours of off-duty time in training approximately 150 young boys and girls in the safe handling and shooting of firearms.

Sgt. Vekich is a member of the NRA and holds instructor's permits in rifle marksmanship and in the hunter safety program. He is not an expert shooter himself, but enjoys teaching youngsters how to safely handle firearms, and feels that if you give young people something useful to do, "they will stay out of trouble."

Colonel Charles G. Rau, Post Commander and one of the National Directors of the NRA, stated that, "recognition such as this does not come to too many."

Sgt. Vekich plans to continue his training program and hopes that more young boys and girls will take advantage of the opportunity to learn how to safely and adequately handle firearms.

Twelve members of Battery B, 740th AAA Missile Battalion, formed an honor guard outside the Post's Chapel of Our Lady last Saturday following the marriage of Pfc. and Mrs. Marco E. Quesada. Chaplain Robert J. Plocki performed the ceremony.

NGAA Units Will Convert To Missiles

Army National Guard anti-aircraft gun units across the nation will be converted to Nike as soon as conversion training can be accomplished. Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker has announced. The equipment for these units is on sites now manned by active Army personnel.

Last May the 720th Antiaircraft Gun Battalion, California National Guard, was the first such unit to be organized into a Nike Missile Battalion. The 720th is located at Long Beach and San Pedro.

During the past three and a half years NG units manned the gun sites while active Army personnel converted to Nike. The World War II type antiaircraft gun battalions now will be retired from the air defenses of the United States.

"Army National Guard units will become the first units of the U.S. Reserve Forces to be equipped with modern surface-to-air guided missiles," Mr. Brucker said. "When National Guard missile units take over sites, they will be an integral part of the overall system for the air defense of the United States while they are protecting their home cities."

Most NG Nike unit members will be trained at active Nike sites in their home areas. Before an NG battalion takes over a site, about 140 of its officers and enlisted men will be given additional missile training.

Colonel John E. Rogers, who has been with the IG Section since August of this year, has been appointed Executive Officer of the Sixth U.S. Army IG Section replacing Lt. Col. Raymond C. Ball.

Lt. Col. Ball was reassigned on 1 October to attaché duty in Greece.

Colonel Rogers entered active duty in 1942, and since then has had numerous assignments. During the war years, he served as Provost Marshal in The Philippines. At the conclusion of the war, he went to Japan where he served in the same capacity until 1946 when he returned to the United States.

In 1957 he served as Provost Marshal of the Air Training Command at Randolph Field, Texas. His next assignment was in the Pacific where he served as Commanding Officer of the Hawaiian Armed Services Police.

Prior to his assignment to the Presidio, Col. Rogers was PMST at San Jose State College.

Latest Styles in protective masks will be displayed to the public 24, 25, 28 and 29 October at the US Army Chemical Corps Exhibit in Harmon Hall. The Mickey Mouse design makes gas-mask wearing fun for small children who normally object to wearing the masks. Also pictured is a civilian-type protective mask which differs only in appearance from military models.

Top Display To Show Latest CBR Methods

The latest equipment developed by the Army Chemical Corps for protection against chemical, biological and radiological warfare will be on public display at Harmon Hall next Thursday and Friday and the following Monday and Tuesday.

The US Army Chemical Corps Exhibit will be open during the normal duty hours except for a lunch break between 1130 and 1300 hours; and from 1800 to 2000 hours. Saturday morning the exhibit will be open to Post units only.

Various types of protective masks for civilians will highlight the display. The latest masks feature a Mickey Mouse design for children between the ages of three and six. These youngsters, who normally object to wearing protective masks, enjoy wearing replicas of their comic strip heroes. New civilian masks for adults differ from military masks only in appearance.

A feature of the show will be an illustration of the action and effects of the "G" or "nerve" gases which are odorless and colorless and cannot ordinarily be detected by the human senses. A newly-developed device, the E-21 Automatic Field Alarm, which operates continuously as an automatic detection against these gases, will be displayed.

Included in the exhibit will be a wallboard-like material known as Fiber Diffusion Board which would protect homes and shelters against all known chemical and biological and some radiological agents; and a headwound protective mask.

Mule skinnners . . . Presidio Cavalry men . . . lean, sunburned and tobacco-spitting, were among the best customers of the Poodle Dog, a restaurant famed in San Francisco in the late Eighties . . . an establishment of such continued popularity that the name was handed down to four of its kind since . . . including the one which still functions in the city today.

In early Poodle Dog days, meals used to be paid for in gold dust. It boasted a dining room on the street floor credited with serving the best dinner on earth for only a dollar.

It was the custom for San Franciscans to eat out from Friday until Sunday evenings, which fact was undoubtedly one of the reasons why the restaurant trade became such an important one in this city. It appears from early published accounts of the Poodle Dog that from the first to the fifth of its floors, was maintained a type of atmosphere and clientele varying in degrees of social concepts as the patron climbed. The first floor was for the very conservative or "respectable" guests . . . the second boasted private dining rooms for groups and couples . . . the third, fourth and fifth floors must be left to the readers' imagination. (These are not currently in operation.)

The elevator man at the Poodle Dog never spoke to anyone unless he was first spoken to. He wore a huge diamond on his watch fob and he was prosperous enough to invest thousands of dollars in real estate. It was said that the food and liquor dispensed at the Poodle Dog on a weekend would supply Presidio troops for a month.

Zinkland, Taits, the Palace Grill . . . or, the Hotel de France restaurant ran the Poodle Dog a close second in popularity. Just east of the present Saint Mary's Church on the edge of Chinatown, the de France restaurant held sway in a ramshackle house which in the first days of gold was a millionaire's mansion. The owner was a Frenchman and his patrons were French journalists who loved to hear Louis' double entendre jokes as he mixed the tossed salads and poured the wine.

On Louis' bill of fare there would be a heavy soup . . . fish served with an elegant French sauce, an enormous roast, or boiled meat which the waiter placed in the center of each table, together with a mustard pot and two big dishes of vegetables. Each guest helped himself. At each place Louis would have placed a pint glass of wine . . . the wine was free, but if the patron wanted black coffee he had to pay five cents extra. The salad oil was native Californian, as was the wine, which Louis made from tons of Mission grapes de-juiced in an ancient wine press he kept in the back yard.

The saloons remained open all night. There was no closing law, and evidently the people never went to bed, because business was equally brisk at 2 a.m. as it was at 6 p.m.

Strangers were royally welcomed in San Francisco in the Eighties. Any casual arriving in the city might as well have been a long-lost relative! First he was put up at one of the clubs, graduating from there to private homes where he was free to stay as long as he chose . . . being invited to weekend ranch parties and dinners in the city . . . until he tired of the luxury and the rapid social pace and went on his way.

The earlier Chinatown housed 30,000 Chinese who had rebuilt the disused commercial blocks. . . . Under these buildings they had burrowed, to create smuggling dens for opium and slave girls. . . . Actually, it was possible at one time to travel underground from one end of Chinatown to the other. (The Board of Health eventually took a dim view of this and had the Chinese seal off the passages.)

Up on the hill . . . Telegraph Hill . . . lived the Irish, the Mexicans, the Spanish and other foreign colonists. Their little houses hung on the eyelashes of the cliffs, with only a low wall to keep the adventurous small fry from falling over. . . . Fishermen . . . tailors . . . miners . . . saloon keepers . . . bakers . . . butchers, bakers and candlestick makers . . . all drawn to that as yet untamed Western frontier . . . men, women and children of varied races, creeds and colors. They lived side by side in harmony now so rare that it might have been buried with them, in the old Mission Dolores cemetery where the headstones give testimony to the alien earth from which they had sprung.

Interested Observers are Korean Army officers who are guests of the 30th Engineer Group for a two-week orientation-training program in the field of map compilation. The visitors are touring all units of the Group and will receive on-the-job-training in every facet of map making, from initial surveying to final map distribution.

Batik Printing of a design on silk is Pfc. Ann Hanson, clinical receptionist, as she designs a Christmas gift for her mother. Ann was photographed at The Presidio Arts and Crafts Shop where the silk printing and other facilities are now in popular demand.

Gift Making Project At Arts And Crafts

It's later than YOU think—is the current theme at the Presidio Arts and Crafts Shop where a big new Christmas project is underway with a view to unusual gift making for family and friends.

Newest among the Yuletide gift projects launched is the designing of handsome silk material on which designs are created by pouring hot liquid wax on the sheer silk to establish patterns around which the material is eventually dyed. The waxed areas remain colorless, and the wax moulds are removed by the use of cleaning fluid after the desired color has been set in the cloth.

Leather gifts, including purses and wallets, picture frames and belts, are also popular items among the gift makers now planning their Christmas lists at the Presidio Arts and Craft Shop. These can be made as simple or as ornate as the individual tastes dictate.

An upholstery class holds sway in the south room at the top floor of the Craft Shop. Here, the craftsmen and women are turning out custom seat covers at a cost of only about $15.00 for a two-door sedan.

It covers the very latest in dance steps. Club members aged 13 through 19 are eligible to enroll.

High school students are scheduled for dance classes at 1700 hours. The junior high school group instructions begin at 1800, with classes in operation every Saturday evening for both.

Meanwhile, the Teen Age club members have planned a special dance night each month, when prizes will be awarded those qualified through participation in the dance class.

Dance students may pay their course fee in two payments of $5.00 each.

It is hoped that the dance class will prove an added drawing card for attendance at the Teen Age Club Formal dance set for 23 December.

An autumn talent show featuring enlisted men from various Presidio units is being presented at the Presidio Service Club, Wednesday, 23 October, at 2015 hours.

On the following night, 24 October, a dance honoring the United Nations takes place at the club. The music for dancing will be provided by Lou Fry and his popular Tom Cats. The ballroom will be decorated in posters contributed by the foreign consulates in San Francisco.

Folk dances representing some of the United Nations countries will be performed during the program which begins at 2000 hours on the 24th. A group of dance hostesses are also attending the dance in deference to the servicemen appearing solo.

Other events on the Fort Baker and the Presidio service clubs calendar are listed in the regular club entertainment columns appearing in the Star Presidian.

Noted Vocal Four Will Play Three Shows Locally

Presidio officers and enlisted men are reminded to mark their special events calendars for the nights of 25 and 26 October when the famous Merry Macs appear at both clubs.

The Merry Macs are booked for three shows at the NCO Open Mess during the two-night interval; the first at 2030 Friday—the second at 2200 the same night. Their last NCO Club appearance will be on Saturday night beginning at 2300 hours.

At the Officers Open Mess the Merry Macs will be presented at 2130 Friday, for a single performance only—followed by a Saturday night show there at 2230.

Hot Dogs—Girls!

A weiner roast and dance at Stern Grove is planned for servicemen by the Armed Services YMCA, 166 Embarcadero, to take place 22 October from 1800 to 2200 hours. It is requested that prospective guests sign up at the club for the event in advance.

Ghostly Visitors like these have made reservations at the Stern Grove Halloween Party, 30 October, when the witches and the goblins of the Presidio join Fort Baker in their annual night of merriment. There will be dancing to the music of a Dixieland band, and prizes for the most unusual costumes of the evening. Transportation will be available from both clubs on the night of the 30th. Guests are asked to sign up in advance, at either club.

6th Regional Volleyball Scheduled For LAH Gym

Four top AAA volleyball teams will compete in the Second Annual San Francisco Conference Area Volleyball Tournament 4-7 November at the Letterman Sports Center. The 30th AAA Group will act as hosts.

The four AAA teams competing are the 740th; 436th, Travis Air Force Base; 9th, Fort Baker; 441st, Berkeley.

The 740th volleyball squad is under the direction of playing coach M/Sgt. Catalino R. Ignacio, who led the 752d AAA Gun Battalion team to win the 1st Annual "All-ARADCOM Volleyball Championships" held in Detroit 1-10 Dec., 1956.

Although the team members were not experienced in varsity play when first organized, the coach claims his squad has made good showings in actual competitive play against other varsity teams both offensively and defensively.

Most impressive is the team's aggressiveness, team work and the desire to win. There is room for improvement, the coach admits, but he is confident the errors shall be corrected through their regularly held "skull" and practice sessions and expects his team to be at its peak when the tournament begins.

Built around the able setting of Hubie Brown and Ronie Ross are the bullet-like-spikes of David Rhem, Rudy Buffin, Albert Weisman and Allen Kincaid. Other members of the team are the all around players Robert Mendez and Tom Huestis.

Cal Star Sees Pro Ball As Only Real Challenge

Among the outstanding athletes at the Presidio is Private Warren E. Fannin, a former defensive football center for the University of Southern California, 1952-56.

Warren is assigned to Post Headquarters. His football career began as a student at Polytechnic High School, San Francisco. In Warren's senior year, 1951, he won every honor that could be won by a high school football player. He was voted Lineman of the Year, All-Northern, and All-American honorable mention. He also participated in the North-South Prep game, a traditional contest held each year in California.

Warren recalls the Notre Dame game played at the Coliseum in 1953 as the most exciting event of his football career. Even though Southern Cal. did not win, the excitement of facing the Mighty Irish in competition was an awe-inspiring experience to Warren.

This fall again found Warren on the playing field for the South San Francisco Windbreakers, a semipro team. He has the professional's normal enthusiasm for pro football which offers a greater challenge to the players than does the college level of football, for obvious reasons.

Warren is currently helping with the officiating of the fall intramural football program here at the Presidio.

Casaba Prospects Brighter; Vet College Cagers Report

The Presidio basketball season gets underway Thursday when the Toreros face the Fairfield Air Force Base team on its court.

Expected to bring badly needed height and experience to last year's small, speedy cadre are: Perry Lieber, a veteran of Pepperdine College; John Veselick, a tall, lanky cager from the University of Oregon; John Siemek from St. Joseph College at Westmont, Ill.; Roger Stephenson, of Arlington State, Texas; and Si Denenberg from Temple University, Philadelphia.

Returning players from last year's top flight team are: All-Army Tony Psaltis, All-Army Carol Williams, Hube Brown, last year's captain; Bob Bondanza, from San Jose State, and Tor Hansen from San Jose State.

This year's ball club will have a tough road to hoe, for last year's team left an outstanding record. In 1956-57 the Toreros were Sixth Army Champions, Runner-up All-Army, Northern California Armed Forces, Bay Area Armed Forces, Central Sixth U.S. Army and Runner-up Southwestern AAU Invitational Tournament.

All military personnel still interested in trying out for the ball team should contact Coach Hal Fischer at Special Services sports section. Players are still badly needed.

Fischer stated, "due to the fact that Fairfield is not rated too rough we will have a chance to see some of the team's capabilities."

All military personnel interested in pool, table tennis, and shuffle board should be reminded of the Tuesday night games at the Presidio Service Club. On this night, small tournaments will be held in each of these events. Cash prizes will go to the winners and runnersup.

Turkey Shoot Set For Post Pistol Range

The second annual Turkey Shoot conducted by the Presidio Gun Club has been set for the Post Pistol Range 24 November, Capt. John F. Kallam, club president, announced this week. The shoot is open to everyone on Post.

Some 35 lucky target and skill events are planned for competitors of all ages. Most of the shooting will be done with .22 caliber pistols and rifles and .45 caliber pistols. Weapons and ammunition will be available at the range.

The 50-cent tickets will entitle the purchaser to enter one event and make him eligible for the 10 drawing prizes. The prizes are five electrical appliances and five turkeys. Individuals do not have to be present to win. Tickets will be on sale at the range and are now being sold by gun club members.

Proceeds from the shoot will be used to purchase Junior Rifle awards.

Fencing: An Introduction

To face an opponent in armed combat is believed to be one of the most exciting and fascinating experiences in life. Thus the modern fencer of today may feel to a lesser degree what his ancestors may have felt defending their lives and property, as in the days of old. Fencing in Europe has been a leading sport for more than a century. Great international tournaments, individual matches and exhibitions attract tens of thousands of spectators annually. Aside from the Olympic Games, Americans have seldom competed in these events, and the popularity of fencing is far behind that of Europe. Today, however, fencing is becoming one of the more popular of the American sports. Some of the reasons why fencing has lagged in the United States are unqualified teachers, and lack of understanding of fencing by the American people—a circumstance for which we are not wholly responsible.

There are three fencing weapons: foil, epee, and sabre, of which the foil is the most widely used and most popular because of its light weight and speed, and by far the most difficult of the three weapons. The basic movements are the salute, on guard, the parry, the lunge, the attack, the counter attack, the advance, and the retreat. A point is scored when the blade comes in contact with the trunk of the body, or from your shoulders to your hips. A total of five touches in ten minutes is necessary to win a match under international rules.

The match is played on an elongated mat of approximately 40 feet, with four judges on each side quickly raising their hand when a point is scored. The Director has full authority over the match and stands at the head of the fencing area.

Presidians have become more familiar with the art of fencing through the LAH Fencing Team under the coaching of Mr. Wm. G. O'Brien who have placed very high in past seasons competition.

Two very outstanding members of the LAH Fencing Team are Col. Laurance H. Brownlee and Sgt. Jose Tofoya who hold several of the international titles.

Key Veterans, New Members Vie For WAC Casaba Berths

The Presidio WAC basketball team under the coaching of Mary Willard began practicing at the Letterman Gym last week for the coming WAC basketball season.

Key veterans and several bright, new prospects seem slated for top berths on this year's team.

Leading the WAC prospects are veterans Georgia Kelly, Mary Phillips, Florian Vierra, Teresa Silva, and Peggy Harris.

New hopes for this year are Dorothy Alexander, Nina Heffner, Vivian Brill, Betty Fawley, Doris Fedrick, Diana Kinsel, Patricia Wright, and Rosemary Valencia. The Officer in Charge of this year's team is Lt. Frances Kirk.

Last year's team won the Sixth Army Championship and the Bay Area Championship.

This year's basketball season will open the first of November, with the Sixth Army Championship scheduled for the 1-8 of March, 1958.

Set Cronkhite Duck Hunting Regulations

The hunting of migratory fowl is permitted for members of the service and dependents on the Salt Water (West) Lagoon at Fort Cronkhite. Shooting may be done only from blinds installed by Special Services with only two hunters using each blind. These blinds may be reserved during the season for morning or afternoon shooting by calling the Special Services Officer.

Legal shotguns only are permitted and no shot heavier than number two may be used. All shooting must be conducted in accordance with the Game Laws of the State of California, U.S. Migratory Fowl Laws and directives of this headquarters and must be done over water. Hunters must have California Game License with U.S. Migratory Fowl Stamp. No other hunting is permitted on the Presidio and its sub-posts.

A record never equalled: In 1892 Wilbert Robinson of the Baltimore Nationals made 7 consecutive hits in one game.

Meet Dave Brown - - Ranking Army Boxer

If you were to visit the Letterman Gym one of these afternoons chances are you would find one of the Army's top ranking lightweights working out for the coming boxing season.

Sp3 David E. Brown, the Presidio's only entry to the All-Army Boxing Finals held at Fort Campbell, Kentucky, last March, will be back for another season with the Presidio boxing team.

He started his boxing career at the age of 14 because he was too small to play football and he wanted to participate in some form of athletics. His constant effort and training proved to be valuable, and he joined a small group of boxers and began boxing as an amateur.

In 1953 he went to the Junior Division of the AAU, and went all the way to the finals but lost on a split decision. At this time he weighed only 100 pounds.

Lead Presidio League With Undeclared Skein

At the half way mark of the 1957 Touch Football Program all leagues are still wide open and the following weeks play will determine the big guns for the championships.

In the Presidio League H.Q. Co. Sixth Army upset the favored MRU 18-7. The Sixth Army team was sparked by a 65-yard pass play from Peaks to Harm and on another score from Peaks to Peterson.

The MRU team scored on a brilliant run by quarterback Frankberry of 30 yards. This was the hardest fought game of the season thus far. Tempers flared and the official had to make quite a few roughing penalties against both teams.

The Honor Guard continued on the undefeated role and their big game will be October 21, when they tackle the tough MRU squad.

H.Q. Co. 30th Engrs. has insured the AAA League Championship as they powered their way to their fifth straight victory. They are also a strong contender to take the championship away from the defending Honor Guard.

Runnerup in this league will be a tossup between B, 9th AAA, and either D, 9th AAA, or the 561st Engrs.

The Engineer League slates the big game of the season on Oct. 28, between the undefeated 21st Engrs. and the 537th.

Post Fencers Prepared For Opening Meet

Five members of the Presidio-LAH fencing team will open the 1957-58 fencing season on 26 October at the Halberstadt Fencing Academy in San Francisco.

Representing the local team will be Dave Heald, Larry Cauffman, Severo Pasol, Bert Sheck and Bill Coleman. Col. Laurence H. Brownlee and Jose Tafoya, Presidio fencing champions, will not compete.

The competition will take place in the unclassified sabre.

Who Needs One?

Just who does need a hunting license?

License agents and Hunter Safety Instructors are continually being asked this question. While the California Hunting Regulations are quite clear on this subject, a word of clarification may help.

Any person, REGARDLESS OF AGE, who hunts, takes, captures, pursues or kills any game bird or animal must FIRST obtain a proper hunting license.

There is NO MINIMUM age to hunt EXCEPT that persons under 12 years of age may not hunt deer or bear or purchase deer or bear license tags. Special hunts for elk and antelope are limited to persons 16 years of age or older.

Record BA

Rogers Hornsby, the baseball great, holds the record for the highest batting average in one season, .424. He set the record in 1924 in 143 games.

Two years before coming in the Army he met the Sixth Army bantam weight champion and fought to a draw.

In 1956 at the Senior Division of the AAU he went to the semifinals where he was defeated by Paul Villobas, the 1955-56 AAU champion.

After being in the Army for a year he began boxing with the Presidio team where he won the Sixth Army championship by beating Claude Jones of Fort Lewis on a decision.

Representing the lightweight division of the Sixth Army Boxing Team he traveled back to compete in the All-Army finals where he fought to the semifinals.

Although he is out of the lightweight division this year, great things are expected of Sp3 Brown for the coming boxing season at the Presidio.

'Protect Career Employees,' Says Director

Tour Guide for visitors to Fort Point is Pvt. Loran Crane. Pvt. William Walker kneels by his rendering of an 1860 cannon, on the original gun emplacement.

Sees Better Days Ahead For Service

The United States Civil Service Commission will keep close tabs on all Federal agencies during this "era of economy, efficiency and austerity" to insure that every effort is made to relocate career civil servants displaced by reductions in force.

This was the keynote sounded by John W. Macy, Jr., executive director of the Civil Service Commission, in an address to some 200 organization and personnel directors of all Federal agencies in the Bay Area at a meeting in the Presidio Theater on Tuesday.

Despite current economy programs, some 200 to 300 thousand vacancies will occur in civil service during the next fiscal year.

"An all out effort must be made to relocate the career people involved in this squeeze by giving them priority ratings and working through the cushion of non-career personnel before reaching down to permanent employees," said Mr. Macy.

Despite a presidential veto of last year's Federal employees pay raise, a continuing study is being made by a cabinet committee of all governmental pay systems.

"Except in the area of group medical insurance, we compare favorably with industry," stated Mr. Macy. "Some 26 per cent of the civilian payroll is paid out in fringe benefits and current plans call for an increase in these benefits."

Mr. Macy felt that the current study would be the most comprehensive ever made and would result in a more workable compensation plan.

Articulate Spokesman John W. Macy, Jr. (right), executive director of the United States Civil Service Commission, is welcomed to the Presidio by Clifford E. Miller, chief of the Civilian Personnel Division, Sixth US Army. Mr. Macy spoke to key governmental agency chiefs here on Tuesday.

RFA Trainees Here Find Army Life Busy, Varied

(Ed. Note—This is the first in a series of articles on the Reserve Forces Act Trainees at the Presidio.)

There are 88 men at the Presidio of the 7,973 Reserve Forces Act (RFA) trainees now serving with the Sixth Army. Upon completion of their six-month tours of active duty, these men will return to their home units to fulfill their six-year reserve obligations.

Private Loren Crane is an example of the use the Army is making of the civilian backgrounds of these men, and of the benefits they are receiving from their training. Private Crane was a speech major at Brigham Young University. Now he conducts guided tours of the Presidio for groups of Boy Scouts, school children, and VIPs.

Crane believes that the tours give him a speaking poise that he could not attain in college classes.

Private William Walker has parlayed a study of architecture into an historical research assignment on Fort Point. He compiles information for the proposed restoration of the fort, and drafts replicas of the original cannons and sites for use on the tours.

"I have found this assignment to be an excellent opportunity for learning and practicing architectural rendering techniques," says Private Walker.

The number of RFAs arriving at the Presidio may drop temporarily, as the program was suspended on 14 May due to the excessive number volunteering for the six months' training.

A quota was then established. To keep within strength and budgetary ceilings, enlistments of young men without prior military service will be held to a total of 11,900 through next 30 December. The enlistments were reopened to 6,300 in the 17-18½ age group and to 2,600 in the 18½-26 age group.

MIT Grad Now Teaching Math To Future Misslemen

From a Civil Engineering position paying about $700 monthly to the rank of Pfc. in the Army of $80—and liking it—is difficult to understand, but possible—at least in the case of a Massachusetts Institute of Technology graduate now instructing Presidio soldiers preparing to enter Guided Missile schools.

Private First Class Burton M. Kahn graduated from MIT in 1955 and after working as a civil engineer at the Connecticut plant of Pratt and Whitney was inducted into military service.

Hoping to use and share his technical knowledge, Kahn launched, under the guidance of M/Sgt. C. C. Bartholmew, Army Education Center NCOIC, an off-duty study hall for military men preparing for entrance to Guided Missile Schools. Here he teaches courses in Math, Science, and Geometry among the 8-hour day courses presented by the Post Army Education Center.

The five-weeks course in Math, Algebra and Geometry now underway at the Presidio, is the last in a series of three. About 30 soldiers, ranging in age from 19 to 40 years, are taking advantage of these classes with an eye to furthering their civilian and military careers.

"There is no single student too limited in any of the given subjects for us to be of assistance to him," says Kahn. "The relaxed method of instruction is one of our greatest drawing cards and my own reward comes from the challenge and the stimulus it presents to the students and myself."

Teaching Math Pfc. Burton M. Kahn

He also stressed the continuing need for quality employees at every level of civil service and called for dollar conservation that would provide the hiring of college graduates in initial positions. He cited the success of the present Career Executive Plan and said important additions would be forthcoming after the first of the year.

Mr. Macy scored the lack of an "affirmative tone" in the public relations aspect of the civil service program and felt that though the program enjoys a certain amount of prestige on the outside "an apologetic attitude is limiting the real significance of our program internally."

He cited the "great potential to be realized by a first-class job of public relations" during the upcoming 75th anniversary of the Pendleton Act. This was the law that created the Civil Service Commission on 16 January, 1883, to "regulate and improve the Civil Service of the United States."

DA Sets Deadline On Wear Of Black Boots

Male Army personnel including National Guardsmen and Reservists on active duty training will switch to black combat boots on 5 May, 1958, the Department of the Army has announced. The boots will be worn as ordered with all uniforms.

Personnel will be required to have at least one pair of black combat boots by the effective date and a second pair by the beginning of the 1958 winter uniform season. Starting 5 May new enlistees and inductees will be issued two pairs of black boots after the russet boot stocks are depleted.

In order to meet the requirements, russet boots will be dyed by the individual soldier. Dye kits will be issued to personnel processed through reception center issue points after 5 May; other personnel will be required to get dye kits from Army exchange or commercial facilities at their own expense.

Overseas commands will begin submitting requisitions for the new boots on 1 December; CONUS installations will begin requisitioning for sales store requirements on 1 February.

Top Award For Pistol Team Coach

Sergeant First Class Antonio V. Soza, Post Rifle Range NCO and member of the champion Presidio Pistol Team, received a Certificate of Achievement this week from Col. Charles G. Rau, Post Commander.

The sergeant earned the recognition while assigned to the 25th Infantry Division in Hawaii, where he started and developed both the championship division pistol team and the 200-strong Junior Rifle Club.

A veteran of nearly seven years' service, Sergeant Soza has received more than 75 individual marksmanship awards during the past year and a half. He came to the Presidio in September.

There's one war that never ends—the war against human troubles. And the guided missiles aimed at disease, family problems, disaster and delinquency are your United Crusade dollars.

Here's a target of human unhappiness that you, through your Crusade-supported Red Cross, hit this year. It's a story with a direct hit ending that happened at the Presidio.

The first word that Sgt. Bill Summers (name disguised) had of the death of his father, who had lived alone in Texas, was when the Red Cross field director asked him to come into his office. Bill, considered a tough, though fair, sergeant by his men at the Presidio, broke down and cried when he heard the news. After he pulled himself together, he admitted that he would need a loan in order to fly back for the funeral, and asked the field director to help him locate his brother, also in the service, who was on maneuvers in Georgia.

Bill left by plane that night—with a ticket in his pocket financed by loan from Red Cross. His brother made it back to the funeral, too. He was notified of the death of his father via Red Cross' telecommunications system by a field director on maneuvers with the troops who helped him apply for an immediate emergency leave.

This is a direct hit ending that meant solace and help at a time of sorrow. You helped score it, because Red Cross is one of more than 250 health, recreation and character-building causes you supported last year through your gift to the United Bay Area Crusade.

In the arsenal of trouble-fighting weapons, Red Cross is the not-so-secret weapon that attacks financial, personal and family problems of servicemen and their families. Red Cross builds up defenses, too, by providing recreation and morale services.

To help solve family and personal problems, Red Cross maintains two lines of defense. One is a world-wide network of experienced field directors stationed at military bases and outposts. The other is the 3,700 local chapters working with families back home. The two lines are connected by a special system of telecommunications.

(Last year in the Bay Area, Red Cross staff members at bases and military hospitals gave financial aid, counseling, emergency communications, and morale-building services to an average of 4,500 servicemen and their families each month. Average monthly cost to Red Cross was $145,000. Volunteers helped, too—an average of 2,000 each month.)

Many victories have been won by the dollar-guided missiles you contributed last year to the United Crusade. But victories—a host of them against personal problems, disaster and disease are still to be won. Your help will be needed again.

Extend Deadline On Wear Of New Army Uniforms

Washington (ANS)—The Department of the Army announced today that because of the current reduction-in-force program it is extending the date all active duty Army officers and warrant officers must own and wear the new Green and Blue uniforms for another two months.

The mandatory date for ownership and wear of the Army Green and Blue uniforms was originally established as 1 October, 1958, and then set back to 1 November. Now, according to DA, either the pinks and greens or the Army Green uniform may be worn both on duty and off duty until further notice, or at least until 1 January.

Accessories to be worn with the pinks and greens include the brown felt service cap, dark green necktie, shade number one shirt, and black shoes and socks. Accessories to be worn with the Army Green uniform are the green cap, black necktie, new shade 46 shirt, and black shoes and socks. These accessories will not be mixed, the Army said.

Under the current plan, officers and warrant officers scheduled for separation from active duty before the beginning of the 1958 summer uniform season (or 1 May, 1958, in areas where the winter uniform is prescribed for year-round wear) are still exempted from the new uniform requirements. They may wear either the olive drab uniform or the Army Green until separation.

Dual Testing To Continue With Army, AF Missiles

Washington (ANS)—Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy has authorized additional testing of both the Army's intermediate range ballistic missile Jupiter and the Air Force's Thor.

His decision to continue tests of both was based on a recommendation of a three-man Pentagon committee headed by Special Assistant William M. Holiday. Other members of the committee were Major General John B. Medaris, of the Army and Major General B. A. Schriever of the Air Force.

The Department of Defense named the committee last August to work out a plan whereby a single land-based intermediate range ballistic missile is evolved at the earliest practicable date from the "Jupiter" and "Thor" test programs.

The committee reported back to the Secretary of Defense, however, recommending continued testing of both missiles until a better technical basis is established for an IRBM program decision.

New Uniforms Need Warrant Army Cautions

Washington (AFPS)—The Army has again cautioned officers and enlisted men against buying Green and Dress Blue uniforms which do not carry warranty labels from commercial sources.

Controls in effect since Sept. 16, as established by AR 700-8400-3, specify that firms manufacturing the new uniforms for sale through commercial outlets must submit samples to the Army Uniform Quality Control Board to obtain certification that materials used meet Army standards.

Under this regulation the responsibility for determining that uniforms carry the warranty label rests with the individual.

Commanding officers both in the States and outside the ZI now are required to insure that no controlled-list uniforms items bought after 16 Sept. are worn unless they are properly labeled.

In the event such items later are found to be off-color or inferior to comparable garments in QM stores, military personnel are encouraged to submit their purchases to the Army Uniform Quality Control Office, Natick, Mass., or to an overseas control office for examination.

Far Side Ready—This is the rocket which was launched from a balloon suspended platform 100,000 feet above Eniwetok Atoll in the Pacific. Unofficial reports indicate the rocket traveled 1,000 to 4,000 miles above earth, a possible first step in sending a rocket around the moon to the never-seen far side.

E-4 Stripes Up 50% Over Last Quarter

According to information released today by the Sixth U.S. Army, 2,180 soldiers in this command are slated to be promoted to the grade of specialist third class during the current quarter—October, November, December—a 50 per cent increase over the last period.

Other promotions include four E-7's, six E-6's, and fifteen E-5's.

Information on how many of the promotions will be allocated to the Presidio will be released within the next two weeks.

These figures are in accord with a Department of the Army announcement that more than 52,000 promotions to grades above E-3 will be effected during this period. The quotas by grade are: E-7, 101; E-6, 153; E-5, 6,701; E-4, 45,166; for a total of 52,121.

For this three month period, major commands have been authorized to promote all privates E-2 who reach eight months' service on the first day of the month in which they are considered for advancement and who are recommended by their immediate commanders, to private first class.

Appointments to the top three grades will not be made in any of the following MOS's: 073, 421, 551, 553, 632, 714, 719, 762, 763, 764, 767, 773, 941, 942, 943, 951 and 952.

In addition no promotions will be effected in the following grades and MOS's: To pay grade E-7: 524, 635, 715, 716, 765, 768; To pay grade E-6: 631, 635, 643, 715, 716, 765; To pay grade E-5: 524, 631, 643, 768.

Local promotions will be announced in the next week or so.

Happy Occasion for Pfc. Brian E. Ramsey, Hq. Co. USA Garrison, as the Honorable Chief Judge Michael J. Roche of the U.S. District Court, San Francisco, presents him with his U.S. naturalization certificate. Ramsey was doubly rewarded this week as he also received his Pfc. stripes.

Citizenship, Promotion Highlight Pfc's Week

A Presidio soldier was doubly rewarded this week as he received his US citizenship and his Pfc. stripes at the same time.

Private First Class Brian E. Ramsey of Hq. Co. USA Garrison can't recall a more important week in his life. Since his entrance in the Army he has worked hard to achieve these two goals.

Born in Victoria, British Columbia, in 1935, Pfc. Ramsey moved to Reno, Nevada, in 1951 with his parents. He completed high school there and attended the University of Nevada for two years.

Attracted by the Army Guided Missile program, Pfc. Ramsey enlisted in the Service last January, but was disappointed shortly thereafter in discovering that he was unable to obtain a security clearance for missile school because of his foreign nationality.

He immediately started on his naturalization and today he feels proud and happy to have achieved that goal. "The right to vote, to hold a Government job, and to be entrusted with a security clearance, are only a few of the many advantages that US citizenship offers," commented Pfc. Ramsey.

The Presidio soldier was awarded his Pfc. stripes this week by his Company Commander, Capt. Charles Monges. He is presently working in the Funds Custodian Office. His tentative plans for the future include another attempt to enter the guided missile school or application to Officers Candidate School.

Color Ceremonies

The 441st AAA Missile Battalion celebrated Organization Day on Tuesday, 22 October. Col. Daniel A. Ranney, commanding officer of the San Francisco Bay Area Army Air Defense, Sfc. Raymond H. Carmen, color bearer, and Sgt. Eugene Edwards took part in presentation of the colors ceremonies.

Sgt. Edwards, who is presently on leave from duty with the 8th Army Special Services, Seoul, Korea, served with the 441st during its many campaigns in Europe during World War II.

New SOD's Statement

Washington (ANS)—The Honorable Neil H. McElroy, upon entering his new duties as Secretary of Defense recently, said he appreciated the grave responsibilities which repose on the Defense Team.

"Our primary job," he affirmed, "is to maintain the military forces of the U. S. in such a state of power and instant readiness as to deter any would-be world ruler from launching a war against us or our free-world allies."

Speaking of the cost of defense, he said it was his opinion that economy is not incompatible with good defense.

"Certainly," he said, "as we introduce new weapons, we must continue to help meet their immense cost by reducing duplication and unnecessary expenditures wherever possible."

He explained that he had had several weeks of continuous inspections, briefings and demonstrations of the most modern implements of national defense. Then he commented:

"While I have been impressed by their increasingly high cost, I have also been awed by the vastly great wallop possessed by today's plane, missile and ship and our streamlined ground forces, as compared with their counterparts of yesterday."

Turning to the rivalry between the Services, he declared he believed in competition and that in his experience the desire to do a better job than the other fellow often provides a hearty stimulus toward greater achievement.

"However," he said, "if rivalry gets to the point where it threatens to jeopardize the Defense teamwork, produce wasteful duplication of effort, undermine the public's confidence in their military organization, it cannot be countenanced."

He then expressed confidence in the men in the various Services, and added:

"I expect team play and loyal support from all the members of the organization I have given the responsibility of leading."

RIF Reservists May Qualify

Washington (ANS) — Reserve Officers being released through the current reduction in force may still qualify for retirement under the Reserve Program, Department of Army advised early this week.

Urging RIF personnel interested in continuing in the Reserve to apply directly to the Chief of their home Military District as soon as possible, a spokesman said:

"A Reserve Officer with less than 20 years' service will find it greatly to his advantage to continue to earn a minimum of 50 retirement points each year to qualify for retirement pay under Title 10, U.S.C., Sections 1331-1337."

Retirement points are awarded for active duty training, reserve duty training, and preparation of instructor's materials. Points are also awarded for giving instruction to any component of the Armed Forces, to ROTC students, to appropriate groups of civilians and to members of the Civil Air Patrol. Also, points are given for participation as a member of the Military Affiliate Radio System, and other methods as authorized by AR 140-305 and AR 135-180.

These two regulations outline not only the ways of earning retirement points but also the requirements and procedures for retirement benefits. Under them, a Reservist is eligible (with certain exceptions) for retired pay at age 60 if he has completed 20 years of combined active duty and satisfactory Reserve service, and if the last eight years of his qualifying service was in a Reserve component. (Reserve officers on active duty are considered members of a Reserve component for this purpose).

Completion of a satisfactory year of Reserve service for retirement purposes requires the earning of a minimum of 50 retirement points.

"A Reservist is automatically granted 15 points for membership in the Reserve, and thus is only required to actually earn 35 during the year," the spokesman explained.

"There are many ways to earn retirement points no matter where a Reservist lives or the extent of Army Reserve activity in his community," he added. "If he is unable to locate a unit vacancy, he can still earn points by taking correspondence courses, by attending a USAR school as an auditor student, or by serving in a training unit."

Noted Author John Toland, interviews Donald G. Litwin, civilian employee of the Sixth U.S. Army A.G. Section, for his forthcoming book entitled, "Battle: the Story of the Bulge." Mr. Litwin lost a hand and a leg on a reconnaissance mission during the Battle of the Bulge.

'Live History' Expert Here To Tell True Bulge Story

One hundred thousand miles of world travel and over 1000 personal interviews will furnish the background material for the "real" story of the Battle of the Bulge, according to John Toland, a noted freelance writer who visited the Presidio this week.

Mr. Toland was in the Sixth Army area to interview several key military and civilians who participated in the controversial battle. Among those he talked to on the Presidio were Major General Robert L. Howze, Sixth U.S. Army Deputy Commanding General for Reserve Forces, and Mr. Donald Litwin, a double amputee now serving with the Sixth Army AG Section.

General Howze commanded the 36th Armored Infantry Regiment in Europe during World War II, while Litwin was with a U.S. Army reconnaissance mission during the Battle of the Bulge.

Toland, whose most recent success was the novel "Ship In The Sky," his first attempt at what he calls "live history," and which has been a popular seller here and abroad, believes his story of the Bulge will be the most comprehensive and varied ever written about a single battle "including the battles of the Civil War."

Mr. Toland's attempt to get a true perspective of what "really" happened at the Bulge has found him interviewing everyone from top Army brass to buck privates. On one European jaunt he rented a Mercedes and toured the Belgian countryside in search for civilians who could recall anything about the historic battle.

Besides the countless interviews, Mr. Toland has done intensive research in numerous libraries throughout the world for information.

He estimates that six more weeks of research, including a personal interview with ex-President Harry S. Truman, should provide sufficient background material for the book, which is to be entitled, "Battle: The Story of the Bulge." Publication will be made by Henry Holt Co. and is anticipated around January 1959.

Graduated from Williams College, Mass., Toland attended Drama School at Yale University. He enlisted in the Army in 1942 and came out five years later as a Captain.

His latest book, "Ship in the Sky, A History of Dirigibles," now being serialized by one of the leading British dailies, has become very popular abroad. It is available at the Sixth Army Reference Library. Two other books are in the works. One a story of children on the road during the years of the Great Depression. Another will follow the "live history" style and cover pre-Depression and Depression years on the West Coast.

Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Boys' Clubs and other youth organizations share a fourth of United Crusade's current budget.

A Car is a Car is a car, but . . . Pfc. Donald Torrence, 163rd MP Company, seems in doubt as Captain D. J. Hernandez, Sixth Army Medical Section, explains some of the finer points of his Isetta. The pretty girl is Jan Jensen of Post Civilian Personnel — not standard equipment even with the deluxe models.

SP Expert Tracks 'Thing,' Explodes Invasion Theory

"Put your tracking equipment in moth balls, boys, and rest those weary eyeballs. The Thing will never get off the ground!"

With these words the Star Presidian's satellite editor laid to rest growing speculation and excitement over a bug-like creature that recently invaded the Presidio.

Following reports of a saucer, one-man satellite and a helicopter with collapsible wings, our science department began an extensive search for an answer to this ever widening mystery. After many weary and frustrating hours, the creature was tracked to its lair.

"Seems the creature warn't no creature at all," said our fearless expert, "but a devilish device aimed at making a two-car family out of a one-car paycheck."

Not one to let a good story die an early death, our intrepid newsman interviewed the mystic master of this munificent mugwumper and found that it was the latest entry in the German midget car frenzy—the Isetta.

Proud owner was Capt. Donald J. Hernandez, recently assigned to Sixth Army Medical Section, who purchased his prize while on duty with 7th Army Hq. in Stuttgart. He gets 45 miles to the gallon and has nothing but praise for the way his 500-pounder handles on the open road.

"She cruises at about 50 per and handles like a baby, at least a small baby," said the owner. "Insurance is cheaper and parking, even in San Francisco, holds no terrors for me."

Sold on the economy of German cars, Hernandez also owns a deluxe Volkswagen bus. "For the price of a new American car," he remarked, "we are now a two-car family. Besides, with four children, you just have to stay mobile."

Price of the Isetta abroad is $650. Stateside delivery, when you can get it, is slightly higher—just about double.

San Francisco Jewish Community Center, which last year received $58,400 from United Crusade, has 3,698 members and an attendance of more than 99,000 at group activities.

Library Has Top Info On Retirement Problems

Just like death and taxes, you will have to face retirement some day, whether it be from active service or a civilian job. The idea that you should start preparing for this day now sounds far fetched but according to the experts there is no time like the present.

The Post Library has many books on retirement which can help you plan for that inevitable day. One of the newest and best, RETIREMENT FROM THE ARMED FORCES, is a practical, comprehensive book prepared specifically for members of the military. It was written by senior officers of long service who have recently retired. They claim that the transition from service to civilian life can cause a rude awakening if careful advance planning is not made. All aspects of service retirement problems from psychological to economic are covered. There are chapters on acquiring a home, saving and investments, social security, medical care, where to retire, etc. This book should be read by all men who plan to make a career of the service.

Joseph Buckley's RETIREMENT HANDBOOK is a similar book which offers top material on starting your own business and selecting a location for retirement living. The information on the latter is excellent, naming good towns for retirement with their real estate prices.

Of course, finances enter into any picture of a secure future. Rear Admiral F. I. Entwistle, USN (Ret.) has just published, A PRACTICAL GUIDE TO YOUR FINANCIAL FUTURE, which explains how you can plan your expenses, savings and investments. There are details completely worked out for each year of life, starting at the age of twenty-two at a salary of $3000, through the age of sixty-five. The maximum salary earned in the example is $8000, proving that you can have a secure financial future on a service salary.

SAVE IT, INVEST IT AND RETIRE by Donald Rogers is a practical, plain talking, penny wise financial primer for the wage earner and his family. It gives complete coverage of every phase of our complicated financial problems, including a glossary of stock market terms and psychological help for the chronic debtor, the chronic would-be-saver and excellent information on how to finance your retirement.

A trip to your nearest Special Services Library today could start you on the road to a secure and happy retirement.

Testing Methods of emergency evacuation used in the Korean War are now being perfected by isolated AAA units of the San Francisco Bay Area. Sp2 Harvey Ketchum of the 441st AAA Missile Bn. is transferred from an Army helicopter to an ambulance waiting to take him to Letterman Army Hospital.

With the first military troops of Spanish origin to travel overland from Monterey under command of Lieutenant Jose Joaquin Moraga, were Army wives and children breaking trail with their men, to establish the Presidio . . . and seven families of settlers rationed and provisioned by the king of Spain.

Under separate orders to take the same journey by sea, were the captains of the sailing ships, San Carlos and Principe, and their crews. The two ships, however, were not to sail until the day after the overland group had set out on the tortuous route up the yet untraveled peninsula. It was probably a gesture of old-world Spanish courtesy that committed the ships' pilots, captains and crew members, to escort the land group up the coast trail until they came to Del Monte.

From this point of return, then, they watched the caravan . . . people, pack trains, cattle and horses, blending gradually into the Western prairie. . . . Here they said Adios . . . voicing the hope that they would meet soon again . . . "in the port of Our Father San Francisco."

The land travelers followed the same route taken by Spanish mission priests who had preceded them before the military colony left Spain under orders of the Spanish king. Their way lay across the lake country of Salinas Valley, over the sun-browned mountain ranges to Santa Clara, thence up the long, lonely terrain leading to San Francisco.

"We were well received by the heathens we met on the road," wrote Spanish Father Palou, in his diary of the journey; "they were surprised to see so many people of both sexes and various ages—and they were astonished at the cattle, which they had never seen before."

In the valleys east of San Francisco, the colonists' larder was restocked by three huge wild elk which the men slaughtered, "even without having to leave the trail to search for them."

It took ten days for the travelers to come within what is now the city limit of San Francisco.

Near Fort Point, Lieutenant Moraga and his men discovered two spring wells in a fairly green pastureland. . . . It marked their final camping ground, the entrance to the present Presidio.

Historians disagree on the exact date marking the first Roman Catholic Mass offered on the original Presidio site. One of two dates given in old files is 28 July 1776. The discrepancy might stem from the fact that before Lieutenant Moraga arrived here, two Spanish mission priests are also historically listed as having made the trip from Monterey to establish a Mission for Spain, and to have offered a Thanksgiving Mass on the day they reached here, on a crude altar built on the site of the present Chapel of Our Lady of the Presidio.

However, be that as it may, the same site is definitely where Moraga and his soldiers erected a log cabin chapel the day they moved to the present parade ground area from their overnight camp at The White Cliff, near Fort Point.

An astonishing thought connected with the arrival in San Francisco of the San Carlos and the Principe, which sailed from Monterey the day after the overland group set out, is that according to historic dates given for their arrival, it took more than two months for the sailing ships to reach this harbor. Early writers say that as they left Carmel, a thunderous storm came up, buffeting them from San Diego to the Oregon coast and back. In the same historical records it is claimed that both Spanish ships covered over two thousand miles enroute here from the Monterey Peninsula.

However, storm-delayed or not . . . the ships' crews immediately joined the Spanish soldier-colonists and their families in building a block of barracks, a chapel, offices, housing quarters for the families, and the commander's residence.

According to their biographers, the Spaniards were here only one month when their log house encampment around the present parade ground was completed.

In thanksgiving for the work so soon accomplished, Lieutenant Moraga invited the soldiers and colonists to mark the day as a holy one, with a solemn High Mass offered by the monks who had traveled with them . . . a religious procession, and an enormous banquet for which two cows were slaughtered and roasted in the outdoor pits.

The hearts of the aliens were lighter now. . . . They climbed the slopes beyond the little chapel early next morning . . . to gaze back in wonder at the flat empty reaches they had traveled to begin a new life in this far-off land . . . and while larks sang in the meadows a lean old padre wrote his last chapter on the Spanish journey to the Presidio:

"This mesa affords a most delightful view," he penned. . . . "From it one sees a large part of the port and its islands . . . the mouth of the harbor . . . and the sea beyond it. Although in my travels I saw good sites and beautiful country, I saw none which pleased me as much as this. And I think that if it could be settled like Europe, there would not be anything more beautiful. It has all the conveniences desired . . . by land as well as by sea, with a harbor so remarkable and so spacious that in it may be established shipyards, docks, and anything else that may be wished. Being on a height, it is so commanding that, with muskets, it can defend the entrance to the mouth of the harbor . . . while a gunshot away it has water to supply the people."

San Francisco has outgrown even the old Spanish priest's dream of it. And still it lies as then . . . a Western El Dorado between two oceans . . . common meeting ground for races born of the four continents . . . a benediction and a benefactor, drawing together in friendly bond the peoples of every faith, creed and color.

Presidians are in for a special treat on Tuesday, 29 October at 2015 hours when the Ballet Celeste will give a one-night performance at the Ft. Scott Theater. Admission is free to all personnel.

The Ballet Celeste is unique in the world of ballet because its directress, Merriem Lanova, a former Ballet Russe soloist, is dedicated to the idea of establishing a ballet company which will some day develop into a great national ballet to rival England's Sadler's Wells or the Imperial Ballet of Czarist Russia.

She has helped make this dream a reality by establishing two schools in the city of San Francisco for the training of artistically gifted children: the San Francisco Conservatory of Ballet and Theatre Arts and the School of Universal Living. These two schools complement each other, the one providing training in classical ballet technique and choreography, the other, a 12-year academic education especially adapted to the needs of gifted children.

Since the first audition was held in 1949 to find American children of artistic promise from all backgrounds, a company of young people has been formed which has been praised all over the country for its skillful, aesthetic performances.

Programs full of interesting information and pictures about performers and performances will be sold at the door for $1.

Sheila and Laura Brownlee, daughters of Col. Laurance Brownlee, G-4 Section, are performers in the Ballet Celeste.

Merry Macs Here

TO REALLY BE OR — New York T-Shirt School Revisited

A girl lies on the floor, white, cold as stone. A young man stands up hissing, grimacing and gyrating. A third person announces, "I'm going to be a clove of garlic."

"At this point I decided to check out," says Pvt. Hart Sprager, Sixth Army Office of Information Activities, who, before coming on six months active duty, spent a year in New York "making the rounds" as an aspiring actor.

He witnessed the above situation at a study group where young people were practicing aspects of the Stanislavski method of acting which calls for the individual TO BE the role he assumes. The girl WAS a piece of marble. The young man WAS live steam.

"I thought they were going a little bit overboard," says Hart. "Maybe they WERE what they said, but they couldn't explain how they did it or tell me how I could do it. So I left."

Reporting on the struggling young people in New York who are trying to break into the theater,

Hart says he was most impressed by the intensity and dedication with which they work at their art.

"Those kids really go through murder. For many of them their only income is unemployment compensation. Most live in cold water flats. But they are always working. They take lessons if they can afford them. Those that can't form groups and teach each other."

One girl, Susan Oliver, who Hart knows personally, now appears to be on her way to fame. But for a year and a half she made all the rounds without a break. During that time she lived at home and was given one dollar a week for spending money.

"The mutual hardship pushes all the kids into one big fraternity," according to Hart. "No one has any money so they are always getting together for parties. Everybody's interested in everyone else, and when someone gets ahead, they're all thrilled."

But for anyone still not convinced that the acting game is tough in New York, Hart offers these statistics: "There are approximately 30,000 actors in New York.

"I AM a Soldier!"
Pvt. Hart Sprager

Yet during a year only about 5,000 get jobs."

Of course, all the would-be actors are not absolutely dedicated. Hart admits that there is a percentage of young people who have money and think it is a lark to go to New York, live in Greenwich Village and try to break into the theater. But this type, he insists, is definitely in the minority.

As a matter of fact, he notes, the poor young actors don't even live in Greenwich Village. This internationally known symbol of Bohemia and the theater has become the "smart" place to live. The poor young drama students have to find their lodging in a less expensive neighborhood.

Despite the hardships, Hart would recommend the New York route to anyone who is serious about drama. He points out that almost all the great actors started out in the New York theater arena. He offers the opinion that Hollywood can sell a star's personality, but in the theater a person gets solid acting talent.

Hart, who holds a degree in theater and drama from Stanford University, doesn't plan to go back to New York right away, however, for financial reasons he will return to his home in Los Angeles and try to further his career in TV and movies. He explains that while the competition is about the same in New York and Hollywood, there is more work in Southern California.

He already has some television work to his credit. During the 1954-1955 season he appeared in a number of the Burns and Allen shows as a "crazy artist" friend of Ronnie Burns. He did summer stock acting with Imogene Coca and Lee Bowman in Westport, Conn. in 1953.

In New York he did "a great deal of walking" and had a few off-Broadway parts. In June, just before coming in the Army, he appeared on a Schlitz Playhouse in a show called "Fifty Beautiful Girls" starring Barbara Bel Geddes.

Here at the Presidio he will be seen in the coming Special Services production of "Hasty Heart" where he plays Tommy, "a Cockney slob."

Chemical Assist Reduces Rough Fish In Lakes

How chemical treatment of lakes pays off in better fishing is evident in a report from the California Fish and Game Department.

Treated in 1954-55 to remove rough fish or stunted populations were Long and Devils Peak Lakes, Placer County; the Campbell Lakes and Lower Bucks Lake, Plumas County, and the Lindsey Lakes and the lakes in the Island Lake chain in Nevada County.

Before treatment they produced almost no fishing. Latest reports are that they are producing limits of rainbow and eastern brook trout in excellent condition.

No Carping, Now!

4 Army Stars Will Vie In Pentathlon

Fort Sam Houston, Texas (AFPS) — The US Modern Pentathlon team has left for an international meet at Stockholm, Sweden. Competition will begin 26 October with 20 European countries, including Russia, scheduled to participate.

Four Army athletes are making the trip for their third pentathlon meet this year, and their second overseas contest.

The pentathletes of the US team are Jack Daniels, Richard Ellis, Richard Stoll and Daniel Steimann.

Competition in a pentathlon meet is judged on combined performances in horseback riding, fencing, swimming, shooting and running.

The team is experienced, with both Daniels and Stoll being US representatives at last year's Olympic games. In May competition here, Daniels finished first in a field of 24 pentathletes from five nations and in the July meet at Umea, Sweden, he captured the individual championship over athletes representing six nations.

Steimann is a 1956 graduate from the University of Pennsylvania, where his main sports were swimming and fencing; Ellis began his athletic career in 1951 as a member of the military pentathlon team which competed in Antibes, France.

Trout lay their eggs in depressions in the gravel or coarse sand of stream.

Brownlee To Lead Team In Opener

Mainstay of the Letterman Army Fencing Team, which opens its fourth season of competitive fencing tonight, is Colonel Laurance H. Brownlee, team captain and a master fencer with over 32 years of solid experience.

Oddly enough, Brownlee got started on his favorite hobby and sport quite by accident—literally. A football injury which impaired his arm sent the Colonel searching for a therapeutic pastime that would strengthen the injured member. He thought fencing was the answer and joined the United States Military Academy team in 1925. What started as therapy ended in a four year membership on the West Point team and in a 32-year dedication to fencing.

A winner of twenty gold medals in competition, Brownlee currently holds such titles as Intermediate Sabre Champion, Pacific Coast and Northern California Division Intermediate Foil and Sabre Champion. He won the Sabre Championship of the West Point Officers Club in 1939.

Since his arrival at the Presidio in 1954, the Colonel has been very active in the participation and promotion of the Presidio-Letterman fencing club and was recently appointed chairman of the Armed Forces Fencing Committee, a group dedicated to the promotion of service fencing.

His leadership and guidance have been key factors in establishing the local team in national competition and in promoting a growing interest in fencing as a team and individual sport.

Stay Undefeated In League Contests

Hq. Co. 30th AAA wrapped up the AAA League Football championship by winning their sixth straight victory over the Motor Pool, 39-0.

This earned them the right to play in the Post Championship to take place in the middle of November.

The runnerup slot in the AAA League is still undecided, it will be between the 561st Engineers, D 9th AAA, and B 9th AAA.

In the Presidio League the Honor Guard continued its winning streak by rambling over MRU, 34-6, and cinched themselves a play-off spot with Hq. Co. 6th Army.

Hq. Co. USA Garrison and MRU are still in a deadlock for the runnerup position.

The Engineer League last week saw the 549th knock the 21st out of first place by rolling over them, 12-0. This win for the 549th put them even with the 537th for first place. The big game for the championship will be on 4 November.

The mighty 537th Engineers made it five straight as they topped the 99th Engineers, 34-19. The 537th led at the half, 7-0, after two tough first periods. The score came on a 20 yard run by quarterback Danny Reed, which was set up by two short passes.

The 99th showed their teeth and shook the 537th defense by scoring in the first minute of the second half. Before this score the 537th had previously rolled up a total of 154 points without being scored upon.

The 537th fought back with three more tallies in the third period. The final period showed that the 99th was not dead, as they scored twice more on passes. But the 537th, not to be outdone, came back with a pass play to half-back John Boyd, who raced 70 yards to paydirt.

Casaba Stars Meet AF Five

New Toreros In First Test At Fairfield

Presidio's Toreros tested their basketball prowess last night against a tough quintet at Fairfield Air Force Base. Score of this first contest was not available at press time.

Coach Hal Fischer stated earlier in the week that the Fairfield game would give him a chance to get his first real line on this year's team, since a number of new players will be suiting up for their first local competition.

Final selection of an official team will be made shortly.

Four new men, however, have definitely been picked for the coming season's team. They are John Vesevick, who hails from the University of Oregon; a top man off the backboard; Roger Stephenson, a fast moving guard from Arlington State, Texas; Si Denenberg, a speedy little man who will be seeing a lot of action; Perry Lieber, a veteran of Pepperdine College in Los Angeles.

Returning strength for the Torero quintet will be All-Army Carrol Williams, and Tony Psaltis, Hubert Brown of Niagarsa University, and Bob Bondanza and Tor Hansen, both from San Jose State.

Loaded Gun Costly

There were 1,030 arrests for fish and game violations in June, of which 348 were for fishing without a license. Fines imposed in June totaled $24,110. The chief hunting violation was carrying a loaded gun in cars.

Take Your Choice

Trout often feed in riffles because more food is likely to be available there. However, in a given stream, most trout probably stay in the quiet pools most of the time because these offer greater protection from their enemies.

The Mix Masters took four games away from the Retorts. Goetsh was high man for the Mix Masters with a 467-176. Olapiana was high for the Retorts with a 466-157.

AAA Sparks defeated the Dispensary 4-0. Walkley was the Sparks high man with a 488-177. Shultz was high for the Dispensary with a 388-140.

The Keystone Kops managed to stay right up on top of the Presidio League by tumbling the Honor Guard 3-1. Johnson led the Kops to their win with a 562-201.

The Shalters kept the Kops honest by shutting out the Recruiters 4-0, to keep them tied for first. Opozda was high for the Shalters with a 535-200. For the Recruiters it was Bolton with a 471-163.

The Atoms defeated H.Q. Co. 6th Army 3 1/2-1/2. Purves led the Atoms to their 3 1/2-game splurge, while Henderson was high man for H.Q. Co. 6th Army big 1/2 game.

Fishing On The Presidio

We've been receiving a lot of inquiries about "Fishing." So we are giving you the dope straight from the fish's mouth!

Mr. Salmon says:

"I'm offshore and since the Special Services Officer has run out of 'Do re mi,' you have to pay $8.50 a day to fish for me. The 'Muney bait shop' is the contact for charters. You need a boat rod, salmon harness—3 pound weight and sinker release. Better buy everything you can at the PX. Buy at least three complete rigs, at least 100 yards of 35 pound test line is necessary. The skipper supplies the bait."

(Ed. Note—This is the second in a series of articles on the Reserve Forces Act Trainees at the Presidio.)

Private Howard B. Levin, 99th Engineering Company, 30th Engineering Group, is a Reserve Forces Act trainee (RFA) who doesn't miss a bet.

His six month tour of active duty will be over in two weeks, and his Army Map Reproduction training has launched him on a photoengraving career.

Levin is enthusiastic about the training he has received at the only military base map reproduction plant in the continental United States.

"The Army gave me a head start on my career and on the job training more valuable to me than a year of college."

Working in the map layout section, Levin matches color negatives before they are sent to the plate section. When the plates are ready, he then corrects the color lines on the plates.

At every step of his training, he has received instruction from his section chief, Sp. 1 Matsukawa, five of whose 10 years in the Army have been spent in photoengraving work.

Graduated from South Gate High School in Los Angeles Levin enlisted in the Reserves "to get the specialized training that the Army offered." Now, at 18, he will shortly return to his reserve unit and a new and promising trade.

Top Scientists Here

Twenty-five weapons experts and scientists will visit Battery D, 740th AAA on 25 November, 1957. Personnel visiting are from the Atomic Energy Commission, University of California Radiation Laboratory, and Sandia Corporation. All are engaged in research for the Field Command of the Armed Forces Special Weapons project, stationed at Livermore, California.

The tour will stress the field problems associated with present day Antiaircraft Weapons. They will be provided with a detailed tour under actual tactical conditions.

Flu Infection Danger Halts Well Baby Clinic

Danger of exposure to the numerous "flu type" infections now being treated at the Army Dispensary has caused temporary suspension of the popular Wednesday afternoon Well Baby Clinic and all immunization and inoculations for children under twelve months of age, except for overseas travel or special reasons, the Post Surgeon, Col. H. M. Greenleaf, announced this week.

The Surgeon reassured parents that temporary interruption of such immunizations as Polio; Diphtheria - Pertussis - Tetanus (DPT) will not lessen the protection given the child when the series is resumed.

Col. Greenleaf cautioned parents to bring children to the Dispensary should their fever exceed 104, or when fever is complicated by convulsions, fits, extreme drowsiness, an unknown rash, earaches, specific pains or any unusual behavior.

However, should symptoms indicate a mild type of flu illness, the Surgeon felt that home care would be better than possible additional exposure to more serious diseases by bringing children to the Dispensary. Symptoms include fever, mild headaches, muscle aches, nasal congestion, and in some cases nausea and diarrhea.

Col. Greenleaf recommended bed rest, aspirin, plenty of fluids and nose drops as home treatment. Aspirin dosage recommended:

- 1 to 2 months..... ¼ tablet
- 3 mos. to 2 yrs..... ½ tablet
- 2 yrs. to 4 yrs..... ¾ tablet
- 4 yrs. or over..... 1 tablet

This dosage may be given every six hours for two days. Aspirin and nose drops are available at the Dispensary without prescription.

New DOD Pamphlets

Department of Defense will distribute two new troop information topic pamphlets during November. "Soviet Tactics in the Cold War" covers a review of Communist activities from the end of World War II to recent months. "A Look at the United Nations" covers the organization of the UN and its activities in preserving world peace and improving world conditions.

Parade Here Will Honor Retirements

Captain William R. O'Neill, assigned to Post Headquarters at Fort Ord for the last four and a half years, will be honored today with a retirement ceremony scheduled at 1600 hours on the main Parade Ground, weather permitting.

Five other officers and four enlisted men will also retire this month, but will not take part in the ceremony.

Awarded the Purple Heart, Bronze Star Medal for Valor, and Combat Infantryman Badge, Capt. O'Neill has been on active duty since 1937.

The other officers retiring this month are Lt. Col. James J. Stovall, LAH, CWO Richard E. Denman, Hq. PSFC, CWO Raymond L. Twiss, Hq. PSFC, and CWO John P. Schlafay, Officers Branch, PSFC.

The enlisted men retiring are M/Sgt. Jasper G. Carroll, CMD, M/Sgt. Robert N. Zellner, CMD, SFC William H. Kilbourne, USA Pers. & Sec. Det., and Sp2 William E. Nations, USA Vet. Food Inspection.

QM Store Moving

The Quartermaster Clothing Sales Store, presently located at Building 265, will move to Building 86 on Monday, 28 October, 1957. The Sales Store will be closed for business on 24th and 25th October and will re-open at 0900 hours, 28 October in the new location.

No Major Posts Face Moth Balls

Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker announced last Friday that under steps taken to retain the broadest possible mobilization base, no major Army posts will be inactivated in fiscal year 1958 as a result of recent Department of Defense manpower reduction directives.

However, under a strength ceiling of 900,000 to be reached by 30 June, 1958, military populations at most Army posts in the United States will be reduced, Secretary Brucker said.

In a related action, Secretary Brucker said that the First Armored Division at Fort Polk, La., will be inactivated and replaced in part by the activation of an Armored Combat Command and the activation of training center.

Reduction of the training input at certain posts, transfer of some units, and inactivation of other units, will account for most of the change of population at the Army posts.

Below are listed the major posts to be affected. It was emphasized that these changes in post populations are approximate figures only, which may be amended before 30 June, 1958, if operational necessities require.

Major approximate decreases in Army posts by 30 June, 1958:

Location	Population
Ft. Benning, Ga.	6,500
Ft. Bragg, N. C.	4,500
Ft. Carson, Colo.	4,000
Ft. Hood, Tex.	2,000
Ft. Lewis, Wash.	4,500
Ft. Riley, Kan.	1,000
Ft. Sill, Okla.	1,500
Ft. Gordon, Ga.	3,000
Ft. Chaffee, Ark.	8,000
Ft. Devens, Mass.	500
Ft. Jackson, S. C.	6,000
Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.	2,500
Ft. Ord, Calif.	1,500
Ft. Polk, La.	2,500

Because of changes in operational requirements, minor additions in troop strength will be made at Fort Campbell, Ky.; Fort Bliss, Texas; Camp Wolters, Texas, and Fort Knox, Ky.

Secretary Brucker stated that these changes in post strengths were decided after detailed consideration of such factors as permanent construction, post training facilities and operational missions of the forces at the various Army posts.

Ready for Use are the Collective Protectors for hospitalized patients, one of the many items on display at the U.S. Army Chemical Corps Exhibit scheduled for today, Monday and Tuesday, at Harmon Hall. The protector is intended for use where gas-proof hospital installations are not available, for removing chemical and bacteriological agents from the air and to supply purified air.

Chemical Display Open Today

The US Army Chemical Corps Exhibit will be on public display today, Monday and Tuesday at Harmon Hall.

The exhibit features the latest equipment developed by the Army Chemical Corps for protection against chemical, biological and radiological warfare.

Among the novelties highlighting the exhibit are various types of protective masks for civilians. A Mickey Mouse type of mask for children between the ages of 3 and 6 is on display. It is felt by the Army that youngsters who normally object to wearing protective masks will enjoy wearing replicas of their comic strip heroes.

A feature of the show will be an illustration of the action and effects of the "G" or "nerve" gases which are odorless and colorless and cannot ordinarily be detected by the human senses. A newly-developed device to detect these gases will also be featured.

The exhibit will be open during the normal duty hours except for a lunch break between 1130 and 1300 hours; and from 1800 to 2000 hours. Tomorrow morning the exhibit will be open to post units only.

Down Payment By Family Okay In Medicare Ruling

According to recent Army, Navy and Air Force directives, service families are not required to settle in full for authorized medical expenses of eligible dependents incurred at civilian institutions.

Appropriate contract channels have been established, the directives point out, through which bills for civilian medical care may be submitted by physicians and hospitals for prompt payment.

In cases where wives or children received authorized civilian medical attention and the patient or sponsor paid the charges, reimbursement may be made for

New TV Series Seeks Citizen Soldier Stories

The Department of Army has announced that a television series entitled Citizen Soldier will be filmed in Europe starting November 1957.

Each program will show activities of a citizen soldier with a European setting.

Story ideas will be appreciated. Submit names, organizations and brief synopsis of story outline to Chief, Radio-TV Branch, Office of Chief of Information.

It is not necessary for the individual to have been decorated for his exploit, but it must have taken place in Europe.

In order to qualify as a citizen soldier the individual must have entered the service through one of the reserve components.

Each individual whose exploits become the subject of a TV program will receive a Citizen Soldier award, probably a $1,000 savings bond.

that part of the bill which the government would have borne under contract arrangements.

Claims for repayment for civilian medical care of dependents in ZI, Alaska, Hawaii or Puerto Rico may be made by sponsors directly to appropriate major commanders.

All Divisions Pentomic By This Winter

The Department of the Army announced on Wednesday that all active U. S. Army divisions will complete reorganization under pentomic concepts this winter.

The 9th Infantry Division at Fort Carson, Colorado, and the 1st Cavalry Division in Korea are the only two divisions that remain to be converted. This reorganization of Army divisions began in September 1956 with the 101st Airborne Division.

Non-divisional combat and combat support elements are also being changed to facilitate control and support of new divisions on the modern battlefield.

"Hope She's Got A Sister!"

Game wardens receive many strange requests, and this is especially so in outlying districts where the warden is sometimes the only representative of government for many miles.

Game Warden Jess McCabe of Fort Nelson, British Columbia, was visited by a 24-year-old Indian trapper last winter who sought aid. The young fellow asked whether the warden could obtain a woman for him because he found it lonesome on the trapline all by himself. He said that she had to be young, good looking, and a fair cook. The cooking would be fairly simple, he said, because such items as moose noses and beaver tails were delicacies and would not be part of the usual diet.

The trapper hastened to add that this was not to be considered any sort of permanent arrangement. The successful applicant must clearly understand that she would be returned home at the end of the trapping season.

McCabe is still scratching his head and wondering what he will run into next.

9th AAA Kills Nine In Red Canyon Shoot

The 9th AAA Missile Battalion (NIKE) commanded by Major John E. Doane, has returned from its annual service practice fire at Red Canyon Range near Carrizozo, New Mexico.

Firing the Nike Guided Missile at 12-foot radio controlled drone targets that can duplicate any maneuver expected of a high performance aircraft, the 9th Battalion scored nine successful missiles out of 12 fired. Successful missiles are those that detonate a predetermined distance from the tiny drone flying at approximately 20,000 feet altitude some 25 miles from the launching site.

Battery A, located at Fort Barry and commanded by Capt. Albert Baenziger, was the top battery in the 9th Battalion with three successful missiles and scored 2,765 points out of a possible 3,000. Battery C, located at San Rafael and commanded by Capt. Herman W. Groller, was the runnerup battery with 2,500 points and two successful missiles.

As a Nike Battery will fire missiles from permanent sites only in case of an actual attack by hostile aircraft, each Nike unit, in order to develop and maintain its firing skills, sends a firing team to the Red Canyon Range located near Carrizozo in the New Mexico desert one week each year.

Each unit firing is in competition with all units in the Air Defense Command. A team of expert missilemen apply exacting standards in measuring and evaluating the success of the entire operation—not merely the hits. Evaluation covers battery assembly of missiles, fire control operations, launching area procedures, actual firing, to include the time required to launch each missile.

Travel was arranged by Presidio of San Francisco Transportation Section and accomplished via chartered civilian aircraft, with all flights from San Francisco International Airport. The advance party with the mission of assembling and fueling the missiles, departed Saturday, 12 October, 1957. The main body, composed of one team from each of the battalion's four firing batteries, departed on Saturday, the 19th of October. The entire battalion returned to San Francisco International Airport Sunday night, October 27th, and assumed their normal operations in the San Francisco Air Defense Command.

Need Instructors

Army service schools have a shortage of qualified instructors and qualified enlisted personnel are urged to apply for these positions.

To be eligible for selection volunteers must be assigned to units or organizations in the continental United States and be eligible for reassignment under AR 614-240.

New AR Gives Commanders Tighter Control of Ratings

Enlisted personnel may be reduced one or more grades for inefficiency by the commanders of organizations to which they are assigned or attached, if such commanding officers have the authority to promote to the same grade from which reduced.

According to a change in Change 5, AR 624-200, dated 7 October, 1957, "inefficiency" is defined not only as "technical incompetence" but also any course of conduct "affirmatively" evidencing that an NCO or specialist lacks those abilities and qualities required and expected of a person of his grade and experience.

The reduction of non-commissioned officers to specialist grades also is permissible if the latter grade is applicable to the individual's specific MOS.

Commanding officers, therefore, may consider any act or misconduct, whether or not disciplinary action resulted, as bearing upon the efficiency of a soldier.

This definition may be applied similarly where an enlisted member is convicted of an offense, warranting reduction grade by a civil court of competent jurisdiction, without regard to whether sentence has been imposed or suspended.

ADC Slogan Drive Offers Cash Prizes

The 6th Region will conduct a contest during November and December to find the best slogan of no less than three nor more than ten words dealing with "The Army's Role in Air Defense" (example: Army Power—A Key to Peace).

This contest is open to all personnel assigned to the 6th Region U.S. Army Air Defense Command.

Entries, on white bond paper, 8 by 10½, double spaced, with name, rank, service number and organization in the lower left hand corner should be forwarded to Commanding Officer, 30th AAA Group, Ft. Barry, Calif., Attn. Special Services Officer, no later than 12 November.

The winner will receive $15 with two honorable mention certificates for the next two places.

All entries must be accompanied by a signed certificate, "If my slogan wins an award, I consent to its publication."

Reservist Says Active Duty Needs Follow Up

Typifying one of the many six month reserve officers now assigned to the Presidio is 2nd Lt. Dean B. Laudeman, platoon leader in the 537th Engineer Company.

Lt. Laudeman received his commission upon graduation from the Colorado School of Mines in May, 1955, where he participated in the Reserve Officers' Training program.

He joined the 663rd Engineers, an active reserve unit, and last summer was called to active duty. He attended a nine week Engineer Course at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, prior to his assignment to the Presidio.

Lt. Laudeman feels that the six month program serves its purpose very well. However, according to him, it must combine active duty with a good reserve program in order to make the relatively short period pay off.

The Red Challenge

"We must develop American capabilities in the general area of limited war. We must round out the spectrum of deterrence down to the level of guerrilla operations. The object of military policy is to force the conflict for power and influence out into the area of political, ideological, and economic competition, and to keep it there. This we cannot do unless we have the capabilities to fight war limited in objectives, terrain and weapons, and the evident will to use them. The Communists aim now for victory as the cumulative result of small actions and seizures which would disintegrate the Free World and isolate the United States quite as effectively as victory in a major war. And, unwittingly, the cast of our military and foreign policy conspires to assist them in producing this result. . . . As a nation we regard the Korean War as a mistake for precisely the wrong reason: It was a mistake not to have had the forces in being and the evident will to use them which would have ruled out the invasion of South Korea as irrational; it was not a mistake to frustrate Communist aggression in Korea, to pin down Communist forces in Asia for the better part of three years, and to give Free Asia a chance to get itself on its feet. . . . We have not drawn (from the Korean War) the more correct conclusions that we must have a full spectrum of deterrence to minimize the risk that limited war might again occur under circumstances where technically or politically we cannot bring to bear our atomic weapons delivery capabilities."

From "The Red Challenge and a Formula for Meeting It," by Dr. Walt Whitman Rostow, of the Center for International Studies, Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Published in the Sunday Star, Washington, D. C.

He summed up by saying that the six month program offers an individual a minimum interruption of his civilian occupation, and yet combines reserve experience to make him a useful member of the Armed Forces.

E E A Holds Meet Here; Elects New Board Officers

The Engineering Employees' Association, a group formed to benefit both civilian and military personnel of the Sixth U.S. Army Engineers, elected a new slate of officers this week.

Officers for the coming year are Mr. H. Krenkel, president; Mr. J. Miley, vice president; Mr. F. Miller, treasurer, and Miss S. Lee, secretary.

The retiring board, which included Mr. M. Kennedy, president; Mr. J. Sousa, vice president; Mr. R. Kyler, treasurer, and Miss L. Maloney, secretary, were commended for their work by Col. Seymour A. Potter, Jr., Army Engineers, honorary president of the association.

Recently Assigned

Major WILBUR H. OFFNER reported to duty this week as assistant Branch chief in Sixth U.S. Army G-4 Services Division. He came to the Presidio from duty with the National Guard, (Civilian Component) in Little Rock, Ark.

A veteran of 18 years' Federal service, three and a half served as an enlisted man, Major Offner attended Michigan State College, East Lansing. He served in Iceland in 1942, from which duty he returned to enter the Officer Candidate School, ultimately the Artillery School, Fort Sill, Okla.

As a junior officer, Major Offner was assigned to duty in the Pacific area, later in Tokyo with GHQ. In Korea he served consecutively as Battalion Executive Officer and Commanding Officer with Eighth Army Hqs.—G-1, during which time he was awarded the Greek Cross (Prize C) with Brown Crown, in recognition of his services as commander of the 15th Infantry Regiment, 3d Infantry Division, in support of Greek troops. He also was awarded the Air Medal, and the Bronze Star with two Oak Clusters.

Major Offner completed State-side duty tours in Fort Lewis, Fort Sill, Camp McCoy, and Fort Sheridan.

Major and Mrs. Offner reside in Corte Madera with their son and daughter.

The 53rd Antiaircraft Artillery Brigade at Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941, is credited with downing the first plane to fall to U. S. Army anti-aircraft fire in World War II. The last big AA battle of the war took place on Aug. 6, 1945, at Ie Shima.

Activation of the Antiaircraft Command (AAC) as an element of the Army Ground Forces of World War II took place March 9, 1942.

Odd Terms Are Life Line For Pilots In Trouble

"May Day," "Guard Frequency," "Hot Line." Strange terms? Not to Sgt. Robert Vose, chief air controller at Presidio's Crissy Field. To him, they all mean trouble! Flame out, busted gas line, wing full of gulls, whatever the cause, someone needs help and Vose is usually first to know.

On Thursday of last week at 0915 hours the international signal of complete distress, "May Day," came in over his guard frequency. He immediately relayed the message to the operations office, which in turn sent out aircraft to find the distressed pilot and notified the Coast Guard.

By 0945 the quick thinking of Vose and the cooperation of Coast Guard had salvaged a wet, but unhurt, Navy jet pilot.

The guard frequency is a special radio line which is constantly monitored in the control tower. The alertness of tower men has saved the lives of many flyers. Most signals picked up are relayed to Hamilton Flight Center, which is equipped with air rescue facilities. This relaying is done by a direct open line from the base to the flight center, known as the "hot-line."

The chief air-controller spends most of his time determining flying conditions and keeping pilots posted on field conditions. His best friend is the windsock. With an expert glance in its direction he can tell the direction of the wind and its velocity. Sgt. Vose's "Roger, clear to land" are welcome words to flyers at Crissy Field.

Since 1953 Sgt. Vose has been involved in air traffic direction in both the Navy and Army. He received his initial training in this work at San Diego Naval Air Station.

Air Control Chief
Sgt. Robert Vose

The work of the air-control section is summed up expressively in the symbol of Hamilton Flight Center—a plane held in the palm of the hand.

88-Year Tradition

A blood-chilling Confederate yell employed by Princeton to scare Rutgers' players in an 1869 encounter between the two teams was the origin of today's custom of cheering.

Good Old Days?

The base pay of a soldier at the Presidio in 1858, was as follows: Private, $11 a month; Corporal, $13 a month; Sergeant, $17 a month; Orderly Sergeant (equivalent to a First Sergeant), $20 a month.

POW Now Key Missile Expert

A former World War II combat soldier and Korea War prisoner who was released during Operation "Big Switch" is now a highly skilled peacetime soldier assigned to the 9th AAA Missile Battalion.

M/Sgt. Marvin L. Brimmer, chief maintenance mechanic of the battalion's "A" Battery, is charged with installing, testing and adjusting items of surface to air guided missile fire control equipment. This includes the ground radar sets, electronic computers, firing panels and circuits and associated power supply equipment.

Sergeant Brimmer completed a year's study at the Antiaircraft and Guided Missile School before receiving his present assignment more than two years ago.

The maintenance mechanic enlisted in the Army in 1938 with the 5th Field Artillery Regiment at Fort Lewis. Four years later he was wading ashore with the first wave of 3rd Division troops during the invasion of North Africa. The sergeant served in Europe throughout the war with the division.

In 1945 Sergeant Brimmer was graduated from the Artillery School and assigned to ROTC duty at Utah State Agriculture School.

Checking Radar equipment is a regular duty performed by M/Sgt. Marvin L. Brimmer, chief maintenance mechanic of "A" Battery, 9th AAA Missile Battalion. Sergeant Brimmer, who is on-call 24 hours a day, received his technical background at Fort Bliss, Texas.

The sergeant's next combat experience came in 1950 when he went to Korea with the 2nd Infantry Division. He was captured by the Communists in November of that year. After the prisoner exchange Sergeant Brimmer was hospitalized for a short time before entering the technical guided missile field.

31 RFA Trainees Stay Busy At Army Hospital

(Ed. note—This is the third in a series of articles on the Reserve Forces Act trainees at the Presidio.)

Private John W. Harty, one of 31 Reserve Forces Act (RFA) trainees serving with Letterman Army Hospital, performs blood chemistry tests in the clinical laboratory.

He tests for glucose, total protein, carbon dioxide, and uric acid content in the blood samples. In addition, Harty tests spinal fluids and conducts urinalysis tests.

A graduate in chemistry from Jamestown College, he considers his Army training a practical asset.

"I am gaining experience in a further application of previous training as well as a knowledge of lab techniques."

Harty plans to return to college to get his master's in education upon his release from active duty. He had taught high school classes in math and chemistry before enlisting in the Reserves.

Another RFA at Letterman is Pvt. Douglas J. Phillips, a clerk-typist in the Research and Development Section.

He types autopsy protocols, professional papers, and keeps the section's books.

A business administration major at the University of Utah, he looks to a career in business management, and regards his assignment as an "excellent opportunity to develop the ability to get along with people in an office situation."

Blood Chemistry tests are part of the daily routine of Pvt. John Harty in the clinical lab of Letterman Army Hospital.

This ability to get along with people should be second nature to Phillips. Before entering the Army, he served as a Latter Day Saints' missionary in Mexico.

Private Robert E. Aguayo, assigned to the Department of Medicine, is also a clerk-typist at Letterman Army Hospital.

He types up the daily cardiograph records and maintains the cardiograph files.

Planning on a CPA career, he enjoys adjusting to an office routine.

His opinion on the Presidio?

"I couldn't have written better orders for myself."

Reups for Far East

The teletype supervisor of Headquarters 6th Region, US Army Air Defense Command at Fort Baker, Sfc. George R. Haw, re-enlisted for assignment to the Eighth US Army, Far East Command.

Haw has completed more than 16 years, 8 months' active service, entering the service on 23 January, 1941. His other overseas assignments have been in China, Korea, Japan, France, and the Alaskan Command.

Low Strength Reserve Units Are Dropped

The Continental Army Command announced that Reserve units in communities that are unable to support them at the strength level necessary for effective training will be inactivated.

Each low strength Reserve unit will be evaluated to determine its potential mobilization strength.

The reduction was planned to leave the best qualified officers and enlisted men in 300,000 available drill spaces.

These would include graduates of the Army's six-month training program and those returning from the active Army who have a reserve obligation.

No set strength figure has been established as a criterion for inactivation, and each unit will be judged on its own merits.

Public Relations

In 1854 when work was started on Fort Point and similar works at Point San Jose, Alcatraz, and Angel Island, these spots attracted Sunday "revellers." An advertisement appearing in the S.F. "Daily Morning Call," 4 July, 1864, announced: "FOR FORT POINT. An omnibus will leave the terminus of the omnibus railroad, North Beach, for Fort Point, on the New Beach Road, on and after Thursday, 16 June, at 10:00 o'clock A. M. and 2:00 P. M. Fare 25c."

Indian Namesake

The first Indian convert at the Mission of San Francisco was named Francisco Moraga after the Presidio commandante who stood as godfather. The first marriage was that of soldier Mariano A. Cordero and Juana F. Pinto, November 28, 1776.

Tricholoma Personatum, or in plainer terms, a common edible mushroom, one of the many species found on the Presidio. The mycologist is Maurice Lemmel, clerk-typist in the Sixth Army Engineer Section, who is shown orientating two pretty Presidio WAC's, Sp.3 Marjorie Love (left) and Sp.3 Lei Simmons, in the art of safe mushroom picking.

Mycologist Finds Good Hunting Here

For the second straight week, the Star Presidian's science editor has quashed rumors about strange happenings around the Presidio.

Having just laid to rest the growing speculation over a buglike creature which was reported to have invaded the Presidio, he heard of a mysterious nocturnal being that roamed grounds collecting small saucer-like objects "which he no doubt carries back to some secret laboratory where he—well, gosh, who knows!"

After careful investigation, our mystery man was located and, to our surprise appeared to be planting mines in the ground. But after more extensive scrutiny, its real identity and purpose were discovered, and once more things are back to normal at the Presidio, we hope, anyway!

The reportedly strange being is no other than Mr. Maurice Lemmel, a harmless clerk-typist type of civilian, by title, with the Sixth Army Engineer Section! He collects mushrooms for a hobby.

Mr. Lemmel, who has been at the Presidio since April, searches for mushrooms daily. They have become part of his steady diet. "We fry them, broil them, eat them with spaghetti, and do almost anything with them," commented the Presidio mycologist.

According to Mr. Lemmel, at least a dozen different species of the best rated fungi grow in the Presidio's woods and lawn areas and are available at no cost other than the effort involved in finding and picking them. However, he warned, "Some of the most violently poisonous mushrooms grow here and so care in the identification and handling of mushrooms is very essential."

If anyone should want to pick mushrooms, Mr. Lemmel will gladly identify them in their natural habitat. He should know! For 25 years he has been picking and eating mushrooms and he still lives to tell the tale!

Finance Explains RIF Payment

Washington (ANS)—In answer to numerous inquiries, the Office of Chief of Finance announced this week that many officers affected by the RIF will draw up to $1,500 or more Readjustment Pay as well as travel allowances and a lump sum payment for accrued leave upon their involuntary separation from Service.

Speaking informally, Monday, a Finance representative explained that officers are entitled to Readjustment Pay if they are involuntarily released and if they have completed at least five years' continuous active duty in a reserve component immediately prior to their release and are otherwise qualified.

"Readjustment Pay is computed on the basis of one-half of one month's basic pay for the grade in which serving at the time of release multiplied by the number of years of active duty," he said. "The maximum amount payable is nine months' basic pay."

Upon separation, an officer is also entitled to travel allowances from the separation center either to his home of record or to the place he entered service, according to the spokesman.

"The officer may be paid this travel allowance whether or not he performs the travel," he stated. "But travel allowances for dependents may not be paid until the dependents have actually performed the travel."

The Finance representative further explained that officers separated from the service are entitled to a lump sum payment for unused leave (not to exceed 60 days) including the basic pay, basic allowance for quarters and subsistence applicable on date of separation.

Warning that no general statement could cover all individual cases, he suggested that personnel affected should resolve their questions by visiting their local Finance and Accounting Officers.

As an example of the entitlements of those presently being separated, he cited the case of a Reserve Captain with 11 years service (for pay purposes) who was released after 9 years' active duty. This officer was stationed and separated at Ft. Dix, N. J., his home being in Chicago. He was married, with two children (8 and 10 years of age) and the entire family performed travel to their home. The Captain had 60 days of accrued leave. Here are his total entitlements:

Travel Allowances for the officer (849 mi x 6¢).....	50.94
Travel Allowances for Dependents (849 mi x 12¢) (6¢ for wife; 3¢ for each child)	101.88

Four Presidios

The Presidio of San Francisco was the third of four such Spanish posts established in California in the 18th century. They were the presidios of San Diego, founded 1769; Monterey, 1770; San Francisco, 1776; and Santa Barbara, 1782.

Presidio Reunion between Miss Thesbie Smith, Sixth US Army G-2 employee, and her sister, Mrs. Myrtle Baigent, of Devon, England. The sisters ended a 44-year separation this week when Myrtle arrived from England to visit her sister.

Sisters Reunited Here After 44 Years Apart

Forty-four years—three oceans—and a transcontinental bus journey were some of the factors which first separated, then reunited two sisters at the Presidio recently.

Coming here from Devon, England, was Australian-born Mrs. Myrtle Baigent, to visit her sister, Miss Thesbie Smith, also Australian-born, now a civilian employee of the Sixth U. S. Army G-2 Administrative Section.

The sisters were brought from Australia to England by their parents when they were still children. Both attended British schools.

Myrtle headed back to Australia in 1913 and returned to her adopted country in 1919, to find that her sister, Thesbie, had emigrated to the United States. Myrtle, the eldest by three years, got married and raised a family in the famous strawberries and cream country outside London. Her sister chose the single life, and six years ago secured her present position at the Presidio.

The present reunion of the two sisters is the fulfillment of a long-cherished dream on the part of both, delayed because of family circumstances. But now that Mrs. Baigent's two sons are grown and self-supporting, she decided to make the journey here to visit with her sister who now lives in the Marina.

On arriving in the port of New York, Myrtle boarded a bus, completing the journey to San Francisco in three days and a half, without overnight stop-over. Since then, her days and nights have been a whirl of trips and tours to local points of interest.

"Having had to provide for my two growing sons in wartime England," Mrs. Baigent says, "I got accustomed early to rationing, and to thinking and shopping in terms of smaller quantities, and frequently inferior food and clothing supplies. It was a hard lesson but a lasting one, so that now I am astonished at the enormous variety of everything I see for sale in the United States."

Everything in America seems outsize in the eyes of Mrs. Baigent. The stores, the parks, the journey from the east to the west coast, seem boundless in comparison with the close and tidy boundaries of her own Britain.

"I thought, however," she added, "that I was in Torquay when I saw the palm trees of California." (Torquay is a popular tourist resort on the English coast near Devon.)

Thesbie, Mrs. Baigent's sister, claims that even after forty-four years separation, she would have known her sister anywhere. "There was a certain way I used to see her turn her head in our childhood days," she explains, "and an expression in her eyes which I identified again the moment we met in San Francisco."

One of Mrs. Baigent's sons is a radar technician with the British Government. The other is a certified public accountant with the English equivalent of International Business Machines.

"At the end of my one-year stay in America," she says, "I will have plenty to tell them about business and social customs in this most wonderful country."

History Repeated!

In 1917 the Presidio was used as a training camp for officer candidates. Of the first group of 2,500 candidates, 600 had been chosen to take the field artillery course. But in June, 1917, not a single piece of field artillery could be spared for training purposes. The trainees relied on makeshift and make-believe.

Armed Copter Shows Well In Tough Tests

An H-34 helicopter equipped with 40 2.75-inch rockets, two 5-inch rockets, nine machine guns and two 20mm cannons—believed the most heavily armed whirlybird in the free world was tested at Ft. Benning, Georgia, last week.

It is the first time a rotor aircraft has been armed with 20mm cannons and five-inch rockets. The machine guns are placed at the front and sides of the aircraft to repel attacks from all directions.

The rockets are fixed on the sides and beneath the helicopter, pointed forward. The helicopter is being tested for possible use in the Army's Sky Cav concept—where helicopters are used for reconnaissance and patrol missions, replacing the cavalry that traditionally performs this function.

"Wanted—eight good young men to drive ox teams to California." This advertisement in an Ohio newspaper caught the eye of Abraham Lincoln, as did a similar message that lured his ancestors from Hingham, England . . . to Hingham, New England, nearly half a century before.

As a young man, Lincoln was torn between wanderlust and ambition. His ambition was to enter politics and public service; his wanderlust—an endemic dream that kept recurring in the hearts of the young and the old of the generation that spawned a California Gold Rush.

Lincoln, the youth, watched the covered wagons leaving Springfield, Illinois, bearing pioneers to this new Western wonderland. Among them were George and Jacob Donner, the brothers who were members of his own Company fighting in the Black Hawk War; the two for whom eventually the famous Donner Pass in the High Sierra was named.

Lincoln, the young man, saw his closest friend, Jimmie Clyman, leave on a wagon train. . . . Jimmie, the pioneer who later established the Napa Valley vineyards. . . . He wanted to come West, yet he was drawn eastward by a stronger magnet . . . a seat in Congress, and, according to his biographers, the strong restraining hand placed on him by his wife, Mary Lincoln. It was said that after he became President, she frequently reminded him that it was her advice to him not to come West which later shaped his destiny.

But Lincoln's wish to migrate to California never wavered. As a Springfield lawyer, after he had completed his Congressional term in 1849, he used to sit at his office window to watch the steamboats filled with prospective sourdoughs as they fought their way over the sandbars on the Illinois River. He saw the gathering of neighbors assemble to set their teams up for the West country . . . the same group who later founded Death Valley and the Borax slogan.

He read in the Illinois Free Trader that "all the world and the rest of mankind are about to leave for California." This was how the gaunt and lonely young man observed the unfolding of a migratory movement which became a seed borne across the climates of all the world.

History proves that President Lincoln conceived more than a passing interest in California. During his Congressional term, the question of Statehood for this hotbed of lawlessness and vigilante committees was always uppermost in his addresses—continuing until the State was admitted to the Union in 1850. And in turn, Western recognition of his concern was manifest in the votes which poured in at the time of his nomination for the Presidency.

The then San Francisco Herald, The Union, and The Alta California, each in its own way, did what could be done to make Lincoln known. One local newspaper feature story presented the following account of the Presidential candidate: "There is a plentiful lack of foresight in his nomination . . . an extreme abolitionist of the revolutionary type . . . no knowledge or experience . . . a very commonplace man!"

A more kindly account of him was that "he stands six feet four inches high in his stockings. Always clean, he is never fashionable. In manner, he is remarkably cordial and at the same time, simple . . . when his fine grey eyes are lighted up by emotion, he would be chosen from among a crowd as one who had in him both the kindly sentiments which women love and the heavier metal of which full-grown men and Presidents are made."

The newspaper account went on to announce that Mr. Lincoln had never been accused of a licentious act in his life, of ever having touched a drink or smoked a cigarette . . . of ever having wronged anyone out of a cent or spent a dollar not honestly earned. . . . "He will take to the Presidential chair just the qualities which the country needs to save it from impending destruction."

And so the political battles waged then as they do today! But the last word didn't reach the West Coast as promptly as would news of a Presidential election—1957. For instance, the West was waiting for the telegraph line to be completed from St. Joseph, Missouri, to Fort Kearney, Nebraska, by the first day of November, 1860, but it was not finished, and it was by pony run from Missouri, Nebraska and Nevada, that a new speed record was affected . . . and at Fort Churchill, Nevada, where the last pony was stabled, the news of Lincoln's election was conveyed by telegraph over the Sierra Nevada mountains . . . to Placerville, for the Sacramento and San Francisco morning papers of November 15.

Early in 1861, California newspapers kept their readers informed of the political picture east of the Mississippi, as fast as they could pick up the bulletins from Pony Express agents.

It was on the evening of March 4, 1861, that an Inaugural Ball for President Lincoln's election was held in Platt's Hall, San Francisco.

"Let us hope," said the local newspapers, "that his administration will be successful, peaceful and glorious, and at its close as at its beginning, he may be legal President of all the States from the Atlantic to the Pacific."

By day—a cultured, articulate and well turned-out court reporter for the Sixth Army Inspector General. By night—the sweat-bathed, frenetic “witch doctor” leading his people into the deep, dark pools of ancient Voodoo rituals.

“Voodoo rituals are the basis for most of the dances in our repertoire,” says John Lewis. His avocation is leading man in the well-known Ruth Beckford Primitive Dance Group.

What’s primitive dance? Well, Lewis thinks of it as a combination of three elements: ballet, modern dance and Afro-Cuban traditional rhythms and movements. “It’s a much freer kind of dancing than either ballet or modern dance,” he explained.

Certain steps are set by the choreographer based upon a study of characteristic dance movements of African, Haitian, and Trinidad peoples. During a production, however, the dancer finds himself improvising and creating new steps as he listens to the intricate sound patterns created by the drummers.

This “freedom to create” is the reason why Lewis believes that primitive dance is a much better medium of self-expression than either ballet or modern dance.

The basic movement used in primitive dance is the body roll. This is adapted from a step found in most African ritual dances representing the movement of a snake.

Another characteristic of primitive dance is the frenzy or possession which comes as the climax of a Voodoo ritual. It is at this moment that most of the improvising takes place as the four drums beat wildly.

Lewis, who has studied dancing most of his life, including ballet and modern dance, became interested in primitive dancing in 1953 and studied for two years with Ruth Beckford, an authority on this comparatively new type of expression.

Ruth Beckford, who teaches modern dance in the recreation department of the city of Oakland, also has established a School of Primitive Dance in the same city, where Lewis assists her in teaching on Monday nights.

Primitive dancing had its beginnings back in the 20's when Katherine Dunham, a student at the University of Chicago, did original research for a thesis in anthropology in Haiti, Trinidad and Cuba. She was fascinated by the music and dances of these Afro-Cuban peoples and later started the first primitive dance group in the United States in New York. Ruth Beckford was one of Miss Dunham's students and has gone on to do much original research of her own. Critics praise her work as “strong and authentic” in its interpretations.

A typical dance in the Ruth Beckford repertoire is Afrique, a primitive episode of the Wanyika tribe in Southeast Kenya based on a Voodoo ceremony. It is divided into three parts: village life, which sets the scene, showing the natives at their daily chores; dance to banish evil spirits, after the news of a death arouses the group to chase them away by kicking and using beaters; and the ceremony of mating which enacts an ancient legend that a birth must occur to replace any tribe member who dies.

In a lighter mood is Limbo, a popular folk sport of Trinidad where plantation workers hop and shuffle under a bamboo pole. The winner is the one who dances “under the bamboo” at the lowest height, usually only 24 inches. This dance was adapted from the “Limbo” staged for Princess Margaret on her visit to Port of Spain in 1955.

Lewis has worked with Ruth Beckford as her leading man for many seasons now. Last summer he appeared in the annual summer concert sponsored by the University of California and more recently at the Sunset Theatre in Carmel on 12 October and Marines' Memorial Theatre in San Francisco on 13 October.

Their next performance will be at the New Auditorium at Stanford University on 29, 30 November at 2030 hours.

Korea Bound are four of the 537th Engineers football stars. A rough road ahead is in store for the 537th, league leaders, without the assistance of these key players (with the ball), Pvt. Frank Crua; (left to right, rear) Pvt. Noel Hildebrand, Pfc. Guy Barron and Pfc. John Boyd.

League Leaders Falter, FE Levy Hits Top Stars

The 537th Engineer Co. touch football team, currently leading the Engineer League, was dealt a severe blow this week when four of its key members were reassigned to Korea. They are Pfc. Guy Barron, Pvt. Frank Crua, Pvt. Noel Hildebrand, and Pfc. John Boyd.

Barron, who holds a B.S. in both Architectural and Civil Engineering from Harvard, played offensive left end for the 537th.

Crua, a University of California graduate, was one of the team's outstanding players. Playing as a defensive back he intercepted a total of nine passes and personally scored 19 points.

Another University of California graduate, Hildebrand, who played three years of varsity football, was a rugged lineman for the 537th and shared the team's coaching duties with Wendell Inhoffer.

Boyd, who hails from Urbana, Ohio, and was graduated from Wayne State University was a speedy halfback for the local team.

The 537th Engineers' Company Commander, 1st Lt. Robert J. Wallace, although concerned about the loss of the players, feels that his team will continue its winning ways throughout the season and the playoff.

441st Bowling Series Ends In Double Three Way Tie

The 441st AAA Missile Battalion bowling league wound up its third series of league matches this week with an unusual three-way tie for first and second place.

In first place with an 8-4 record are the Beerkeglers, Guided Muscles, and Chabot Lakers. The Lakers took an early lead by sweeping four games from the Ridgerunners, but only gained an even split with the Spacemen and Eightballers to fall into a three-way tie with the Beerkeglers and Muscles.

Tied for second are the Spacemen, Missile Masters, and Rocky Ridge, all with a 7-5 record. The Masters knocked the Rocky Ridge keglers out of first place by handing them a 3-1 loss, to gain a tie for 2nd place.

Matches will continue for fourteen weeks at the Oakland Army Terminal bowling alleys. Awards will be given to each member of the first and second-place teams, as well as to the bowler with highest average, highest single game, the highest three-game series. Also, an all-star team will be selected to represent the battalion in future tournaments.

League standings as of 30 October, 1957, are as follows:

Rifle Mag Boasts Top Game Stories

The following items in the November issue of the American Rifleman should be interesting to hunters.

The key to success in goose hunting is to know the habits of geese and to cultivate patience when hunting them.

Although hunters bagged more than one million deer in the United States during 1957, game managers in most states believe that too few animals are being taken. They attribute this partially to the slowness of the public in grasping the fundamentals concerning deer herd management, which is standing in the way of more liberal deer-hunting seasons.

According to Frank J. Floss, who has studied and hunted deer for the last 25 years, the success in making sure deer kills can be realized by removing in advance as many as possible of the potentials of merely wounding a deer.

Calling elk with an artificial bugle has reached such a high artistic level in some of the Western hunting country that it is known in those areas as the sport of kings. According to Clyde Ormond, who has been bugling for elk for over eight years, the hunter can save 90 per cent of the leg work normally required to locate the game.

Last year's 55-46 Cadet victory of 101 points was the highest scoring game in Army football history.

Champion Volleyball Sextet Readies Sked

Presidio's crack volleyball team, All Army Champions, are busy sharpening their tools in trade for another shot at all service gold and glory.

Boasting a record of two All Army titles, 55-57, the local spikers will kick off the season in a round-robin fellowship tourney slated for early December and will continue play against top service and civilian teams of Northern California Region 12 competition.

As in the past three years, Major Robert D. Jones, one of the Army's crack athletes and one of the top volleyball stars will coach and play on the Presidio six.

Jones was a top varsity end of the USC football team 1939, 40, 41, and a winner of the Bromley Football Intelligence Trophy, given annually for the highest mark in an examination on regulations and team plays.

Named Most Valuable Player at last year's All Army Volleyball play, Coach Jones said his biggest thrill came in leading the 1955 Presidio sextet to the first All Army Championship ever garnered by a Presidio team in any sport.

"We're still in the market for good players," stated Jones, "and interested personnel may contact me or one of my assistants for tryouts."

Gordon Peak and Carroll Williams, veterans of last year's team, should supply the 1957-58 team with player strength and coaching ability.

Cinch Play-off Spot With Perfect Record

The rugged Honor Guard rolled up their seventh straight touch football win of the season and another Presidio League Championship by defeating Hq. Co. USA Garrison 30-13. Carroll Williams, one of the Presidio's top athletes, led the offensive thrust of the Honor Guard by scoring twice.

Hq. Co. USA Garrison came out strong in the opening of the game, scoring the first tally, but was soon checked by a stalwart Honor Guard defense.

The Honor Guard, last year's post titlists, are favored to win the championship again this year.

In the Engineer League it is still a wide open affair with all teams scrambling for the first two slots and a berth in the play-offs.

The 537th and 21st Engineers, who are battling for first place, met each other last week in one of the toughest games of the season. The final score, 13-13.

Pacing the 21st attack were Nofio and Anderson who scored one touchdown apiece. Crua and Reed tallied for the 537th.

The 549th Engineers were jolted from second place as the result of at 24-21 loss dealt to them by Hq. Co. 30th Engineers.

The 21st Engineers kept pace with the 537th by dumping the 30th Engineers, 32-19, to register their second win of the week. Nofio and Anderson once again highlighted the 21st attack. Collins scored twice for the 30th.

B Battery, 740th, with a 3-2 record, kept their slim hopes alive by knocking over C Btry., 740th, 52-12. King for B Btry. led the touchdown parade for the winners by tallying three times.

In the AAA League the 561st stayed in the running with a lopsided win over Btry. C 9th AAA of 53-0. Smidt led the 561st offense.

Other important play-off games between the 561st, D 9th, and B 9th will determine who will represent the AAA league with Hq. Co. 30th AAA, who rolled up a record of 6 wins and 0 losses to capture their league title.

The championship play-offs for the post title will be in mid-November for the first place winners and runnersup in each of the three leagues.

Top AF Navy Teams To Vie In Power Test

The powerhouses of Navy and Air Force service football, the Little Creek, Va., Gators and the Bolling Generals, clash at Bolling AFB 2 Nov. in a game which one of the coaches has described as determining "the Eastern service champion."

Coach "Heck" Williams of the Gators said: "We have seen Bolling and realize how powerful they are and believe that they are actually stronger in depth than we are. But we don't plan to make the trip to Washington to be beaten."

Coach George Makris of the Air Force eleven pinpointed the status of the game:

"Little Creek is a well coached, well balanced team. They have defeated some of the better ball clubs in service football with early season wins over Camp Lejeune and Quantico. I consider it to be our toughest game this year and the winner is very likely to be the Eastern division service champions."

The Bolling Generals, aiming to retain their 1956 service championship, have blasted their early season foes with a powerhouse headed by Ralph Guglielmi.

The Gators, field-generated by Vanderbilt passing star Billy Holmes and loaded with collegiate stars and prospective pro footballers, had run roughshod over their foes and posted six consecutive victories at mid-season.

Test Top Sacramento Signal Depot Quintet

The 1957-58 Torero basketball team will clash with Sacramento Signal Depot this coming Thursday at the Letterman Sports Center in the official opening game of the Central Division League which includes teams from Northern and Central California.

The Toreros have been working out daily and in a pre-season game with Fairfield Air Force Base the local team racked up a total of 109 points to Fairfield's 16.

With such returning stars as Carroll Williams and Tony Psaltis, All-Army from last year's team, the Presidio quintet should prove a formidable foe.

Other player strength will be Hubie Brown, last year's captain, who hails from Niagara University; Bob Bondanza and Tor Hansen, both from San Jose State; John Vesevick, from the University of Oregon; Perry Lieber, of Pepperdine College in Los Angeles; Roger Stephenson, who played at Arlington State, Texas; Si Denenberg, from Temple University, Philadelphia; John Siemek, Dick Shinnick, Bob Jolly, Ernie Shelton, Ken Carroll and Edward Ernst.

Coach Fischer, still concerned with lack of height on this year's quintet, believes the Signal five, with Dennis Hammeke, 6'9", and William Krammer, 6'11", of the University of Utah, will give the locals a lot of trouble.

Colonel Edward B. Hempstead, executive officer of the Presidio, will begin the game by throwing in the first ball. A 15-piece band from the 6th Army Band will also be present.

The 1957-58 Toreros go into the season opener with an outstanding record to defend. Last year's team won the Sixth Army Championships, was runner-up in Army, and winners of such titles as: Northern California Armed Forces, Bay Area Forces, Central Sixth U.S. Army. They were also runner-up in the Southwestern AAU Invitational Tournament at Denver, Colo.

Game time is 2000 hours and Presidians are urged to get out and support the team.

Post Sabre Team Points For International Meet

The combined LAH-Presidio sabre team will qualify for the Mexico-California International Tournament tonight at the LAH Gym.

Those entering the events will be the World Championship Hungarian Olympic Team, the Pacific Coast Champions, various fencing clubs and college teams, and members from the LAH team.

All entries will vie for berths that will enable them to compete against the Mexican Olympic Team and the Southern California teams at Long Beach, California, on Sunday, 15 December.

The competition of the strong Hungarian team will make it difficult for all contestants.

Representing the LAH team will be Col. Laurance Brownlee, Leo Thompson, Severo Pasol, Dave Heald, and Bill Coleman.

Saturday night the LAH team will meet at San Francisco State

Charity Game Will Pit Carson And Pensacola

Fort Carson's Mountaineers, now rated fifth among all-service football teams according to the All-American Football Index, will meet the Pensacola NAS, Fla., eleven in the annual Al Kaly Shrine Game in nearby Pueblo, 3 Nov.

Proceeds from the game go to the Crippled Children's Hospital in Salt Lake City, Utah, which cares for any child, regardless of race, color or creed.

This year's game is the fourth of a series, with the Navy squad winning all three previous meetings. However, this year's Pensacola team has dropped its first two games and Carson has won its first three.

Cagle, Luther Tops As Players Says Ex-Army Coach

While visiting Germany with his son, Maj. Lawrence M. Jones, Jr., of 8th Inf. Div. Hq., Col. "Biff" Jones took a look back on his 40 years of American football.

Asked to name the three best players he had coached, the former West Point mentor and athletic director selected Chris Cagle of Army, Butch Luther of the 1940 Nebraska team, and Abe Mickal of LSU.

The Helms Foundation Hall-of-Famer named the 1945 Blanchard-Davis Army Team and Notre Dame's Four Horsemen Club of the twenties as the two best elevens he had seen in action.

Deer Kill Should Stay At Five Year Averages

The 1957 deer season closed on Sunday and the Department of Fish and Game estimated the final returns will show the hunters' bag will just about hit the average for the last five years.

Deer tag returns at the mid-way point are holding to, and in many counties, exceeding the five year average. Returns generally come in at a steady rate until mid-November, then trickle in until mid-December.

Through the 27th day of the Inland Season hunters had bagged a total of 24,746 bucks — only 1,355 less than the same time last year and only 2,261 under the five-year average (1952-56) for this period.

New QM Clothing Sales Store Now In Business

The new Post Quartermaster Clothing Sales Store officially opened this week in Bldg. 86 with traditional ribbon cutting ceremonies attended by Col. Charles G. Rau, Post Commander.

Among the new features of the shop, which resembles a department type of store, are a self-service shoe and boot section and window display cabinets for every article sold in the store.

"The main purpose of the new store was more space and the establishing of a display setup so everyone could see what they were buying, a feature lacking in the old store," commented Mrs. Lenore Grover, clothing sales supervisor.

The Quartermaster alteration shop has also moved into the new location and the store will also serve as pickup delivery point for the Quartermaster shoe repair.

Effective 4 November, the store will be open every Monday from 1200 to 1900 hours; and on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, from 0830 to 1630 hours.

Four officers from 6th Army G-2 section have left for a three-week course at the Air-Ground Operations School at Kessler Air Force Base in Biloxi, Mississippi. They are: Col. William B. Warehouse Expert Wins Top Award For Performance

A superior performance award certificate and a check for $200 went to Francis R. Welch this week.

Welch was honored for his efficient, constant superior performance as warehouseman with the Chemical Section for more than two years.

He began his civil service career with the Navy in 1940 at Mare Island, California. In 1941, he transferred to the Naval Net Depot at Tiburon, where he worked until coming to the Presidio.

From 1928 to 1939 he served with the 55th Coast Artillery in Honolulu.

Colonel Rau, Post Commander, presented the award at a ceremony attended by Post Chemical Section Army personnel and civilians, and Col. Thomas F. Bienvenu, Chairman of the local Incentive Awards Committee.

First Presidio WACs Qualify As Marksmen

Sfc. Vivian Brill and Pfc. Shirley Rodenhizer are the first WACs at the Presidio to qualify for the Marksman Medal with the carbine.

For Rodenhizer, assigned to the Post Dispensary, this is her second firing qualification, as she is already qualified with the pistol.

When the 56th Machine Records Unit went out to the range for company firing on the 22nd and 26th of this month, Col. Harry McWilliams, Chief of MRU, extended the annual invitation, to WACs assigned to the unit, to join the men in firing.

Brill was the instigator among the six WACs who accepted the invitation.

The girls were not only interested with the company in the firing, but worked in the pits as well.

The range officer, CWO Harry A. Clayton, also announced that among the men of the 56th MRU, 48 qualified as Expert, 42 as Sharpshooter, and 79 as Marksman.

PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

Friday 8 November, 1957

Famed 'Black Watch' Unit Will March Here Today

The well-known Regimental Band and Massed Pipers of the Black Watch, Royal Highland Regiment, now making an 11-week tour to 59 cities in the U.S. and Canada will be featured at the Retreat Parade today at 1600 hours.

Freedom's Cause

On this Veterans Day, 11 November 1957, the hope of peace inspired by that first Armistice Day of 1918, survives undimmed despite two fighting wars and the current pressures of the cold war.

In the Sixth United States Army, the many who are combat veterans, men who have known war at first hand and thereby helped secure American victory, know that peace will be maintained as long as the United States remains militarily strong. A trained and alert American Army is the deterrent force that constitutes the nation's and the world's surest guarantee of peace.

The Sixth United States Army subscribes to this principle in keeping itself strong to preserve the peace; yet should that peace be breached by an attack upon the United States, the Sixth United States Army will be ready to defend the security of the nation as generations of Army veterans have so gloriously done in the past.

On this day let us all pay tribute to those gallant individuals who have given their lives in the cause of freedom.

Contractors Sought

After an evaluation of work done by commercial operators in supplying the western Alaskan coast area, known as the Mona Lisa-Sea Cow sector, this year, the Army is looking for similar companies to supply all arctic regions.

Included in these areas would be the Alaskan Arctic Coast DEW-Line sites and other installations in the Aleutians.

Colonel Charles G. Rau, Presidio Commanding Officer, will review the troops commanded by Lt. Col. James F. Young. Besides the Pipers, the Sixth U.S. Army Band and the 1st and 2nd battalions will participate.

The 1st Battalion will consist of "D" Company, U.S.A. Garrison; Headquarters Company, Sixth U.S. Army; and "A" Company, U.S.A. Garrison. The Colors will follow, composed of Sixth U.S. Army and Ordnance Group. The 2nd Battalion, composed of Headquarters Company, 46th Ordnance Group, augmented by 16th Base Post Office, "C" Company, U.S.A. Garrison and Headquarters Company, U.S.A. Garrison, will complete the parade.

The Highlander Regiment dates back to the 18th Century when it was formed to police the Scottish Highlands after the rebellion of 1715. Its dark Black Watch tartan was designed to contrast with the British scarlet uniform of that time.

The pipers' full-dress, consisting of spats, doublet, plaid and feather bonnet, weighs nearly 16 pounds and requires two people and a half hour to don.

Bandmaster, W/O John Baker, Pipe Major, John McNicol; and Drum Major, Roy Dear, will lead the members of their regiment in the exciting martial skirls, which have been their specialty for almost 215 years.

Civilian employees and military personnel are invited to attend the parade.

20 Sixth Army NCOs Due At Winter Tests

Headquarters, US Continental Army Command, has announced a winter cold weather indoctrination course for noncommissioned officers.

The Sixth US Army will provide 20 of the 96 selected NCOs who will undergo the rigid four-week winter course at the US Army Cold Weather and Mountain School, Fort Greely, Alaska, from 22 February to 22 March, 1958.

The course stresses the influence of environmental factors and operations in polar and sub-polar regions, including survival techniques, mountaineering, and tactical and logistical operations.

Fort Greely, located 175 miles south of the Arctic Circle, has for the past nine years been the scene of the Army's continuing struggle against the pitfalls of cold weather warfare. Every type of climate and terrain suitable for this type training can be found in the area surrounding Fort Greely.

To qualify, a man must be either a Regular Army noncommissioned officer or a specialist of the first three grades. He must score above 90 on the aptitude area I test and be in excellent physical condition.

Forgotten Men?

In the annals of dedication and sacrifice to country there are many forgotten men; men who have died, been maimed and who have repeatedly risked everything that you, I, and our families might continue to enjoy a way of life founded on the inherent dignity of all. On Monday, 11 November, we once again honor our veterans. Let us mark this day in such a way that the defenders of our freedom will never be—Forgotten Men!

Add Green, White Scarfs To Uniform

Washington, (ANS) — The Army has announced that a green or white scarf is now authorized for officers wearing the Taupe overcoat over the new Green or Blue uniforms, respectively.

This winter officers may wear an AG 44 rayon, silk, or wool scarf with the shade 79 Taupe overcoat over the Army Green uniform. In addition, a white rayon, silk or wool scarf may be worn with the Taupe overcoat over the Army Blue uniform.

For uniformity, commanders may prescribe the material to be worn in formations.

Sixth Army Plans Are Underway

Washington (ANS)—The Army announced today that it is consolidating 15 of the 18 military districts in the Fourth and Fifth Army areas into five Corps (Reserve).

This program has been adopted for the primary purpose of effecting better command and supervision of the Army's Reserve components. Now being tested in the Second Army Area, it is too early to get a full evaluation of the program's effectiveness. However, the Army claims it is apparent that the program will improve its command and supervision of the Reserve and effect a substantial savings in money and personnel.

All 13 military districts in Fifth Army will be consolidated into four Corps (Reserve) and two of the five districts in Fourth Army will be made into one Corps.

Locations and designations of these Corps are VI Corps Headquarters comprising Michigan and Indiana at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana; XI Corps Headquarters comprising Illinois and Missouri at St. Louis, Missouri; XIV Corps Headquarters comprising Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota at Minneapolis, Minnesota; XVI Corps Headquarters comprising Wyoming, Colorado, Nebraska and Kansas at Omaha, Nebraska; and VIII Corps Headquarters comprising Texas and New Mexico at Austin, Texas.

Plans for consolidating the remainder of the military districts in Fourth Army and First, Third and Sixth Armies are being prepared and will be put into effect as they are approved by the Secretary of the Army.

Lift Freeze On Regular Army Bids

The Army reopened on 1 November opportunities for regular commissions to eligible officers serving on active duty.

This program which had been suspended for the past year will be re-instated under changes to AR 601-100 and related regulations.

The restrictive period of November-December and May-June, in which officers may apply for regular appointment, also will be lifted.

A Battle For Minds

"To the strategy of 'massive retaliation' must be added the equally important capability of 'graduated deterrence' or selective force. In other words, we must retain the basic 'know-how'—the capability—of fighting any kind of war anywhere. . . . For our security in the future may depend upon our ability to win small wars without turning them into large ones. We cannot do this today in Europe. . . . A nuclear war in Western Europe would almost certainly spread into a 'no-holds-barred' conflict, and Western Europe, in any case, would emerge a desert—a consummation not likely to win friends or influence people. . . . The objective of 'graduated deterrence' or selective force must be, therefore (as in Gilbert and Sullivan, where the 'punishment fits the crime'), an entire spectrum of military capabilities. We must be capable of fighting all-out nuclear war, a limited nuclear war, a major non-nuclear war, small-scale brush wars. But, if we want to survive, we shall avoid, like death, confining our capabilities to any one weapon, one system. We must be able to win without invoking A-weapons, if we cannot our fate is sealed."

The ceremony will be attended by Col. John S. Hartnett, San Francisco District Army Engineer, whose office has been in charge of design and construction; Col. Thomas R. W. Skinner, Commanding Officer of the Bay Area Army Terminal Center, who will accept the new installation from Col. Hartnett; Brigadier General Charles F. Tank, Commanding General of the Pacific Transportation Terminal Command, and other ranking officers and officials of Bay Area communities.

The new facility, begun a year ago as part of a program to replace outmoded wartime structures at the Terminal Center, includes an administrative building, machine, carpentry and maintenance shops, a warehouse, a railroad siding and storage bins, roads, sidewalks, sewers, storm drains, gas mains, overhead and underground wiring, hardsurfaced parking and storage areas, and thousands of feet of wire fencing. Such facilities were previously scattered around the Terminal area.

Housed in the new structures will be a group of military and civilian personnel headed by Lt.

Col. Roy W. Matz. Included are administrative workers, electricians, plumbers, carpenters, steamfitters and equipment operators.

"We aim at greater efficiency and economy in bringing these facilities together in one place," said Col. Skinner. "The Plant Engineer and his work force have the big job of maintaining all buildings and utilities at the Oakland Army Terminal, which covers over 700 acres, and at Fort Mason, with its 68 acres. They also care for our piers and wharves," added the Colonel.

SP3 James P. Anderson, Battery B, 9th AAA Missile Battalion (NIKE), Fort Cronkhite, has been selected as Soldier of the Month for the 9th Battalion.

Specialist Anderson is a Guided Missile Electrical Material Maintenance man in Battery B.

Anderson graduated from Oakland High School, Oakland, Calif., in 1955. He studied at Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Penn., until he entered the Army in April 1956. While at Lehigh he became a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity.

Entering the Army 18 April 1956, Anderson completed his basic training at Fort Jackson, South Carolina, 27 June 1956. He was then assigned to the U.S. Army Air Defense School, Fort Bliss, Texas, where he attended the Guided Missile Electrical Material Maintenance Course. Upon the completion of this course he was assigned to the 9th Battalion and has remained here since then.

SP3 Anderson was chosen Soldier of the Month Friday 1 November 1957 over three other candidates representing the other batteries of the battalion. This award is given monthly to the outstanding candidate of the four

New Proposal Would Name Defense Housing Board

A plan for a proposed Department of Defense Housing Corporation has been formed and will be submitted to Congress next January.

This plan aims to provide uniform administration of government family housing throughout the services, speed acquisition of Wherry projects and maintain a substantial volume of new construction without use of appropriated funds.

If the legislation is approved by Congress, the Defense corporation will handle all family housing assets of the military departments, collect forfeited quarters allowances and rentals and use the income for maintenance, improvement and rehabilitation of units.

In addition, the corporation would be authorized to issue interest-bearing securities to finance new construction, paying off the indebtedness from the quarters allowance forfeitures of military families occupying government housing.

Under a similar plan now used by the military departments, Capehart projects are financed by private capital.

Unusual Safety Display is one of the highlights of the Safety Program of A Btry., 740th AAA Misl. Bn., Ft. Funston. The display, built by Sgt. Francis J. La Mica, consists of a board covered with pictures of accidents, safety and driving manuals, and a list of California State highway laws; and a glassed-in sand table containing a model of the nearby intersection of Skyline and Lake Merced Drives, the scene of many motor vehicle accidents in the past few months.

Eaten Up With Himself!

For ingenuity you must hand it to Francis Wharton of Little Fort, British Columbia. He bagged his deer last fall but was unable to use the meat because he needed new teeth. He thought store teeth too expensive and decided to make his own.

He extracted the teeth from the deer, then filed and ground them (it took three hours) until they were the right size. He used plastic wood for the plate, molding it around the roof of his mouth. The deer's teeth were fitted into place and held there with household cement.

The teeth work perfectly and Wharton was able to enjoy the venison—eating it with its own teeth!

Next Step is the drawing up of a rough draft. Here, Carl Benassi is shown sketching one of the current posters on safety.

Actual Production of the poster by an unusual method, silk screen process, is pictured here. Mr. Benassi operates the silk screen after reproducing the poster by film on a plastic plate which is used in the process.

Army Posters Add Class Color To Troop Program

By Pfc. Norm Niccoll
Star Presidian Associate Editor

Have you ever wondered who makes the colorful posters you see each day on your company or office bulletin board? If you've guessed that it's some top-flight advertising agency, you're wrong. They're produced right here at the Presidio.

And if you think that it's an easy job, think again, for an awful lot of planning and preparation goes into these unusual visual information supplements.

Major Andrew H. Engel, Chief of the Sixth Army Troop Information Section, can vouch for this. He, along with Carl Benassi and Carlos Andreson, two civilian illustrators, and Herbert F. Adler, Troop Information specialist, sit down about once a week to discuss and plan forthcoming posters which are to be used throughout the Sixth Army area.

This is only the first stage. When they decide on an appropriate caption, Benassi and Andreson depart for their workshop, located in Bldg. 558, to begin research for an adequate design. When this is accomplished, Mr. Benassi makes two rough drafts, about half the size of the actual poster, and returns them to Maj. Engel for approval. Then the real work begins.

Benassi blows up the approved draft to actual size on illustration type board in india ink and sends it in to be photographed.

The transparent positive film, which is similar to an ordinary negative, is then sent back to the workshop where it is transposed on a plastic plate which is used on the silk screen, a process similar in mechanics to a mimeograph machine from which the posters are run off.

If you're confused by now, the writer was, too, until he actually saw the process in operation. If you're intrigued, take a trip down there some day and see for yourself. It's quite interesting!

According to Andreson, who was on the San Francisco Museum of Art Staff for seven years prior to his arrival at the Presidio last May, the modern silk screen process is quite unusual and has been in existence for only about 20 years. Today it is used as a fine arts medium and is known by another name, serigraphy. "The silk which is used on the hand frame is one of the finest in existence and has to be imported from Switzerland," stated the Presidio illustrator.

Some of the problems which they encounter, according to Benassi—at the Presidio for the last three years—is the pressure of deadlines. "Although we originate only two posters a month, reproducing 1,500 copies of each, there is a great deal of research and planning that goes into each poster, and then there is always miscellaneous work to be done," commented Benassi. For instance, earlier in the year the two illustrators worked on a brochure, classified at the time, "Operation Smokey," a Desert Rock Atomic experiment.

Another problem which they have is trying to prevent the colors from running out of place when the posters come off the silk screen. "And naturally there is always the problem of thinking out new ideas for the posters," concluded Andreson.

Plastic May Replace Brass Ammo Cases

Washington, (ANS) — A light-weight, low-cost plastic cartridge case for artillery shells may soon replace the traditional brass cartridge case used by the Army for more than 50 years as well as the steel case developed during the Korean conflict.

Navy scientists, working under an Army contract, have developed and successfully tested the plastic case. Now the Army will make operational and cost studies of the new case.

The Army Ordnance Corps will make tests to determine whether the plastic case, which weighs less than half as much as the metal case, is strong enough to stand the rough handling of world-wide shipping and actual use in the field under battle conditions.

Final Stage is shown here as Mr. Andreson removes the finished product from the silk screen with the aid of Mr. Benassi.

Pierson Vice Ogden As Army I.G.

Major General Albert Pierson was sworn in this week as the new Inspector General of the Army succeeding Lt. Gen. David A. D. Ogden, who retired 31 October.

The new Inspector General entered the Army during World War I and in the inter-war years served at installations in this country, the Panama Canal Zone, and in the Philippine Islands.

During World War II, Gen. Pierson was assistant Commanding General of the 11th Airborne Division, participating in the New Guinea and Leyte campaigns, the landing on Southern Luzon, and in the recapture of Manila in February, 1945.

Following the war, he held various key positions with the Department of the Army in Washington, D.C., and prior to his new assignment was Chief of Staff of the United States Army Forces, Far East.

MRU Specialist Picked 'WAC Of The Month'

A 22-year-old enlisted woman from Vienna, Ohio, waltzed off with the Presidio's WAC Of The Month honors for Company D, U.S. Army Garrison, this week.

Sp3 Martha Theis, assigned to the Sixth U.S. Army MRU, Analysis Branch, is the shy blond girl who won the laurels.

She began her week of glory by being honor guest at a surprise party given to meet the event by her section officers, Lt. Col. Harry H. McWilliams, MRU Division Chief, and Major Robert D. Jones, assistant Division Chief. Capt. Catherine Coll, Martha's commanding officer was present at the party with MRU military and civilian personnel. Her section also awarded her a three-day pass, and the Company Orderly Room excused her from details and reveille for the next week.

Specialist Theis had further surprises in store for her that same evening when she received an elegant diamond engagement ring from a young Airman assigned to duty at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Martha entered military service from her home city in 1955. She was later chosen to take IBM training at the Army school in Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, on completion of which she was assigned to duty with the 56th MRU at the Presidio.

20 Awards To Army Marksmen

Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker received 20 major prizes won by Army marksmen in the recent 1957 National Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, during a retreat parade at Ft. Myer, Va., recently.

While Lieutenant Colonels Thomas J. Sharpe and W. A. Hancock, First Lieutenants Clyde W. Lagrone and Joe A. Deckert and Master Sergeant Huelet L. Benner looked on, Mr. Brucker accepted the four cups and 16 trophies for the Department of the Army. The officers and sergeant were all instrumental in winning the awards.

Trophies and cups presented to the Secretary included the Nevada, Roumanian, Infantry, Dogs of War, Scott, Members, Leech, Presidents, Hankins Memorial, 25th Infantry Division, Engineers, Winchester, High Standard Manufacturing Company, Colt, Walker, and Military Police Corps Trophies and the Cavalry, Gold, Custer, and Randle Cups.

In all, U.S. Army personnel won a total of 29 matches at Camp Perry to completely dominate the competition.

One of the best marksmen in the FBI was passing through a small town and everywhere he saw evidence of amazing shooting. On trees, on walls, on fences and on barns were countless targets with a bullet hole in the exact center of the bullseye. So the FBI man sought out the person responsible for this great marksmanship.

"This is the most wonderful shooting I have ever seen," the FBI man said. "How in the world did you do it?"

"Easy as pie," replied the marksman, "I shoot first and draw the circle afterwards."

Slate Final Plunge

Sergeant First Class Harold McNabb and Spl Ella Rose, both of the G-3 section, announced their engagement on 31 October.

New Catholic Chaplain Here From Chicago

Chaplain (Capt.) Albert D. Bull arrived at the Presidio this week to assume his new duties as Post Catholic Chaplain, replacing Chaplain (Capt.) Robert J. Plocki, who is re-assigned to the U.S. Army Transportation Terminal Command, at Oakland.

Father Bull is the third Chicago priest to be assigned to duty at the Presidio over the past two years. He attended Quigley Preparatory School in his home city, completing his theological studies at Saint Mary Of The Lake Seminary, Mundelein, Illinois.

Chaplain Bull has completed six and a half years in Federal service. He came to the Presidio from duty with Headquarters, Stuttgart Sub-Area, Germany, prior to which he served in Korea with the Fifth Regimental Combat Team.

Conyers Named Best Soldier Of 740th AAA

"Soldier of the Month" is Sp3 Douglas Conyers of Battery "C," 740th AAA Msl. Bn., stationed at Sharp Park.

Col. D. A. Ranney presented Conyers with a check for $25, a three-day pass, a "sports sampler," and tickets for stage plays currently playing in San Francisco. His own battalion also presented him with a $25 check.

Conyers' military bearing, appearance, and tactical proficiency as a Missile Tracking Radar Operator with cross-training experience as a computer and acquisition radar operator, brought him this honor.

He has also served as a crew member of C Battery's Red Canyon Crew and at the annual service practice at Red Canyon Range in New Mexico.

Only Woman Warrant

Miss Eva I. Berry

WAC Warrant Officer Will Head Post C&A

The Presidio's only woman warrant officer — and one of less than fifty currently serving, Army-wide, is Miss Eva I. Berry, recently assigned as assistant Classification and Assignment Officer, Post Personnel.

A native of Birmingham, Ala., Miss Berry reported to her present military assignment from Fort Gordon, Ga., where she held an administrative slot in the garrison Officers Branch.

Warrant Officer Berry has completed 12½ years' Federal service, five of which she served as an enlisted woman. She received her military training at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., and she completed one foreign duty tour in Salzburg, Germany, with the 430th CIC Detachment. This is her first assignment in the Western Army area.

Don't Take Chances

If you have started, finish the series! Protect the whole family! Polio shots are available for military and their dependents at the Presidio and its sub-dispensaries.

All military personnel and their dependents are urged to take advantage of this immunization. Military personnel report to the medical facility of primary care.

Dependents may make appointments at the Post Dispensary by calling Post Extension 2285.

During the days of the Civil War, San Francisco became the enthusiastic medium by which the State of California made known to Washington her appreciation for becoming a member of the Union. After the outbreak of the Civil War, a lighthearted editorial appeared in the San Francisco Bulletin of 29 June, 1861, suggesting that "If the government is so much in need of ready-made cavalry, let it send to California. We can raise, equip, and march across the plains, in six months, ten regiments of the best horsemen in the world. We just ask to let our vaqueros have a chance."

Meanwhile, Oakland and the outlying districts had assembled a body of volunteer rookies who were hampered into soldiers almost overnight. Many of them turned out to be well-drilled and disciplined men! By October of 1861, they were on duty guarding the overland mails in Utah and the pass to the South — Yuma, Arizona.
